Sudan Hornettes Class A State Basketball Champs

An estimated 500 Sudan area residents were in Austin last weekend to watch the Sudan Hornettes win the state championship. As the highly touted team accomplished the feat of outlasting the Larue LaPoyner team 46-34 to win the Class A state championship.

Cocah Jim Kirkland and his assistant Dyke Gaston, watched their team pull ever so slowly ahead of LaPoyner to take the victory. The victory was the first state championship for the Sudan girls, who competed at state level in 1959 and 1947 without bringing home a state trophy.

LaPoyner had beaten the team Dime Box 49-45 in the semifinals on Thursday as Sudan rolled over Eula 54-35 to set up the final go-round for Saturday morning.

In the first quarter, LaPoyner went out front 4-0 before Missy Fisher scored with 6:25 left in the first, and then Lisa Wood tied it up. The lead seesawed in Early in the second, the game was tied up again, and then the Hornettes began to go ahead. Sudan outscored LaPoyner in the second 18-8 and came out with a 28-20 halftime lead. LaPoyner then held on and kept the Hornettes to six points in the third as they scored ten.

Then in the fourth, Sudan began to pull away and end with the 46-34 score.

Lisa Wood was the leading scorer with 16 and Karen Spencer led the LaPoyner scoring with 14.

City Bingo Election Scheduled April 7

On Monday morning early, the City of Muleshoe was presented with a petition requesting that a requested election be held in the City of Muleshoe to legalize bingo games. Bingo games were actually authorized under the bingo enabling act of 1981.

City Manager, Dave Marr told the Journal that the petition and request had been checked carefully for accuracy. "The City Secretary has verified the request has having met all the guidelines necessary for the filings of the request. Over two hundred fifty signatures are on the petitions, which would indicate that lots of citizens enjoy bingo games.

Marr stated that "On Friday, in a special City Council meeting scheduled around 10 a.m., the Council will call the bingo election. The balloting for the bingo issue will be handled in the same location as that of the regular city elections and on that same date, April 7.

Any citizen of the City of Muleshoe who is eligible to vote in City elections will also be eligible for voting in the Bingo election. According to Marr, a simple majority will decide this issue.

Use Microwave Safely

Although the number of microwave ovens in use is at an all time high, many consumers still question their safety.

"Yet the microwave oven is the only product to show zero incidence of injury under the federal government's National Electronic Injury Surveillance System," says Bonnie Piernot, family resource management specialist. Piernot is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Consumer doubt about microwave safety is most often due to misunderstanding about the nature of microwave radiation versus ionizing radiation or x-rays, explains Piernot.

Microwaves are a non-ionizing form of energy located between radio waves and infra-red light in the electromagnetic energy spectrum. We are constantly exposed to low levels of these types of energy without harm.

The body does not store microwaves as it does ionizing radiation. So microwaves do not cause cumulative damage to the tissue.

Overexposure to high intensity microwave energy can be hazardous. But the Food and Drug Administration requires manufacturers to meet safety standards for the amount of microwaves that can leak from an oven.

According to Piernot, recent research suggests that consumers should be more concerned about the hazards resulting from improper use of a microwave oven. Consumers can, however, easily insure safe use of the appliance by following these simple guidelines.

A microwave oven should not be used on a two-wire circuit. Using a three-to-two-pin converter plug or cutting off the ground pin creates the risk of serious shock.

Only recommended materials should be used for cleaning the appliance. Abrasive plastic and wire tools can damage the sur-

Top AG Analyst Outlines Policy Alternatives

President Reagan's chief economic analyst for agricultural programs today outlined four policy alternatives for dealing with the nation's agricultural crisis, saying "the current level of federal spending for agriculture—more than $18 billion—can't be sustained because it's about equal to income from agriculture."

Dr. Glenn Nelson, who serves on the President's Council of Economic Advisors, said that the overall economic picture for agriculture "just doesn't look good over the short term" (two years or so) during an address to Texas bankers at Texas A&M University. He offered these policy alternatives:

1. A strong free market orientation. This would be a real "shock treatment" and would mean continuing low farm prices which would put pressure on foreign production.

2. Mandatory controls on agricultural production with current or slight increases in prices. Such controls might serve a purpose for a year or two. While mandatory controls with higher prices would be more favorable, they would mean high costs to the government and have a detrimental effect on exports.

3. Massive export subsidies. These would make our agricultural products cheaper for foreign buyers but again would be costly to our government. They would also mean higher food prices in the U.S. than overseas, and could risk a trade war.

4. Evolution of policy. Developing policy along the way means a continuation of the current PIK (payment-in-kind) program through the 1984-85 crop year as a short-term solution.

"All of these alternatives currently have a 'bad taste' to them, but one or more may be necessary for long-term improvement in agriculture," Nelson said. "We badly need programs in the short-term to bring about long-term improvement."

"How we resolve our current situation will be affected by our policies as well as by world events," Nelson pointed out. "The export market is highly volatile, and we need to be concerned about agricultural production and consumption overseas. Prices affect production overseas just as they do in the U.S. Higher prices overseas could lead to increased agricultural production."

"Consumption of agricultural products overseas is affected by population growth, prices and economic growth. In the short run, the world economy should continue 'soft,' at least through 1983," Nelson said.

"One of our main thrusts should be to do everything we can to help the world economy to recover," Nelson emphasized. "This means keeping our borders open to exports because a policy of 'protectionism' would jeopardize the agricultural sector."

A second major thrust, according to Nelson, should be to price our agricultural products competitively so that they can be moved abroad. "If we keep our price structure competitive, we should see some pickup in agricultural exports in the next few years," he said.

Some 150 bankers took part in the annual Farm and Ranch Credit Conference sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, Texas A&M's College of Agriculture and the Texas Bankers Association.

Consumer discontent could cause more government rules

COLLEGE STATION — If today's frustrations are tomorrow's legislation, business is in for more, not less, regulation, says a Texas A&M University marketing professor.

"If business wants to keep consumers and government off its back, then it's simply going to have to keep its own front yard clean," said Dr. Steve McDaniel of Texas A&M's College of Business Administration. McDaniel has just completed a survey of more than 200 consumers in the Bryan-College Station Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area.

"Consumer discontent appears to be rather widespread," McDaniel said, "and in some areas, particularly advertising, discontent appears to be growing."

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

DEFINING COMMUNITY

AUSTIN — Texas is a very large and diverse state. This fact adds much to our appeal but can also provide for some problems.

Through the fine judges in the Panhandle and South Plains, it has come to our attention that currently there is a discrepancy in the way in which our state's courts and juries define what is obscene and what is not.

It seems that when defining obscenity, the Texas Penal Code requires juries to use "contemporary community standards" as a benchmark. This sounds very reasonable, as opinions vary between communities as to what is obscene.

However, because this definition is so broad our appellate courts have decided that the "community" spoken of is the entire state of Texas. A jury of local people must decide if the questionable material are acceptable somewhere in our community; Texas. If they are, then they must be acceptable everywhere in Texas. Because of this, at a trial in our District when someone is charged with selling obscene material, it is admissible in court to show that similar material is sold every day hundreds of miles away in Houston. We do not feel that this is right.

To get back to what we feel is the true meaning of this term, community standards, we have introduced a bill in the Texas Senate which will define community standards as being those standards in the county in which the alleged offense occurred.

This change will allow juries to decide what is obscene in their county and not have to be subject to what is thought elsewhere in Texas. This measure does not in anyway define obscenity or restrict the sale of use of anything; it only allows the people in the individual counties to decide what they want sold in their local stores. We feel that this was the intent of the law and we are trying to get back to it so Texans can decide what type of community they will live and raise their children in. Texas is large and diverse, and we all share from the many beneficial factors this state offers. However, we feel that the counties should not suffer because of this diversity by having contrary opinions forced upon them. We want to know what you feel about this. Please write Senator Bill Sarpalius, Box 12068, Texas Capitol, Austin, Texas, 78711 or call (512) 475-3222.

Is Freezing Weather Over In Texas

With March here, many Texas don't worry any more about freezing temperatures.

But weather records indicate that there's still a good possibility for a freeze over much of Texas, says Mickey Flynn, a meteorologist with the Agricultural Weather Service Center at Texas A&M University.

"Average" dates mean that there is a 50-50 chance of a freeze occurring later than the date indicated. "Early" means a 90 percent chance of a later freeze while "late" means a 10 percent chance of a later freeze.

The relatively mild winter of 1982-83 may mean that many locations are likely to receive their last freeze by the average date, says Flynn. However, late freezes are possible and may damage field crops, garden plants and potted plants left outside overnight. Flynn encourages farmers as well as gardeners to stay abreast of current weather forecasts and outlooks for information on a cold snap or possible freeze.

Certain areas are more susceptible to cold temperatures than others, notes the meteorologist. This is due to local variations in climate and topography, surrounding vegetation, proximity to an urban area, and different soil types and moisture contents.

A small town or farm in a localized depression distant from an urban area with little surrounding tree or bush vegetation may become colder at night than locations several miles away. Also, temperatures are likely to drop the most on nights having clear skies and light winds after a cool, dry air mass has moved over the area, says Flynn.

"Know ye that the Lord he is God: it is he that hath made us, and not we ourselves."

It died of unnatural causes.

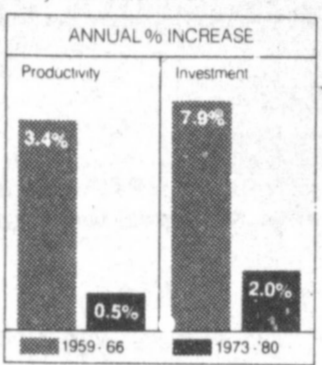

Too many factories in too many American cities are dying. Unnecessarily and prematurely. They are the products of an unproductive economy. Our economy.

Not long ago, we all thought it just couldn't happen here.

The fact is, however, that the United States has the highest percentage of obsolete plants, the lowest percentage of capital investment and the lowest growth of productivity of any major industrial country.

That didn't happen overnight, of course. This chart points out just how much, and how rapidly, our economy has declined:

Comparing the early 60's with the late 70's, America's average annual growth in productivity was lower by 85%. Allowing for inflation, real investment growth in plants, machinery and equipment dropped by 74%.

No one can expect labor to produce without tools. But since 1975, there's been a steady decline in the amount of capital per worker in this country.

A close examination of our economic illness points to one major cause: An overdose of government.

Ever increasing levels of government spending and borrowing have squeezed productive industry out of credit markets. Without credit, businesses cannot buy the plant and equipment they need to expand and increase their productivity.

This chart shows the growing impact of government borrowing as a percentage of GNP and of total borrowing over a thirty-year period.

As the government expanded its borrowing, private industry cut back. To reverse this trend, growth in government spending must be slowed in the years ahead.

Hidden in all these statistics are countless human losses. Lost jobs, lost incomes—lost dreams.

W.R. Grace & Co., a $6 1/2 billion company with worldwide interests in chemicals, natural resources and consumer products, considers the loss of any American industry a death in the family. The company argues that all Americans have a responsibility to revive productivity at home. To do that, we must invest.

Its own capital expenditures through the years testify to that belief. From 1965-1975, its average annual increase in capital expenditures was 8.9%. From 1975-1981, Grace averaged an 18.7% increase per year.

And now, by cutting taxes, eliminating excess regulation and by providing the impetus to reduce the size of the federal government, President Reagan has supplied us all with new incentives. We must make the most of them immediately.

The drive and dreams that first built America's factories are needed now to unlock a productive future for our nation. And each of us holds the key.

Misconceptions About IRS Can Cause Needless Worry

Over the years, many taxpayers have come to believe as fact some misconceptions about the Internal Revenue Service. Unfortunately, these misconceptions cause taxpayers needless apprehension and worry.

The IRS is a large agency, and the tax law is complex—a combination that might baffle the average person. The following, hopefully, may serve to dispel some of the common misconceptions:

—Using the peel-off address label will trigger a tax examination.

The coding on the label actually just speeds up processing. It helps in identifying taxpayers and the kind of forms contained in the tax package they receive; it is not an examination indicator.

—Once examined, always examined.

IRS makes a special effort NOT to keep examining the same people over and over. In fact, IRS has a special program called the Repetitive Examination Procedure, the purpose of which is to see to it that no taxpayer is examined two years in a row on the same issue when there was no change the first year.

—When IRS prepares a return, the tax is always higher.

If facts and figures remain the same, the correct tax will be identical, no matter who prepares the return.

—IRS won't allow some deductions to go on a return, but somebody else would.

IRS will give taxpayers the benefit of all allowable deductions.

—An IRS mistake can NEVER be straightened out.

If attempts to solve a tax problem with IRS are unsuccessful, taxpayers should contact the Problem Resolution Office at their IRS office. This may be done by calling the IRS toll-free number listed in the directory and asking for the Problem Resolution Office.

—A mistake on a return triggers an audit.

Generally, math errors are corrected automatically by the computer and do not cause an examination. The adjustment is automatic, increasing or decreasing taxes and refunds as appropriate. A mistake on its own does not generate an examination.

—Tax on a "long" form is not the same as tax on the "short" form.

Because of certain situations, some taxpayers must use the Form 1040, often called the "long" form. However, the Tax Tables & Tax Rate Schedules for both Form 1040 and Form 1040A are the same. Taxpayers would not pay more tax simply because they chose to use one form over another.

—IRS agents and revenue officers work on commission.

IRS employees, like other government employees, work on a salaried basis. The amount of money they "collect" or don't "collect" in no way influences the amount of their paychecks.

—Anyone whose return is examined will end up owing more tax.

The three possible outcomes of an examination are: an additional tax assessment; an additional tax refund; or a "no-change" case. Since the reason most returns are selected for examination is that the return has a good probability of additional tax, many examinations do result in increased assessments. However, the primary purpose of the examination is to determine the correct tax and, if no changes are needed, or if a correction to the taxpayer's benefit is needed, no change or refund reports will be prepared.

—Filing a return early means it will be examined.

IRS uses a variety of computer methods to select and score tax returns for examination, using mathematical formula to measure the probability of error on each return. The same tax return would receive the same score regardless of when or where it was filed. The grouping of returns and the filing date do not change the probability of further examination.

These misconceptions are certainly not all of the incorrect notions people have about the IRS. Perhaps explaining the facts behind these myths will offer some needless apprehension and worry.

PRESENTED BY THE STATE BAR OF TEXAS

If the family income is very low, Legal Aid is available. Call your County Bar Association for more specific information.

Q: My son and his wife are divorced. She says that we have to pay her a certain amount of money each month if we want to see our grandson. This doesn't sound right. What rights do we have as grandparents?

A: Evidently your former daughter-in-law has custody—called managing conservatorship—and she can decide what would best fit the child's interests and needs.

Once a managing conservator is appointed, legislative changes in effect since 1977 allow grandparents to apply to the Court for access to the child. At least one court has held that grandparent visitation does not obligate you to give child support or payments to the child's mother.

Consult a family law attorney in your county to learn how your courts presently rule on grandparent access cases and what steps will be necessary to begin application to visit.

Q: What is meant by the term "mental anguish"?

A: Definitions have been developed over the years in jury charges—or instructions—when the mental anguish is the grounds of the suit or a measure of damages.

When connected with a physical injury, this term includes both the sensation of pain and the accompanying feelings of distress, fright, and anxiety. In other cases, and as a ground for divorce, or an element of damages, mental anguish includes the suffering resulting from poignant and painful emotions such as grief, severe disappointment, indignation, wounded pride, shame and public humiliation.

Q: Can I file for child support for my son even though I was never married to the father? He used to send money up until recently.

A: You must be able to show the parent-child relationship exists between the man and your son. If he acknowledges paternity and if you listed the man on the child's birth certificate; or if he has made payments pursuant to some agreement or court order, you're halfway there. The Court will then look at the child's needs and the man's earnings and obligations and order support after you file your motion and have a hearing.

If no father-child relationship exists, you have to ask the man to sign a voluntary acknowledgment of paternity, or file a paternity suit. Under present laws, you have four years after the baby's birth to bring the paternity action.

Send your questions to "You and the Law," State Bar of Texas, P.O. Box 12487, Austin, 78711. Answers may appear in columns in hypothetical terms; personal answers not possible.

Texas A&M ranks sixth in attracting nations top scholars

COLLEGE STATION — More National Merit Scholars are enrolled at Texas A&M University this year than at any other public institution in the nation, according to figures compiled by the National Merit Scholarship Corp.

Texas A&M ranks sixth overall among more than 3,000 colleges and universities nationwide with 445 National Merit Scholars. The first five schools — led by Harvard with 987 — are all private institutions.

Two other Texas schools were also ranked in the top 10, with Rice University, a private institution, placing third with 554, and the University of Texas at Austin ranked eighth nationally with 413.

"We are very gratified that so many National Merit Finalists are choosing to study at Texas A&M, but it is no accident," said Texas A&M President Frank E. Vandiver. "These figures are a reflection of our efforts to attract the very best students and match them with the very best faculty."

Life would be more enjoyable if more people tried to enjoy it.
