The spet increased in size as the distance dissalished, and in a few minutes Boyton was flushing alongside of the steamer. The Captain was encound in his rabber suit, and proposited himself by a double-bladed our. The famous little vessel, the Paby Mine, was towed behind him and carried his food and provisions. The hora which he uses to signal with was carried on his breast. Ris face was very much sumbarned, as was to be expected, and his hands stiff and sore from using his paddle so constantly. He says he has lost twenty-three pounds since he started. He was evidently tired and sleepy, but this did not prevent him from talking freely, and even loqueocousty. In the course of a general conversation, he remarked: "The idea of making this trip came over me like a dream! One dity the thought flushed on me—can't I go from Oil City to New Ordeans? At the time I had no idea I could do it, but I made up my mind to try it until I had to give it up, and I came near giving it up the other night. It was just after I had left bayon flars, and in the middle of the utream. A steamer was passing me and the capitain cried out: "Boyton, don't you want be come on bound?" With my fever and nervousness I was on the point of accepting, but I mannaged to yell out We', and then I know it was do or die with me far the real of the trip."

reformers have attended too closely to but one phase of the great evil, and, as a rule, prescribed but one remedy for that. They have proceeded too much upon the ground that if they could prohibit the sale of intoxi-cating drinks there would be no more drunkcating drinks there would be no more drunkemess, and the work of reform would be complete. Hence hanging rum-sellers has been advocated as the suitable penalty for their offenses, and as the appropriate rem dy for intemperence. This is Gen. Neal Dow's specific, and his views are potential on the subject. In view of Gov. Garcelou's diselesures there is a demand for something ore effective than the hand of the execution more effective than the hand or the execu-tioner. Or, if that is to be the accepted agent for curing one kind of intemperence, and is effective, it should be prescribed for the country, and was thought to be a peculiar characteristic of the Shenandoah Valley.

But we will venture the assortion that the precentage of increase in Maine has been quite as large and that the sales of druggists since the prohibitory legislation has been in vogue will so show. If such is the fact, the change from the use of intoxicating liquors to opium is far from being an improvement. Gov. Garcelon has done the people good service by directing attention to new channels of inquiry. If Memphis Avalanche.

Col. W. H. McMardle, one of the most distinguished of Mississippi democratic editors and politicians, in a letter to the Washington National Republican, thus defines his position as to the next presidency:

In reference to the presidential election, I think the chances are that General Grant will be the nominee of the republican party, and prasent indications seem to lead to the belief that Mr. Tilden will procure a nomination from the democratic party. If Mr. Tilden that Mr. Tilden will procure a nomination from the democratic party. If Mr. Tilden should be nominated, I will vote for and work for the candidate opposed to him, whether that candidate be General Grant, Mr. Blaine, Mr. Sherman, or Mr. Conkling. I believe in the principles, the traditions and the discipline of the democratic party, but no human power can compel me to vote for Mr. Tilden.

Mr. Tilden.

"Procure" is a strong word in that connection, and Col. McCardle could not have found a better one. Mr. Tilden will "procure" the nomination. It is a question of "bar'i," where the "bar'l" can be used, and promises and offices where the "bar'l" will not do. Time fices where the "bar"!" will not do. Time was when southern politicians could not be approached with bribes. That was in the olden days, which have passed away. Now, although Mr. Tilden is the one man in the United States for whom the southern people feel a contempt in inexpressible words, it is already understood that a "solid south" is to support him, in the next converted. It is arready understood that a "sold south" is to support him in the next convention. The services of the seedy and needy politic are being 'procured,' and every journal of influence that can be made to respond to the seductive wiles of Tilden's favorite advertising agency will soon discover that the permanency of republican institutions will depend on sending the Gramercy park reformer to the White house.

The children of the Mathedat Sunday school had their annual spring pionic at the Fredro springs yearsethey, and spent the hours from 0 a. s. till glossning is all mannus of phenometry partitions. Miss Entity Cotton was chosen Queen and Master Regarding though on account of the absonce of one of the maids of honor and the timidity of his regard highest the programme in this respect was not executed.

Thinking of pionic pleasures causes our memory to revert. Childhoof's shays are understoodly the happinest of life, and when 'corr little ones' are pleased, the hearts of parents are desply gentified. But do the children of years ago, Are they afforded the pleasures which "we obtar ones' on joyed when we were untertag the shoor of its and growing up to be men and women? Some one may my that this question can not be definitely angularied that we cannot stend the soul of pleasure as it invusts another and place as missiants upon its degree. For two our two of the children we no shoul un pleasures of the children we no shoul un pleasures of the children we no shoul un, and enabling us to decide whether the pleasure of the pleasure days, our parents which in the present period to. But why is this? In former days, our parents of the children we no shoul un, and entitled most the little games and pastime featily one they then children to the little games and pastime featily one thoughts to be required as only belonging to the children we not the moving spirits. But why is this? In former days, our parents on the opinion method the mining occasion, went to be required as only belonging to the children sow its world to manigarity took on. Mathematical Spinorgial Spinorgia

It was a lovely evening not long ago that a party of young indice and gentisinen assembled in a bowery garden to spend a few hours in social pleasure. There were three complex, all told, and it may be remarked that love's charms had to a degree been fustened upon every member of the party. But as the hours of the evening passed by there occurred an unusual circumstance—a little incident, though simply a mistake, which proved the occasion of considerable feeling. The entire party went into the house upon the premises to get a drink of water all around, and upon retiring to the wasty retreat in which they had been sitting one of the young gentlemen swapped seats. So the young mady who had lost her real boat, found herself in company with another, while the young gentleman who had gotten into the wrong pew, upon the approach of the other fellow's sweetheart, whose place he had, arose, grasped her fondly in his arms, and gave her an affectionate hiss. Both he and she discovered the mistake when it was ten late, but on account of keeping matters quiet, apologies were deferred until some more appropriate future opportunity presented itself.

The little mistake is said to have been the occasion of some feeling, particularly between the young ladies, each accusing the
