Ambulance Will Stay In Operation

Bailey County will not be without an ambulance service, according to Bailey County Judge Gordon H. Green.

Much speculation and concern has been expressed since May when Ellis Funeral Home notified Bailey County commissioners they would terminate their contract to operate the two county ambulances, effective July 9.

Again Monday, when the commissioners met in regular session, the ambulance service was discussed, says Judge Green, however, it had not been placed on the agenda, as no decision was expected to be reached as to future operation of the ambulances.

"We are negotiating with a private party to operate the ambulances at this time," said the judge, "and feel that we are near finalization in the matter, but I am not prepared to release the name of the operators at this time."

Judge Green said the commissioners court was well aware of the current concern over the ambulances, and had plans to have the new operators by the time the contract with the funeral home is terminated.

In other action, commissioners transferred $24,000 from the road and bridge general fund to each of the precincts in a routine transaction.

They also passed an order authorizing notice for bids for a new motor grader for Precinct III, paid routine

GTE Rates Are Higher Since Change

The public Utility Commission of Texas has approved a slight increase in charges for intrastate long-distance calls within the regional calling areas called local access and transports areas (LATA) established by the federal judge overseeing the divestiture of AT&T and the Bell operating companies.

Effective on June 1, the new charges do not apply to intrastate calls made between the regional calling areas which are carried by the long-distance carriers rather than the local telephone companies.

New rates apply to customers of all local telephone companies, including General Telephone, since the local companies are joint providers of long-distance service within each of the regional calling areas.

Watering Correctly Saves Money

Texas summers are usually hot and dry, and that means homeowners must give careful attention to watering their yards and gardens. Bailey County is especially dry this summer.

Spencer Tanksley, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, offers some tips on getting the most from irrigation water so as to keep plants and lawns healthy while keeping water costs down.

Tanksley says to practice slow, deep watering to allow roots to penetrate deeper so that plants become more stress-resistant.

Also, soaker hoses and drip irrigation systems work well on trees and shrubs, he said. "It's more efficient to water at night or early in the morning because evaporation is less," commented Tanksley, "however, nighttime watering can promote more disease problems."

According to the county agent, too much water can be as detrimental or even worse than not enough. The rate at which water is applied should be no more tepid than the rate at which the soil can absorb it. Never fertilize landscape plants when soil is dry, cautioned Tanksley. It's best to water the area one day, apply fertilizer the next day, and then water again. Fertilizer will do no good unless it is dissolved and moved down into the soil.

Certification Final Date Is July 16

Danny Noble, County Executive Director for the local ASCS office, this week said the final date to certify or request aerial measurement service for upland cotton, corn, grain sorghum, peanuts, sunflowers, soybeans, ACR and other crops, is July 16, 1984.

He said zero certifications are also required on all program crops. "An accurate certification is very important, so don't guess," he cautioned. "Farmers who miss this deadline will be ineligible for price support loans, land diversion payments, and deficiency payments."

Noble also released the following information:

Program Is Explained For Rotary

Guest speaker for the Muleshoe Rotary Club at noon on Tuesday was Keith Madole. He spoke on the Youth Employment Services office which opened last week in Muleshoe. Madole said Y.E.S. dispatched about 100 young people ranging in age from 13 to 17 years to various jobs throughout this area last summer in its first year of operation.

Located at the rear of 118 West Ave. C., the Y.E.S. office, staffed by volunteers, take job offers for young people ranging from yard work, to house work, to clerking to other things. Persons may call 272-3002 to obtain the services of a Y.E.S. worker.

Madole said keeping the youngsters busy, and off the streets, helps as "Not only do the kids get on-the-job experience, they also benefit from the adult to child relationship that sometimes is limited in their lives. These jobs help build self image in the youth and teach responsibility."

"These kids really do want to work. Are you willing to give them a job? Help them to help themselves -- put a kid to work."

Installed as new members of Rotary were Jimmie Crawford and Clifton Finley. Guests at the meeting included Willard Pittman, Dan Smith, Keith Madole, Carolyn Liles and A.J. Liles, along with Jimmie Lee, this year's recipient of the Scholarship to a graduating senior.

Jimmie expressed his appreciation to the Rotary for choosing him as recipient of the scholarship and said Rotary deserved a vote of thanks for their support of the young men and women seeking higher education.

He was given a standing ovation at the close. Anne Camp presented Marty with a gift from the Friends of the Library, and Kenneth Precure's record—"Not much going on in Muleshoe" along with other souvenirs of Muleshoe to show appreciation of his being here. Two short movies were shown the kids, and the winner of the "what's in the Mystery bag" was Lori D'ann Bradshaw, who guessed it was a unicorn. A riddle word puzzle was given out for the kids to solve by next week. Ann Vinson has been named the Artist of the Month at the library, her oil paintings will be on display until the 13th.

Candlelight Ceremony Unites Miss Shaw, Curtis

Miss Delia Jean Shaw became the bride of Marvin Wade Curtis in a candlelight ceremony Sunday, May 6 in the Muleshoe Church of Christ. David Cox, minister of the Church of Christ at Anton, read the double ring vows.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Shaw of Muleshoe. Curtis is the son of Mr. and Mrs.

Richard L. Curtis of Amarillo. Grandmothers of the bride are Lucille Myers of Levelland and Virgie Shaw of Farwell. Curtis is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. S.S. Hinkson of Amarillo and great grandson of Mrs. Susie Davis of Sunray.

Vows were exchanged before spiraling and arched candelabras entwined with greenery and flanked by palm trees. Two large white doves accented the arched candelabra.

Wedding music was provided by a group of singers including: Mrs. John Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Gene McGuire, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Broyles, Dub McMeans, Mrs. Terry Field and Mrs. Mac Hodges.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a formal length gown of white flock-dot organza. The bodice featured a stand up lace edged neckline, V-shaped front and back yoke with flounce edged in lace and flounce lace trimmed sleeves. The full skirt was trimmed with ruffles and an attached sash at the waist.

Her cape length veil consisted of a double layer of tulle with the edges accented with matching flock-dot organza lace.

She carried a cascading bouquet of white and lavender silk flowers accented with English ivy leaves with lavender and white lace streamers.

Following tradition, something old and borrowed was a ring belonging to her mother, something new was her wedding ensemble, for something blue the bride wore the traditional blue garter. Pennies minted in the years of their births were sewn into her garter.

Mrs. Carrie Petty of Amarillo, cousin of the bride, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaid was Kay Lynn Prather of Muleshoe. Flower girl was Shonda Curtis of Amarillo, sister of the groom.

Curtis Jackson of Amarillo served as best man. Groomsman was Chuck Smith of Amarillo. Ushers were Darin Shaw, brother of the bride, of Muleshoe, and Larry Petty of Amarillo, cousin of the bride.

Candlelighters were Darin Shaw, brother of the bride, and Shelley McMeans.

Guests were registered by Sabrina Curtis of Amarillo, sister of the groom.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. Presiding at the bride's table was Jerria Free, and Deborah Donald of Littlefield, cousin of the bride. Serving at the groom's table was Lavon Hunt.

A stitchery of a "Jockey" made by Nelda Hunt accented the groom's table. Jason Harmon distributed rice bags.

Members of the house party included: Mr. Ernest Ramm, Mrs. Vera Haire, Mrs. Uvaldo Godinez, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Harmon, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. Willie James and

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Beasley. Following a wedding trip to Louisiana, the couple are making their home in Lubbock.

The groom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner at Leals Restaurant in Muleshoe.

bearing the torch that will be carried all the way to Los Angeles to light the huge fire to burn during the Olympics.

On May 8, the torch relay began in New York City and will conclude after 82 days on the road on July 28 when the final torchbearer lights the Olympic cauldron in the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum.

On the way to Los Angeles, the cross-country route will cover approximately 9,000 miles and the Olympic flame, for the first time, will pass through 33 states and the District of Columbia.

By tradition, the sacred flame being relayed across the country was kindled atop Mt. Olympus, Greece by using the rays of the sun. The flames were then transported in miners lamps by jetliner to New York and used to light the first torch.

More than 4,000 individual torchbearers will carry the flame as a part of a fundraising campaign designed by the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee to benefit the athletic programs for major youth clubs and the Special Olympics.

Included will be 37 support vehicles, and a fleet of security and shuttle cars. Be sure to line the route and see an event which will probably be "once in a lifetime."

Statewide Study Shows Improvement In Tax Appraisals

Appraisal districts valued taxable property in Texas at an estimated average of 84 percent of market value in 1983, according to the State Property Tax Board's 1983 Property Value Study.

In comparison, using data from a 1981 study of school district market values, the State Property Tax Board (SPTB) estimates that 1981 appraised values represented only 65 percent of market value.

A&M researchers battle parasite weed

COLLEGE STATION — Texas agriculturalists are combating a small parasitic weed, the branched broomrape, that has spread along hundreds of miles of highway in Karnes County and may overrun the Rio Grande Valley's agriculture industry.

The small, yellow plant with white flowers (Orobancha ramosa) feeds off and destroys broadleaf plants, including wild plants such as bluebonnets and agriculturally important crops such as tomatoes, clover, potatoes, carrots and lettuce, says Dr. James Chandler, a crop scientist for the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station (TAES), part of The Texas A&M University System.

The weed is currently growing along more than 400 miles of Texas highways near Karnes City, Panna Maria and Runge, he said.

"Our biggest concern now is that the weed isn't spread by someone picking the flowers along the roadside and taking them home to put in a flowerbed in more agriculturally-intensive areas where food is grown," Chandler said.

The plant is found worldwide and has devastated crops in South Africa and in some European countries it has cut the growing season in half.

Small amounts of Roundup, a retail herbicide, have been sprayed along highways to kill the weeds without destroying all the host plants, Chandler said.

He added that researchers are also studying the use of flax, a small plant from which linseed oil is extracted, which can be used to stimulate broomrape germination. But flax doesn't let the weed attach to its root system, which means the weed will ultimately die.

Ron Patterson, SPTB's executive director, cited the findings as evidence of significant improvements in property tax appraisals statewide. "The study indicates that appraisals are not only getting closer to market value across the state but are also becoming more equal and uniform," said Patterson.

The biennial study of appraisal district values, required by the Texas Property Tax Code, is intended to show to what extent property tax appraisals are meeting the mandates of the Texas Constitution. The Constitution requires that taxable property be appraisable at market value unless it qualifies for special-use valuation, that different types of property be valued at equal levels, and that properties within a category be valued in a uniform manner.

Under the Texas property tax system, appraisal districts are responsible for appraising, that is, valuing, all taxable property in each county. Taxing units must use these appraised values in setting their tax rates.

Final results of the study, which is the first conducted by SPTB, have just been released to the Legislature, appraisal districts and state officials.

In a modified form, the data contained in the 1983 Property Value Study will form the basis for state education aid to local school districts.

as they discuss proposed changes in public education finance during the special legislative session called for June.

In order to determine the extent to which property tax appraisals meet the constitutional mandates, the study calculates "weighted average levels of appraisal" for each of ten major types of taxable property in each appraisal district. The calculation is basically a comparison between SPTB's estimates of actual market value for a sample of properties and the appraised values listed on 1983 tax rolls for the sample properties. The result is expressed as a ratio.

The ratios are then used to measure how uniformly an appraisal district is appraising property within the various property categories.

The ratios are also combined to show weighted average levels of appraisal for all taxable property in an appraisal district, and in the state as a whole.

The final results showed weighted average levels of appraisal as high as 109 percent of market value in one appraisal district and as low as 39 percent in another.

Statewide figures show levels of appraisal were highest in the categories of oil, gas and minerals (102 percent of market value) and utilities (96 percent). The lowest appraisal levels were found in the categories of vacant lots (61 percent), acreage (74 percent) and farm and ranch improvements (76 percent). Appraised values for single-family residences, the largest property category, were estimated at 81 percent of market value.

Preliminary results of the 1983 Property Value Study were released in February, and 125 appraisal districts protested preliminary results at review hearings in Austin during April.

SPTB is now at work translating the ratios of appraised value into estimates of market value for the state's 1,070 local school districts. The market values will determine the amount of state aid each school district will receive for the 1985-86 and 1986-87 school years.

Preliminary results of the school district market value study are set for release to school superintendents in July, with appeals hearing scheduled for October through December.

Nuclear Studnts In Demand

Students enrolling in the Nuclear Technology program at Texas State Technical Institute (TSTI) in Waco will have no trouble finding jobs when their studies are completed, Carl Kee, Nuclear Technology program chairman said.

In fact, there are more jobs than there are students. There is a 100 percent placement rate for TSTI health physics students within 90 days of graduation Kee stated.

The TSTI Nuclear Technology program, one of eight such programs in the country and one of the first in the World, prepares students to work in nuclear power plants and other nuclear facilities. After receiving general nuclear training in the first four quarters, students may specialize in either radiation protection or quality assurance/quality control.

Coursework ranges from neutron activation analysis, radiation biophysics and radiation detection and measurements, to instrumental analysis, radioactive waste disposal and management and technical report writing.

Students enter the two-year program in the fall and spring, although students with special permission are sometimes allowed to start their training out of sequence.

"Health physicists assure that the work area is safe and the environment is not contaminated," Kee said. "They perform many duties such as determining the length of radiation and monitoring discharges."

"Most students entering the program know nothing about the nuclear industry, so they start by learning the "language" and the instruments," Kee said. They then go on to learn about the many types of radiation hazards and how to prevent or control them. Students make approximately 12 trips to Texas A&M University in the course of their training in order to have actual "hands-on" experience and training at the 1-MW TRIGA reactor located at the A&M Nuclear Science Center.

Kee said that 65 percent of the nation's health physicists are employed at nuclear power plants while the remainder work for national laboratories, in industries where radioactive materials are utilized, in the medical fields, and within academic institutions.

Kee estimates that there will be an increased demand for nuclear physicists in Texas within the next two years because of reactors opening in Glenrose and Bay City.

Starting salaries in the field differ depending on the place of employment, but on the average, nuclear physicists in power plants begin in range from $18,000 to $26,000 a year; in industry, $16,000 to $19,000; and in health-related fields, $14,000 to $17,000.

For further information concerning the Nuclear Technology program at TSTI, contact Kee or the Campus Information Office at (817) 799-3611.

Laser-Run Video Game Repair Implemented Into TSTA Program

While Dragon's Lair and Space Ace may sound like the title of a cartoon your child may watch on Saturday morning, they actually depict a new era in the video game industry. This era means changes in repair techniques, and instructors at Texas State Technical Institute (TSTI) in Waco are racing to keep up with the fast changing techniques.

In keeping with the state-of-the-art trends, the Electronic Amusement Equipment / Electronic Vending Equipment program at TSTI now includes instruction in video laser disc repair as part of its regular coursework.

James Teele, program chairman, said students have just recently begun working on the repair of these new games, which shows how new the laser-run video games are. He said laser amusement repair was first taught at TSTI in the spring quarter of 1984 as part of the advanced video game repair course.

Teele said that new games such as "Dragon's Lair" and "Space Ace" have created a whole new area that must be learned by students in order to properly service these types of machines.

Dennis Norwood, an amusement equipment repair instructor said, "Repair is difficult at first because you have to go back and relearn."

Repair involves aligning the optics within the laser, which is a difficult process, he said.

The laser-controlled games operate on a disc, which is the size of a 12-inch record. The disc does not touch the laser, but simply searches the tracks on the disc. Teele said these tracks are comparable to the different tracks on a record; each track takes the player through a different segment of the game.

While the more familiar arcade games such as "Pac-Man" and "Centipede" are electronic, the laser method is the same as putting an animated cartoon on film with traditional cartoon methods and later transferring those images to a laser disc, Teele said.

"From a repair standpoint, the electronic programming method is better," he said. "The laser disc is just an added piece of equipment."

Norwood said that in the laser games, there is less player control of the action. He said there is a lag between sequences in the games, and although improvements have been made in the discs and programming techniques, the lag is still there.

He said he feels the present popularity of the laser-controlled games is short-lived.

"They are going to die out," he said. "More player control is needed because the novelty is wearing out." He also said that the machines are more difficult to maintain and cost the arcade owner more than electronic games.

The average laser game costs about $4,200 while a regular electronic game runs around $2,800.

Teele's opinion somewhat differs from Norwood, however he said the future of the games is hard to predict.

"Games should be more visual and more physically involved in the future," Teele said.

"They'll just keep getting better and better."

Texas A&M Center studies tenderness, other meat qualities

COLLEGE STATION — Texas A&M University's new $4 million Meat Science and Technology Center will be the headquarters for new studies that could lead to more tender steaks in grocery stores.

The research, which will focus on the impact of chilling on meat palatability, has important implications in efforts to provide the freshest possible cuts for consumers, says project leader Dr. Jeff Savell of Texas A&M's College of Agriculture.

"We'll be evaluating the effects of various temperatures on beef and lamb carcasses immediately after slaughter, and how those temperatures affect the aging process," Savell said.

In addition to studying the effects of temperature for tenderness, he said the research will include studies on vacuum and modified gas atmosphere packaging to increase the shelf life of the meat. Vacuum packaging, which is commonly used with luncheon meats and brisquets, seals the meat without letting in air.

Farm Equipment Safety Guides Noted

With farming activities in full swing over Texas, there's no time like the present to instruct farm workers on safe operation of equipment.

"Farm safety training should be an annual activity because it can help prevent serious injury or even death," emphasizes Dr. Gary S. Nelson, safety engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. "Of course, new workers should be instructed on farm safety as soon as they are employed."

Safety training should include the safe operation and servicing of all equipment with which a worker is or will be involved, says Nelson. He notes that special emphasis should be given to the following practices:

- Keep all guards in place when machines are in operation.
- Permit no riders on farm field equipment other than persons required for instruction or assistance in machine operation.
- Stop the engine, disconnect the power source and wait for all machine movement to stop before servicing, adjusting, cleaning or unclogging equipment. When machines must be kept running to be properly serviced, optimum safety procedures must be followed.
- Make sure everyone is clear of machinery before starting the engine, engaging power or operating the machine.
- Disconnect and lock out electrical power before performing maintenance or service on equipment.

"These practices are a very minimum in safety training that should be given to farm workers," says Nelson. "Instruction should also be provided on safety procedures with specific types of equipment, such as mowers, hay balers, combines, corn pickers and cotton strippers."

Improving Education, Highways Requires New Revenue Source

By Governor Mark White

AUSTIN—Support is mobilizing in the Texas Legislature for embarking now on a long overdue plan to improve the state's public education and highway systems, challenging Texans to set program and spending priorities.

State government should make quality public education its highest priority, recognizing that scrimping on today's education funding carries not only a human cost but potentially higher price-tags for prisons, welfare and health services in future years.

We cannot afford to ignore the warning signs of "A Nation at Risk." Our national security and our ability to compete in the world economy depend upon our commitment to attracting the brightest minds into the teaching profession and to recapturing the school day for the study of academic subjects.

While no one wants to see taxes raised, there is a growing consensus that a true commitment to educational excellence and rebuilding our deteriorating highways means dedicating both our energy and our dollars.

Since the Select Committee on Public Education held a series of public hearings across Texas and then submitted its report this spring, I have been working with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, House Speaker Gib Lewis, and members of the House and Senate to arrive at a set of mutual goals.

Given our agreement on the need for public education and highway improvements, I have drafted a package of reforms, a finance plan to implement them, and a strategy for controlling government spending.

For too long, we have lost the best and brightest teacher prospects because of inadequate salaries. I propose an increase in the base salary for beginning teachers from $11,000 to $15,200 per year with significant across-the-board salary increases for all Texas teachers. I also support the establishment of a statewide career ladder pay plan to reward outstanding teachers.

Other reforms include increased equalization funding to poor school districts, smaller class sizes in the early grades, testing of teacher candidates, and a statutory requirement that the seven-hour school day be reserved for academics which still provides adequate time for sports and other extra-curricular activities. Also, I proposed a scholarship and loan program for outstanding high school students who want to pursue college courses leading to a career in teaching.

I am proposing a finance package that would raise $1.3 billion in fiscal year 1985 to support public school improvements and repair our Texas highway system. Because Texas has the lowest motor fuels taxes in the nation, I am recommending the Legislature vote to raise the 5-cent per gallon state tax on gasoline by another nickel.

Under my finance plan, Texans' willingness to pay a penny more in sales tax on the dollar would raise $710 million for education and highways in 1985. Consumers would pay another 1.2 cents tax per six-pack of beer, another 8 cents for a fifth of liquor, and 4 cents more on a $2 mixed drink. Texas' current taxes on alcoholic beverages are below the average rates in four surrounding states and this "luxury" tax has not increased in Texas since 1971.

I suggest a 5-cent increase in the state tax on a pack of cigarettes, particularly in light of the federal government's plans to reduce the federal cigarette tax by at least 4 cents a pack by October 1985.

At the same time, I have called upon every state agency to implement cost-cutting and cost-containment measures including energy conservation and improving internal audits. We can achieve a more efficient and effective state government through sound management and careful spending.

Texas is fortunate to have the lowest level of taxation, excluding severance taxes, of any state in the nation. I strongly oppose a corporate or a personal income tax in Texas, but the same industries moving to Texas to benefit from our attractive tax climate have a vested interest in channeling more tax dollars to rebuild our highways and train our schoolchildren to become tomorrow's productive workers.

When we have built the consensus for a reform package, I will call the Legislature into special session. Our choices are difficult, but I am confident we can meet the challenge.

Jesse Jackson, Democratic presidential candidate, on foreign policy: "We have become a pitiful, boastful, bragging, giant unable to intervene even in our own interest."

Always In Debt
A man owes it to himself to become successful, after that, he owes it to the Bureau of Internal Revenue.
-Basemaker, Davisville.

Nothing New
Not very convincing is that alibi among congressmen about their nepotism being only kin deep.
-Tribune, Chicago.

Keep Moving
All things come to him who waits--but "him" better be working while he's waiting.

CREDIT CARD GUIDELINES

For many Texans credit cards are an every day convenience. But credit cards can be a major headache when they are used improperly or when the card company's computer makes an error in your bill.

The best advice for credit card users is to keep a copy of each receipt and compare receipts with charges when you receive your bill. If you find an error, you should attempt to settle the dispute as soon as possible.

WHAT THE LAW SAYS

Under the federal Fair Credit Billing Act, the consumer has 60 days to send a written notice to the credit card company of any errors in his bill. Be sure to include your account number and an explanation of why you think the bill is incorrect. The company must acknowledge your complaint within 30 days of receiving it and must take appropriate action within 90 days. The company is required by law either to make corrections in the bill or to investigate the complaint and explain why the consumer owes the amount billed.

In cases where the consumer says he or she was billed for an item never received, it is the credit card company's duty to verify that the item was actually delivered or mailed.

COMPLAINTS

If you have a complaint about your bill, the company may not close your account prior to doing the above and sending you a written explanation of your account. You will have at least 10 days from the time you receive the explanation to pay the disputed amount. After that time, the company can declare your account delinquent and report that information to third parties. However, the law says the company must also report that the bill is in dispute, and must give the consumer written notice if the delinquency is reported to third parties.

If the dispute is later resolved, the creditor must notify the same parties of the resolution.

If your credit card company allows you to pay the full balance without payment of a finance charge, the company must give you at least 14 days from the date the bill is mailed to pay that bill.

FOR MORE HELP

If you feel that you have been treated unfairly by a credit card company after following the procedures outlined above, you may contact my Consumer Protection Division for assistance. There are Consumer Protection offices in Austin, Dallas, El Paso, Lubbock, McAllen, and San Antonio. The Attorney General's office is the people's law firm. We're here to help you.

OLE SWIMMING HOLE

For those who grew up in the country or in a small town this scene brings back fond memories of childhood fun, of carefree days when life was alive and shared with bosom pals. Whatever happens to those times as we grow older? Why don't we have those open companionships? The answer lies in us, for we have become sophisticated and inflexible, lacking in trust and sincerity. The only remedy for us is some real trust in God. Real trust in Him leads our lives into paths of real trust and joy in our relationships to our fellowman. Learn more about His way of life — Go to Church Sunday.

Is something wrong with your life — an inner restless dissatisfaction? The answer to every human problem comes only from God our Maker. He alone can forgive and restore. Through the church God has committed the provision and proclamation of His forgiveness and redeeming love. Without a church relation no one is securely related to God. Everyone should be in the Church and the Church in everyone!

Sandhills Philosopher

Editor's note: Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Sandy Creek looks at campaign financing this week.

Dear editor: Now that both parties for the most part have nominated their candidates for Congress, Governor, State Legislatures, county offices, etc. for the general election in November, something un-noticed about the races has struck me. Hadn't thought about it before.

In nearly every race nearly every candidate, whether he won or lost, wound up with a campaign debt. Some candidates are in the hole for as much as $500,000 or even a million, lesser candidates for less but still in debt. It's not unusual to see a candidate for Congress running on a promise to wipe out the national debt while piling up a personal debt.

NOTICE FOR BIDS The Bailey County Commissioner's Court will receive bids until 10 a.m., Friday, June 29, 1984, for the purchase of a New Motor Grader. In other words, nearly all the candidates were running on borrowed money, they wound up in debt, and they're the people wanting to run the government. On the other hand it can be argued, What's wrong with that? The government has been in debt and running on borrowed money for years. A candidate who operates his campaign on that principle and is comfortable with it will fit right in if he gets to Washinton or Austin or wherever he's going. Have you thought what would happen if we elected only people who couldn't sleep at night for worrying about debts? Well, for one thing, there'd sure be a lot of office-holders trying to sleep in the daytime. Yours faithfully, J.A.

According to the Department of Education, 990,238 Americans were graduated from college in the 1978-79 period. High school graduates totalled about 3,134,200 for the same period.
