County Farmers In 1982 Farm Program

Base Acreage Totals Over 330 Thousand

Bailey County farmers will participate in the United States Department of Agriculture's Farm Program this year to the tune of 336,648 acres. With Friday, April 15, being the final sign-up date, many farmers took advantage of the sign-up to insure their base acreage and avoid disqualification for the 1982 program.

According to Bailey County A&CS officials, Friday's cut off date reflects a total of 63,786.9 acres of wheat, 99,515.1 acres of corn and/or grain sorghum, 715.6 acres of oats/barley and 172,649 acres of cotton were signed into the program by Bailey County farmers.

Using the separate percentages of set asides, county farmers will lay out 9,565 acres of wheat at a 15 percent set aside, 9,952 acres of corn/grain sorghum at 10 percent set aside; 72 acres of oats/barley at 10 percent set aside and 25,897 acres of cotton at a 15 percent set aside figure. This is a total of 45,486 acres set aside from the standard base acres to be out of production in 1982. A total of 1051 farms were signed up in the county program.

With Bailey County having a record of 380,417 acres of cropland in cultivation, the difference in the signed up acreage and the total cropland of about 44,000 acres can be justified by totals of hay, small grains, vegetables, alfalfa, soybeans and sunflowers that are grown but do not have a base. Other land that has been planted in such crops as wheat or grains, on farms that do not have a base for that commodity, or farms that have exceeded their base. These, of course, would not be included in the farm set aside figures.

While some would be led to believe that wheat and such other crops are merely for cover, it is to be kept in mind that wheat is grazed, and, many times cut after grazing which qualify it as a money crop, not just a cover crop. Since there is no program affecting

The Laras came to Muleshoe in August, 1981. Prior to service here, Rev. Lara graduated from the Latin American Bible Institute and pastored churches in Munday and Dallas, Texas. He also served as minister of music at the Betania Spanish Assembly of God Church in Dallas.

Following the morning services, an open dish dinner will be served by the church members.

Special music will be provided by the New Hope Singers from Lubbock. The community is welcome to these special celebrations which will be held in the church building at 415 East Avenue F in Muleshoe.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock Friday sent checks totaling $31.8 million to 962 cities as their share of the one-percent city sales tax for April. "Total payments we have sent to these cities so far this year are running more than 19 percent ahead of last year, which means sales of taxable merchandise in these cities are running that much more than 1981," Bullock said.

The City of Muleshoe's net payment for this period was $6,816.80, as compared to the 1981 payment of $4,799.64. Total 1982 payments amounted to $61,219.20, up from the 1981 payment of $56,734.33. This reflects a 7.91 percent change since April, 1981.

Net payment for the City of Dimmitt this period amounted to $6,414.87 to bring 1982 payments to date to $44,704.43. This reflects a 3.42 percent change from a comparable payment the same time last year of $6,241.15 and a total in 1981 of $43,227.76.

The City of Farwell's 1982 payments to date are $6,527.20, with $684.40 of this being the net payment this period. The 1981 payments on this date were $6,206.50 with $605.36 paid during the April period. A reflected change of 5.17 percent.

Littlefield's net payment for the April, 1982 period was $4,821.21, with a comparable payment in 1981 of $8,049.75. Total 1982 payments to date reached $72,282.53 for Littlefield as compared to the 1981 payments of $74,175.71. This is a minus 2.55 percent change.

In Morton, net payments for the period were $1,665.67, as compared to 1981 figures of $1,393.85. Total 1982 payments to date are $15,326.12, as compared to $14,932.12 last year of $6,241.15 and a total in 1981 of $43,227.76.

Is William Jordan Guilty Of Burglary?

Monday night, if you missed the solemn occasion in the 287th District courtroom in the Bailey County courthouse in Muleshoe, you missed an informative and interesting trial. Approximately 40 persons were on hand for the Muleshoe High School Civics' classes Mock Trial and watched six outstanding students in action.

Action got underway as Linda Guelker, a local attorney, acted as bailiff and asked the court to rise for the judge to enter. 287th District Judge Jack Young entered the courtroom attired in his judicial robe to call the court to order.

As a preliminary, Jean Allison, civics instructor from MHS, introduced the Regional winners of the Mock Trial team, including Sandra Graves and Kevin Robinson, as prosecutors; Stacey Barnhill and George Vela, the defense attorneys and Jimmy Green and Jamey Chancey, the dual witnesses.

Mrs. Allison complimented not only her students for their outstanding performances during the regional competition, but also thanked Ms. Guelker and Judge Young for their assistance in preparing the students for competition.

Attorney Guelker explained that the trial to be heard would be conducted under as 'real' courtroom conditions as possible, in order to impress upon the Mock Trial team the importance of various courtroom activities.

She was highly complimentary of the entire team and of students from MHS as a whole and encouraged parent and community participation in school activities.

When Judge Young asked the prosecution if they were ready for the trial of the State vs. William Jordan on a charge of burglary, Prosecutor Sandra Graves gave an opening statement. She said two questions would be considered during the trial - was a crime committed and did William Jordan commit the crime? She spoke clearly, firmly and with confidence in her opening statement.

She was followed by Stacey Barnhill with the opening statement for the defense. She gave an impassioned plea for the suspect on trial, stating that the state would not be able to prove 'beyond a reasonable doubt' her client had burglarized a home, casting doubt in advance on an 'eyewitness' who identified Jordan as the burglar.

Both the prosecutors and the defense appeared to take voluminous notes as the testimony got underway. Jamey Chancey played a dual role, for both sides in the case. IS WILLIAM JORDAN GUILTY OF BURGLARY?--Perhaps no one will ever know the verdict, but the Mock Trial Team from Muleshoe High School performed admirably and professionally in the district courtroom in Muleshoe Monday night. With 287th District Judge Jack Young presiding, assisted by local attorney, Linda Guelker, the six member team provided provocative and informative testimony and questioning. The regional winners and assistants are pictured from left, standing: Jean Allison, civics instructor from MHS; George Vela, Stacey Barnhill, Jamey Chancey, Sandra Graves, Linda Guelker, Kevin Robinson and Jimmy Green; and seated is 287th District Judge, Jack Young. By Spencer Tanksley
County Extension Agent

This is how the livestock picture shapes up for 1982, based on information from marketing specialists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A-&M University System.

Hog and Pig Outlook: During the first quarter of 1982, most marketings will come from the market hog and pig group weighing more than 60 pounds. There are six percent fewer hogs in this group than a year ago, so marketings in the first three months will probably be four to six percent below last year's levels. Barrow and gilt prices should average $46 - $49 per hundredweight during the first quarter.

Second quarter marketings will come from those pigs reported weighing less than 60 pounds; these numbers were reported to be 12 percent below a year ago. Thus market barrow and gilt prices could average $48 - $51 per hundredweight during the April to June period.

Sheep and Goat Outlook: Choice slaughter lamb prices should begin to increase in the first quarter of 1982. As cattle and hog prices improve and lamb slaughter eases back to 120,000 head per week, slaughter lamb prices should move up to the $50 - $55 per hundredweight level. Seasonal increases in April could push prices up to the $60 plus level. Maintaining these prices into June and the summer months will be difficult unless lamb marketings are more orderly and better coordinated than a year ago.

Beef Outlook: Recent government reports have been quite favorable to the cattle business outlook in 1982. Foremost to the short run market conditions was the recorded sharp reductions in cattle feedlot placements and numbers on feed. This assures fairly light supplies of beef for the first half of the year. That, combined with lower pork production and only slight increases in broilers, should allow fed cattle prices to continue their recovery.

The one percent smaller calf crop for last year suggests that feeder cattle supplies will not be too plentiful during the first half of 1982. If fed cattle prices do move higher as expected, the long awaited feedlot profits that result should stimulate the demand for feeder animals, thus boosting feeder and calf prices. By the second half of the year, the larger calf crop expected plus some residual supplies from the early part of 1982 could provide fairly large feeder numbers.

Brown warns home pesticide users

AUSTIN--As spring approaches, homeowners must once again begin their yearly battle against weeds, insects and other yard pests.

Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown warns those planning to use pesticides in fighting these pests to exercise extreme caution. "These chemicals are only as safe as the person who is using them," Brown said.

"Some of the worst problems with improper use of pesticides occur in urban areas," Brown added. "Studies have shown that in 14 U.S. cities the pesticide levels in urban soil were higher than in adjacent cropland."

A Texas Department of Agriculture study performed in 1972-73 showed that residues of pesticides were in heaviest concentrations in silt and sediment of major Texas rivers below cities, rather than in rural areas upriver.

"It is most important that the pesticide user read all labels carefully before making a purchase. This assures him warns.

"It can take a company ten years and $15 to $20 million to get a safe product on the retail shelf, but this effort is wasted if the applicator does not follow directions," he added.

The rates of application for pesticides are set at levels which are effective, but not harmful to the applicator or most wildlife. Yet, many homeowners assume that if a little does some good, a lot will do even better. This carelessness results in problems with applications.

Tornadoes kill many in several states.

wheat grazing time this year, it can be grazed as long as the producers desire. This same wheat land may also be used as set-aside acreage as long as the wheat does not head out.

While there have been some reports of producers switching crops, as from grain sorghum to cotton, ASCS spokesmen have reported that this is not the case for many, since a switch of crops could result in the loss of program benefits as well as base acreage for their farms.

Local FmHA officials report that while there is no one set solution to owner-tenant agreements in the farm community, each farmer and landlord seem to be solving their own problems, with the landlord taking extra responsibilities financially in many cases. Dryland farmers are generally staying with the 1/2 and 1/4 agreements, but a few changes have been reported along these lines, also. The majority of the changes seem to have been with irrigated farms, where excessive fuel, fertilizer and chemical bills are causing large deficit in farmer's profits. It is expected that more changes will come as the year progresses, since there is no longer an over-charge of farmers for the land to be farmed. Landlords who were never before faced with a tenant problem

Dallas received $3.8 million compared to $2.7 million last April. San Antonio received $1.6 million, compared with $1.2 million last April. Austin's check was for $1 million, compared to $878,000 last April and El Paso received $809,000, up 38.1 percent from the $586,000 check that city received last April. In the fast-growing city of Bryan, where this year's total is running 42 percent ahead of last year's total, the city received $149,000, compared with $92,000 last April.

Bullock also forwarded April rebates to the state's two Metropolitan Transit Authorities. The Houston MTA received $8 million and San Antonio MTA got $914,000.

The city and MTA sales taxes are collected along with the state sales tax by merchants and businesses and rebated monthly to the cities in which they are collected by the Comptroller.

are having to take second looks at their rental agreements, if they want to keep their farmers.

Still other landlords are resorting to custom farming procedures to ensure the land being put into cultivation.

Although the total farm situation is less than desirable, Bailey County farmers, on the whole, have been lucky enough to get financing for 1982 crops. According to reports from the local FmHA office, only a few were unable to receive financing this year and, FmHA has financed six new farmers in Bailey County this year.

action. On April 18, Jimenez Javie was arrested for public intoxication, no driver's license and no insurance after police stopped him on observing his driving behavior. The suspect refused to perform a field sobriety test and was taken into custody and placed in the Bailey County jail on these charges.

Sharon Grand Middle-Sharon Grant Middlebrooks reported the burglarizing of her vehicle while it was parked at the West Plains Medical Center on April 19. Taken from the auto was a CB radio, a tape deck, equalizer speakers, 8-track tapes, and a cassette recorder/player, all valued at approximately $500.

Robert Wilson reported a hit and run incident on April 19. Someone had backed into his pickup in front of his residence at 1822 West Avenue E, causing approximately $150 in damages.

On April 19, Domingo Davila reported a theft from a pickup parked in front of his home. A CB radio was taken, valued at about $100.

On April 20, Warren Gable reported a theft of farm tools from his pickup while it was parked in the Corral Restaurant parking lot. The tools were marked with 'WKG' and 'KG' identification and were valued at $329.50.

though he was questioned on the weather and time, it was approximately 10:30 at night and was raining, he said he could identify the suspect in light from his front yard light. He was quietly emphatic in his identification of the suspect as the burglar.

George Vela proved to be a hard hitting, self-confident defense attorney, who asked sharp and decisive questions. Kevin Robinson as the prosecutor, was low key, yet effective, as he probed the mind of his witnesses.

Polite Officer Pat Adams (Jimmy Green) responded to questions from Sandra Graves and Stacey Barnhill with quiet assurance and ever polite. He was not easily shaken, even when Ms. Barnhill started bearing down on the suspect's 'rights' and a long interrogation. He testified about finding the stolen string of pearls on Jordan when he accosted him around 1 a.m. following the burglary.

Following a short recess, the defense presented their witnesses, Shoes Klondike, or Jamey Chancey, who testified that the suspect was with him the night of the burglary, and an elusive Leroy Brown who put the pearls in a poker 'pot' which was subsequently 'won' by the suspect.

It appeared from testimony presented, that no one had ever seen Leroy Brown before the night of the poker game, and burglary, nor had anyone seen him since that night.

Last witness to testify was the defendant, William Jordan, again played by Jimmy Green. He testified as to his bad youth, and how hard he had to work. He also testified to marital problems and backed up his friend's story on the elusive Leroy Brown. He said he 'ran' from the police officer, Officer Adams, because he thought he was going to be robbed. He also stated, under oath, that he was already on probation for auto theft, but did not understand his rights when they were read to him, and did not want to be interrogated, but the officer would not stop the interrogation, even though the officer testified previously he had told the defendant he could stop the interrogation at any time he wanted to.

In closing, Kevin Robinson's statement was low-key, profound, sensible and well-spoken.

In closing for the defense, George Vela spoke very well and dramatically for his client.

No verdict was rendered. Did William Jordan commit the burglary he was charged with? And will the Mock Trial team win at state competition in Dallas this weekend. All indications point to the capability of winning at state, if they maintain the same level of professionalism they exhibited in the courtroom in Muleshoe Monday night.

Texas is almost $2 billion richer, thanks to Bob Bullock.

Since BOB BULLOCK became Comptroller, state tax collections have increased from $3.4 billion in 1975 to $8.1 billion in 1981. Inflation and growth accounted for just over two-thirds of that. But almost one-third of the increase was due solely to BOB BULLOCK's efficiency and thoroughness in collecting every tax dollar legally due the state.

That's amounted to $1.9 billion since '75, thanks to BOB BULLOCK.

The Consumer Alert

by Mark White
Attorney General

AUSTIN—A wise consumer shops carefully and watches advertising for bargains on items that are needed or desired. However, some advertising may be misleading.

In particular there is a form of advertising called "Distress Sale" advertising. All of us have seen advertising which tells of some natural disaster, unfortunate event, or unfore-

Navy beans may be new flour source

COLLEGE STATION — The newest food ingredient for cookies, frankfurters or even pancakes may come from navy beans, as a result of joint research by Texas A&M University and Michigan State University.

Under a $100,000 USDA grant, two teams of researchers are studying new methods of processing the beans and are developing five new prototype food ingredients to add convenience and functional features which should encourage their use in new products both here and abroad.

Texas A&M's research is being coordinated by Dr. Jose Aguilera of the Food Protein Research and Development Center, a division of the Texas Engineering Experiment Station.

Already, Aguilera and his staff have produced a light-textured snack from the starch flour, but they haven't yet begun work on the taste factors. The researchers also will start looking at pinto and black beans this coming year.

Meteorologist says weather gets bum rap

COLLEGE STATION — The weather has been given a bum rap for causing many health problems and it's unfair, says a Texas A&M University meteorologist.

Having the weather to blame for bad health or discomfort allows people to absolve themselves of part of the responsibility, while providing a convenient scapegoat when things occur that are not easily explained, he said.

seen development which necessitates a quick sale at reduced prices.

One example of this type of advertising is a "Fire" sale. In the event of a fire, businesses sometimes are forced to liquidate inventory rapidly because of damage to the inventory or a lack of storage space. Many times the price has been greatly reduced to speed this process and consumers can get a real bargain. However, there have been instances of businesses advertising a "Fire" sale when there has been no fire and the prices of the goods have not been lowered significantly. Consumers who have not familiarized themselves with general market prices of these goods in the local market place may be induced to buy something they may not otherwise have purchased because they thought they were getting a bargain.

Another similar type of advertising is "Going Out of Business." Here again, due to business failure, a company may be forced to sell its inventory at a greatly reduced price in order to move the goods quickly. Some businesses in the past have advertised "Going Out of Business" when they never intended to cease doing business and did not significantly reduce prices.

A "Grand Opening" sale, though not the product of unfortunate circumstances, also means savings to many customers. Stores new to an area in order to build a clientele will offer bargains. However, in some cases these sales have been extended to the point that it becomes obvious that the prices are actually the prices normally charged for the particular items and the consumer realizes no real savings.

Other types of distress sales which have been legitimately used but also abused by some businessmen are "Flood" sale, "Hurricane" sale, "Tornado" sale, "Hail Damage" sale and numerous others. All these terms lead the consumer to believe that due to some event beyond the control of the businessman prices have been reduced dramatically to facilitate the liquidation of inventory, thus providing the consumer with a genuine bargain.

The best way to protect yourself from the businesses which may use these terms falsely to attract customers is to be thoroughly familiar with the prevailing prices in your area of the brand names being offered. Additionally, become informed about the actual occurrence of the event which caused the distressed situation through the media and by reading the daily newspaper. Finally, if it is a "Going Out of Business" sale, check with your City or County Tax Assessor and Collector to make sure that the business has made the filings required by law before this form of advertisement can be used.

If you feel that a "Distress Sale" is not really caused by a distress situation contact the Attorney General's Office, Consumer Protection Division Office nearest you in Austin, Dallas, El Paso, Lubbock, Houston, McAllen or San Antonio.

The Fed

The Federal Reserve Board has long been independent of the administration in power. There was and is a good reason for this--as a safeguard against reckless or irresponsible behavior in either the legislative or the executive branch of government.

There are those now who would change terms of appointment of board members to terms corresponding precisely with presidential terms. That would, they say, enable presidents to better coordinate and guide economic policy. And that too is true. Among those considering this change is Senator Alan Cranston (D-Cal), who also has presidential nomination aspirations.

The question is whether to give up a long-held monetary safeguard, which, admittedly, has not checked congressional irresponsibility in recent decades, nor could it really hope to, or retain this safeguard. It is a question which will be increasingly debated in the months to come.

Unless there are absolutely compelling, crisis reasons to terminate the Board's independence, it would seem prudent to retain it. Board members are not elected by popular vote and they can take actions they feel best in the long term. The often-fickle pressure of the day often induces those needing votes to accept policies of expediency.

Bumpers' Wagon

Senator Dale Bumpers (D-Ark) seems to have gone off the radar scope of reason in lamenting a recent Senate action limiting school busing. He says this was the beginning of the end of constitutional government.

In the first place, the measure doesn't seem likely to pass the House. If it does, it might be found unconstitutional by the courts--that's possible.

If it passes both houses and becomes law and is not found to be unconstitutional, then school busing would be limited to fifteen extra minutes and five extra miles. The courts now limit it to 30 minutes and 10 miles, generally speaking.

Most Americans--including most voters in Arkansas--prefer less school busing as a means toward social goals. Polls on the question make this quite clear. The question then is not whether the end of constitutional government is at hand, or similar hysteria.

The question is whether the majority view on this issue will prevail. It hasn't in recent years, and chances are it won't in the future. But if it does, fine and good. The democracy we live in will not succumb and racial progress will not regress.

Senator Bumpers sounds more like an ambitious national candidate than anything else. He's often praised by the liberal, non-southern wing of the party as just that.

The Speaker Reports

by Bill Clayton

AUSTIN -- The United States is facing a serious problem of declining productivity. During the last decade our productivity growth rate declined 50%. Coupled with this alarming statistic is information from a current national survey which shows that employees now expect more from their jobs, such as higher pay, more fringe benefits, more control over their work schedule, and more utilization of their skills and abilities. One organization which addresses the challenge of resolving such employee expectations and our productivity decline is the Texas Center for Productivity and Quality of Work Life. The Center is an independent division of the College of Business Administration at Texas Tech University. Created in 1979 the Center has three primary objectives: (1) to increase productivity and therefore to enhance job security; (2) to help raise employees' quality of work life; and (3) to assist private and public organizations in providing lower costs and higher quality of products through joint worker/management participation in organizational change. Though productivity is influenced by many factors, such as slow down in investment, high energy prices, and inflation, there is no doubt that unresolved employee expectations have a negative effect on productivity. Therefore, the Center works to correlate the goals of higher productivity and better work life.

The Center diagnoses and creates work systems, or what is called work designs, for cooperating private and public organizations. New work designs aim at increased organizational effectiveness through better utilization of human resources, i.e., employee skills. In action-research projects various methods of employee input are used which in turn increase the quality of work life because workers feel a closer, more vital part of their organization.

Another type of work redesign that is used by the Center is the development and implementation of incentives and rewards to increase productivity. Workers need meaningful goals or objectives. Along with this method comes the need for measurement of progress towards these goals and feedback to the worker.

By working with employees, labor unions, and employees of each participating organization, the Center develops mutually approved new work designs to help new and established organizations to prosper. Therefore, new jobs are created, higher incomes result, and more state revenues are produced.

This Center is providing an important service not only to the organizations it works with directly, but also to the whole of our economy through its creation of innovative approaches to improving our productivity.

FISH HATCHERIES

The federal government will close 31 national fish hatcheries this fall as a savings measure unless Congress can do something to stop it.

PREDICTS DROP

Short-term interest rates will drop by 3 to 4 percentage points this year if Congress approves President Reagan's budget plan for 1983, Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan predicted recently.

ON JOBLESS RATE

A drop in the national unemployment rate below 9 percent by the end of 1982 is "very iffy" even with a moderate economic recovery, Assistant Commerce Secretary Robert G. Dederick said recently.

CAPITOL UPDATE

John Tower

U.S. SENATOR for TEXAS
142 RUSSELL OFFICE BUILDING
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20510

Every spring, many new high school graduates ready to enter the job market find they do not have the training for available jobs. In fact, lack of skills in an increasingly technical world is one of the major reasons for high unemployment rates among young people.

But vocational education can provide a path around this barrier, and I am gratified at the progress Texas has made in these programs. In 1981, vocational education in Texas served nearly 900,000 persons, 75 percent more than in 1970. These training programs were offered in 950 school districts, 48 community college districts, and through the Texas State Institute System.

Participants learned occupational skills to use in business, industry, and homemaking. Additionally, career exploratory programs were offered for junior and senior high school students to help them understand where employment opportunities lie, and to help them make realistic career choices.

Most of the Texas vocational programs with which I am familiar are structured in close cooperation with local business and industry -- enabling young people to train for jobs that will be readily available in their areas. This cooperative relationship pays off in two ways -- putting young people to work and providing needed skilled labor to the local economy.

The results are gratifying. Some 28 percent of vocational education graduates pursue additional education and training. Of the 63 percent who make themselves immediately available for employment, seven of 10 find jobs in a career field related to their training.

The unemployment rate among vocational education graduates in 1981 was just over 7 percent -- one third the unemployment rate for other people and adults in the same age brackets.

The cost of these programs, compared to the benefits received, is small. Texas spent nearly $350 million on its vocational - technical programs in fiscal year 1981, for an overall average per pupil cost of $372.

But these statistics are less meaningful than the plight of the individual young person who looks at pages and pages of classified ads for jobs, and can't find a single one for which he qualifies.

Our world is becoming increasingly complex. We have developed technology which depends more and more on skilled labor. This trend will continue. In fact, it must if we are to improve our productivity enough to compete aggressively on the world market.

We cannot afford to waste our human resources. We must improve our ability to match willing workers with productive careers.

The federal government has a long history of support for local vocational programs. As with many other educational programs, the Administration proposes a new block grant program for vocational and adult education. This action is intended to reduce paperwork and administrative burdens, and make it possible for state and local governments to target money to the most pressing local needs.

In this way, we can continue the federal-local partnership which built these fine training programs, even though our budget crisis requires us to cut overall federal spending levels.

Texas Ag Sales Reach $9.5 Billion

1981 sales from Texas agricultural products are estimated at $9.5 billion, up about a half billion dollars from the previous year. However, net profits of farmers and ranchers continued a downward trend.

"Farmers and ranchers had a lot to sell in 1981 but they had less income due to low farm prices and rising production costs," points out Dr. Carl Anderson, an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Yet the total impact of agricultural sales bolstered the Texas economy to the tune of some $35 billion. Farm and ranch assets stood at some $80 billion, or an average investment of $430,000 per farm (based on some 186,000 farms in Texas). Of course, many Texas farmers and ranchers have more than a million dollars invested in their operations, says Anderson.

As far as last year's agricultural sales are concerned, the economist points out that the livestock sector, including dairy and poultry production, contributed about $4.9 billion to the ledger. Crop sales added another $4 billion while sales from agriculturally related sources such as timber, horses, fish farming and hunting leases added another $600 million.

Beef cattle receipts alone totaled about $3.5 billion to lead all commodities, notes Anderson. Cotton sales topped all crops at $1.3 billion even with the depressed prices.

Poultry and dairy product sales were about even at $565 million and $570 million respectively, while sheep and goats brought in $146 million and swine, $116 million.

Following cotton in crop receipts were wheat, $517 million; grain sorghum, $410 million; other feed-grains, $367 million; vegetables, $298 million; rice, $290 million; and nursery plants, $225 million. Peanut sales totaled $115 million while forage sales stood at $114 million. Other crop sales included soybeans, $70 million; citrus, $65 million; pecans, $45 million; and peaches, plums and other fruit, $19 million.

Texas continues to rank third in total cash receipts from agricultural products behind California and Iowa says Anderson. However, Texas leads the nation in sales of cattle and calves, cotton, grain sorghum, sheep and wool, goats and mohair, cabbage and spinach.

As far as the total agricultural industry in Texas is concerned, about 20 percent of the state's population is involved in agriculture in some way, from production to marketing and retailing of food and fiber products. Thus agriculture continues to have a strong base in Texas even though less than three percent of the people actually live on farms and ranches, notes the economist.
