REPORT from Austin

By GEORGE BAKER
State Representative of 66th District

Much of the activity in the fourth week of the 61st Legislature has been devoted to committee organization and receiving of bills.

Most bills are being referred to committees, and public hearings in many areas should follow soon. The appropriations committee has been working diligently for two weeks now, with members remaining in the Capitol all through the weekend to speed up a preliminary hearing on appropriations, so that final form may be given this vital part of legislative procedure early in the season, allowing time for revenue bills to meet budget needs.

The highly controversial bill on public school reorganization (the Governor's Committee report) is being readied for introduction, and is certain to face prolonged hearings and extensive revision.

Since the Committee Report is a matter of some concern to so many of the communities of the 66th District, it seems proper to discuss it again briefly, following up the initial comments in the first of these reports.

Much misunderstanding has resulted from incomplete reports on the plan. It cites 2,600 scholastics as an ideal number for a balanced school program, and goes further to mention the number of 1,600 as an acceptable base where geography and population permit.

BUT, and this is an important exception in our part of the state, allowances are to be made for sparsely settled areas, including the provision that no consolidation requirement would go beyond the county line. There is the further provision that county lines could be disregarded when some other locally proposed redistricting pattern is feasible, and can gain approval by the Texas Education Agency.

Contrary to general impression, there is no requirement that any schools be closed down, or that busing of students be mandatory. All of these things would be at the discretion of the locally elected school board in the consolidated district.

My position is that there must be many exceptions to any rule of minimum size for the school systems in isolated communities and sparsely settled areas. There is a general sentiment among the so-called rural legislators with which I concur: That Texas needs improvement of its educational program, but that where needed, consolidation of school districts should be on a voluntary basis in order to meet higher standards of education, with incentives for consolidation rather than compulsion.

The tax equalization features also will need a great deal of study to assure fair-

Social Security News HOSPITAL INSURANCE BENEFITS

The hospital insurance benefits of Medicare provide for services of three types, according to Ted F. Moellering, manager of the San Angelo social security district office. Benefits are possible when you are (1) a bed patient in a hospital, (2) a bed patient in an extended care facility (skilled nursing home) assigned there by your physician as a follow-up to hospital care, and (3) a patient at home receiving home health services, Mr. Moellering continued. There has been some thought that because you are covered under Medicare up to a certain maximum number of days, you can automatically count on that number of days regardless of your condition. Mr. Moellering went on to say that this is a misunderstanding and that when your condition improves to the extent you no longer require the level of care provided, then your eligibility ceases.

An example of this misunderstanding is the 100 day eligibility in an Extended Care Facility. We are sometimes asked why a certain person was told Medicare would no longer pay for his stay in an Extended Care Facility when he had only been there 50 days and still had 50 days coming. The condition of the patient rather than the number of days is the controlling factor up to the point that the maximum number of days is reached. Coverage ends when his condition is such that he no longer needs the level of care provided by the Extended Care Facility.

Any question about this or any area of Medicare or Social Security should be resolved by a visit or contact with the Social Security Office located at 3000 West Harris Avenue in San Angelo, Texas, or see the representative when he is in your area.

Electric Short Course To Be Here

A Farm Electrification short course on electric motors for adult farmers will be held February 17-20, 1969 under the sponsorship of the Sterling City High School Vocational Agriculture Department, according to O.T. Jones, superintendent and Fred Igo, teacher of vocational agriculture.

The short course is being sponsored by the vocational agriculture department of Sterling City high school.

Bob Jaska, Farm Electrification specialist with the Vocational Agriculture Division of the Texas Education Agency and the Department of Agricultural Engineering at Texas A & M University will do the instructing in the course. He is headquartered at Texas A & M University.

Mr. Jaska holds a Master's Degree in Agricultural Engineering. Since 1947 he has been prominent in research work in Farm Electrification at A & M University, in addition to teaching Farm Electrification in the Agricultural Engineering Department. His research and field work carried him over the entire state so that he is very familiar with all types of electrical problems on the farm.

"Many Farm Electrification short courses in various parts of the state have been taught by Mr. Jaska and all have met with outstanding success" according to Hulan Harris, area supervisor of vocational agriculture of Big Spring. Arrangements for the adult education short course in this and other fields are made through Mr. Harris' office.

The short course at Sterling City is scheduled to begin February 17 at 7:30 p. m. in the vocational agricultural building. Other meetings will be held Feb. 18, 19, and 20. During the dates the short course is in progress, Mr. Jaska will be available to assist farmers with individual problems and to provide on-the-farm instruction, according to Fred Igo.

Farmers interested in attending the short course should write or call superintendent of schools, O.T. Jones, or Fred Igo, vocational teacher. An entry fee of $3.00 will be charged. Farm Electrification Short Course Certificates are to be presented to each farmer who attends all the training sessions.

By Omar Burleson, Member of Congress, 17th District

WASHINGTON, D.C.- President Nixon is seemingly viewing the crime situation in Washington as high priority for action.

The District of Columbia is unique in that it is one of the few places where the Federal Government is directly responsible for law enforcement.

The President is asking for an increase of Federal Judges and prosecutors to speed up work. A crash program of recruiting more police is under way.

The backlog of cases awaiting trial continues to mount. It is taking from seven to eight months at the present time to bring criminals to trial. Meanwhile, records show that a very high percentage of arrests are those under felony charges free on bail.

The two most important things in law enforcement are swift apprehension of the criminal and certain punishment for those who violate the law. But this will not get the job done completely. A change in the attitude of the courts and public officials toward more respect for law and its penalties is fundamental.

Not only in this country but all over the world, Washington is becoming known as the Nation's crime capital. Last week a London newspaper published the following: "It seems almost as if crime in Washington has become a sport. In a curious way, many Washingtonians have become accustomed to living with almost in the way that Londoners learned to live with the World War II blitz." One Metropolitan newspaper carries a daily "Crime Clock" listing the armed robberies of the preceding twenty-four hour period and the time they occurred. A typical day listed sixteen robberies.

For the month of December there was recorded 29 holdups, more than double the number of December 1967.

Bank robberies alone amounted to 102 in 1968. This averages out to nearly two a week. The opening weeks of January showed bank robberies occurring at the rate of one each banking day. This compares with 27 bank robberies in all of 1967. Bank robberies in other parts of the country have remained about the same for 1968 as they were in 1967 and the previous year, which points up that Washington has become the holdup center of the Nation.

From December 1965 to the same period last year, the number of holdups in Washington increased by 452 percent.

Many business houses in the nation's capital, especially those operated by women or a small work force, keep their doors locked in broad daylight and wait to identify customers before admitting them. In numerous holdups, the merchant or employee is shot without warning or provocation. They are killed while surrendering their money or property for no apparent reason.

For the fourth time on January 30, 1969, a bill which would come more nearly meeting this crisis was introduced. The following is a statement made on the floor of the House of Representatives after the introduction:

"Mr. Burleson: Mr. Speaker, the comments of my distinguished colleague the gentleman from Florida (Mr. Sikes) reminds me that on three occasions before today I have introduced legislation which would more nearly meet the problem of controlling crime in the District of Columbia than any approach heard yet.

"On August 25, 1959, and February 26, 1963, and again on July 15, 1965, I introduced legislation which would enable the Metropolitan Police force to be augmented by military personnel. For the fourth time today, I am introducing the same or similar proposal.

"Mr. Speaker, if an adequate number of marines from nearby military installations were brought into Washington to assist in patrolling its crime ridden streets, we would see an immediate decline in the disgraceful crime rate now besetting this Capital City which belongs to everyone.

"Now I know this is not the total answer. As indicated by others there must be measures taken to strengthen the system of law enforcement in the District of Columbia. Law-enforcement officers should not have to carry these punk criminals around on a feather pillow. It should be made known to the courts that they are expected to more promptly bring to trial those charged with crime.

"In addition, the disgraceful bail bond system and the release of repeater criminals should no longer be tolerated.

"Whatever it takes should be done to protect people and property in this city. It is time to resort to the most stringent action. Military personnel was brought in to assist in maintaining order during the recent Presidential inauguration. They have been used on other occasions and there is no sound constitutional reason why they cannot be used every day to assist in maintaining order if they can be used 1 day. The District of Columbia is a Federal City. It is not Little Rock or other cities where troops have been sent to maintain order. If this sort of action was justified, how much more critical it is to preserve the decency of our Nation's Capital."

"Mr. Speaker, I ask the committee to which this measure is referred to give early consideration to it. This City is in an emergency and will continue to be until drastic action is taken."

If Washington is unable to run a Federal City of ten miles square, it should not be trying to run so many other things in the rest of the country.

Behind the 8-Ball

By the editor.

Today is Valentine Day! And it just skipped an ace of being Friday, the 13th.

I like candy, and I think it likes me. The good kind, that is. Besides, the kids all like Valentine Day—and candy.

And after all, what's a few cavities, more or less. It only bothers the toothpaste makers, and makers of toothpaste commercials.

8-BALL

When I was in grade school in San Angelo, we always had a big Valentine box fixed up for the school room, and we could give our favorite friend (boy or girl) a Valentine. Or we could several, including the teacher. We could sign 'em or send 'em incognito.

Still the girl (or boy) that got the biggest stack was the best liked—or the prettiest. Or something.

8-BALL

Now, those were the days. The old school days of the early 20's. Not a single car (as well as I remember) was parked around the school during the day. No kids had any, and I guess no teacher did.

By the time I went to junior high, I'm sure some of the teachers came to school in cars—but no kids. (Papa just didn't think it was the logical thing to do, evidently).

BUT, by the time I got in or up to high school, some few lucky kids showed up in automobiles at high school. But, very few. Everyone either walked to school, was brought by the parents in a car, or rode the bus. Or hitched a ride from someone else.

But most kids learned in some way (hit or miss or by a friend showing him how, or close observation)—to drive a model T or a gear shift car of those days. And 35 miles an hour was darn good speed. And dangerous, too. The car just wouldn't take much more, and the streets weren't good like now.

No one had even heard of a driver's license, and the old cars still scared the old ice wagon horses. And some laundry hacks. And postmen.

And tires had flats real easy like. They weren't too hard to patch but somewhat tiring.

The old Pierce Arrows had their headlights set on each fender rather than on the sides of the radiator and the joke was that when you saw one of them at night, you didn't know for sure whether you were meeting a car or two motorcycles.

All cars had individuality—even if they were all black, or nearly all. You could tell any make coming down the street.

8-BALL

Our family once had a 1918 or 1919 Studebaker touring car and an early model '20 of the Ford Model T. If they had been kept, they would be collector's items now.

Those early cars had to be cranked, and warmed up on cold mornings and babied in general, but they lent class to the owners. Yessir.

I can recall vividly an old Dodge touring car that Dr. C. T. Keyes had his rounds in (usually filled with his kids) and a little Ford coupe (all glassed no less) used by Dr. Chaffin. The doctors were the real promoters of the early cars. They were more desirable than horses and buggies for doctors.

During the 20's when one bought a new car, he had to drive it very carefully and somewhat slowly so as to get it broken in right. You could just burn the motor up in the first hundred miles if you

NORTH CONCHO RIVER CONSERVATION NEWS

The Texas Section of the American Society of Range Management in December of 1968 awarded certificates of recognition for excellence in grazing management of range lands. This is the first time the Society has awarded these certificates. In Texas there were 43 certificates awarded; of the 43, 4 went to local ranchmen ranging in the North Concho River Soil and Water Conservation District.

The following area ranchmen received these certificates: I. W. Terry, Charles M. Probandt and S. K. Horwood of Sterling City and George M. Skeete of Water Valley.

These ranchmen are commended and congratulated for their carrying out excellent grazing management and for having good knowledge of the principles concerning soil, water, plants and grazing animals. Knowledge of these principles is used in deciding how and when to graze or rest their range forage crop to achieve conservation and sound use of their basic resources, the soil, water and plants.

Mrs. Don Hodges and daughter, Diane of Winnie, visited here recently with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Onstott.

Social Security Tips

"Social security relies to a great extent on each beneficiary's ability to report events which will affect his monthly payments," said Ted F. Moelnering, Social Security District Manager. Among those events that the beneficiary should report are changes of address, stopping or starting work, changes in estimated earnings during the year, and a beneficiary's death, marriage, divorce, or annulment.

Each beneficiary receives a special card to fill out and send to his local social security office when a report must be made. Reports are relayed to the paying office by electronic means to avoid delays in updating records.

Those needing to report a change should request form SSA-1425 from the Social Security Office at 3000 West Harris in San Angelo, Texas, or see the representative when he is in your area. Any of our representatives will be glad to give you the necessary forms.
