AROUND THE COUNTY by

ARTHUR BARLEMANN, JR. COUNTY AGENT

Eight 4-H Club members made the trip to the 4-H Club Round Up and state contests last week. Two mothers, Mrs. Worth Durham and Mrs. Ross Foster, also made the trip to College Station. The club members brought home two second place ratings as a result of their participation in the contests and one seventh or eighth place.

Barbara Durham and Rosanne Foster competed in the Soil, Water, and Range Conservation team demonstrations where they received second place medals. Seventeen teams competed in this contest. Barbara and Rosanne scored 89 points out of a possible 100. Each of the top six teams were separated by a single point. The first place team beat Sterling by one point; we beat the third place team by one point and so it went through fifth place where there was a tie.

The range judging team composed of James Morgan, David Foster, and Larry Stewart placed second in the range judging. They scored 864 points out of a possible 1200. They identified forty plants, placed four range plots, and scored one large plot and gave treatment methods for improving it.

James was also second high individual in the contest. He scored 311 points out of a possible 400. He received a silver medal for this in addition to the silver medals each team member received. David scored 294 and Larry 259.

The grass identification team composed of Tommy Foster, Jack Clark, and Wayland Foster also competed. Final placings have not been received and in the rush of making the awards, only the first three teams are recognized with complete tabulations mailed out later but from the information we got last Wednesday, they placed either seventh or eighth which is very well. These boys had considerably less experience than many of the other teams.

Both the range team and the grass team also were competing without alternates. Four members make up a team; in the contest, the three highest scores make the team and the fourth is discarded as alternate.

All the teams performed very well. I am proud of them and what they did in the events they participated in and know that the county is proud of the representation.

Sterling County has marked up its fifth case of screw-worms since the last issue of this paper. This one was confirmed on the Bill Cole place. It was taken from a ram, sent in, and positively identified.

The screwworm eradication program officials have made a request for help in the form of screwworm pupa. They would like to develop some of the strain of native flies found in this area, and have asked your help in doing this.

If you have a case of what you think are screwworms in any livestock, take a sample of worms before you doctor the wound and place it in a container -- no alcohol or water. A paper cup is a good container. Put some damp earth in the cup, place the worms in it and call me. I will then get them to the program officials.

RAINS ADD MOISTURE

Rains fell over the county here Tuesday afternoon, bringing .25 inch here in town and up to 3.20 inches on the George Case ranch west of town. Dayton Barrett chalked up 1.75 inches.

To the south and west and northwest, the fall of rain was heavier than in the city. In fact, fall was generally heavier over the whole county than here in town.

No higher winds on hail fell in town, but some were reported in the southern part of the county. No damage resulted.

Maybe He'll Be Back on the Job Soon

DoughBelly Price has been laid up following an operation for a tumor in the back of his brain. It was the size of a "golf ball" said his secretary. He got back home and gives his office force a lot of misery, but he is not yet on the job in full force.

His secretary said he would soon be turning out his "words of wisdom".

If any of you have really missed his column, you might pep him up by writing to him at Taos, New Mexico.

DoughBelly, who writes a column that appears in many newspapers over Texas and New Mexico, has a real estate office in Taos, that he calls DoughBelly's Clip Joint. He advertises that he is "about the only honest crook in real estate."

He says on his letterheads, "I know cattle—I know grass and I know Values."

HEALTH AND SAFETY TIPS FROM THE AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

Water safety in sports is principally a matter of knowing the safety precautions and observing them.

Deaths by drowning could be cut down to almost none if swimmers would observe a few rules -- never swim alone, or at night except in well-lighted pools, or just after eating, or when overly tired.

Deaths and injuries from diving could be virtually eliminated if divers would take the trouble to know where they are diving. How deep is the water? Are there any underwater obstructions? Diving accidents almost always are caused by diving into shallow water or unfamiliar water.

Water skiing -- a sport that is growing rapidly in popularity -- need not be hazardous. The skipper of the boat should know what he is doing, avoiding dangerous high speeds and skimming too close to docks, other boats and obstructions. Preferably, there should be a second man in the boat, and, very important, the skier should wear a life belt to keep him afloat if he is winded by a smashing fall.

Underwater swimming and spear fishing with artificial breathing apparatus, is another sport that is gaining in popularity. Here again, knowing how to swim well, how to use the aqualung and how to handle oneself under water will prevent most accidents.

In boating accidents, the cardinal safety rule is -- stay with the boat. Someone will be along eventually to pick you up, and a long swim to the shore is beyond the capacity of all but a few highly trained athletes.

Sunburn, the universal hazard of water sports, also can be avoided or minimized by using common sense -- don't stay out in the hot sun too long.

Knowledge of artificial respiration, with emphasis on the new mouth-to-mouth method, will save many people from succumbing to drowning. It isn't very difficult to apply artificial respiration, if you know how.

There are few water safety problems that couldn't be avoided by the application of common sense, coupled with at least a cursory knowledge of safety rules.

Our WASHINGTON Letter

By Congressman O. C. FISHER

The world's food conference held in Washington last week, served to point up the explosive population problem that is haunting the world.

The advancement of medical science, which is prolonging the life span of people, has served to arouse world-wide interest in planned parenthood. The capacity of the earth to provide adequate food to sustain future increases in the number of people who must be fed has aroused widespread interest. That problem is made apparent when the present tempo of increase is considered.

World population, formerly controlled by war, famine and pestilence, amounted to 1 billion in 1830. 100 years later the total had jumped to 2 billion. Last year it was 3 billion. By the year 2000, at the present rate, the world is expected to have about 6.2 billion people--double its present population.

Indeed if the present rate should be continued, 600 years from now every inhabitant of the world would have only 1 square yd. to live on! One man reckoned that by the year 3500, the sheer weight of human bodies on the earth's surface would equal the weight of the earth itself.

On of the tragedies of this explosive trend is that it is centered in some of the poorest lands of the Southern Hemisphere. Even in the USA, some 60,000 new jobs are needed every week to absorb the increase. In this country 4.4 million babies are born each year. Death totals 1.7 million, leaving 2.7 million net. Immigration accounts for an additional 300,000. Texas is increasing at the rate of about 171,000 per year.

More and more, however, the enlightened peoples of the earth are trying to face up to this problem. In India, Japan, and elsewhere, more effort is being put forth to reduce the rate of increase through various forms of planned parenthood. It is believed that the time is ripe in this country for accelerated efforts to reduce the rate of increase. A national conference was held in Washington recently, attended by delegates from every state, where ways and means were discussed for promoting birth control and stimulating more interest in coping with the problem through education and local programs.

Some experts believe that our future place in the world's picture will be determined, to no small extent, by the willingness of the American people to recognize the problem and do something about it.

Among recent visitors have been: Mr. and Mrs. David Kothmann of Mason; L.T. Youngblood of Bronte, here to attend the National Rivers and Harbors Congress and Representative Ben Barnes of Brownwood.

COLDS ARE EASIER TO CATCH THAN KITTENS—

But Simple Health Rules Help Chase the Sniffles!
Any mother knows that a child needs sufficient rest, a sound diet and warm, dry clothing to avoid lowered resistance and susceptibility to cold germs. But why not help your child to help himself avoid colds by following these simple rules of hygiene outlined by the makers of Children's Bufferin:

- Don't share drinking cups or food utensils with others.
- Always wash hands before eating and observe strict rules of hygiene in lavatories.
- Avoid persons who cough or sneeze.
- Always don outdoor clothing before going out, and remove heavy outside clothing when indoors.

If a Child Catches a Cold:

Take care immediately, keep him indoors and avoid sudden temperature changes.

Ease muscle aches, fever and discomfort with a mild pain reliever, such as Children's Bufferin, in pleasant-tasting, orange-flavored, pediatrician-approved dosages.

Avoid family contagion; give him tissues to use and a paper bag to put them in. Keep his towels, dishes, and eating implements separate.

Consult your doctor when symptoms are severe or painful.

SPRINGTIME DELIGHT

It's a rule in most homes to end a dinner with a dessert. For most family meals a taste-tempting dessert like fruit is the perfect answer. Fruit desserts are always refreshing, and there is no end to the dessert quickies you can make and serve with your favorite cookies. Here's a fresh-as-spring idea for "Party Fruit Trio" ... a dessert with a subtle delicate flavor ... just mix it up and match with NABISCO cookies.

What in the WORLD! by ONLI
Philatelic Helping Hand

An outstretched hand offers food to a bird. . . A dove feeds her young a head of wheat. . . An African farmer triumphantly holds aloft a fat ear of corn. . . A Malayan fisherman hauls in his catch. These and dozens of other symbolic scenes are imprinted on postage stamps that more than 150 countries have designed in a simultaneous salute to the Freedom-from-Hunger Campaign. The campaign was launched in 1960 by the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO) to spotlight the fact that half the world's population is ill-fed and to stimulate action to solve the problem. The United States will be represented in the stamp program by a 5-cent Food for Peace commemorative to be issued in June. The worldwide outpouring of stamps keyed to the five-year campaign's midpoint has a double purpose. It publicizes the world hunger situation and permits the public to identify itself with the campaign through the postal or philatelic use of the stamps. Says Charles H. Weitz, Freedom-from-Hunger coordinator: "Among the problems which beset humanity, hunger is the most easily understood by people of all nations. The stamp issue is a massive gesture of goodwill toward the less fortunate of the world."

Quick Roast Chicken Stuffing

Dinner parties present a true test of a homemaker's table-setting arrangement as well as her culinary skill. The food served must measure up to the table finery, hopefully without chaining the hostess to the kitchen. Modern convenience foods such as instant whipped potatoes and Brandywine canned sliced white button mushrooms help the modern hostess to short-cut dinner preparation. The Borden Kitchen shows how this can be accomplished in this recipe for a roast chicken stuffing:

- Instant Whipped Potato Stuffing
(Makes enough stuffing for one bird)
- | | |
|--|--|
| 1 (4 to 4½-lb.) roasting chicken | 1 teaspoon salt |
| 4 tablespoons butter | ¼ cup milk |
| 2 medium-size onions, chopped | 1½ cups (4 servings) instant whipped potato flakes |
| 3 (4-oz.) cans sliced button mushrooms, drained well | ¼ teaspoon black pepper |
| ¼ cup mushroom liquor | ½ teaspoon poultry seasoning |

Clean and truss bird; salt the inside. Melt butter in small skillet; saute onions and mushrooms in butter until onions are tender and slightly transparent. Pour mushroom liquor and salt into small saucepan. Cover and bring to a boil. Remove from heat and add milk immediately. Add potato flakes. Stir with a fork until all moisture is absorbed. Whip briskly. Add sauteed vegetables, pepper and poultry seasoning and mix well. Cool slightly. Lightly stuff bird with dressing and close cavity. Cover bird with clean cheese cloth which has been dipped in melted butter. Roast, breast side down, on rack, in an open roaster in slow oven (325° F.) about 1¼ hours or until tender. Remove cloth, turn bird breast side up and continue to roast 15 minutes longer. If desired, garnish with small bunches of green Thompson grapes, spiced red peaches, green minted pears . . . and parsley.

What a difference

Grandma may talk about the good old days, but a whole team of horses couldn't drag her back to an old fashioned kitchen. When you compare the two pictures, you observe an important fact. All the marvelously improved conveniences you see are made possible by electricity — every single one. Yes, electricity makes the difference, and what a difference it makes! It eliminates drudgery and creates more leisure time by performing countless tasks in the home at the flip of a switch. It turns factory wheels, lights the darkness, and does all these things effortlessly and economically. That is one of two reasons why the use of electricity is increasing here in the Center of the Southwest. The other is that more people, more businesses, more industries are coming our way. Our expansion program is keyed to this increase, for we are convinced our service area faces GROWTH UNLIMITED.

One of a series of reports by this newspaper and the Print Advertising Association on the advantages of print media

Don't you read before you buy?

Most people do. They count on advertising in print to give them the information they want on products that interest them—information on features . . . designs . . . and prices, for example. People not only read about products and services, they show ads to their family and friends; they clip coupons for information and samples; they tear out ads to take along when they go shopping.

When you add it all up, print advertising—the kind you read in the pages of this newspaper—makes sense. And because it measures up to the buying habits of most consumers, print makes sales. Most people read—and then buy. Don't you!

AUDIOGRAMS NOT LIMITED TO BEN CASEY'S WARDS

Almost weekly, TV fans hear Dr. Ben Casey give a dramatic order for angiographic studies for his patients. Long used in neuro-surgery, these pictures of the blood vessels are rapidly becoming useful diagnostic aids in other conditions as well.

The use of angiography is conclusive cerebrovascular diseases, commonly called strokes, is discussed by Dr. Sheff D. Olinger, a Dallas neurologist, in an article in the May issue of the Texas State Journal of Medicine, published by the Texas Medical Association.

Strokes occur when a diseased segment of an artery becomes obstructed and blocks the supply of oxygen to a portion of the brain. This can happen either suddenly or over a fairly long period of time. Impairment of memory, confusion, personality changes, and paralysis are usual results.

The author discusses the syndrome of "little strokes," stating that . . . this term has led us to presume that the "little strokes" are related to the occlusions of little vessels and are not caused by occlusion of major vessels. Angiographic investigation of this syndrome occasionally produces surprising findings.

Angiograms are obtained by injecting a radiopaque material into the arterial blood stream of the patient and making roentgenographic pictures of the area to be studied, in this instance the head and neck. The doctor is then able to see the blood vessels and can gain valuable information to aid diagnosis.

The angiogram is only one of several diagnostic procedures used for victims of strokes, and Dr. Olinger notes that there is considerable difference of opinion as to the ability to make accurate diagnosis of the pathologic vascular lesions which differ in degree, location, and character, it is not always possible for the doctor to determine the exact source and character of the cause of a stroke. Even so, the neurologist adds, "Angiography of the carotid and vertebral vessels is the most accurate means presently available for identification of vascular lesions related to strokes."

"There has been a dramatic change in the attitudes toward this group of diseases in recent years," writes Dr. Olinger. In the past, interest in precise diagnosis lagged because even if a physician could pinpoint the cause of a stroke, he had little to offer the patient in the way of effective treatment. Now, with advances in both medicine and surgery, several courses of treatment are available, and to determine the best therapy in each case the doctor must depend on accurate knowledge of the exact location, type, and severity of cerebrovascular damage.

As in almost any procedure of this type there are some risks involved, but Dr. Olinger reports that in his experience, in a series of 450 angiograms, used as routine diagnostic procedure, complications arose in only four patients. "These were performed on unselected cases, many of them constituting extremely poor risks on the basis of their primary and associated diseases," he writes. This low incidence, Dr. Olinger believes, is a minimal hazard in view of the anticipated benefits to the patient in terms of diagnosis, management, and ultimate outcome of the disease.

Easy-to-Get Firearms A Factor in Crime

The easy accessibility of firearms is a significant factor in murders committed in the United States today. It is a problem which the American public needs to examine closely. A recent study by the FBI of willful killings in 1962 shows why.

Of the 7,261 murders on which details were reported under the Uniform Crime Program last year, 54 percent of the victims were killed with guns, the vast majority of which were hand guns. In 18 states which have bare minimum control laws over firearms, 65 percent of the murders were committed with guns. Many states have restrictions of varying degrees; however, in 7 states which require a permit, or the equivalent thereof, to purchase a hand gun, 42 percent of the murders were attributed to firearms as compared to 53 percent for the other 43 states. Further, in two states which have stringent laws on the control of firearms, the figures for 1962 showed 32 percent of the murders were by gun.

Controlling the sale of hand guns, of course, will not eliminate all willful killings. In many instances, if a gun is not available, the killer resorts to other means. However, those who claim that the availability of firearms is not a factor in murders in this country are not facing reality.

Guns are by far the most lethal weapons used in assaults to kill—7 times more deadly than all other weapons combined. Death to the victim results in 21 percent of such attacks where guns are used whereas it occurs in only 3 percent of assaults to kill with all other weapons.

A review of the motives for murder suggests that a readily accessible gun enables the perpetrator to kill on impulse. With no such weapon available, the killer's rage may subside and better judgement prevail. And too, if the assault is made with another weapon, it may not be fatal since the victim has a better opportunity to escape or to defend himself against other weapons.

True, hoodlums and criminal gangs will obtain guns regardless of controls. During 1962, there were almost 700 felonious murders committed during the course of other crimes, such as burglary and robbery. This total also included gangland slayings and number, 52 percent were by gun. There were 39 juvenile were by gun. Of the 112 law officers who died in action during the last 3 years, 108 were killed with guns. Murders mission of other crimes will always be a problem. Usually, hardened criminals are involved. For these individuals, certain punishment is the only language they understand. Mandatory penalties, over and above the sentence for the substantive offense, for using a gun while committing a felony should be a certainty.

No one blanket proposal or universal regulation will meet the needs and requirements of all communities. The number-gun control are so varied and complex that regulatory measures must be at state and local levels. It is only at these levels efforts can be undertaken. Many communities already have local ordinances which protect the rights of society without infringing on the rights of individuals who purchase guns for protection or legitimate recreation and pleasure.

The questionable traffic in deadly weapons in many sections of our country is a disgrace. To my mind, the public has a right to expect that the distributor and the purchaser of weapons so deadly and easily concealed as hand guns must meet certain regulations and qualifications.

The spotlight of public attention should be focused on the easy accessibility of firearms and its influence on willful killings. Where local controls and regulations exist, they should be fully implemented. Where there are none, measures should be taken to protect the public's interest. Loss of human lives cannot be rationalized—certainly not until all possible preventive action has been exhausted.

ATTRACTIVE NUISANCES

Owning a swimming pool is becoming rather common in Texas and it places some legal duties on the owner. Your main duty hinges on the "doctrine of attractive nuisance" under which you become legally responsible to young children who trespass on your land.

As a rule you owe no duty to trespassers. They must take your property as they find it; if dangerous, that is their tough luck. Not so for children who wander on your land. The attractive nuisance doctrine says that if you have some man-made things on your land which entice youngsters you have legal duty to make your land safe for them.

A high tension line, an old mineshaft, a railroad turntable, or pool of clear acid may be irresistible to children. If they are likely to be attracted and unable to grasp the dangers, you have an "attractive nuisance," and you must make your premises safe.

Recently a court held that a swimming pool may be an attractive nuisance. In this case a toddler drowned in Jones' pool. Jones and the boy's parents lived across the street from each other. About 30 feet from the street, the pool was fenced but with openings through which children could enter. On weekends the Jones were not home, only the Jones' children. Animals often played near the pool.

The pool and the animals could attract a youngster; he could not grasp the water's danger. The Joneses could have had a locked gate. A jury properly held Jones responsible for the drowning.

How young is the child? Can he appreciate the dangers? How easy is it for the owner to make the place safe for children?

There are times when an older child should appreciate dangers. An older child playing on a scaffold should appreciate the dangers of height. In another case a twelve-year-old boy tried to jump on a train which was moving along a public street. When he fell he could not get damages for his injury. He should have seen his danger. Besides how could one put up a barrier along a public street which could keep out twelve-year-old boys.

A land owner may have other duties to trespassers. He cannot set a "trap" on his land where people frequently trespass, put in spring guns, or other traps to harm trespassers.

Sometimes a condition on your land may be a trap to children but not one for adults. The adult may grasp the danger of slippery algae growing in a partially drained pool, but not a child. But even with a trap on your land the attractive nuisance doctrine will not apply without some allurement or enticement to bring children to trespass on your land. Such attractions are, in effect, an implied invitation to enter. Check your place for such attractions, and in any event consider measures, such as insurance, to cover harm that may come from things on your land. And above all, keep your place safe. For all the money may not undo the harm.
