Washington, July 13.—The Potter committee met, Kellogg on the stand again. He testified that he met the visiting statesmen while in New Orleans. Parlor P of the St. Charles hotel was their rendezvous. He rarely went there without meetings ome of them. Had no knowledge of any letter or telegram being sent from Columbus, Ohio, by Gov. Hayes to any member or members of the returning board during the count. Mrs. Jenks did not come to Washington at his request, and she is mistaken in her statement that she had frequent interviews with him dusing the count. If any such interviews had occurred he would have remembered them. Has no resollections of such interviews.

"I infer from your remarks that "I infer from your remarks that American women, as purchasers, are somewhat capricious."

"They are the most capricious, the most extravagent women that God lets live," continued he. "I can't begin to tell you all this nonsense about hosiery. Why, an eighth of an inch in the width of a stripe is sufficient to ruin a whole invoice of fine, hosiery as zelling goods. Stewart was bit this way, recently. They had 26,000 dozen hose that was pronounced a little too narrow or a little too wide, I forget which, and they had to sell the whole lot at less than half cost in Europe. And they were difficult to get rid of at that."

"This searcely sounds like hard times."

"Hard times!" retitorated Mr. Berwick, sareastically. "Times, hard or soft, make no

"What sort of lace," Valenciennes?" I vetopment, yet a normal and healthrul child may come in contact with a great deal of roughness and vice without being injured by it. This can only be, however, when the child carries with it continually the almos-phere of a pure, elevated Christian home. The intuitions of a child thus nurtured will make it shripk from the taint of vice and teen it nurse.

"What sort of lace. Valenciennes?" I asked, for having just seen white kid gloves in the Rue & la Frik announced as "patented," the whole arm-length of which was a series of insertions of finest Valenciennes lace between bands of the kid, I thought it might be something similar.

"No, not Valenciennes, nor any of that sort of lace, the open-work lace of the stocking itself. It will be so transparent that ladies will have to wear a colored silk stocking under it.

"That will be pretty."

"Pretty! I think it me wildest extravagance I ever heard of, said Mr. Berwick.

"The stockings will be fearfully expensive and in no other country ave America will they have shything but almost limited sale. But offe let the America women see them, and shey'll all die but what they'll have them, until some new folly comes in, and then you won't be able to sell a pair at one-fifth, their yalue."

Talking with a young friend the other evening, we were at once amused and impressed with his statement of the qualities and capabilities which he expected in his (yet unknown) wife to possess.

Summarized, the his would read thus the name of the possess of the solf-courted, appreciation of the highest good, the power of discriminating between the false and the true, are things not to be fully acquired by precept, not even by example. Stern experience must be the teacher, and gradually the untried, unformed girl develops under its chastening influences into the well-poised, capable woman.

Therefore we would say to all young men in search of a wife. Don't ask more than you can give, and don't demand that even the fairest and most promising flower should at once become the fruit.

That is a rare and happy combination of qualities which enables any woman, young or old, to be equality at home in the kitchen, parlor or fibrary; and it is quite possible that when this paragon is found abe may be exacting too. She may demand in her husband qualities to match her own, and then where will the average young man be left?

Can it be owing to their deeper knowledge of human mature, or to their greater tolerance of imperfection, that girls, as a rule, are mach less exacting than young men? They seem to accept the solemn words of the marriage service in their full import and to realiss that "for worse" is as much a part of a wife's promises as "for bettler."

Yet this is not a plea for incapacity in young girls, or an excuse for frivoilty and weakness. On the contrary, we own (and own it with deep sadness) that there are girls whose vapid lives, useless and huirfull, have cast a reproach on all their sex. And unfortunately too many young men, sonsible in other things, are foolish enough to encourage such follies, and illogical enough to awfer spromise as "for bettler."

Yet this is not a plea for incapacity in young girls, or an excuse for frivoilty and weakness. And unfortunately too many young men, sonsible in other things, are foolish enough to encourage such follies, and illogical enough to assume that a part always represen men complain rests with them and them only.

Let only that young man who always treats a young lady as if she was a sensible, practical creature, and not a mere doll, be the one to throw a stone, and we question if any giass houses will be broken.

And our parting advice is: If you select a young wife, don't blame her for not having an old head, but be kind and tender with the inexperience which belongs to her youth, it may even be that the process of disendantment will be more painful for her than for you.—Utristian Intelligencer.

To one who makes a study of children, the different ways in which they find content are very interesting. One child will find in a single toy nameoment for a long time, while another demands a constant succession of another demands a constant succession of playthings, and then is restless and unsatisfied. We have been told many times that a child's mind is like a piece of blank white paper, but any observing mother can readily trace in her child the prevailing tone and character of her own moral, intellectial and physical condition previous to its birth; and this well known fact can but furnish food for according reflection to avery unconstitute out. this well known fact can but furnish food for careful reflection to every prospective moth-er. The love which every child brings with it, is in itself the strongest indication of the sects of the shift. Losa is like sunshine-without it there can be no harmonious growth or development. As well expect a fruit tree to bear delicious fruit in a cellar, as expect a child to grow up into symmetrical manhood or womanhood without love

"Love hath its seat in reason, and is judicious." We prune our trees: we cut back our vines and our roses, we pinch off the excess of buds on our floral pet, having in view all the time the highest development of the plant; to lef it have its own luxuriant way would often be to cultivate its ruin. And in the same way we watch our children, checking a propensity here that may lead to vice, killing in the bud a trait that may develop bitter truits by-and-by, cutting off branches that mar the symmetry of the whole, and watching continually to keep the thing strait, till it is firmly rooted in the soil, and can bear the east winds without bending. And yet it is folly to shut children away from the knowledge that sin and death, with all their train of woes, are in the world. Vegetine

Schleicher.

Major Burges followed with one of his inimical speeches, intimating that when the Seguin gem—Mr. Ireland—gleamed to public gaze, even Major Dwyer would be charmed to the common admiration.

Major Fly spoke to some length in favor of the resolution. The resolution was the result of the action of the committee of seven from each faction, and it would be the part of wisdom to adopt it.

Mr. Sullivan opposed the resolution. It was not the business of the Democratic Convention to put two, but one man before the people. Mr. Schleicher had proven the frontier's friend, and he (Sulliyan) being a representative of the frontier, would sustain him to the last.

The resolution was again read.

Mr. Wallace took the floor and wanted no namination. He was opposed to the resolution because no Democratic Convention adopting the two-thirds rule should place two men in the field. He was not afraid, however, to have Mr. Scleicher meet Treland at the ballot-box, for he would wheat him all to pieces."

Mr. Green moved the previous question. The resolution was again read.

Mr. Green moved the previous question. The resolution was again read.

Mr. Green moved the previous question. The resolution was again read.

Mr. Green moved the previous question. The resolution was again read.

The question went to a vote upon a call of the counties. The Ireland party and a few of Schleicher's friends who were not into the dodge, conceded to the calls made upon them and cust their votes for the resolution. It was so far carried, and the last county, Zavalla, was reached, when Mr. Wallace, who had declined voting when Dimmit and Maverick counties were called, arose and said:

Gentlemen of the Convention:

cher, 3; Presidio, Schleicher, 2; Refugio, Schleicher, 3; Starr, Schleicher, 2; Tom Green, Schleicher, 2; Tvalda, Schleicher, 3; Victoria, Schleicher, 7; Webb, Schleicher, 3, Ireland, 3; Wilson, Ireland, 9; Zavalla, Schleicher, 1. Total, Schleicher, 125. Ire-land, 80.

A vote on the resolution finally was reached, and it was adopted on s call of counties by a factional vote of 119 ayes to 84 nayes.

Mr. Houston moved to adjourn to Monday morning, 9 o'clock.

The snores of snoring sleepers now alone were heard, the ring of the factional harangues having died away, while the exhausted delegates, of a Falsiari inclination, perhaps, endorsed the motion by a large majority, and at half past three this morning all dispersed.

Sirs—On the 27th of June a tele ommunication, signed "Subscriber," was orwarded to the San Antonio Herald and ublished in that paper of the 28th, in ref-rence to the late attack on the stage coach. The sourcious dispatch contained some cry severe strictures on the conduct of the flights, and of some

We, the undersigned citizens of Pecos County, desire therefore to express our sincre regret that such an unwarranted and ricious attack has been made on the military authorities and also to assure the military authorities and also to assure the military authorities and the public generally that it is our firm conviction that no citizen of Pecos county has made, or possibly could make, such untrue and utterly false statements in reference to the very men whom we personally respect and to whom we owe our peace and prosperity on this frontier. In conclusion we cannot but express our surprise and regret that the Herald should have thought fit to publish such false and injurious statements from an anonymous correspondent.

An Inquiry. San Antonio, July 13, 1878.

DEAR SIRS: Permit me to inquire through the EXPRESS, whether the Water Company is compalled by the contract entered into with the city, to bring the water from the mains to the sidewalk curbing, free of charge? Or can be company charge for the same as they please, as they say they can?

A number of owners of houses who are ready to have the water introduced into their buildings are awaiting for a reply to the above.

Respectfully,

There is nothing in the contract with the waterworks company, we believe, in reference to the above question. We understand, however, that in all cities where water works cite the cost of taking the water from the hanne devolves upon the consumer. We know of no rule to compet the company to bring the water to the sidewalk any more than to carry it into the buildings, though such an one may exist.

About four o'clock this morning, John Baizins, a German blackmith, attending a dance at Fest's store on South Flores street got into a difficulty with several parties. He seised a Mexican bytho mame of Lais Valdes by the throat, and the two foll in a brush in their struggle. Others surrounded the combatants. Presently, to a general surprise, Blainins arose and almost immediately fell in death. He was found to be stabbed near the heart.
