NATIONAL CAPITOL NOTES. Washington, December 13.—From returns to the Department of Agriculture it is estimated the aggregate wheat crop will be four hundred and twenty-five millions bushels. It was decided to hold a special meeting to consider Representative Harris' bill for the re-organization of the navy, but the date was not fixed.

ARMY RE-ORGANIZATION. Washington, December 13.—Among the details of the army re-organization are the provisions that hereafter all vacancies in the grade of Second Lieutenant shall be filled by appointments from graduates of the Military Academy and by promotions from meritorious soldiers, and that the general officers shall be selected from the army; the appointment of the general officers shall be made by the President, and the subject of appointments in the army. It is claimed therefore by members of the committee, that the incident of the repeal of section 1218 of the revised statutes, which forbids the appointment in the army of any person who served in the Confederate army, will not open the door to the appointment of Confederate officers or soldiers to any grade except that of Second Lieutenant, and that only through promotion at a Military Academy or by promotion from ranks.

Has Professor Tice quit in disgust, and left it all to Old Probabilities?

Also new approaches are making a corner in Mexico dollars in Japan. Is there no retreat within the four corners of the earth where the Mexican dollar can be let alone?

The unknown member of the House who introduced the bill on Thursday to repeal the duty on spirits is entitled to the thanks of the people. The present tax on this economy drug is barbarous and an outrage on humanity.

The Senate took breath on the 13th, after the debate on Haines' resolution, by passing the Fortification Appropriation bill, and the bill to correct the omission in the Hot Springs bill of the last session. More business and less politics is the reformation needed in Congress.

WIKES is there another city with the population and wealth of San Antonio, and possessing the same facilities for manufacturing and the same abundance and variety of the raw material at its doors, that presents such a beggarly absence of enterprise in that branch of industry?

UNITED STATES COMMISSIONER and acting Supervisor of Elections, J. J. Dawson, of New York, will furnish the next job to an investigating committee. The Judiciary committee will turn him inside out and Hays will, or should, turn him out of office, if found guilty of the charges preferred in Fernando Wood's resolution, after which the courts should deal with him as such rascals deserve.

This bill for the reorganization of the army, introduced into the Senate by Burnside of the Joint committee, seems to leave the army as it is, as to numbers, but makes a sweeping reduction of general officers—from eleven to six. These say the only features of the bill viewed by the wits. Texas has an interest in the army, and we shall look with some anxiety for the details of the bill and the action of Congress upon it. The army is small enough at 25,000, but there is room for improvement in its efficiency, and it is to be hoped that the bill perfected by the commission which has been laboring upon the subject during the recess of Congress will accomplish the purpose.

SENATOR THURMAN's amendment, if adopted, will be apt to furnish a good deal of game that has lain low for some time past. The following, from the New Orleans Democrat, refers to a case of the sort: "The Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun learns from a Louisiana Republican that the Republican State Committee of Louisiana raised $7,000 by assessment in the October House to carry on the late canvass. Of this amount $4,000 was sent into the Fourth District to assist in the election of Wells. This amount was not employed in the manner intended. The story runs that Wells appropriated it to his own use and made no canvass. This matter seems to require some explanation. However, as Wells would not be believed on oath, he may as well remain silent and bear whatever censure attaches to the disposal of these funds."

The New York Tribune sarcastically observes that the new-born friendship between Spain and Guiney puts the love of Danton and Fyfius to shame, as each of these anxious aspirants for the Presidency is said to protest that the other is the fittest man for the nomination. Such brotherly unity is surely as beautiful as, if it does not eclipse, that commended by the Psalmist. Conkling condones Haines' little crookedness in railroad stock, and Haines wants Conkling to be President instead of himself in 1880. This is truly lovely. If the two nations would only become as affectionate as to agree to a mutual and common surrender of Presidential aspirations so as to make sure of not getting in each other's way, the country would be incalculably the gainer. But such a stipulation of self-abnegation would prove the millennium, and as there is no good reason to believe that promised era is near at hand, it is not to be expected.

The present object of the Taxpayers' Association is most laudable. There has been complaint of high taxes among our property owners for a long time, and yet we venture to say that many were surprised when the Express brought to light the fact the other day that the present rate of taxation is ninety-five cents on the hundred dollars worth of property—a lower rate than has prevailed for years past. If this rate can be reduced without detriment to the interests of the city—which is, after all, the object of the association—it should be done. Doubtless that is the object of the day, which is weighing like a mill stone around the neck of cities, counties and States, not to speak of the Federal government itself. But there is such a thing as false economy—a penny-wise and pound-foolish economy—which is to be avoided, by corporations no less than by business men. Our city is in a condition to be made or mended, as to its growth and prosperity, according to the wisdom with which either extreme of parsimony or extravagance is avoided in the future. Let the Taxpayers' Association keep this general object in view, and such good may be accomplished by the organization.

GALEATION is exercised over a movement to reduce the salaries of some of the city officials. An informal meeting of the board of Aldermen was held a few evenings since, which is thus reported in the News: "The object of the meeting was to discuss and determine the salaries of the city officials for the coming municipal year. Alderman Campbell was called to the chair. Below is given a list of the offices discussed and the salaries attached to each: Mayor, $1200; city clerk, $1800; treasurer, $1200; city engineer, $1000; assessor, $800; chief of police, $1800; chief of fire department, $800; assistant physician, $1800; assistant physician and steward of the hospital, $800; engineers of steam engines, $1200; drivers, $450; sergeants of police, $1000; chief of fire department, number reduced to thirty and salary passed over; one patrolman to act as fire warden, $800; city attorney, $1500; city clerk, $1200; city attorney, $1500. After agreeing to stand by their action the board adjourned.

All of the salaries were unchanged from last year except the following: Mayor's, which was reduced $1,000, the auditor's reduced $600, city engineer's reduced $200, assessor's reduced $200, messenger's reduced $750. The expenses of the fire engine had their salaries increased from $1,000 to $1,200 per annum. Right attention participated in their proceedings, and it is understood that they employ the necessary majority to carry out the changes indicated.

PROFESSOR TICE.

A great deal has been said by the press, both in Mexico and the United States, of Mr. Zamacoa's efforts to encourage commercial intercourse between the two countries. The Express has called attention to this subject from time to time, and while wishing the movement success and writing the co-operation of our authorities and people, has pointed out some of the difficulties in the way and insisted that, as an earnest of the good faith of Mr. Zamacoa, the first step should be the settlement of the Rio Grande border troubles. It has been represented in these columns that while the natural resources of Mexico are rich, varied and inexhaustible, the people of the United States, and especially of the Northern States, know but little of the actual retrograde condition of society, business and government in this country, brought about by half a century of revolution, or of the national sentiment of antagonism and suspicion entertained against Americans and American enterprise, Mr. Zamacoa's rose-colored pictures to the contrary notwithstanding. In the latter part of November the Hon. John G. Foster, United States Minister to Mexico, in reply to a request from the Manufacturer's Association of the Northwest, sent to the Washington State Department, for the information of the Association, a letter prepared with great care and giving his conclusions as to the practicality of selling American commerce with Mexico. Mr. Foster's letter is the reverse of encouraging to those who contemplate investments in such an enterprise, and is in nearly every essential particular a contradiction of Mr. Zamacoa's representations. Our Minister points out three obstacles which form a barrier to commerce; first the absence of means of communication, second the prohibitory tariff of Mexico, and third, the want of protection of the persons and property of foreign merchants. He says: "The present means of communication are very imperfect, the only one being the Imperial Valley. This line is not extended without a subsidy, and there is no prospect that a railroad from the City of Mexico to the Rio Grande will be constructed." He further says that Mexican sentiment is opposed to railroad connections with this country, as Mexicans see in such projects the danger of annexation to the United States. In proof of the opposition felt to American enterprise Mr. Foster quotes part of a late speech by the present speaker of the lower house of the Mexican Congress in which that functionary said: "It is very injudicious to establish within our country a strong American company. It is a national law of history that border nations are enemies; that the nations of the North generally invade nations of the South; hence we should always fear the United States." Mr. Foster, however, says there is a limited field which Americans may occupy, and recommends manufacturers to establish warehouses in the city of Mexico, where by the exhibition and sale of their manufactures a market market may be gradually created. To this letter Mr. Zamacoa has replied in detail, denying generally and specially the facts, and reiterating his own views of the entire feasibility of the speedy establishment of largely increased trade between the two countries. He also declares that he regards an International railroad from the City of Mexico to the Rio Grande the best means of opening trade and commerce between the two countries and asserts that it is not the fault of his government that such a road is not constructed. Thus the issue is made up between these two gentlemen, who represent their respective governments. Which one is right? They cannot both be right. Can Mr. Foster have any purpose to accomplish by misrepresenting the facts? His own interest and reputation as a diplomatist and the interests of his countrymen would be promoted by the enlargement of commercial relations between the two countries under his auspices, and it is pretty certain that he believes what he has said. Has Mr. Zamacoa any purpose which he feels behind his plausible and eloquent dissertations? We are inclined to think he has, and that this purpose is to withdraw attention from the Rio Grande border troubles and to obtain the revocation of the order authorizing Gen. Oros to cross into Mexico in pursuit of mail-revengers. We wish we could believe otherwise, but Mexican diplomacy takes many hues and shapes which have often hitherto beguiled the Anglo-Saxon simplicity of our people, and we think Mr. Zamacoa has had many a laugh in his sleeve of late to see how the good people of the northern cities enjoy having dust thrown in their eyes.

THE POINT OF PARTING.

Some of our exchanges are disposed to grumble because Wade Hampton has been elected to the Senate, and that removed from the arena in which he has been the instrument of so much usefulness. It is unquestionably true that the State of South Carolina will be the loser so far as home political matters go, but Hampton's work has been so well done that with ordinary good sense in the administration of State affairs in the future the machine will run itself, as the saying is. We mean that the relations of good feeling and confidence between the two races have been so well established that they cannot be shaken easily. Besides, the new Governor, Simpson, who has been elected Governor, is a man of well known ability, and possesses the confidence of the people of all classes in South Carolina. In such a degree that he will fill Hampton's place as well as it could be filled by any man. Southern men the Hampton are needed now at Washington, where the issue is already raised whether the right of self-government shall again be taken from the South. It is at Washington that the decisive struggle is pending, and it is from the forum of Congress that the voice of reason and justice uttered by the mouths of such men as Hampton, Gordon and others, must reach the masses of the North—the jury before whom the case is on trial—if it can be reached at all. The plan of the new Governor, who is characterized by Senator Thurman when he characterized Haines' resolution as a string upon which to hang inflammatory prophecies intended to arouse the hate and hostility of the North against the South. Should this plan succeed to the extent of the overthrow of the Democratic party of the North and West and the recovery of the control of Congress by the Republican party, Democratic supremacy in South Carolina and every other Southern State would be a vain and futile hope of rage. With the scepter of power once more in its eager hands, Republicanism would not be content with such a success as that of Hays, who proposes to reduce the representation of South Carolina according to the vote-combining in the fourteenth amendment. Nothing short of the Mississippi plan of Sherman—to territorialize the South on States and place them all under federal leading strings—would mark the history of the second reconstruction. Hence it is that the South is wise in sending her ablest and

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

Opinions of the Press. New York Sun. In this message Mr. Hayes fully attests to the respectability and good sense of the times that he has made any new suggestions worthy of a man of affairs, and again shows himself to be an incompetent as he is a fraudulent President.

NORTH (V.) LANDMARK.

The "United States" does not mean unambiguously to the North. It does not mean unambiguously to the South, but it does mean to the Anglo-Saxon race in its strong in courage and intelligence to submit to the domination of four lately emancipated slaves and their leaders.

From the Buffalo N. Y. Courier, (Dem.)

The circumstances attending his elevation to power, and the policy of the party to which he is indebted for his seat, and which considers it for its interests to keep alive sectional issues, have induced Mr. Hayes to consider the "Southern question" from his own partisan point of view. His address upon this subject aptly, of course, tempered by the responsibilities and considerations connected with his official position. He assumes that all disturbing influences have been removed from the South. This is true only so far as it refers to the fact that beyond the rail, returning boards, and republican power maintained by force and fraud, have been overthrown. But the effects of years of malaria and plunder, of artificially fostered distrust and hate between two races, are not so easily effaced. Yet all good citizens will agree with Mr. Hayes that the constitutional amendments adopted by the whole nation as the settlement of the war issues, must be upheld in their letter and spirit.

From the Philadelphia Times, Ind.

The only part of the message that betrays the conventionalism in any degree is in the discussion of the Southern question, and in that the President is not temperate. The proclamation "the rights of the colored voters have been overthrown and their participation in elections not permitted to be either general or free," will be regarded by most independent citizens as stating the case strongly; but something must be allowed for a President who long hung far down on the Southern side of the fence, and finally concluded that he must climb up and drop on the other side in the old party fold. He does it with necessary awkwardness because of his own touchings on the issue to both North and South twenty-four years ago, when he believed the Presidency a much greater bundle than it now seems to be considered by its possessor.

From the New York Times (Rep.)

If Mr. Hayes were like other men, having clear perceptions of danger and of duty, we should have further expressed that he would urge remedial legislation as essential to financial safety. But he believes in drifting, even when his Secretary of the Treasury warns him of the impending mischiefs and the danger of legislative action to avert what would be as prejudicial to the public credit as to business. We ought not to wonder, perhaps, that a President who appeals to his own inner consciousness for consolation in regard to the Southern question, "and really expects that everything will turn out right in relation to the financial question, but the habitual cultivation of these peculiarities cannot be confounded with statesmanship."

From the Baltimore Gazette, (Dem.)

He, however, views the business sense of the country, regardless of political opinions, when he says: "Let it be understood that during the coming year the business of the country will be regulated by government interference with the laws affecting it, and we may confidently expect that the resumption of specie payments, which will take place at the appointed time, will be more promptly and completely maintained, and that it will be followed by a healthful and enduring revival of business prosperity."

Let it be understood that any party which, by tinkering with the finance question, arranges against itself this business sense of the country will doom itself to defeat.

ARMY AND NAVY PAY.

New York Herald. Several correspondents have written to the Herald asking what is the present pay of officers in the army and navy, and what table is presented for their benefit. The corresponding grades in the two branches of the service are placed opposite each other, with the salary paid to each. The figures indicate the amounts paid to officers in active service. In the case of naval officers a very considerable reduction is made when they are on shore or waiting orders. Land officers only is given. The rank of Admiral is not recognized by the statute fixing the relation of the grades, but it is nevertheless in actual existence, and the salary is paid. The bill introduced into the House by Mr. Banning last winter for the reorganization of the army contained a section which provided for a decrease of the salaries of officers in that branch of the service, but the matter, as it will be remembered, was referred to a committee which is to report on or before next January.

Following is the present initial salary paid:

Table with columns: ARMY, NAVY, General, Major, Lieutenant Colonel, Captain, Major General, Colonel, Brigadier General, Lieutenant General, Major General, Colonel, Captain, Major, Lieutenant, Ensign, Paymaster, Quartermaster, Surgeon, Chaplain, etc.

According to the statute of July, 1870, there shall be paid to each commissioned (army) officer below the grade of Brigadier General, including chaplains and others having assimilated rank or pay, 10 per cent. of their current salary for each year of five years of service. The total amount of such increase for length of service, is provided, shall, in no case exceed 10 per cent. on the yearly pay of the grades as provided in the statute subject to naval officers, Lieutenant-Commodore, after four years of service, receive an additional $500 a year; Lieutenant-Commodore and Esquire, after five years of service, an additional $200 a year extra.
