Editor—And do you believe that Mr. Garfield will continue the friendly policy of the United States government towards our country?

Mr. Kads—I believe it; I am sure of it. He obeys the predominant feeling of the people of the United States; and the feeling is the same among the manufacturers of the rast and the west, the active business men of the Mississippiyales well as their powerful rivals of Chiengo. All desire peace and cordiatfriendably with Mexico, such as will facilitate and increase the exchange of products between both countries. I believe that such commercial relations will fill the cup of mational prosperity in Mexico and the United States, and make both one vast emporium of wealth and greatness, which will be able to dictate its commercial laws to the whole

PLAYING CARDS

The Rings, Queens and Jacks Represent.

historical, but accours or later the effigies were restored. They are easy to understand, and the public is used to them.

American playing cards have presented as great a variety in this direction as the foreign ones. Shortly after the Revolution one R. Sanzade invented a pack for our forefathers' use. Instead of kings there were Washington, Franklin, Adams and Lafavette. For queens Venus, Fortuna, Ceres and Minerva were represented. Indian chiefs provided the knaves. To-day a couple of packs of them are valued inmates of as many historical museums.

In 1893 a manufactores here tried to introduce an American playing card. Lincoln, Buchanan, Pierce and Fillmore were the kings; Secretary whiles, Gen. Dix, Seward and Stanton were an American playing card. Lincoln, Buchanan, Pierce and Fillmore were the kings; Secretary whiles, Gen. Dix, Seward and Stanton were were fully in the same line were represented by a second the queens. The additional waster 'Union' playing cards. In these colonels were kings, goddesses of liberty queens, majors in cavalry boots knaves, and the suits were represented by eagles, shrields, stars and flags, instead of the familiar spoot. The union cards were a dead failure from the stast. The novelty of the spots was entirely too novel. It mixed players up so much that it totally spoiled the pleasure of the game.

The origin of playing cards has been and still is a disputed point. Some historians credit it to the Chinese, who, in spite of the bad name they enjoy boday, were the parents of most of the annions and useful trings of this earth the amounts and useful trings of this earth the amounts and useful trings of the search of the mad king Charles II, of France, has long since been disproved: They made their first appearance toward the end of the fourteenth century, and were well known before the demented monarch was born.

The early European packs had fifty-six cards. The four extra ones are cavalliers, who stood between the queens and knaves. There were

Her Lost Baggage.

Down in the Union Depot there are a thouse partie-bags, satchela, grab bags and pare piled up on shelves to await owners. The cettion is known as stray buggage, and it added to or taken from almost daily. The m added to or taken from almost daily. The man who has charge of it knows pretty well the contents of each, and what he doesn't know he can guess at. Yesterday, when a woman entered his domain and said ahe was looking for a lost satchel, he promptly replied:
"Yery well, madam. We will begin our sarch in division 'A. Were both handles off your satchel, the bottom partly ripped off and, a red woolen rag sticking out of the side?" 'No. sir."

A Cure for Diphtherta.

At a meeting of the Brooklyn beard of aldermen, a few alternoons since, a communication on diptheria and its cure was received from a lady in Williamsport, Pa. She said that she was the mother of six children, all of whom had been afflicted with the dreadful disease, and were cured by the following remedy: "Taker a silice of bacons—alte meats—the older the better; sew it on a soft piece of flannel; then saturate it with coal petroleum) oil. Place it on the neck, having the neat reach from ear to ear. After pounding several raw onlons into a poulties place enough into the patient's stockings to cover the soles of the feet, and have the patient put the stockings on. The positice must be warm, in order not to chill the patient. The throat should then be gargied with tomato-catsup, strong with red pepper, sait and vinegar, shaken well together, will do. If the patient is too young togardie wet the throat with a few strops. If vomilting occurs, line water, purchased is a drug store, with directions, should be given. Be sore to cause an irritation on the neck."

During the early part of January, The Exraiss will issue a mammoth edition, of from ten to fifteen thousand copies, in which will be published the annual review of the business of San Antonio for 1890. It will contain a tabulated statement of the receipts, shipments and volume of transactions in all leading branches of trade, a chronological review of the most importantincidents and ovents of the-past year,
and a vast amount of other matter of interest, and appropriate to the occasion. The beat available talent has been employed to collect the necessary data. Western Texas will be thoroughly and extensively written up, and ratiroud and other important interests will receive du attention. Advertising space can be secured at any time previous to the day of publication,
though orders for extra copies of the paper
should be sent to the business manager by the let of January.
