celled into that court of last appeal, "The bar of public opinion," they should be willing to submit to it the case which they were making now. When the senate met at the beginning of the session it found itself. under the control, numerically, of the Democrats. They had claimed it was their duty to reorganize the committees, and their efforts had been met by dilatory motions on the other side, and they had submitted to these motions. When at length the senate had filled up there had claimed it was their duty to reorganize the committees, and their efforts had been met by dilatory motions on the other side, and they had submitted to these motions. When at length the seaste had filled up there were still on this floor 39 avowed faicudes and supporters of the democratic standard bearser are non-crossed and the principles of the party which that standard bearser represented. The standard bearser represented to the vote did not disclose itself until 37 avowed republican senators had brought in a resolution assuming that they held the majority, and an aggregated amount of mystery had been allowed to envelope the vote of one senator, and that mystery had remained till be senator came for the french man of war rendered great assistance.

added the terrible danger of corruption, because if this man Riddlebarger was to be chosen an officer of the senate in order to influence the election in Virginia, how could he do it in the line of his public duty. There was another feature to this transaction. What was the contest in Virginia which the republicans expected to decide by appointing Riddlebarger? The issue was repudiation and it was on the repudiating side of that issue that the republican party in the senate propose to identify itself by choosing Riddlebarger as one of its officers. It was not to him, but to his doctrines that the republicans stood committed. A Grecian fable told of a man who slew a dragon and sowed his teeth, and whose crop was armed men who flooded the land with blood, and it seemed to him that if the republican party assisted in sowing the seeds of admitted and honorable obligations, it was sowing a crop worse than that of Oadmus, and one which would bear dangerous fruit to posterity. The republicans had no right to strengthen the hands of those who were actual if not avowed repudiationists in order to disintegrate the democratic party of Virginia, he believed he was justified in preventing a consummation of this act. There was a serious question which might become more serious, but by the light he received he stood for the present where he had been when the contest opened. pened.

If the election of Riddleharger would strengthen the republican party, then the republican senstors were justified in electing him. There had been no purchase, no barter, no promise, no hope or expectation of roward held out—nothing in their movements that was corrupt. Chicago, April 6:—The national telephone convention met y seterday at the Grand Pacific hotel. More than 200 exchanges were represented. Every principal city in the union has one or more delegates here. The sessions were held in the morning, afternoon and evening and will be continued to-day. Great interest was shown in improved appliances which were exhibited in the siveral rooms as well as in the reports of committees and in discussion. The universal report was that business had spread to a prodigious extent and was so rapidly increasing that all means of facilitating it should be adopted as fast as practicable. After a few remarks by Vance on the ques-tion of the debt of North Carolina, the sen-ste adjourned.
