Mail And Phone Order Protection Not The Same

Thousands of Texans are getting a head start on Christmas by placing mail or phone orders for gifts now so they will get here in time for the holidays.

Most of these consumers will be satisfied with the merchandise they order, but some will be disappointed. And whether they can get any satisfaction for their complaints or not will depend on how they placed their orders, says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service home economist Nancy L. Granovsky.

Many mail-order companies now offer toll-free telephone numbers of easy ordering. "Using the telephone may seem more convenient than ordering by mail," she says, "but it's also riskier, since phone orders are not covered by the Federal Trade Commission's mail-order ruler."

The mail-order rule—which applies only to orders placed through the mail, or shipped through the mail—requires companies to ship your order within the time they promise, or within 30 days after they receive your order, Granovsky explains. So if you order gifts by mail in October, you can reasonably sure they will arrive in time for Christmas.

If the company must delay shipment, the mail order laws require that you be notified and allowed to either give your consent, or cancel your order for a full refund, she adds.

When you order by phone, you aren't covered by this rule and you assume responsibility for merchandise that is not delivered or is delivered late, cautions the home economist.

So television ads that say "allow four to six weeks for delivery" may not make good on their promise.

If you receive unsatisfactory merchandise, you can ask the company for a refund, just as customers who order over the phone can. But mail order customers can also look to the post office for assistance if the company does not satisfy their complaints, notes Granovsky.

Since not every complaint results in an investigation and not all investigations result in refunds, the best policy for consumers is to be careful, whether they order by phone or mail, she says.

Before placing any order, consider the company. An established, well-known company is likely to be one that satisfies most of its consumers, suggests the home economist.

Read the description of the product very carefully. Words like "jumbo," "giant," or "miniature," have no legal definition, she emphasizes. That means the advertised "giant bath towels" you order could turn out to be no larger than a face cloth. Instead, look for descriptions that include specific measurements. Some companies offer a toll free number for customer assistance and questions.

Check the return policy of the company. The return policy should be stated somewhere on the order form. If a policy is not mentioned, the company may not have one, Granovsky says.

Be sure the return policy is specific, she warns. The promise of an "absolute refund" in the event of dissatisfaction means nothing. You might pay $50 for an item and return it for an "absolute refund" only to have the company reply "absolutely no," or send a return of $1 and say "this is absolutely all you get."

Look for the terms such as "full-refund" or "refund all your money" when reading return policies.

In the event of a problem with a mail order company, first try to resolve it with the company, Granovsky says. If that's not possible, write a complaint to the postal inspector if the postal service was involved in the transaction, and then notify the Better Business Bureau in your area.

Energas Asks 4.3 Increase Of Customers

Energas Company announced today that 63 communities on the company's West Texas City Plant System are considering a 4.3 percent general service rate increase for domestic and commercial type customers.

The 4.3 percent rate increase was recommended by a steering committee formed by the communities to study a 7.7 percent Energas rate increase request filed July 6. If approved by the communities, the increase would be effective with bills rendered on and after November 1. Based on historic gas sales to that system, the recommended increase would result in an increase of about $5 million to annual revenues of the gas distribution company.

Approximately 186,000 domestic and commercial type customers would be affected by the proposed increase in an area extending from Pampa, Hereford and Lubbock to Midland and Odessa.

The average increase to a domestic customer on the new rates would be about 20 cents per thousand cubic feet (Mcf). A domestic customer using ten thousand cubic feet of natural gas (10 Mcf) would receive an increase of $2.01 or 4.35 percent.

Energas (OTC) is an intrastate gas utility serving a 30,000 square mile region in West Texas. Headquartered in Amarillo, the company has division offices located in Amarillo, Lubbock and Midland.

Study Shows Consumer Steak Preferences

Many American consumers still prefer higher grades of steak, but a significant number -- especially in the west and south -- are willing to buy lower grade, leaner cuts with less fat.

Those are the findings of consumer preference tests conducted in Houston, Kansas City, Philadelphia and the San Francisco Bay Area by researchers at Texas A&M University's Agricultural Market Research and Development Center, a unit of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The study showed that consumer ratings of steaks prepared at home generally agreed with USDA grading standards, which are based on the amount of fat within the lean, or red meat portion of the beef. The more flecks of fat, or "marbling," the higher the grade -- and the cost.

But researchers also found a significant market for lean beef. "About 25% of the consumers in our sample found leaner beef acceptable in terms of its eating quality and indicated they would buy it," said Dr. Robert Branson, project director.

The preference for leaner beef was especially strong in the Houston and San Francisco Bay Area test samples, he added.

Branson noted that the consumers who found leaner steaks acceptable may reflect the trend toward lighter eating to reduce calories and fat in the diet.

However, cooking preferences can also affect the desirability of different meat grades, Branson said. The more the meat is cooked, the more marbling is required to keep the steak tender and juicy.

Consumers in the San Francisco Bay Area test samples tended to cook their steaks rare or medium rare and so may find leaner cuts more acceptable for that reason, he suggests.

Studies of this type could make a difference in what the consumer finds at the meat counter in the future. Some stores carry and promote USDA prime and choice grades. Others use a house system of grades which includes leaner USDA "good" grades of meat, but without the USDA grade label.

According to Branson, retailers and cattle producers will know more about what type of beef consumers prefer when the second phase of the study, which involves monitoring consumer purchases of a variety of beef cuts, is completed in 1985.

Texas A&M scientists study estrogen as link to melanoma

Scientists here and in Chicago have begun a three-year study to determine if the body chemical responsible for recognizing the female sex hormone estrogen plays a role in the development of melanoma, an often fatal skin cancer in both men and women.

Hormone-sensitive tissues such as the uterus contain estrogen receptors (named for their ability to recognize the hormone), which are also present in many types of tumors, explained Texas A&M University veterinary researcher Dr. Max Amoss.

Amoss directed a pilot study indicating that tumors which regressed in test swine had practically no estrogen receptors present.

That study, funded by Texas A&M's Center for Comparative Medicine, convinced Amoss that estrogen receptors could be very important in a tumor's "decision" to either regress or grow and spread.

Homes, Businesses To Be Awarded

It's almost spook time -- and this year, you and your family are invited to join in all the fun. The Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture is sponsoring a Halloween Decorating Contest for all local businesses and homes.

Muleshoe CofC Manager Toni Eagle said a trophy will be given for the "Best Business" and another for the "Best Home."

The winners will be announced on Tuesday, October 30, said Mrs. Eagle, and the winners as designated by a voting public will receive a trophy for their efforts.

All a business must do to enter is decorate. If you wish to enter your home, call the CofC office or come by and designate your home as an entry. All local news media will be listing the locations of the homes, so they can be seen and voted for.

A voting box will be placed at the Chamber office in the City Hall or you may mail your entry to the Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture at P.O. Box 356, Muleshoe, Tx 79347. A ballot will be in the Thursday, October 11 issue of the Muleshoe Journal, and again on Sunday, October 14 in The Bailey County Journal.

Mrs. Eagle commented, "The Chamber urges all businesses and families to participate and all citizens are asked to please cast a vote for your favorite home and business."

Texas-Oklahoma Tilt Leads Games This Week

Our apologies for not mentioning our forecasting average each week, but as we've stated in past years, the delay in getting small college scores is the reason for our inconsistency. Through games of September 22nd, we picked 457 correctly, missed on 162, and there were 12 ties. Our average...738.

The annual pow-wow between Texas and Oklahoma is always high on the hit parade every season, and this year it's right at the top. Both undefeated, Texas has already knocked out two national powers, Auburn and Penn State, and Oklahoma has won four in a row, including wins over Stanford and Pittsburgh. The Longhorns, on their way to an undefeated season last fall, whipped the Sooners 28-16. We would like to dodge the bullet by saying "pick-em."

However...Texas. In the Southeast Conference, the Commodores of Vanderbilt have turned everything around this fall. Winners of just two games last season, they scored 120 points in winning their first four games, including upsets (?) over Maryland and Alabama. They played Tulane last week, and they meet undefeated L.S.U. Saturday. Vandy is the underdog, but the Commodores have been in that position before.

It's still early, but the Big Ten might be returning to the Big Two this fall. Within the conference, Ohio State and Michigan have been flexing their muscles, though the Wolves have been beaten by Washington. The Buckeyes host Illinois Saturday and since they've already beaten Iowa, a win here would almost assure Ohio State a title match with Michigan in November. However, the Wolverines are far from being out of the woods as they meet both Iowa and Illinois on successive Saturdays later this month. As for Ohio State-Illinois, it looks to be a Buckeye win.

Finally, powerful Washington will beat Stanford in the Pac-Ten Conference, and surprising Georgia Tech will whip Virginia in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

MULES' TALE

Official Publication of Muleshoe High School Written and Edited by Students of the Muleshoe Schools

1.4 Million Students To Take PSAT/NMSQT In October

More than 1.4 million students are expected to take the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT/NMSQT) this fall in over 19,000 high schools across the nation. Among them will be 40 students scheduled to take the test October 23, at Muleshoe High School, according to Linda Marr of the school's guidance staff.

The PSAT/NMSQT will be offered nationally this year on Saturday, October 20 and Tuesday, October 23. Since 1959, nearly 30 million students have taken the test, which measures verbal and mathematical abilities.

"Students take the PSAT/NMSQT for several reasons," said the local guidance official. "The PSAT/NMSQT is the qualifying exam for students wishing to participate in competitions of the National Merit Scholarship Corporation.

Students also want to find out how they rank among their peers taking the test in other parts of the country."

The test also provides an opportunity to become familiar with types of questions similar to those on the Scholastic Aptitude Test, which many collegebound students take. In addition, the test is the first step in qualifying for the National Hispanic Scholar Awards Program.

Before taking the PSAT/NMSQT, students receive a Student Bulletin containing a complete practice test with an answer key and scoring instructions. After the test, they receive a booklet, About Your PSAT/NMSQT, that helps them to interpret their test results and plan for college.

Particularly helpful for students is the Report of Student Answer, which includes the correct answers and their own responses and scores. They also receive their own test booklets so they can review the actual questions, see the ones they got wrong, and try to figure out the correct answer and why they may have missed it.

The College Board also provides other services that enable counselors and other school personnel to better understand and interpret the test results to students and parents.

Forty students in the Junior Class will have the opportunity to take the PSAT/NMSQT on Tuesday, October 23, 1984. The test will be given during school hours and has a cost of $5.00 per student.

The PSAT/NMSQT is the test that must be taken to enter the nationwide scholarship competitions conducted by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation. Students that take the test have the opportunity to be included in the college Board's Student Search Service and receive materials from colleges and about governmental scholarship programs.

The PSAT/NMSQT is a lot like the SAT and ACT which are tests that are required by many colleges before admission is granted. A student can forecast his SAT score and determine areas of educational strengths and weaknesses from the PSAT/NMSQT.

Each student that is classified as a junior should carefully consider taking PSAT/NMSQT. Muleshoe High School will have enough materials to test 40 students. The registration and processing fee charged by the PSAT/NMSQT is $5.00. Each student will be required to pay this fee before he registers for the test. The first 40 students that register and pay the fee will be eligible for the test.

VICA Studies New Elements To Pass Class

The Muleshoe High School auto mechanics class is off to the best start since August 1975. All students have a copy of the essential elements that they are required to master this year. The essential elements are the minimum requirements which will earn the student a grade of seventy. Students must attend class to receive a grade, and so far this year most of Mr. Shain's 36 students are interested and attending class.

Freshmen Mules Lose To 'Winds

The freshman Mules fought Floydada Thursday night but they could not pull it out and they lost 23-0. According to Coach Scott, nothing went the Mules way. The J.V. Mules also played Floydada Thursday night. The score to their game was 0-0. There was one outstanding play, a blocked punt by the Mules in the opposing teams endzone, for which the Mules received no credit. Come out and support the Mules mobiles. They learn how important it is to further their education. Mr. Shain has had two speakers from technological schools, one from Universal Technical Institute in Phoenix, Arizona and one from Wyoming Technological school in Laramie, Wyoming. Wyoming Tech signed two students up for classes. They were Alex Larado for auto mechanics, and Jo Ann Lopez for body and paint work. Mr. Shain is happy to help his students further their education and is looking forward to finishing this school year successfully with all thirty-six students.

Bullets Take Comand! Win Game With 2 TD's

Tempers flared and emotions erupted as the twenty-third annual Powder Puff game got underway Monday, October 1, at Benny Douglas Stadium.

The Silver Bullets, consisting of senior and freshman girls, battled the Untouchables, compiled of junior and sophomore girls.

The Silver Bullets kicked off to the Untouchables. U.T. ran the ball to the 5 yrd. line, where they fumbled and the S.B. recovered. The Bullets went no where and quickly punted to U.T. Meischelle Logsdon took the ball to the endzone for the only touchdown U.T. made. After the TD the Silver Bullets took control of the field. The scoring drives were completed by Vana Pruitt and Shelley McMeans with one TD each, and Becky Mardis, who ran it in for two TD's.

Halftime activities centered the crowning of the Powder Puff King. The King Candidates for UT were, Mike Holt escorted by Julie Sanders; Jarrod Embry, escorted by Sherri Stovall; Sergio Leal escorted by Meischelle Logsdon; and Wade King, accompanied by Stacy Smith. The Powder Puff King for UT was Mike Holt. Mike was surprised and delighted when he received a cape, a crown and a beautiful bouquet of dead weeds and sunflowers.

The King Candidates for the Silver Bullets were, John Isaac, escorted by Shelley McMeans; Ray Vinson escorted by Laurie Kelton; Hector Flores escorted by Mary Norman; and Preston Scoggin escorted by Vana Pruitt. The king crowned for the Silver Bullets was John Isaac. John was presented with a crown, a cape, and a bouquet of dead weeds.

'Somebody Special' Ribbons Are Awarded

Those who were present at MHS last year may recall occasionally seeing a student wearing a "You're Somebody Special" ribbon. The origin of this honor remained a mystery throughout the year. Once again this secret "friend" will be bringing a special honor to some students in Muleshoe High School. The activity will get underway on Monday, October 15, and the award will be given to a select student everyday for the remainder of the year. Are you qualified to receive this mystical award? The award was started by an anonymous group of concerned individuals, and made available to the school system to recognize students who are polite, friendly, and all-around respectful students. Though the origin of this special award is unknown at present, it is plain to see the main theme behind it is to recognize those students who are the heart and soul of Muleshoe High School. These students may or may not be prevalent in extracurricular activities, and they may not be honor students, but the recipients always do their best to succeed in all of their endeavors. Be watching the halls for students who are wearing a "Somebody Special" ribbon.

Down The Halls Of MHS

Billy S. do you know the difference between an Optimist and a Catholic?!!!!

The Annual Staff has discovered some hidden talents among the students at MHS. Jeff Mc. can make a realistic heartbeat, Shelly Mc. does an excellent impression of Donald Duck, and Jarrod E. growls like a dog! Any other talents at MHS in case the talent scouts come calling?

The Student Council held a meeting Tuesday, October 2. They discussed refreshments for press box at the Varsity football games.

If you have some interesting comments or meetings you would like the public to know, turn it in to Mrs. Watson or Susan Lunsford. We will appreciate your help!!!

A feeling of sadness prevailed the halls Friday Morning and the students and faculty at MHS, wish to offer our condolences to the family of Roby Wilson.

The Mobil Navy Recruiting Center will be traveling to the Bailey County Courthouse parking lot, every Thursday from 12:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m. for all interested.

commented, "We are really fired up about our show this year and see great potential. This is a good band, the next two weeks we have to prepare in order to show West Texas that we are GREAT!! We can do it!"

Floydada: The Floydada game gave us the lift we needed. The offense and defense played well overall and will help us in preparation for Idalou. Our passing game was the best it's been all year. With one more week's experience for our younger players we are looking forward to Idalou.

Idalou: Idalou is a good football team as evidenced by their showing against Littlefield. We will have to play well against them to win. Our biggest task will be to stop our own mental errors. This is a big game for both teams in their goal to make the play-off.

Coaches Comments

Following the Muleshoe-Idalou football game Friday, the band will spend the night in Lubbock in order to participate in the Texas Tech Marching Festival the following day.

Economist says small shrimp farms not profitable

Smaller shrimp-farming operations don't have as great a chance for survival as the larger ones, says a Texas A&M University agricultural economist who is evaluating the economics of shrimp farming along the Texas Gulf Coast.

"The operations can be profitable, but they must be large," said Dr. Wade L. Griffin of Texas A&M's College of Agriculture. "Smaller operations aren't economically feasible based on the assumptions in my research."

"Shrimp farming is a potential new industry for Texas and is attracting a lot of new interest. It's not just landowners who are interested in converting their ranges into ponds," he added, "but entrepreneurs who don't own any land."

Much of the work for the study, which is funded by the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration through Texas A&M's Sea Grant College Program, is performed by mariculture researchers with the Sea Grant program in Corpus Christi, Griffin said.

NASA officials view wind tunnel tests of Aggie shuttle designs

Johnson Space Center officials recently observed wind tunnel tests of possible improvements to the next generation of the space shuttle — additions designed by seniors at Texas A&M University.

The "experts" who designed the shuttle additions were aerospace engineering students involved in a year-long project with NASA to develop concepts that would make future shuttles handle better during low-speed landings.

The concepts being tested at the wind tunnel, operated by the Texas Engineering Experiment Station (TEES), involved canards, horizontal stabilizers that could be attached to the front of the shuttle.

Landing the shuttle takes critical landing maneuvers that pilots must learn through hours on flight simulators, said Rick Barton of Johnson Space Center's Systems Engineering Division.

"The astronauts do a marvelous job of landing, but we'd like to make the chore easier on the next generation of shuttles," he said.

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

AMENDMENTS 2 AND 3

AUSTIN — Among the proposed amendments to the State Constitution in the November 6 election is one which would dedicate $100 million a year of the state's general revenue for constructing and equipping buildings and other permanent improvements at institutions of higher learning and to restructure the Permanent University Fund.

Amendment number 3 is a proposal for payment of assistance to the surviving dependent parents, brothers and sisters of certain public servants killed while on duty. The amendment to provide funding for schools not under the Permanent University Fund is the culmination of an effort to find a method to provide funds to such universities as Texas Tech, the Tech University Health Sciences Center, and West Texas State University. These and a number of other institutions of higher learning are not included in the Permanent University Fund. And, since the elimination of the state property tax in 1978, these schools have had to rely on the legislature to make funds available on a two-year basis.

By providing a dedicated fund to the schools, the related bonding authority provides a cost-effective method of providing construction funds and the ability for long-range planning.

Those who oppose the amendment say that dedicated construction funding for universities is past. They say that enrollment at colleges and universities has stabilized and will decline in the future.

The Constitution prohibits grants of public money for private purposes. Therefore, a constitutional amendment is necessary to permit public funds to be given to private individuals. Amendment number 3 would expand the current provision of financial assistance to the families of certain public servants who suffer violent death in the course of performing official duties. The current provision is for the surviving spouse and minor children only. This amendment would include dependent parents and dependent brothers and sisters.

Those opposing the amendment say that there are other ways to compensate the survivors of public servants who die as a result of performing hazardous duties. They say that workers' compensation, local pension plans, social security and private life insurance are available and could be paid.

If you want detailed information about any of the eight proposed constitutional amendments, write me, Senator Bill Sarpalius, at P.O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas 78711.

NEWS OF SPORTS HELPING THE U.S. SKI TEAM

Phil and Steve Mahre, one of skiing's most successful combinations, stand near the U.S. Ski Team's official car. The vehicle has the ability to handle snowy winter roads with relative ease.

Did you ever wonder where the money comes from to support the U. S. Ski Team? Unlike the situation that exists in other countries, particularly the highly successful European ones, the U. S. Ski Team receives no tangible governmental support even though many of its members go on to join the U. S. Olympic Ski Team.

Subaru, whose stock is traded on the nation's over-the-counter market, also supplies "On Demand" 4-wheel drive vehicles to the U. S. Ski Team's Sports Medicine Program. They're used to carry sophisticated athletic test equipment from one Ski Team race site to another.

All this support is paying off. Athletes of the U. S. Ski Team are achieving greater success and recognition than ever before—Phil Mahre won World Cup titles in '81, '82, and '83, the only American ever to do so. His brother Steve placed just a few notches lower in the international competition.

If you'd like to join Subaru in supporting the U. S. Ski Team, and its fine athletes, send your tax deductible contributions to the U. S. Ski Educational Foundation, P.O. Box 100, Park City, Utah 84060.
