As a train on the Kansas Pacific pulled away from the 16th street depot a few mornings since, a tall, angular specimen of humanity took a seat opposite a lady passenger, and, to all appearances, was intently engaged in studying her face. At first the lady treated the rudeness with good-natured indifference. But at last it began to tell on her nerves. It was a peculiar and astonishing piece of impertinence. He apparently had the faculty of looking two ways at once. One of his eyes was restless, excited and roved in all directions. The other fixed and stony fastened on her with an undeviating stare. She turned her head away but it intercepted her vision. She tried to hide behind a paper but she felt that cruel eye piercing through the screen, and creeping with a stony look all over her features. It seemed to be picking them up one by one and examining them with care. The thing became unendurable and she cried out to him flercely, "Sir, why do you look at me so penistently."

"Me, madam, why bless my soul, I haven't been looking at you."

"You have, sir—for a half hour or more your eye has been absolutely riveted upon my face."

eye, is it not?" lifting his finger to his left optic.

"Yes, sir, it's that eye."

"Well, madam, that eye won't do any hafm. It generally looks any way it pleases—it gives me a great deal of trouble. A great many complaim of it. At first I thought they were making fun of me, but I've found out differently now. I've been knocked down two or three times for the impertinence of that eye. I would leave it out altogether but for the looks of the thing. It's a glass eye, madam—only a glass eye. I hope you'll excuse it. But, upon my soul, I'm not surprised that even a glass ore rhould feel interested in so pretty a woman," and he brought his other eye to bear upon her in undisguised admiration.

The lady laughingly socopied the explanation, and the rest of the journey was passed very pleasantly to both of them.
