AROUND THE COUNTY
by

ARTHUR BARLEMANN, JR. COUNTY AGENT

Next week, July 25-31, has been set aside by President Johnson and Governor Connally as Farm Safety Week. Co-sponsors of Farm Safety Week are the National Safety Council and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Each year, accidents on the farm take a terrific toll of life. Last year 8,400 farm persons died as the result of accidents. In addition, 800,000 were injured, many of them permanently. The cost in dollars has been placed at $1.5 billion.

Special emphasis this year is being placed on accidents involving slow moving vehicles, chemicals, electricity, and recreation. Toll from accidents involving these has been growing in recent years. All are necessary and good servants if used properly. Misuse of any of them can result in fatalities and permanent injury. In our county, there is not much farm machinery as there is in some other counties because this is primarily ranch country. But there are some things that every operator can be concerned with in the ranching operation. Nearly every operator uses chemicals in the form of insecticides. According to the Safety Council, many mishaps involving chemicals result because in the rush of trying to get the job done, many do not take the time to read the directions. The chemicals in use now are designed to do a good job at the recommended rate. Yet, it is not uncommon to hear someone say that they doubled the rate of this or that chemical to get a better job. In such concentrated amounts the modern chemicals can be dangerous. After all, the manufacturer and the government agencies have tested these for the best results and the recommended levels. Using them at other than he recommended rate is just as dangerous as sticking a finger in an electrical outlet to see if the power is turned on.

For a number of years, farming (this includes all types of agricultural operations) has been one of the most dangerous occupations. At one time, mining was considered in this category but safety programs have changed that picture. Since most farmers are working for themselves, there is no organized safety program but each individual can have his own safety program for himself and his family.

On Friday, July 9, Texas had more than 223 cases of screwworms confirmed. This is more than the total number recorded in 1964.

According to the latest reports from the lab, the cases are decreasing in the state. Last week, six counties in the state had confirmed cases. One county, Zavala County, on the river had twelve confirmed cases for the week for the state's highest number for the period.

Sterling County has not had a confirmed case since June 27. Sterile flies were still being dropped last week as several persons reported finding new boxes. The sterile flies and the good work of the producers has paid off in stopping the outbreak here apparently. The producers are checking their livestock, they are either spraying or dusting their cattle to keep the flies off, and they are taking precautions when it is necessary to mark late calves.

Some people are having stomach worms in their sheep lately. There has been some drenching done and others are contemplating drenching. Here, too, a constant check of the animals will pay off. If the sheep are not doing as well as you think they should,

Next Week to Ft. Davis Attends National F.H.A. Convention

Philadelphia, Pa.—Jenie McDonald, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L.C. McDonald of Sterling City, was one of 1,500 teenage delegates and advisors attending the national meeting here of Future Homemakers of America. The theme of the four-day meeting was "Building Blocks for the Future." The opening keynote address on this theme was given by Mrs. Orville Freeman, wife of the secretary of agriculture, suggested programs of action youth can undertake in helping to bring about a bright, beautiful future.

Jenie, a senior at Sterling High School, served as usher at the 2nd General Session, Tuesday morning. She is a member of a group supervised by Mrs. Pete Hegt from Tahoka. Other girls in her group were Katie Garrett of O'Donnell, Stella Howle of Tahoka, Marla Bray, also of Tahoka. Nine persons of the 99 who attended the convention from Texas, are from Area II, of which Jenie serves as president.

Methodist Youth Revival Aug. 1-5

There will be a youth revival at the local Methodist church August 1 through 5. Evening services for the youth will begin at 6:30 and go till 8 p.m. then a worship service will be held from 8 to 9, said pastor Bill Wiemers.

catch some of them and check. If the skin is pale instead of pink and the eyeballs are white, it would be well to drench. If the lambs lose weight at this time of the year it will be difficult to get it back on them before marketing. Since it has turned off dry, it is possible that not all the areas will be affected by the worms. Most likely areas are those along the river and the creeks, and on the irrigated fields. The hot, dry weather may have taken care of the worms on the higher areas.

8-BALL
Yes, who would want the morning glory vines and pot growing in front of Mr. Stucke's barber shop. I wonder if they realized that these were growing along the highway? In time the beautiful flowers would have attracted tourists, our President's aim.

Why not respect other people's property.
Lena Foster

Barbecue Supper and Game with Forsan

The Lions Club decided to hold a barbecue supper on the night of July 30 at six p.m. to officially open the new Little League baseball park—at the city park. Admission to the barbecue and game will be a donation to the park fund—to help pay for the remaining expenses at the park. The money is needed to pay for two light poles, hauling of the two poles and a few other expenses of putting up the fence behind the ball grounds, etc.

Each person or family that comes is asked to bring either a salad or a dessert to the barbecue.

Guests at the luncheon on Wednesday were Dan Collier, Lee Doutht and a Mr. Stubblefield. The latter was with the Benson fruit cake company.

The club voted to get Manuel Lujan to put up the fence at the ball park. They voted to sell 50 of the fruit cakes from the Benson Cake Co.

The prize went to Hal M. Knight.

A barbecue plate will be served for a donation to the park fund to help pay off the expenses.

Comment from the Capital —

"THE RIGHT TO WORK"
by Vant Neff

Must you join a union to hold a job. It all depends on where you live. In some 31 states, if the company where you start work has a union, you either join or you're out. In 19 others, the choice is still yours — join or not — you can still get and keep a job.

How long this choice will last is up to Congress. President Johnson has just asked our lawmakers to take away that freedom.

When the Taft-Hartley Labor Act was passed by Congress in 1947, the decision was left to the states as to whether their citizens would be compelled to join unions as a condition of employment. Now 19 states have "right-to-work" laws, giving each worker the freedom to join a union or remain a non-member.

Since 1947 a handful of "big labor" leaders have kept up the fight to knock out the "right-to-work" section of Taft-Hartley, Section 14 (B). Last Fall, President Johnson promised to do this if elected. Now he has sent a message to Congress asking for repeal of 14 (B).

Many Washington insiders believe the President is paying off a debt for labor's help in his election campaign. Others say he doesn't really care whether the repeal comes through or not. It is a fact that when he was a Senator, he voted in favor of preserving this right to work. However, the bill to repeal was sponsored by Rep. Frank Thompson (D., N. J.) and hearings are being held by a House labor subcommittee.

Whatever the President's reasons, a man who carried 44 out of 50 states and beat his opponent by 16,000,000 popular votes hardly owes his election to the labor vote.

The co-sponsor of Taft-Hartley, former Rep. Fred A. Hartley, termed the President's recommendations "a ridiculous move."

He pointed out that "Bureau of Labor Statistics figures show there have been less man-hours lost and fewer strikes in non-right-to-work states than in right-to-work states."

Union leaders have spent millions of dollars fighting to repeal state "right-to-work" laws and millions more to keep states from putting them in the books. A single campaign in California in 1958 was said to have cost $2 million. Naturally, leaders want to get these funds back and into union treasuries. If 14 (B) is wiped out, dues and fees from workers forced to join up would recoup these losses. Union leaders feel that non-members get a "free-ride" from unions in the 19 states. Whatever the union gets in the way of benefits for members in a shop, non-members get too—without paying union dues or fees.

This argument is weak. Many veterans benefit from the activities of the American Legion's campaign for housing, medical care, job opportunities and the like. Yet they are not Legion members. Businessmen profit from the activities of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, but needn't join the Chamber. Many Americans benefit from the services of the American Red Cross but no one would argue that all citizens should be compelled to join, whether they want to or not.

Labor leaders also assert that the right to work has kept back economic progress in these states. This just isn't true. In ten years, 1953-63, non-farm employment increased 26% in "right-to-work" states but only 10% in others. Individual income increased 43% against 35% for the rest of the country. Real wealth produced — 60% in "right-to-work" states—36% in other states.

Industry seems to be attracted to "right-to-work" states. As Republican Senator Paul Fannin of Arizona has said: "We are convinced that it (Right to Work) has been an aid to us in our industrial development activities."

Behind the reasons unions give for the repeal of 14 (B), one fact stands out. 1956 was the peak year for union membership—17.5 million members. In 1962, the latest figures put union members at 16.6 million. This is almost a million members down the drain in six short years at a time when 3 million new workers were entering labor's ranks.

Has the Federal Government the right to tell any worker to join or starve? Most Americans don't think so. A recent national public opinion poll showed 67% of all people queried, approved of "right-to-work" laws.

How most of us feel was summarized by a Miami attorney, Bernard B. Weksler, before the U. S. Supreme Court. "This right to work is a large ingredient in the civil liberty of the citizen. The right to work is equivalent to the right to eat; and . . . to make one's bread depend on church or union membership or forced payment of money to a union as a condition of employment would be the worst species of anti-Americanism."

Labor leaders have gone too far in this latest attempt to extend their monopoly powers. Witnesses before the subcommittee say they will press for secret ballot elections for union membership drives, national "right-to-work" laws, as well as amendments to do away with most of the special privileges unions now enjoy.

As one of America's great weekly magazines wrote: "Let the federal government face up honestly to the fact that 'free collective bargaining' is impossible when one party comes to the table with monopoly powers. Labor union membership should be voluntary—not compulsory." But the pressures on the Congress are tremendous, including threats to kill their chances of re-election unless they serve Big Labor's ambitions. If you believe in freedom of choice instead of compulsion, you would do well to let your Senators and Congressmen know it.

Make It Yourself With Wool

"Sew Now! Fly Later! Win a European Holiday!" So state bulletins being distributed now by the Woman's Auxiliary to the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association to enlist young women in the 1965-66 Make-It-Yourself-With-Wool Contest.

District 4 contest is set for Dec. 4 at Angelo State College, the state contest for Jan. 7 and 8 at Texas A&M University.

Entry forms are available from home demonstration agents and will be in the hands of home economics teachers.

Mrs. Percy Pace, Home Economics Department Angelo State College, is director of District 4 which includes the counties of Brown, Coke, Coleman, Comanche, Concho, Reagan, Glasscock, Irion, Runnels, Sterling, Tom Green, and Upton.

The Twin Mt. Unit, T. S. & G. R. A. Auxiliary, is assisting Mrs. Pace in contacting agents and teachers and in distributing entry blanks to the towns in the 12 counties. Mrs. Pace has arranged a workshop for August and is urging potential entrants to plan early on their patterns and materials and stressed that entrants buy only 100% wool, loomed or knitted or felted in America. Any imports are unacceptable.

There will be four divisions: Sub-Deb, 10 to 13 inclusive; Junior, 14 to 16 inclusive; Senior, 17 to 21 inclusive; Adult, 22 and over. Texas is one of the states to sponsor an adult division. The Twin Mt. auxiliary is offering two prizes in the adult division for District 4—$20 cash for first place winner and a gift, yet to be selected, for second place, according to Mrs. Carroll Farmer, unit chairman.

Contestants may use commercial patterns or an original design. They are reminded to select a fashionable design coordinated with the contestant and the chosen fabric. All contestants serve as their own models.

Make-It-Yourself-With-Wool contests in Texas are sponsored by the American Wool Council, the Women's Auxiliary to the National Wool Growers' Association, and the Texas Sheep & Goat Raisers' Association. Mrs. S. M. Harvick of Ozona is director for Texas.

TEENAGE COMBO REALLY SWINGS ALONG

(From the Dallas Times-Herald)

The four young musicians slashed their way through the last strident strains of something called "The Jolly Green Giant" and silence meekly returned to the room.

Known collectively and professionally as the "Gents," the four Richardson youngsters are among the youngest and more successful practitioners of the teen-age combo cult that has swept Dallas County suburbia from stem to stern.

A year ago, three members of this promising organization didn't know a chord from a ball of twine or an electric guitar from a bass fiddle.

Today, however, a passing fad has turned into long hours of lessons and practice sessions and the Gents are a virtual fixture with area teen-age audiences. And many an adult has caught himself patting his foot to their driving beat.

Together since February, they have already outlasted most of the combos that sprouted like mushrooms a few months ago, and now promising job offers are beginning to trickle in.

They have managed somehow to fit their music in between school work, football, paper routes and Little League baseball.

"Most of the other combos are just fooling around", says tall, slender Mark Moran, 14, the rhythm guitarist.

Youngest member of the group is Hull Barbee, 13, a talented drummer who made first chair on the all-region band last year and who—despite his tender years—is the keystone of the combo.

The other members are Wayne Reneau, 14, a husky athletic type who plays lead guitar, and Stan Dixon, 14, the pint-sized bass guitarist.

The Gents are now playing monthly engagements—"for as long as we want to do it"—at the Lake Rockwall Country Club. They were featured performers in Richardson's "Old Fashioned Fourth" celebration and appeared in last fall's city wide talent show.

They arrange much of their own music. Their stock in trade is the wild music to which their teen-age fans dance the frug, the swim, the hammer, the hitch-hiker and other A Go-Go routines.

They like the music, but shake their heads in embarrassment when it comes to the dances themselves.

"Man, I can't dance to that stuff" says one sheepishly.

They do offer a current definition of A Go-Go, in case the old folks have been wondering.

"It's just a state of being" shrugs Mike Moran.

You can have the vaunted Beatles as far as the Gents are concerned. And you can have their haircuts, too.

"An over-rated bunch of dopes" Mike pronounces caustically.

The Gents are high on the Beachboys and the Ventures, but their favorite single performer is an "old man" named Elvis Presley.

"He's symbolic of the clean cut American boy," Wayne insists with a straight face. "Besides, he doesn't scream like the Beatles—he sings."

Well, combo like that might go over good here for a teenage party.

Safety Aloft

Airline travelers — particularly jet-born passengers — are flying safer than ever before, says the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO).

Statistics just compiled from the 108 member countries of ICAO, the United Nations' air safety agency, show that 1964 was by far the safest year for scheduled airlines. ICAO adds that jetliners, which now provide 72 percent of total available space, had only about half the accident rate of turbo-prop and piston-engined planes.

Measured by fatalities per 100 million passenger miles, last year's death rate was .61 — or 22.5 percent lower than the previous best year, 1963. Noting that this was the fourth successive year of improvement, the agency concludes that ICAO's job of reducing air accidents worldwide "is producing substantial results."

Translating the statistics into terms of human lives saved, ICAO says: "Had the accident rates of 10 years ago been applicable to 1964, there would have been about 50 fatal accidents instead of the actual 21 on scheduled air services — and about 1500 passenger fatalities instead of the actual 647."

NEW CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION

A new examination for Immigration Patrol Inspector has been announced by the U. S. Civil Service Commission, for filling position paying $6,050 a year with the Immigration and Naturalization Service of the U. S. Department of Justice.

These positions offer young men interested in immigration law enforcement an opportunity to begin a career in such work with on-the-job training for positions of greater responsibility. No experience is required for these positions. To qualify, applicants must pass a written test of verbal abilities, judgement, and aptitude for learning a foreign language; those who pass the test will be interviewed to determine if they have the personal qualities needed for the work. Since the duties are arduous, applicants must be in sound physical condition.

Full information is given in Announcement No. 359-B. Applications will be accepted by the Board of Examiners, Immigration and Naturalization Service, Washington, D. C. 20536, until July 8, 1965.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces that an examination is now open for filling male and female Specialist positions at Federal penal and correctional institutions, the District of Columbia Department of Corrections, and in the United States Board of Parole. Appointments may be made at grade GS-7 ($6,050 a year) or GS-9 ($7,220 a year) depending upon the qualifications of the applicant.

To qualify, all applicants must have successfully completed a course of study leading to a bachelor's degree from an accredited college or uni-

Social Security Tips

Will your social security monthly retirement check be $100 or $120? If your wife claims her payments when she's 62, will they increase when she reaches 65? These are some of the question you might like to have answered before you retire. Floyd B. Ellington, District Manager of the office in San Angelo said it's a good idea to visit their office about three months before that date. There is an advantage of your applying well ahead of time. Most applications go through without any trouble, but every once in a while someone has trouble proving his age or providing some other form of needed evidence. When that happens everything grinds to a stop until a satisfactory age or birth record or other proof is supplied. If you wait until you retire to make your claim, and you don't have the records you need, your first check may be delayed. If you don't need your social security right away, it won't matter, but most folks count on that first check as part of their post-retirement budget.

When you visit the social security office three months before retirement, there are some records you'll need to take. The best way to find out what you should take is to phone ahead. In addition to a record of your age, you may need to taken your last withholding tax statement. If your wife is 62 and wants to apply for benefits also, she'll need a record of her age. If you call the social security office before you pay the pre-retirement visit, they can tell you exactly what you'll need. If there's some record you don't have, they can usually help you get it.

County Joins in State
 Wide Amendment
 Voting

In compliance with a proclamation by Governor John Connally, County Judge W.R. Brooks has ordered a special election to be held in Sterling County on Tuesday, the seventh of September, for the purpose of deciding on the adoption or rejection of an amendment to the constitution of Texas.

The lone amendment to be voted on at the special election, would increase the membership of the Texas Senate from 31 to 39 members, retaining the present membership of the House of Representatives, requiring appointment of the Senate according to population, and deleting the limitation that no single county is entitled to more than one Senator.

The election will be held countywide, in the usual voting places, Judge Brooks announced, and polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. A poll tax receipt or exemption will be necessary to qualify a voter to cast a ballot in the special amendment election.

In Sterling County, all who paid poll taxes are listed on a poll list kept at the voting place.

Our WASHINGTON Letter

 By Congressman
O. C. FISHER

Adlai Stevenson's sudden death came as a shock. As a member of the intelligentsia, he was too liberal and abstract to be President—particularly against the popular Eisenhower. But as U.S. spokesman at the U.N., he performed brilliantly, chiding the Russians with his sharp wit and penetrating revelation of the bugs in the Communist doctrine. He was an able advocate of America's foreign policy, and portrayed a finesse that was disarming and inoffensive to the most hardened of his adversaries. But he was firm and eloquent.

Stevenson's wit was comparable to that of Lincoln and Churchill. He made the maximum use of this in his political battles. He said of Eisenhower's "crusade"—"The General has dedicated himself so many times he must feel like the cornerstone of a public building."

As for Richard Nixon: "Nixon is the kind of a politician who would cut down a redwood tree, then mount the stump for a speech on conservation."

Using the epigram, he quipped: "An editor is one who separates the wheat from the chaff and prints the chaff." "An independent is the guy who wants to take the politics out of politics."

Addressing the Harvard alumni, Stevenson quipped: "Now, I was cautioned before I came here that I should not try your patience too long. So I suppose that I must talk and you must listen. I do hope that we both finish our work about the same time."

Having campaigned twice against the unbeatable Eisenhower, the records are replete with his wise-cracks aimed at Ike, of whom he once said: "Golf is a fine release from the tensions of office, but we are a little tired of holding the bag."

"If I talk over the people's head, Ike must be talking under their feet."

der ther feet." About Republicans, he said: "I like Republicans, have grown up with them, worked with them, and would trust them with anything in the world—except public office."

Stevenson began a speech before Washington's Gridiron club, after two defeats for President: "A funny thing happened to me on the way to the White House."

After three months of crisis debate in the UN in 1961, he said: "What with Cuba, Congo, Korea and now Laos, I sometimes yearn for the simple brutalities of bipartisan politics."

Whether you agree with him or not, Adlai Stevenson for 2 decades cut quite a swath across the American political scene. And he came twice within the very shadow of the White House. A lot of people believed in him.

In October 1944, the Texas Forest Service, in cooperation with the Texas Forestry Association, the Southern Pine Association, and the East Texas Chamber of Commerce, inaugurated the Tree Farm System in Texas. It is part of a national project sponsored by the American Forest Products Industries to recognize forest landowners who are following good forestry practices.

SCIENCE SKETCHES

THE VENUS FLY TRAP, a remarkable meat-eating plant, is becoming a favorite indoor plant say horticulturists. The plant has a leaf blade that works like the teeth of a trap, snapping together when its sensitive hairs are touched by an insect.

BANGING in commercial hot water and steam heating systems, the "air hammer" effect of thermal contraction and expansion, is eliminated by an expansion compensator developed by Tube Turns, Louisville. The unit absorbs all pipe movement caused by temperature change.

A PLANT used by South American witch doctors to cause hallucinations may be useful in mental therapy, say scientists at West Virginia University. Researchers are trying to isolate the alkaloids of the plant. Processed they become a potent drink, "yaje," drunk by Amazon valley natives.
