Behind the 8-Ball

By the editor.

As Kern Tips once said—the Southwest Conference in football is where anything can happen—and frequently does. Now, one can't tell just which team will come out ahead. At first it looked like Texas Tech. Now it looks like Texas. Before the season gets much further along, it'll probably look like A&M or some other one—most likely Rice.

Oh well, that's the way it sometimes seems in our eight man district. It usually looks like Garden City or Sterling City at first. Now this year—it's just possible that Sands or some other team will come out on top.

We think it will be Sterling City, though.

8-BALL

At the Dallas Fair a little over a week ago, my wife and I were standing around and a tall young man walked up and asked my wife where we were from. Then I looked at him and recognized my cousin—Bob Craft, who is public relations man for the Corps of Army Engineers. (He was seeing to their booth at the fair.) He said nobody in Texas wore a hat just like I do; it has the West Texas look. So, he recognized us.

On the side, Craft edits the Everman Times and the Kennedale News, close to Fort Worth. He says he got the newspaper bug when he used to visit at our house over in Mertzon in the 30's.

Another good man gone wrong.

8-BALL

There will be a parade here this afternoon as part of the homecoming deal. It will feature the different grades of the school, and go from the Texaco Truck Stop to the roadside park. Come out and see it, folks.

8-BALL

Pete Salvato and his wife, Leota, of San Angelo were up visiting their son and family, the James Salvatos, here last week end and stayed for the football game with Wall.

Pete and I were kids together in San Angelo in the 20's and 30's. We used to swap pigeons and bantys and went to school together. We lived just across the street from each other.

8-BALL

Mr. and Mrs. Riley King left Wednesday for Colorado to hunt deer. They are going real close to where that flying saucer came down and killed that Apaloosa horse recently. I mentioned that to Mrs. King and she said, let's go home and unpack, Riley.

Maybe she'll see a real flying saucer up there. They are still flying around there, according to newspaper reports.

It might be that Riley could even shoot one down.

8-BALL

Our unwed mother, Cleo, a Manx cat, needs a home for four kittens. (or we do.)

Better hurry, they'll go in a hurry. They have varying lengths of tails.

One has no tail, and one has a full tail. The other two have little pieces of tails.

Sorta screw-tails.

8-BALL

Eat supper with the seniors tonight (from 5 to 7) in the school cafeteria or lunchroom. It'll be chicken and spaghetti, and all that goes with it.

8-BALL

YOU'RE INVITED

Miss Becky Beauchamp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Tom Beauchamp of Eden and Danny Bailey, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Bailey of Sterling, will be married in the Baptist Church auditorium at Eden, next Friday evening at eight o'clock. There will be a reception following—and everybody is invited. All the Sterling friends of Danny and the Baileys are cordially invited.

The deal was—after the date was set, the Beauchamps found out they wouldn't have enough time to get invitations and get them mailed—so they are inviting their friends in the Eden and Sterling areas by newspaper invitations.

You're invited!

8-BALL

Next Wednesday, October 25, doe permits for deer hunting here will be issued at the courthouse. So said Game Warden Wayne Posey this week.

So, you land owners that have hunting leases or lands—show up next Wednesday, if you are interested.

That's the only day that you can get 'em.

When a man gets too old to set a bad example, he gives out good advice.

AS IT LOOKS FROM HERE

By Omar Burleson, Member of Congress, 17th District

WASHINGTON, D.C.—People living in the area of Eastern Oklahoma South through Mineral Wells to Stephenville and points in between will soon become familiar with an activity which others may think is an invasion by creatures from outer space.

Travelers on Interstate Highway 20, Highway 80 and other roads in this section, may see some unusual sights.

Men wearing orange-colored umbrellas over their heads are not seen very day. Tall steel towers which spring up suddenly on the landscape and then disappear may create a lot of questions for those not aware of what is going on.

Between these towers will dangle large white balloons, and the man at the first filling station may have some question to put to him. If it is in the night, strange lights blinking between towers could create something more than just curiosity. They will not be unidentified flying objects, but men of the Coast and Geodetic Survey who will be working in and around Mineral Wells.

Scheduled to arrive yesterday in Mineral Wells is a group of about 25 employees plus 13 wives and 17 children, with equipment of 6 Government office and supply trailers, 11 privately owned housing trailers and 22 Government trucks.

It is not easy to precisely describe what this group of surveyors is doing but, in a nutshell, they will be measuring distance and elevations for a more accurate determination of the size and shape of the earth.

Steel towers ranging from 37 to 116 feet in height will be used for observation posts throughout the project area.

Precise distances will be measured with Geodimeters, using the speed of light to compute values. Another instrument, called a Theodolite, an instrument which employs a steady light, will be used to observe horizontal angles and make observations on the North star. This phase of the work will be done at night, and crews working atop the towers will employ blinking lights to communicate with each other in Morse code.

The finding of these scientific efforts will serve to strengthen the geodetic network, the vast system of accurately located points established on the earth's surface for the use of engineers, surveyors, mapping agencies and the military.

The Scientists of the Coast and Geodetic Service say that information developed by these surveys is used for tracking satellites and missiles and the detection and evaluation of earth crustal movements. Also, the increased needs of our industrial and scientific communities have necessitated this upgrading of the geodetic network.

Since 1871, the Coast and Geodetic Survey, a part of the

LIONS CLUB

Twenty-three persons were present at the Lions Club luncheon Wednesday noon in the community center. Jim Hinshaw was a new member.

It was announced that a turkey shoot would be held at the target range November 4. Charles Probandt asked that members come out Sunday, November 29 and help get the range in shape for the turkey shoot.

Albert McGinnes asked that members be thinking about the Christmas street light decorations. President Jim Davis appointed a committee to look into possible changes of decorations for this year, etc. He named H. L. Bailey, H.E. Barton and Jim Cantrell.

Wayne Posey announced that doe permits for this season's deer hunting would be issued at the courthouse here on October 25. There will be about the same doe hunting regulations as last year, said Posey.

TO ATTEND WTU'S WOMEN'S CONFERENCE

Mrs. Marie Finnegan, book-keeper of the West Texas Utilities Company here, will attend the annual Women's Conference in Abilene on October 23. Women from the 50 towns in the company's service area will attend.

The company hosts the annual workshop for its women employees; it is designed to develop leadership qualities in women office workers, with the basic objective of helping them serve the public better.

Donalsons Visitors

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Ball of Los Angeles, California have been visiting in the home of the Horace Donalsons. She is a niece of Mr. Donalson. As Horace was in the Santa Fe Hospital they drove down to Temple Sunday to spend the day with him, meeting the Bill Barbees there. Horace is improving slowly, at the last report.

Commerce Department, has been determining with fantastic accuracy the elevation of thousands of locations throughout the United States and the distance between them. At each point (called benchmarks) a bronze marker is embedded in cement or bedrock. More than 500,000 of these markers have been placed in the U.S. and its possessions. These are the people who determine linear distances, latitudes and longitudes and elevations.

The men who will be seen along some highways will be wearing orange vests that they may be more visible by coming traffic. The orange-colored umbrellas are not for their own protection against the elements, but to provide shade for the instruments whose accuracy would otherwise be affected by the sun's rays.

The survey crews operate from the towers at night because the atmosphere is clear. Those who know, say the Geodimeter, which utilizes the speed of light for measuring, is so accurate that distances are determined to within one part in a million, or, put in another way, an error of one mile in a million. As an indication of the thoroughness, the operators of these instruments repeat their readings 32 times and compute their findings to one-100th of a second. This amounts to one-300th of an inch as observed from a distance of one mile.

The estimated cost of this operation headquartered at Mineral Wells, is $25,000, and is to require approximately six weeks.

Play Sands Here Tonight; Homecoming

The Wall Hawks dropped the Sterling City Eagles 26-22 here last Friday night in a nonconference game. The Wall team is an 11-man aggregation of the 1-A class, but played 8-man ball here.

Sterling was in the lead at halftime 14-12 but Wall picked up 2 TD's in the third and fourth quarters to pull ahead of the Eagles at the last.

The Eagles took the kick and very quickly had the ball on Walls 3-yard line, where quarterback Phil Cole pushed it over for six points. The Hawks took the ball after the TD kick and pushed it to the Eagle's 6-yard line and a pass from Diershke to Block made the score even for the first quarter.

In the second quarter the Eagles managed to get the oval down to the 1-yard line where quarterback Cole again gained paydirt on a keeper. Esau Vargas garnered the two extra points. Not to be outdone, the Hawks' Eddie Holik lumbered eleven yards for a TD, making the halftime score, Eagles 14, Wall 12.

The Eagles racked up 13 first downs the first half to 7 for the Hawks.

In the third quarter, Diershke rambled 11 yards for another Hawk TD and passed to Block for the two extra points.

The fourth and final quarter saw Esau Vargas sweep around left end for 6 yards and pay dirt and then the 2 extra points for the locals. The score was 22-20, but before the game ended Diershke again would not be contained and pushed through for a six-pointer for the visitors, making the final score 26-22.

Conference Play Opens Here Tonight; Homecoming Game With Sands

Regular conference play opens here tonight with the Eagles playing Sands on the Eagle field. Sterling has been rated under Garden City for the district favorite, but the locals are showing up better all the time—and just might be the district favorite in future polls, if they can get b Sands tonight. (Sands is really the team to beat)

Homecoming Activities

A parade has been scheduled for this afternoon at the time school is out. They will parade from the truck stop at the west end of town down to the roadside park, as usual. A pep rally will be held in the park, it was said.

The seniors are serving a chicken-spaghetti supper in the school cafeteria from five till seven tonight. Cost is $1.25 for adults and 75c for children under 12. Everybody is invited and the proceeds go to the senior class for the senior trip next spring.

Bill J. Hurts Back to Slidell, Louisiana

Bill J. Hurt, with the NASA installation near New Orleans, had to go to Hawaii for three or four weeks recently on a mission for NASA. While he was there, his wife, the former Mary Davis, and the two children, came here and stayed at the Jeff Davis home. The children enrolled in school for the time here. Mr. Hurt returned last Friday, and they all returned to their home at Slidell, La. last Saturday.

Social Security

Why should a man with a wife and young children concern himself with anything that seems as far away as social security?

A new booklet, "Social Security Information for Young Families," specifically designed to answer this question is now available, social security district manager, Ted F. Moellering announced today.

"Social security is not just a retirement program, and it is not just for old people," Moellering said. This new booklet gives the young worker important information about the survivors and disability protection that he and his family have now.

Nine out of ten families in Sterling City have social security survivor protection which can amount to over $75,000 in benefits if the breadwinner should die, Moellering pointed out.

Disability insurance is the other social security program of particular importance to the young worker. After just five years of work under social security, the worker and his family are eligible to receive monthly benefit payments if he should become severely disabled and the condition is expected to last a year or longer.

Moellering said "Social Security Information for Young Families" explains in detail survivors and disability protection, what it can mean to a family, and how to make an application should it become necessary. Also included is information on how to check your social security account and the financing of social security.

Copies of this pamphlet may be obtained free of charge from the social security office at 3000 West Harris in San Angelo, Texas.

Does the average worker get his money's worth for his social security contributions?

The answer is "Yes", according to Ted F. Moellering, social security district manager. Young workers can be sure, too, that the social security benefits payable to them and their dependents in the future will be substantially increased by the time they qualify for payment.

"The social security program is financed in such a way that benefits can be more than kept up to date with rising prices--without an increase in contribution rates," Moellering said. Because the social security tax is a percentage of payroll, income to the program rises more than benefit obligations as wage levels go up, he explained.

In an expanding economy, rising wages produce more income for the social security system and make it possible to increase benefits more than enough to offset any increases from time-to-time in the ceiling on the amount of earnings that is subject to the tax (and which counts toward the individual's future benefit payments).

"But even without considering the likely future improvements in benefit levels," Moellering said, "the average young worker will get retirement, survivors, and disability insurance protection under social security worth 20 to 25 percent more than he will pay in social security tax contributions over a 40-45 year working lifetime--even if you count accumulated interest on those contributions."

At the upper extreme--the young man who starts work in 1973 or later, when the maximum contribution rate for old-age, survivors, and disability insurance goes into effect, and who has earnings at or above the maximum annual amount subject to the social security tax, will no more than just about pay for the value of his protection.

People already at work, Moellering noted, get more protection for their tax contributions than those who will be going to work under social security in the future.

At 9:48 a.m., August 8, 1966, an unidentified white male who was armed attempted to rob the Inwood National Bank of Dallas, Texas. A customer who attempted to intervene was shot and killed by the robber. An FBI artist's conception of this individual has been described by witnesses as an excellent likeness of this person. The man was described as approximately 5'8" or 5'9" tall, and weighing about 160 pounds. His hair was very dark or black and well groomed. His eyes were dark and he possessed a muscular build with broad shoulders and a narrow waist. Witnesses stated this individual's speech indicated the possibility that he was from Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas or Louisiana.

During the commission of this attempted robbery, the robber kept telling customers and employees in the bank not to look at him or he would kill them. One witness thought he had the initials "J. B." on his upper left arm. Another witness noted that when he walked he rose on his toes noticeably.

The FBI has requested that anyone having any information as to the identity of this individual please contact the nearest office of the FBI. Anyone having such information is cautioned not to attempt to attempt to apprehend this individual, inasmuch as he is considered armed and extremely dangerous.

SCIENCE ON PIGS

A HANDFUL of aspirin-size catalysts weighing under an ounce would have a total surface area equal to that of an entire football field. Pores so small that a million of them would barely cover the period at the end of a sentence give catalysts the fantastic surface area that helps speed up chemical reactions, says Girdler Catalysts, Louisville.

STRESSES AND WORRIES of modern life apparently cause ulcers in pigs as well as in man, reports the University of Wisconsin. Casein, the milk protein that helps soothe human ulcers, seems to have no such effect on pig ulcers. Oats, however, are soothing to pig ulcers.

COMETS are "gigantic dirty snowballs," says a Georgia Tech scientist. He thinks that they are composed of frozen ices of reactive gases such as ammonia, nitric oxide, acetylene and ethylene, combined with some meteoric dust.

For Social Security

About one of every five applicants for social security disability benefits delays so long before making his application that he risks possible loss of some payments, Ted F. Moellering, district manager of social security in San Angelo, said today.

In an effort to remedy this situation, the Social Security Administration is asking anyone who might possibly qualify for disability benefits to get in touch with a social security office as soon as possible.

"Some people fail to apply because they don't realize that they can benefit from the program," Moellering said. "Younger people often think that social security payments only for people in their sixties, whereas the disability was specifically set up to protect the wage earner who is forced to stop working before he is old enough to collect retirement benefits."

A person under 65 can receive monthly payments if he has a physical or mental impairment that has kept, or will keep, him from working for a year of more. Individual benefits range from $44 to $152 a month. If the worker has dependents, total family benefits can amount to as much as $339 monthly.

"Others don't file because they are under the impression that they have to be permanently disabled. This was generally true before a 1965 change in the law, but now payments can go to a person whose disability has lasted, or is expected to last, for 12 months or longer," Moellering pointed out.

Benefits begin after a person has been disabled for 6 full months. No benefits can be paid for months during this "waiting period." Also, the law limits the back benefits a person can collect to the 12 months before the month in which he applies.

This means that the latest a person can file without losing any back benefits is the month that comes after the 18th month of his disability. (These 18 months cover the waiting period and the 12-month limit of retroactive benefits.)
