Speaking of Price Controls...

AROUND THE COUNTY

ARTHUR BARLEMANN, JR. COUNTY AGENT

As of Wednesday of this week, we have still not found any signs of the pecan nut casebearer. A number of trees around town were checked Wednesday afternoon and all were found free of the pest. No eggs or worms or damage could be found anywhere.

Sprays which are recommended by the Experiment Station and which have proven most effective for the control of the casebearer are DDT, malathion, toxaphene, or parathion. The first three are available but the parathion is hard to find. Also, it requires a little more caution in handling as it is quite toxic and can be dangerous if mishandled. Either three pounds of DDT or malathion is good; five pounds of toxaphene is the recommended amount per one hundred gallons of water. If you use DDT, you should add six pounds of wettable sulfur to each hundred gallons.

In this area, it is a good practice to add 2 pounds of 88% zinc sulphate to each one hundred gallons of spray. This combats the rosette which is very prevalent in this area. Rosette causes a bunched appearance of the leaves. They are narrow and have a reddish brown color.

To check your own trees for the casebearer, examine the brown ends of the tiny nuts for greenish-white eggs the size of pinheads. If they are found, it is time to spray. Once the eggs hatch, the worm feeds for a few days on the outside of the nuts by puncturing them. It later enters the nut to complete the cycle by developing into a moth stage. After entering the nut, control is impossible.

The swarms of candle flies or candle moths or light bugs, whichever you prefer to call them, might be the forerunner of another insect invasion in the near future. These moths are the adult stage of the cutworm. The cutworm is a general feeder insect, or one which attacks a variety of plants. Ordinarily they confine their feeding to flowers, garden plants and field plants. On occasion they do attack lawns.

At the present time, there is nothing which can be done in the way of control. The adult or moth stage does not feed and most insecticides would be ineffective. The only type that would do any good would be a spray or dust which was put directly on the moth. This is difficult to do and would be possible only where great numbers of the pests had gotten into the house and made life miserable at night when the lights are on. Of course, there is always the possibility that nothing will come of the great numbers of the moths that are present. Weather conditions or other conditions might cut down the possibility of any damage; let's hope so, at least. If the cutworms do cause damage, control measures can be taken at that time.

Reynolds Lee Foster, a Sterling County 4-H Club member, has been selected as a delegate to the State 4-H Club Council. Selection was made by R.L. Huckabee, district agent, and based on records submitted by a number of boys. Lee will be one of the delegates representing District Seven club members on the council; he will represent the boys while one girl will be chosen from the 22 county district to represent the girls.

Lee will attend the State 4H Council Workshop to be held this summer somewhere in the state. The date and place have not been elected as yet for the meeting of the council of 12 boys and 12 girls. Each of the 12 Extension Service districts have one boy and one girl on the council which determines many of the activities of the club members. Congratulations to Lee on his selection for this position!

Seale Children Get Award in Suit

In the case of Callie Seale Enloe, et al, vs. Hardware Mutual Insurance Co., suit for compensation, a civil jury found for the plaintiff in the case Monday in district court.

The suit was instituted against the company for compensation for the surviving four minor children of Willie Seale, who was killed in an automobile crash near here last year. The amount allowed was the maximum, just over $12,000, it is understood.

The case of R. L. Sprinkle vs. Gerald Andrew Reeves, suit for damages, was settled out of court on Sunday, it was said.

Eschol Crook was the foreman of the jury on the Seale case.

You've Got To Be Permanently Disabled To Get Social Security Disability Benefits

In order to receive social security disability benefits, only those are eligible who have a permanent disability—that is, a disability which is so severe that it prevents doing any substantial gainful work.

Floyd B. Ellington, District Manager of the San Angelo Social Security Office emphasized, "The disability which the claimant has must be a condition which is expected to last indefinitely and one which will not likely improve with time or medical treatment."

Many people think a partial or temporary disability is sufficient to enable them to receive disability benefits until they can return to substantial work and earnings again. In effect, they believe that the social security disability payment is a "stop gap" income on which the can depend until they are well enough to return to work. Ellington stressed that such provisions are not a part of the social security law.

"Rather," he said, "social security benefits are intended to provide some relief from loss of income due to a permanent disability." If the disabling condition will improve with time; or with medical treatment; or if the claimant can work at a job that is less demanding than his usual work, he will not be considered to be disabled under the social security law, and should not count on receiving disability benefits.

Ellington added that the local office has a booklet titled "How Disabled Must You Be?" which sums up briefly the major points of the disability provisions in the law.

LIONS CLUB

The Lions Club met at noon Wednesday in the community center for the regular weekly luncheon. President Alvie L. Cole presided.

Guests were J. M. Graham of Marfa and Jake T aylor of Sterling City.

Leroy Butler of the night-watchman committee, reported that Owen Armstrong was the new nightwatchman and he had started Monday night of this week.

W. R. Brooks of the time clock committee reported that the rule on time clocks and key stations were such (as far as he could make out) as to require two time clocks over town, and a number of the key stations strategically placed over the town, both in the business area and residential area. Horace Donaldson suggested that a committee from the club, the city and the county be appointed to look into the matter, perhaps with the state insurance commission in Austin, and see just what could be done to help lower fire insurance rates in Sterling.

Tickets will soon go on sale for the ladies night dinner and installation of officers June 28.

Woman Killed Near Carlsbad In Car Wreck

Mrs. Jones, a cook at the Carlsbad school, was enroute to the school when the accident happened. She was taken to the St. John's Hospital in San Angelo and died three hours later. She lived at 200 W. 25th St. in San Angelo.

Man Caught That Shot His Wife

Bob Cameron of Big Spring was arrested in Big Spring Wednesday afternoon. He was charged with assault with intent to murder his wife.

According to officers, Cameron's wife said as they were driving to Big Spring from San Angelo near Water Valley Cameron began hitting his wife; then stopped the car and beat her some more by the roadside. He—in the end—shot her in the fleshy part of the leg, causing a minor wound. He left her by the roadside and she was picked up by a passerby and brought to the Sterling County Hospital for a check.

The officers broadcast the description of the car and man and he was picked up in Big Spring soon. Later local officers took him to the San Angelo jail for Tom Green authorities.

TAX RENDITIONS ARE READY FOR SIGNING

W. O. Green, tax assessor-collector, has the new tax renditions ready for signing by taxpayers. He is making the rounds with the renditions and says it would be a big help if people would stop in at the office and sign their renditions. They should all be signed now, said Green.

School Exercises Close Out Year

The south and southwest got a break last week when President Eisenhower vetoed the election-year distressed areas bill which had been pushed through Congress at the behest of sections smitten with chronic unemployment caused in many instances by industries closing up and moving south.

The bill would have created a new government agency, headed by a Director who would have the power to determine which community would be eligible to get the government help provided. It provided for Federal loans and grants totaling $251 million to urban and rural areas suffering from unemployment and loss of industry.

It was estimated that 132 industrial areas and several hundred rural communities would be eligible for assistance.

The Senate bill on the same subject, approved by the Senate last year, called for $379 1/2 million to be made available for grants and loans. But the Senate accepted the watered-down House version, approved two weeks ago, for the $251 million figure.

Many valid objections were raised to this legislation. It attempts to "bail out" areas which have lost industries due to high labor costs and excessive tax rates, by pouring Federal money in to help build or rebuild factories, train workers (at Federal expense) to do new jobs that would be created, etc. Many of these industries have moved south because of a more favorable labor market, lower taxes, etc.

If the government is to begin this practice or rushing to the relief of any area that finds a factory, shut down, there would be no end to the applications and the political pressures that would be applied to get on the receiving end of this Federal largesse.

It would tend to stifle local initiative, and would cause communities to look more and more to Uncle Sam to take over their burdens for them.

Once begun, it can be certain that this sort of a program would snow-ball. Undoubtedly billions of dollars would be poured into it, and there would be no end to this new run on the Federal treasury.

The President was wise in vetoing the bill.

CARD OF THANKS

I want to thank all who helped put out the grass fire.
 Mrs. W. B. Everitt

TO OUR FRIENDS AT STERLING CITY:

The regret of my life when a approach the end of my ministry in any place is the fact of so little accomplished. I think I understand the emotion that must have prompted that lovely poem "I Shall Not Pass This Way Again." It is serious to live any segment of one's life with that realization. How I do wish I could have done more. But I shall not allow myself to be discouraged, for if one person has been helped, if one burden made lighter, then it was worth the effort.

"If I can stop one heart from breaking,
 I shall not live in vain.
 If I can ease one life the aching,
 Or cool one pain,
 Or help one fainting robin,
 Unto his nest again,
 I shayy not live in vain."

I have sought to be friendly and to express Christian love to all with whom I have come in contact. To me, love is the epitome of the Christian life. I believe that life without love is hypocrisy. I agree with Paul that it is the greatest thing in the world. Francis William Bourdillon expresses my feelings in that immortal poem "The Night Has a Thousand Eyes."

The night has a thousand eyes,
 And the day but one;
 Yet the light of the bright world dies
 With the dying sun.
 The mind has a thousand eyes,
 And the heart but one;
 Yet the light of the whole life dies
 When love is done.

Within a few days we shall be "roughing it" at our little ranch house near San Antonio. After a few months of recuperation, if my condition will allow it, Eva and I will teach a few classes of philosophy and psychology in various places in Texas. Several part-time offers of jobs are being considered also. Our chief desire at the present is to be of some service to our fellowman wherever the opportunity arises. In the words of Sam Walter Foss, we say: "There are hermit souls that live withdrawn

 In the place of their self-content.
 There are souls like stars, that travel apart.
 In a fellowless firmament.
 There are pioneer souls that blaze their paths
 Where the highways never ran—
 But let me live by the house by the side of the road
 And be a friend to man."

My Humble Thanks

I am both humble and thankful that the voters in Howard County and the 101st legislative district gave me a lead in the first Democratic primary. Because of the confidence friends have bestowed on me, I am determined to work all the harder between now and June 4 to justify their faith and to tell other voters how much I would appreciate their support. I know that no matter how hard I try, I must have the help of friends who gave so much encouragement and assistance in my first race. I appeal for their continued support and pledge that I will do all I can to see as many people personally to ask their consideration. Again, my deepest thanks for all you have done.

Fallout Shelters Can Save Millions of Americans

Many Americans near the points of bomb impact could be killed in a nuclear attack by blast, heat and initial radiation. But millions could survive by the simple expedient of protecting themselves against radioactive fallout.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER has called fallout shelters "the best single defense measure for the protection of the greatest number of our people."
 For about $25 to $150 per person, families can construct shelters, on a do-it-yourself basis, into which they can go after any nuclear attack to stay alive until radiation intensity outside lessens to safe levels, civil defense authorities point out.
 Any shelter must be equipped with the necessities of life, including food, water, first aid and sanitary supplies and lights. There must be enough for all shelter occupants for at least 14 days.
 Two pamphlets are available to help you construct a suitable basement or underground shelter. One is MP-15, "The Family Fallout Shelter," which details five basic designs of concrete block, reinforced concrete and preshaped metal. The other, MP-18, "Clay Masonry Fallout Shelters," shows five other plans for basic shelters, calling for use of clay products (brick or tile).

THESE PAMPHLETS can be obtained from your local or State civil defense offices, or by writing to Box Home Shelter, Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization, Battle Creek, Mich.
 Many persons building shelters are setting them up as recreation rooms, dens, or extra bedroom space, thus gaining multiple use of the facilities, civil defense officials report.
 OCDM encourages multi-purpose use of shelter space. Its prime concern is that such radiation-proof shelter be provided now, officials say. On the day of any attack, such efforts would be too little and too late.
