About the year 1825, Count Alexander de Bodisco, after having occupied several positions of influence and jrust under the Russian government, was appointed minister plenipotentiary and envoy extraordinary to Washington. He came immediately to this city, and purchased the large manion on Second street new occupied by Col. Theodore B. Samo, The count brought with him his two nephews, Waldemar and Borus, and the family steward. Dona, who, married his cousin, Miss Annette Bodisco, and brought her to this country. He rented a house on West street, between Congress and High streets, Georgetown, and lived there while acting in the capacity of secretary to the Russian legation. He was then tendered the consul-generalship at New York, which he accepted, and, moving to that city, held the position to the time of his death. His wife and three sons are still living. Uorus, the other nephew of the count, married in Russia, and remained there in the military service. He has never returned to this country.

had left for Russia, the count had met at a May party of Miss English's school, in Georgetown, Miss Harriet Williams, daughter of Mr. Brooke B. Williams. The young lady, then a school girl, was the "Queen," and remarkably handsome. The count fell in love at first sight, and soon after gave a grand ball in her bonor. When she left school he married her, she being then about 18. The ceremony was performed at the house of Mr. Williams, in the midst of a brilliant assemblage. The young bride was then driven to the house of her titled husband, where the festivities were conducted on a magnificent scale. The marriage proved a happy one, and six children were born, as follows: Four sons, Alexander, Costa, Sash

The monument of Tennessee marble, with its inscription in gold letters, which stands over his grave, is still an object of interest. After the death of her husband, Mrs. Bodisco went abroad, and in India met Capt. Scott, of the British army. They were married, and are now living in Eng-land. Of the children of the count, Alexan-der and Sash died abroad, and their remains are buried in the Radisco lot in Oak Hill. der and Sash died abroad, and their remains are buried in the Bodisco lot in Oak Hill. It is in this lot that the deceased Waldemar will be interred. William has been almost lost sight of, but it is believed that he is in Russia in the government service. Costa married the eldest daughter of Mr. Joseph Barton, of Georgetown, who now resides at the Seminary hotel in that city. He met the young lady at a ball, and, like his father, was stricken with her beauty, and fell is love with her at once. He married her, but, like the count, married for love alone, as neither of the girls were by any means wealthy. The ceremony was conducted quiety at the reastence of the bride is father, on Fayette street, near the convent. They are now living in Russia. Of the daughters, Olga married abroad, but Mattie is living with her mother in England. Mr. Brooke B.
