Though some changes have already been made in some provisions of the 1984 Farm program rulings on repayment of corn and grain deficiency payments, a bill which passed last week, amended from an earlier version, in the Senate will furhter amend provisions in the farm bill if it is passed by the House. The bill, which is still currently facing House action, does not now alter the 1984 cotton and feed grain programs. It does, however, freeze 1985 target prices at 1984 levels. Wheat target prices for 1984 would be lowered from current target prices of $4.45 per bushel to $4.38 per bushel and frozen for 1985 at that level.

If the newly proposed mid-year bill passes, a paid wheat diversion for 1984 would be included. The current program includes no paid diversion.

In the new provisions of the '84 bill, a 10 percent paid advance diversion and a 20 percent acreage reduction in the wheat program 1984 and 1985 is provided for. The current wheat program requires a 30 percent acreage reduction and provides for a 10-20 percent PIK with an 85 percent payment rate.

Under the new bill proposal, PIK would remain in the 1984 wheat program,

If the 1984 cotton carryover is estimated by the USDA at 3.7 million bales, the 1985 program would include at least a 25 percent total acreage reduction, with at least percent of that in paid diversion. It also provides that cotton growers receive land diversion payments on any acres taken out of production beyond the 20 percent acreage reduction level. If carryover stocks are projected to surpass 3.7 million bales on July 31, 1985, diversion payments would be set at not less than 25 cents per pound. If USDA estimate carryover stocks at that time will exceed 4.1 million bales, diversion payments will not be less than 30 cents. Stocks projecting of over 4.7 million bales would cause a diversion payment rate of not less than 35 cents. The proposed bill would freeze 1985 target prices at 81 cents per pound for cotton and $3.03 on corn.

Growers Intend To Plant 11.6 Million Cotton Acres

A National Cotton Council economist said in Little Rock today that growers intend to plant 11.6 million acres of cotton this spring.

Joe Wyrick reported the acreage forecast before the Council's Producer Steering Committee as the organization's members gathered for their annual meeting.

Wyrick said the acreage estimate was the result of an early January planting intentions survey made by the Council. The total of 11.6 million acres expected to be planted to cotton includes 64,000 acres of American

"This is about a 45 percent increase over planted acres in 1983, which was the lowest planted acreage in this century due to USDA's acreage reduction and payment-in-kind programs,'

"Our survey of growers in all 17 cotton-producing states shows that 72 percent of the national cotton acreage base will participate in the 1984 acreage reduction program. This year's program has changed substantially from last year's, with the most notable difference being the absence of a payment-in-kind provision in 1984," he said.

According to USDA, a grower participating in the cotton program agrees to leave 25 percent of his official base acreage unplanted. In return, his crop is protected by a minimum target price set by Congress and he may, if desired, receive a government loan on his cotton. #### Area Economics Signs Beginning To Improve farmers are beginning to Improved economic signs are beginning to come home to the local area, and irrigation farmers are starting to make the improvements in their farming operations that they have been putting off for the last couple of years, according to the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District.

Signs of this improvement are being seen in the number of applications for water well permits which are issued by the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1. During the first two months of this year, 94 permit appliations have been issued throughout the Water District's 15-county service area. This compares to a total for the previous 12-month period of 127 applications and amounts to 74 percent of last year's

Ken Carver, Water Use/Conservation Division Director for the Water District, indicated that this upswing in permitting activity could in part be attributed to the PIK program last year which brought some measure of profit back to the farming community. Mr. Carver also suggested that as a result of this small profit margin,

Brucellosis Serious For People In Texas

Brucellosis, commonly thought of as an animal disease, is a serious problem for people in Texas, an infectious disease specialist says. Edward J. Young, M.D., a brucellosis expert at the Veterans Administration Medical Center and Baylor College of Medicine, also said many brucellosis cases in human are inaccurately diagnosed because its symptoms match those of so many other diseases.

Brucellosis is difficult to diagnose because its symptoms of periodic fever, sweats, depression and severe lower-back pain are so common. Young said this often results in misdiagnosis and an inaccurate number of reported cases.

Brucellosis is an animal infection transmitted to humans through milk products or contact with diseased animals. The infection is usually associated with cow's or goat's milk, but can also come from contact with diseased sheep, pigs and ber of human brucellosis cases. Young said one reason for this is due to the Mexican tradition of using unpasteurized goat's milk to make cheese. They believe the pasteurization process results in the cheese losing its unique flavor. "The Mexican government just released information that they had more than 2,000 cases of human brucellosis last year," Young said. "And a large number of these cases came from Mexican states along the Texas border."

More than 6,000 cases of human brucellosis occurred in the United States in 1945. Since then, the number of cases reported to the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta has dropped to between 200 and 300 a year. Laws enacted that required the pasteurization of all milk for human consumption and programs in each state aimed at the elimination of brucellosis in cattle were major reasons for the decrease, Young said.

However, some authorities estimate that for every reported case of human brucellosis there are 20 to 25 cases unreported or undiagnosed.

Young believes that physicians need to be reminded that human brucellosis is an even more serious health problem for veterinarians, farmers, ranchers, meat processing-plant employees and laboratory workers. ### State Program Helps Taxpayers Get Relief

Ron Patterson, executive director of the State Property Tax Board (SPTB), today announced a statewide effort to inform Texas property owners of their rights, remedies, and responsibilities as taxpayers.

According to Patterson, SPTB will coordinate efforts with appraisal districts and all local news media to help make taxpayers aware of rendition and exemption filing deadlines and methods by which exemptions or other forms of tax relief may be obtained.

"The first priority for property owners is to file renditions and applications for tax relief before May 1 this year," Patterson said.

Rendition is the method through which a property owner reports or lists the taxable property he owned or managed on January 1, 1984. It is also the means by which a taxpayer is allowed. to record his own opinion of his property's value.

Patterson noted that taxpayers may file all exemption applications and property rendition forms with the central appraisal district office. State law also allows one-time applications for homestead exemptions, disabled veterans' exemptions and open-space land valu-

However, he said, persons whose property is located in more than one county appraisal district have an additional responsibility. These property owners may be required to file for exemptions and productivity valuation in each appraisal district in which their property is located. Failure to do so could result in one or more taxing units taxing the property on its full market value.

An example would where a city or school district is located in two counties and chooses to join only one appraisal district.

Property owners who last year received homestead exdisabled vetemptions, erans' exemptions and open-space land (1-d-1) valuation do not need to reapply in 1984. Applications must be filed in 1984, Patterson said, by property owners who have not previously received tax relief on their present homestead or land.

State law also requires that applications for agricultural (1-d) valuation be filed each year in all appraisal districts. Agricultural (1-d) and open-space land (1-d-1) valuations are available to property owners using land for farming or ranching purposes. Such land may be taxed based on productivity rather than market value.

Certain property owners are required to render their property. "Any person who Vitamin C

And, the chief appraiser may require rendition of other taxable property upon notice to the property owner or manager. Transportation companies, banks and railroads must also file special rendition statements.

Patterson said rendition forms are available from appraisal district offices. Transportation businesses may obtain property report forms from the SPTB.

Complete information on tax exemptions and rendition requirements is contained in "Taxpayers' Rights, Responsibilities!," a taxpayer pamphlet produced by the SPTB.

The pamphlet also reviews how to prepare and present an appeal to the appraisal review board. It is available at no charge from appraisal district offices or from the SPTB in Austin. "The property tax is the primary source of local government revenue in Texas," Patterson noted.

'We urge all property owners to become familiar with the tax process, to file renditions and to apply for all exemptions or other tax relief to which they are entitled," Patterson conclud-

Sandhills Philosopher

Editor's note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Sandy Acres thinks he has an answer to the TV networks' election prediction tricks. Dear editor:

I've never met anybody who knows somebody who has ever been polled by a public opinion pollster.

The 1200 people they poll to find out what 50,000,000 voters think are as hard to find as a politician with a cure for the deficit or a doctor with a cure for a bad

What happened in New Hampshire however where the pre-election polls were turned topsy-turvy leads me to believe that my notion of everybody's telling a pollester wrong, may be catching

> You see, there has been a great deal of concern over polls. People say they're influencing elections before elections are held. If a poll shows one candidate far out in the lead, political investors begin shoveling more money to him, on the sound business principle that money given to a losing candidate is like investing oil money in a dry hole. This works a hardship on the alleged trailing candidate, even though he may not actually be behind, as New Hampshire voters demon-

Also, people are concerned about poll-exit polling. The IV networks poll voters coming out of voting booths and announce who the winner is before the real votes are counted. By buttonholing voters in the East they announce who's elected nationwide while voting in the West still has several hours to go. As a result, some voters on the west coast, seeing on their TV sets the election has already been decided, don't take the trouble to vote. Why go to the polls and stand in line to vote against a candidate the networks say has already been elected?

This, it's said, skewers an elections outcome and it ought to be against the law; Congress ought to put a stop to the networks' smart-alec Befuddle the pollsters. For example, when New Hampshire voters came out of the booths and a TV hired hand buttonholed them. they should have crossed their fingers behind their backs and told him wrong.

Thus the networks would have flashed on their screens: MONDALE WINS, and when the newspapers came out next day with HART WINS, everybody could have a good laugh. And a good laugh is the only defense I can think of against some of the worlds current problems.

Ramie Is Linen

Look-Alike

Don't be surprized if your new spring dress looks like linen, but lists ramie on the fabric content label.

Since ramie resembles linen, but is less expensive, it's being used in many spring and fashions, says Becky Saunders, a Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service clothing and textiles specialist.

Consumers have questions about ramie, says the specialist, often because they think it's a new fiber requiring special care.

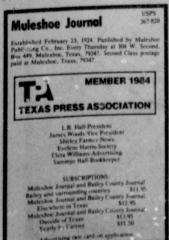

Ramie -- a natural plant fiber obtained from nettle plants -- has been used for years, says Saunders. It is now gaining popularity because linen is fashionable again, she explains.

Like linen, ramie is brittle and has a tendency to wrinkle, she explains. But it's also stronger and softer than linen as well as mildew resistant.

Ramie fabrics may have some problems, such as forming balls on the surface, possible color loss and breaking in places where it is repeatedly folded. However, it is now commonly blended with other natural and synthetic fibers to combine the best qualities of each, she notes.

Fabric containing ramie can be laundered or dry-cleaned. Carefully follow the care label directions to assure that the colors and overall appearance are retained, advises the spec-

Although ramie costs less than linen, it is found in clothes in a wide variety of price ranges. To judge the quality of clothing containing the fiber, consider the cost of the item, the manufacturer and the store rather than the fiber alone, advises Saunders.

Piano Students Receive Superior Rating

Four piano students from Muleshoe entered the Piano and Organ Festival at West Texas State University in Canyon on Saturday, March 24th. Two of these received a "Superior" rating of "1", and received medals for their performances. They were Alan Finney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Finney, and Lisa Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hamilton. Alan played three numbers in Class 11, receiving two "1"s and one "2" rating on these. The selections he played were "Sonatina, Op. 88 No. 3" by KulHlau,

All of these piano students are pupils of Elaine Damron, and Mrs. Damron says "I feel this is quite an accomplishment for all of them, since this festival is a very prestigious one, and it is extremely difficult to make a "1" rating." There were students participating from all over the Texas Pan-Handle and South Plains and parts of Oklahoma and New Mexico. These pupils were accompanied to Canyon Saturday by their teacher, Mrs. Damron, and their mothers, Mrs. Finney, Mrs. Isaac and correct social security number to a payor of interest dividends, and "other reportable payments" may be subject to a $50 penalty and to backup withholding starting January 1, 1984. Backup withholding will also be required for individuals whom the IRS identifies as having underreported interest and dividend income.

Backup withholding will be done by the payor of such income at the rate of 20%. It applies not only to interest and dividends but also to other payments such as rent, royalties, commissions, non-employee compensation, and other reportable payments.

You will be receiving identification number verification requests (From W-9) from such payors. These requests should be read repealed in 1983. However, at the time that carefully and the instructions followed, or provision was repealed, a new provision you may find yourself subject to backup withhoulding and a $50 penalty.

Backup withholding is not an additional tax. Rather, the tax liability of persons subject to backup withholding will be reduced by the amount of the tax withheld. If withholding results in an overpayment of taxes, a refund may be obtained.

Payors who must withhold the tax are to deposit it in the same way that they handle, withheld payroll taxes.

In general, only those payments that are considered "reportable payments" are subject to the backup withholding rules: that is, annual interest and dividend payments of less than $10 or other payments of less than $600 are not subject to these

Rural injuries prevalent in many Texas communities

COLLEGE STATION-Representatives from medical, community and governmental agencies recently met with agrultural experts at Texas A&M University to discuss recommendations for establishing a state level task force to prevent rural injuries.

"If you're a farmer in Texas, there is one chance in five that you will have a serious injury this year," said Dr. Gary Nelson. "Of course, those aren't very good odds.

Nelson, an agricultural safety engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, said statistics indicate for every accident resulting in a fatality, there will be 100 accidents resulting in disabling injuries, 1,000 resulting in serious equipment or property damage, and 1,200 resulting in serious in-

According to a 10-year study, two thirds of the 2,000-plus fatal rural accidents in Texas between 1966-76 were the result of accidents involving firearms, drowning, fire, tractor accidents, falls from ladders, platforms and farm machinery and from animals. "The scope of the task force on the prevention of rural injury would involve all aspects of injuries in the rural setting, including occupational, homerelated, recreational and highway accidents," Nelson said. "It would involve those who live in rural areas as well as those who visit them.

Joggers, runners and racers from all over West Texas will be participating in the third annual "Run For The Arts" on Saturday, March 31, starting at 8 a.m. at the Lubbock Civic Center. There will be a 1/2 marathon (13.1 miles), 2 mile run and a 1 mile elementary school race. For more information contact Mike Kelley at 1-806-793-2728.

Nation's Natural Gas Bubble Deflated

Chairman Mack Wallace said today that the nation's widely-reported natural gas "bubble" disappeared in Texas during the Christmas cold snap and that the gas suppliers "narrowly averted human suffering from lack of heat and electricity.'

Wallace, in letters to all members of the Texas Congressional delegation; Senate Energy Committee chairman Sen. McClure of Idaho; House Energy and Commerce Committee chairman Rep. John Dingell of Michigan;

Indiana, chairman of the Subcommittee on Fossil and Synthetic Fuels of the House Energy and Commerce Committee, said that a recent study by Commission staff members "confirmed my own belief that record low temperatures in late December, 1983, and early January of this year, wiped out much of the highly-touted gas surplus.'

The currently available supply of gas in Texas - and quite probably in the entire nation - appears to be grossly overstated," he said. Before the severe cold

Sudan Basketball News

The Sudan Hornettes took an early 8 point lead against Claude and never looked back as they won their opening game in the Rebasketball tournament 52-21. Sudan took the opening tip-off and worked the ball in to post Sharla Harrison for a quick 2 points, then got the ball and repeated the process in some 30 seconds for a 4-0 lead. Missy Fisher hit a bullseye from top of the circle and then repeated this as Claude missed on a fast break and Sudan recoverd the rebound, making the score 8-0 before Claude got on the board. However with some 2:30 minutes left in the opening period Claude scored on a good pass in a three-on-one situation. Sudan turned the ball over on a dropped pass and Claude pulled within 4 points, 12-8. Nix widened the gap by dropping one in from the corner and ending the quarter 14-8.

Sudan did not control the tip-off for the second period for the first time in several games and Claude again came within four points but this was the final threat as Sudan put in a big 17 points this quarter. Shawnda Masten began the scoring for Sudan with a three-point play. Jeannia Nix added six points on a side shot, a good pass down court and a long one from the corner. Fisher also hit one from the corner mid-quarter when the score was 23-12. Harrison hit on a turn-around and Sudan missed a couple of chances to score until the final seconds when Gussie Wooley hit a rebound shot and then sank one from outside at the buzzer to give the Hornets a 31-14 lead at the half.

Harrison started the scoring in the third period with an under-the-basket shot and Shawnda Masten added a rebound shot with 5:20 on the clock. There was no score for the next two minutes although Sudan played good defensive ball. Harrison scored and then Masten added two points in a good power play under the basket, 39-14. Sudan got the ball on a turnover but was called for the 3-second violation with less than 2 minutes left on the clock before Harrison hit two rebound shots to give 8 points for the quarter and Sudan the lead

43-14, holding Claude scoreless for the period. Sudan controlled the jump but lost the ball on a pass. Harrison was fouled on a backdoor shot and hit one from the line, 44-14. Claude ended their scoreless streak two minutes into the quarter on a Sudan turnover. Nix hit a setshot mid-quarter after Claude added a freeshot for a 46-17 score. Sudan momentarily lost control of the ball and timeout was called to settle the girls down. They came back and played control ball and Wooley added two points on a good move to the basket 48-19. Masten hit a good turn around shot with 1:30 left. Sudan missed the front end of a one and one situation with 43 seconds left but Fisher canned both of her 52, Claude 21. Harrison hit for a big 17 points while Nix and Fisher each had 10. Masten had 9 and Wooley hit for 6. The Hornettes hit 4 of 7 free shots. We would like to say 'congratulation' to all the Hornettes and their coaches for a winning season and special wishes to the seniors Missy Fisher, Kim Powell, Gussie Wooley, Sherrie Williams and Shawnie DeLoach. To the remaining Hornette squad 'good luck next year'. We are very proud of the way the Hornettes represented our community with their conduct on and off the courts.

and Rep. Philip R. Sharp of weather spell, Texas producers estimated a 24 billion cubic feet per day supply of natural gas available in the statewide system. But according to Wallace, the RRC study showed that as of January of this year, the state only had the ability to deliver between 13.8 and 14.2 billion cubic feet per

"During the 1983 Christmas cold snap with schools, factories, and businesses closed, we still may have lacked as much as 5 billion cubic feet of gas to fully meet the demand." Wallace said. "We averted human suffering only by withdrawing heavily from underground storage - as much as 3.4 billion cubic feet per day - and utilizing as fully as possible coal, lignite, and fuel oil and in electric power generation.'

Wallace went on to say that Texas and the nation face a potential energy crisis, a serious one, over natural gas supplies in the not to distant future.

In the plainest of terms, we are using natural gas faster than we are discovering it," he said. He said there simply isn't enough natural gas at this time to take care of aneconomy on the upturn and bitter cold weather at the same time, and warned that without the ability to switch to fuel oil and to use lignite, 'we would not make it in this state on natural gas

"For almost all of February, 1977, we produced wide open with 17.7 billion cubic feet per day in our statewide system," Wallace said. "We were able to deliver 17.7 billion cubic feet per day and the entire nation suffered. In contrast, in January of this year, based on the Christmas 1983 experience, we believe Texas can now deliver only about 14 billion cubic feet per day."

Wallace blamed the deteriorating gas situation on the gradual playing-out of current gas supplies and several years of depressed levels of gas drilling - a situation brought about by misguided federal actions.

He quoted studies by former Railroad Commission chairman Bill Murray which show that all the Texas wells which produced in 1981 will only be able to produce 43 percent as much by 1986. Consequently, if 1986 demand is no greater than in 1981, 57 percent of the state's demand will have to come from wells drilled after January 1, 1982.

"So far, the industry has been discouraged from drilling at adequate rates to meet such demand," Wallace observed. "If this nation continues to blind itself to the consequences of its own actions and refuses to make the hard choice in favor of the free market. then exploration for gas will remain at 1983's severly-reduced rate and the available supply of gas will decline even more steeply in the future. In that event, subsequent severe winters will give rise to extensive human suffering across this entire nation.

"I am committed and determined to do all in my power to insure that day never comes," pledged. He said that 'some of us concerned about the complacency in dealing with the natural gas issue have already issued repeated warnings to the Congress, to regulatory bodies, to consumers and to the natural gas industry. "And I do so here once again in the hopes that this nation will take postive, forthright action before it is too late," Wallace said.

The Congress, he said, through the passage of the Natural Gas Policy Act, has splintered constituencies among producers, pipelines, distributors and consumers alike into a range as diverse as the inequitable categories of natural gas it has estab-

"America's total energy mix is awesome," he said, "but it takes a recognition by the United States Congress that natural gas must be allowed to freely search out its own place in the energy marketplace. Shackled, it cannot cure itself."

Dear Bob:

The last time I painted my living room. ceiling and walls, I had shadows of roller strokes in the middle of the ceiling. I am ready to repaint this room; can you give me some suggestions?

Dear Larry:

The shadows on your ceiling are from paint lap marks caused by applying wet paint over dry paint as you moved furniture or took a break during painting. It's always important to keep a wet edge.

When painting the ceiling, outline along the ceiling edge and down onto the walls an inch or so to insure even coverage where ceiling meets the wall. Furniture and floor should be covered with plastic drop cloths from your True Value

Hardware Stores. Begin in a corner and apply paint in several strips across the shortest dimension of the ceiling while keeping a wet edge. Continue back and forth to the opposite corner. Try to complete the entire ceiling at once to avoid lap marks.

Coach DeAnn Halford commented, "I would like to personally congratulate my girls on their fantastic victory. They not only won the track meet, but they improved their times tremendously. It's not real often you find 7th graders running a 68 second quarter mile, a 13 second 100 m. dash, a 56.9 sprint relay, or a 6:27 mile. I'm just proud I have this group of athletes. It's not every day to have 7th graders who could compete with the high school, and these girls could. What I'm trying to say is that this is an exceptional group of athletes, one of the best groups to come through Watson Jr. High. I want to thank them for their many hours of hard work and dedication. #### COTTON TALKS

Officials of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., Lubbock, have announced the organization's 1984 annual membership meeting for 2:00 p.m. on Thursday, April 19 in the Banquet Hall of Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

The meeting will key on factors in international trade that affect the all-important export market for High Plains cotton. Featured speaker will be Burleigh Leonard, senior staff member of the President's Office of Policy and Development. Leonard has been asked to discuss international trade policy goals and how those goals may influence the drafting of the 1985 farm bill.

Also on the program will be Sam Evans, Senior Commodity Analyst with USDA's Economic Research Service. Additional details of the meeting will be reported as they become available, officials said. * * * * * * * * *

The 1983 cotton crop from the 25 counties represented by Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. was characterized by a continuation of the trend toward greater fiber strength, plus a significant increase in staple

The Cotton Division of USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service in Lubbock reported March 9 that the average strength of the cotton classed there from this year's crop was 25.5 grams per tex, as compared to

The Lubbock office report covered just over 970,000 bales. Most of the rest of the crop from the 25 PCG counties was classed at Lamesa where strengths averaged even higher, at 26.1 grams per tex. The Lamesa office reported classings of almost 290,000 bales.

Staple lengths for cotton classed at Lubbock averaged 32.1 thirty-seconds of an inch in 1983, compared to 31.0 thirty-seconds in 1982 and 31.2 thirty-seconds in 1981. Lamesa classings averaged 33 thirty-seconds

Unfortunately, the favorable effect of these fiber quality characteristics on price to some extent was offset by lower grades. This in part was the result of excessive bark content which reduces quality by at least one grade.

"Barkies" accounted for almost half (47 percent) of the 1983 crop classed at Lubbock, far above the 20 percent recorded in 1982 but well below the 64 percent classed as barky in 1981. Barkies accounted for only 34 percent of the classings at the Lamesa office.

While the official total production figures for the 25 PCG counties will be reported later in 480-pound bales by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, based on ginnings through January, reported by the U.S. Bureau of Census, PCG officials say a production figure a little above 1.3 million bales is virtually

Biologist studies ways to eliminate deadly snail fever

COLLEGE STATION-Conquering snail fever, one of the few major tropical diseases currently on the increase, is the goal of a Texas A&M University biologist studying how the parasitic infection evades man's immune response. Under a grant from the National Institutes of Health and the Edna McConnell Clark Foundation, Dr. Michael Kemp is investigating how blood flukes called schistosomes live in the bloodstream of humans for decades without being destroyed by the body's natural defenses. "The parasite mimicks the normal white blood cells of the host," Kemp explained. "They actually borrow antigens from humans and the body can't recognize them as an enemy.
