Big Crowd Shows Interest In 'Heritage'

Around Muleshoe

Thunderstorms have roamed this area for the past several days, with brilliant lightning and booming thunder, but leaving little moisture behind.

Officially, Muleshoe has received .33 during the first part of the week, with some of the area surrounding the city receiving approximately the same amount.

No moisture has been recorded in the south and western part of the county, as the rain has been confined to the north-eastern corner.

Approximately the same has been reported to the north in the Lazbuddie community.

A Muleshoe man was hospitalized around 4:30 a.m. Wednesday for observation following an early morning three vehicle crash about nine miles west of Muleshoe on Highway 84.

A rental truck, pulling a car was parked on the shoulder of the highway when it was struck from behind by a pickup driven by the local man.

The driver of the truck, who was asleep in the cab of the truck was uninjured in the accident that totally demolished the car, and left heavy damage to the pickup and truck.

Two ambulances were dispatched to the spectacular accident, although one returned to Muleshoe with no victim.

Red Ants Prove Costly In Area Highway Repair

So! You just look at 'red ants' as being pests who build colonies in your yard or garden! You kill out the red ant bed, and they just move on down the yard, or next door, but continue their forays into your yard, your lawns, and your gardens.

Employees of the Texas Department of Highways and Transportation have become much more vocal about the pest, a pest that is known throughout West and North Texas, and on through the west.

Red ants cause them untold billions of dollars in repairing highways damaged by colonies of red ants. Joe Don Prather of the local TDHT said 60 to 70 percent of the patching done by his crews on highways in Bailey County is due to damage from red ants.

The Pogonomyrmex sp ant (red ant) situation on a two mile stretch of FM 2079, West of Muleshoe, is being studied this week by Chas. Wayne Evans II, a research biologist from Beaumont, who is in Muleshoe. He and employees of the Texas Department of Public Highways are forcing a poisonous gas (smoke) into their colony in an effort to kill out these ants.

Tuesday afternoon a single ant colony, picked at random was dug out. This one colony was approximately 34 inches deep, four feet long and three feet wide. Approximately 20 colonies were located in the first three quarters of a mile of roadway. As bad as this seems Evans told The Journal that in some sections of District 5 (Lubbock District) there are as many as 100 in a mile.

Joe Don Prather, an employee of the local office, told the Journal that $4,000,000 was spent in District 5 last year repairing public highways. And in the Muleshoe area approximately 50 to 60 percent of the road repair is contributed to the ant problem. "We don't have much of a problem with the ants on Highway 70 and 84, our main problem is on 214 South and the Farm To Market roads."

During the past week, Charles Evans of SCAC Research Center has been in Muleshoe, conducting a research project and "experimenting" on methods to eradicate the ants, which cost taxpayers a very hefty $4 million dollars last year to repair damage from red ants.

The $4 million figure was released by the Texas Department of Highways and Transportation as the amount spent for repairs in Bailey County alone, and does not reflect the many other millions spent within the state for repairs, much attributed to the red ant.

Biologist Evans was in Beaumont conducting research on fire ant eradication when he read an article in the August issue of the Texas Department of Highways and Transportation magazine. The article concerned the damage done by the red ant to the state's maze of highways.

Evans decided to come to Bailey County with an experiment to see if he could find out a method to completely eradicate the pest that has harassed residents, farmers and others for so many years.

He and an assistant spent many hours on FM2079 some two miles west of Muleshoe, walking, counting red ant beds, marking the beds, making the ants angry, and getting bitten. Standard equipment in their shirt pocket was a slim vial of laundry-blueing, well-known to offset ant bites, or stings.

The biologist explained that unlike fire ants, who build colonies with more than one 'escape hatch' or outside entrance, the red ant constructs colonies with tunnels and various chambers, sometimes extending for miles.

New Ordinance Is Approved By Council

Following a discussion by members of the Muleshoe City Council on Tuesday morning, and approval of several minor changes in a proposed Ordinance "Providing Rules and Regulations Concerning the City of Muleshoe Municipal Airport" the proposed ordinance was approved unanimously by the city officials.

Also meeting with the City Council were Gerald K. Reid, president of the Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture; Toni Eagle, manager of the CofC and Lonnie Adrian, immediate past president.

Reid presented a proposal of a plan formulated by the CofC for renovating the Mule Lot and constructing an office for the Muleshoe CofC on back of the Mule Lot.

"We wanted you to know these plans are in the works," said Reid. "Of course, a lot depends on Santa Fe (Railway) and what they say regarding a long-term lease."

The CofC president said it was estimated that an office for the CofC would cost around $40,000, and would include a fenced area to the west and east on the Mule Lot, along with 'antique-type' street lights in front.

The CofC asked formally for the Hotel-Motel Occupancy Tax receipts to help construct the new office.

He also discussed with the council "Welcome" type signs to be placed on highways leading into Muleshoe, and said they could be painted for $250 each. Council members approved the signs unanimously, using a portion of the Hotel-Motel Occupancy Tax money.

In other discussion, the city officials talked about the renovation project to the home at the airport; the new fire station and other ongoing city projects.

One thing for sure -- a lot of people are interested in preserving the heritage of Bailey County -- a fairly young county in Texas.

Monday night, it was a jam-packed meeting room at the Bailey County Civic Center for the Muleshoe Heritage Foundation meeting. The overflow crowd, of more than 100 people, were interested in the plans for the Bailey County Ranching Heritage Park planned adjacent to the Bailey County Civic Center.

Acting as master of ceremonies, Kenneth Precure told the group, "This project was brought about by dedicated people," and introduced Bailey County Judge Gordon H. Green, who introduced Kim Williams, a preservation and restoration architect from Austin.

Williams showed slides of previous restoration projects across the state, and a couple in New Mexico and Colorado, as he explained the purposes for the restoration of historical homes and buildings.

He said the first priority is to identify the resources available, and that the Muleshoe Heritage Foundation had done that; second was to secure properties; followed by development; check into financial backing; study marketing the resources and learn how to capitalize on it for cultural, educational and tourism.

Included in his slide presentation were slides of the Santa Fe Depot; Janes Ranch House and storage house and the Muleshoe Ranch Cookhouse.

The architect was followed by Maureen (Wilterding) Hooten, who discussed how her grandfather and another man made a trip to Bailey County in 1907 and decided to move to Bailey

Golf Tournament Set To Benefit Local Girl Scouts

"All proceeds from the evening will be donated by Wayne and Joyce Holmes to the Girl Scouts to help with their renovation project."

Mrs. Merriott concluded, "The Girl Scouts will be on hand to greet everyone -- so call a friend and come on out. Not only the Girl Scouts, but everyone working with the project, sincerely thanks you for your interest."

CHECKING FOR DEAD ANTS--Employees of the Texas Department of Highways and Transportation were busy digging up FM2079 in various locations Friday afternoon checking for dead ants in red ant beds. At far right, looking on is Biologist Charles Evans.

Know Your Chamber Of Commerce
Toni Eagle, Mgr.

I recently heard someone ask "What does the Chamber do exactly?" After trying to recall things for several minutes, I thought it might be interesting to make a list.

The Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture plans for the future of the city. Visitors and many residents often make their first contact with Muleshoe at the Chamber office. The Chamber advertises its member's business by providing inquirers with information concerning who can serve their needs. It's the correspondence "arm" of Muleshoe, your voice with government and a focal point for Civic Pride.

Keep in mind the day to day functions of the Chamber such as answering requests for all types of information by phone and by mail; in addition, filing, bookkeeping, typing, selling souvenirs, not to mention trying to attract new businesses or industries.

One of the favorite activities of the Chamber is conducting ribbon cuttings or helping with grand openings. Muleshoe loves new business or expanding existing ones. In the past year we have had 14 ribbons cuttings.

The Chamber has offered a defense course for women, country-western dance lessons, a farmers market, Red Cross classes, new "Muleshoe" mats, "hot" check seminars, shoplifting seminars and "Mule" buckles.

The Chamber office acts as a focal point for things like the South Plains College graduate search, people interested in the wild horse adoption, even a TV commercial crew's first contact to the area was with the Chamber.

We try to handle requests from our members. Our office has conducted a search for pictures for a "Heritage Wall." We put together packets for visitors, serve refreshments, welcome visitors, present honorary citizenships, furnish keys to the city or set up reservations and made arrangements.

Members and staff represent Muleshoe at functions outside our town or county such as Chamber banquets or town celebrations, presentations and parades.

The Chamber is in charge of the 4th of July celebration, the Christmas parade, the annual Chamber banquet and the clean-up campaign. It is also involved in the Mule Day Festival, Bailey County Fair, Christmas Bazaar, the Sesqui-centennial Committee, Youth Employment Services and Heritage Foundation Depot project.

Other activities of the Chamber are Employee of the Month, Area Play Day, Donkey Softball, Chamber Breakfast, Jest Carnival, Decorating Contests, Lions-Rotary Basketball game, Olympic torch activities, Halloween trick or treat and costume day, Santa's visit and pictures, Easter Bunny, supported Dance for Heart, walk-a-thon, and revised the map of Muleshoe.

The Chamber also tried to help keep the record straight by correcting an Arlington city councilman, helping with the Mule Appreciation Day USA, visiting with a Clovis radio station on unflattering programs and reminding Lubbock that Muleshoe is a "power" to deal with.

Oh yes, we still had time to play host to the George Strait Show!!!

Sounds most impressive when you put it down on paper, doesn't it? The most impressive thing is the fact that the Chamber did all this with 126 members. That means there is over 130 businesses (not counting our farmers or individuals) that are not members. In other words there are over 130 businesses that are not supporting Muleshoe, the Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture or the growth of Muleshoe. If you count the farmers (what would we have without our farmers) we can triple that number.

If we can accomplish all this with 126 members, imagine what we could do with, say 300 members.

Sort of over-whelming isn't it? Call 272-4248 today. Put your time and talents to work for Muleshoe by joining the Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture.

JI Case And Wooley Roll Back Prices

J I Case has rolled back prices on most Case International 94 Series two-wheel-drive agricultural tractors. According to Bill Wooley, owner of Wooley International, the roll-back results from ongoing cost reduction efforts in Case manufacturing operations.

The price reductions, now in effect, apply to new identity Case International tractors only. The rollback varies by model up to 8.7%, and applies to tractors marketed in the United States.

Case announced similar price rollbacks for Case International four-wheel-drive agricultural tractors and Case construction equipment in March.

Wooley said the price move is a positive response to current economic difficulties in the agricultural marketplace. "The rollback allows us to pass on to local customers the benefits of successful efforts to lower costs while improving quality at Case plants. We are committed to delivering the best possible value to our customers," said Wooley.

Miss Malherbe, Kleman United In Marriage

On June 22, during mid afternoon services, Cornelia Malherbe and Glenn Kleman exchanged vows at the First United Methodist Church of Littlefield.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham J. Malherbe of Hamden, Conn. and Kleman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Williams J. Woetovech of Nazareth.

Vows were exchanged before two large brass baskets of lavender and rose colored flowers and a unity candle. The pews were decorated with large white bows and lavender and mauve flowers. Officiating the wedding were the bride's father, A.J. Malherbe and Father Harold Waldow of Nazareth.

Musical selections were played on the organ by LaPearl Embry of Littlefield and other wedding music was sung by Dewayne Kleman, Gregg and Glenda Birkenfield of Nazareth.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of lace and satin with hand beaded lace motifs applied on the bodice and chapel length train. She wore a knee length veil attached to a lace band that also featured hand beading.

She carried an arm bouquet of hibiscus, orchids, rosebuds and greenery. In keeping with tradition, she wore her grandmother's ruby ring for something old, something new was her dress and for something borrowed she used Kleman's grandmothers' lace handkerchief and her garter was something blue.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was her sister, Selina Brooks of New York City, and other honor attendants were Cynthia King and Sheribob Taylor, both of Sudan, Lauri Chamberland of Bryan, and Merian Leh of Greeley, Colo.

Serving the groom as best man was his brother, Rodney Kleman, of College Station and groomsmen were Floyd Birkenfield, Keith Birkenfield, Doyle Kleman and Rick Kleman.

Ushers were Jan Malherbe, Steve Warren and Craig Cristy.

A buffet was served by Gloria Humphreys and Winona Dudgeon, both of Sudan. Leona Kleman and Karen Birkenfield presided at the serving table.

The bride is a graduate of ACU and teaches Art in the Sudan schools. The groom is a graduate of Texas Tech and is an engineer with SPS at Tolk Station.

Following a Caribbean Cruise, the couple are making their home in Littlefield.

The Creative Woman

By Sheryl Borden

Information on samplers and pork will be featured on "The Creative Woman" show on August 27 and 31. Ann Hurt is a designer and the author of a book entitled Country Samplers, and she is from New York. Ms. Hurt will talk about the early samplers, tell why they were made and what they were originally used for and compare this to what we have today. She will explain how to preserve a sampler or any other piece of handwork and show several beautiful examples of country samplers which are photographed in the book.

Merle Ellis is a butcher by trade and will be a guest again on the show and explain and demonstrate how to cut up pork and save money at the meat counter at the same time.

On August 29 the topics will be food garnishing, making egg twist and bread and cooking with peanuts.

Food stylists spend a lot of time making and using garnishes to complement food in color, size and texture. Jane Kuoni is a food stylist from Chicago and she will show how to make a wide variety of food garnishes.

Fran Smith is a home economist with Universal Foods from Milwaukee, WI, and she will introduce a recipe featuring the new Red Star Quick-Rise yeast. The yeast allows the product to rise up to fifty percent faster and it's all natural, with no added preservatives. Ms. Smith will make an egg-twist bread which features an easy shaping procedure, and she will also discuss storing yeast, how the weather affects the rising time, and what happens when products over-rise. Anytime is a good time to enjoy the taste and nutritional value of peanuts. Betsy Owens and Marilyn Hubert will present some interesting recipes made with peanuts and peanut butter. Ms. Owens is with the North Carolina Peanut Commission and Ms. Hubert represents the Georgia Peanut Commission.

"The Creative Woman" show is produced and hosted by Sheryl Borden. The show airs at 12 noon on Tuesday and Thursday and at 2:00 pm on Saturday. (All times are Mountain Standard).

LICENSE PLATES OF 1936 CHOSEN

Next year's passenger automobile license plates will be of cream color with blue numerals and lettering. The truck plates will have the colors reversed.

At the bottom of the plate, where the word "Texas" appears, there will be the word "Centennial," while "Tex" will be stamped horizontally in the middle of the plate.

Specifications call for 1,125,000 pairs of passenger auto plates, the same number as this year, and the manufacturing will be done, as last year, by the penitentiary system. The cost is expected to be about the same.

Increasing Foreclosures

When a home burns or is flooded, insurance provides protection for the owner, but in foreclosure, the homeowner loses all -- initial investment, equity and the house itself.

That's the unfortunate situation in which an increasing number of Texans are finding themselves, says Dr. Jane Berry, a housing specialist with the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service.

"Appreciation in home value has been stalled by low inflation," she says, "and many homeowners who are forced to sell because they can't make payments find they have to accept much less for their home than the paid for it."

When proceeds from a sale won't cover the original mortgage debt, the owner faces a total loss, the specialist points out. Some pay cash to make up the difference between their selling price and the amount necessary to pay off the mortgage.

Other homeowners walk away from the home, rather than pumping in additional money to pay off the mortgage. In this case, the lender has no recourse but to foreclose, Berry explains.

"Many people bought houses and condominiums when interest rates were high through

Clothing Costs And Careful Shopping

In spite of the heat wave outside shoppers will be flocking into air-conditioned stores this month to buy back-to-school wardrobes, dress-for-success suits, and other fall clothing.

According to Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service clothing specialist Becky Saunders, what they'll find in the stores is high prices.

"Clothing prices increased at a lower rate than prices for other items over the last few years," she says. "But when the effect of inflation is removed, U.S. Department of Agriculture figures show the percentage of personal expenditures for clothing and shoes is at a 25-year high."

Annual spending for clothing and shoes is now estimated at $588 per person.

Part of the increased spending for clothes is due to higher prices, and part is because we're buying more clothes than in the past, she explains.

Clothing industry figures also show that the number of small children who are outfitted for school is growing at a fast pace, Saunders says. This is probably due to the increasing numbers of working mothers who enroll their children in nursery schools and more money available for clothing in smaller families with two incomes.

The specialist points out that while many shoppers are interested in cutting their clothing costs, they also want quality, and are willing to pay for it.

She suggests a few simple steps to insure you get the most for your clothing dollar:

- Before you begin to shop, know what you already have that is wearable. Consider fit, needed repairs and appropriateness of the clothes you have now.

- Figure out what you need in terms of types of clothing, colors, and fabrics. Cut fabric swatches so you can match items you already own.

- Get organized for shopping. Set a budget, and shop with a list.

- Remember that separates are a relatively inexpensive way to extend a wardrobe, since items can be mixed and matched.

- It doesn't cost anything to try on "trendy" clothes, but be

County, a move that was made in February, 1908 to Old Hurley. At that time, Old Hurley was the only settlement in the northern part of the county, and had a school, post office, store, hotel and church.

Katherine Sanders, president of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) said AARP was behind the project 100 percent and ready to help with funding and "we're ready to roll up our sleeves and go to work."

Jenne McVicker, member of the Muleshoe Heritage Foundation, and chairman of the memorial division, explained how memorials could be made, for the living, or the deceased, in the form of birthdays, anniversaries, special occasions.

"You can show friendship and loving concern to anyone on a special occasion," she said.

Memorials may be sent to the Muleshoe Memorial Foundation, P.O. Box 766, Muleshoe, TX 79347.

Elizabeth Watson, assistant superintendent of the Muleshoe ISD for curriculum, said the school reform law emphasizes the study of history for local students. She added that the school is behind the project 100 percent and suggested that the various buildings in the complex be utilized for meetings, and added that various school organizations would enjoy meeting in the complex.

Explaining the various memberships available was Glen Williams, member of the Muleshoe Heritage Foundation. He said members would help elect officers at the annual meeting, and would be helping the Foundation financially.

Memberships are available on an annual basis at $15; $25; $150; $500 and $1000.

Muleshoe Heritage Foundation President Ruth Hall spoke of her encouragement on seeing the good turnout, and interest shown in the heritage park.

She introduced Pat Brown of Crosbyton, who spoke on taking historical educational programs to the schools in Crosby County, and the enthusiastic response by students of all ages.

Others who spoke briefly included Vivian White, president of the Muleshoe Jenny-slippers, who presented the Muleshoe Heritage Foundation with a check in the amount of $500; Jean Allison, MHS teacher and leader of the SCAC group from High School; Bailey County Commissioner Roy Whitt and Gil Lamb.

Other meetings will be scheduled in the future, in order to obtain almost total community support.

While counting the red ant colonies, or beds, along a one mile stretch of FM2079, the biologist and his assistant counted more than 25 ant beds in the one mile.

They marked the beds, then went back with his experimental 'smoke' and injected the smoke into several beds. After digging them up, they found no live ants in any of the beds checked, although they found activity around the beds.

Ants, explained Evans, are very well organized. The 'queen' lays 200 eggs per day, perpetuating the population. At the same time, other ants are designated to be nursery workers, foragers, soldiers, and whatever is needed.

Ants are extremely hardy. In order to safely hatch out, the eggs, they seek a location with the proper moisture, as well as a fairly consistent temperature.

What better location than under a pavement? The moisture is adequate to keep the eggs at the proper humid level while the metamorphosis is taking place, and the temperature, as the pavement is heated by the sun, stays at a temperature assuring a safe hatch-out of the larvae.

Evans will be back within the next two to three weeks to do further research and experimentation on the ant, and will have some answers for the Texas Department of Highways and Transportation at that time or shortly thereafter.

The following is a story taken from the Texas Monthly Magazine.

"J. W. Gooch is not a man to scoff at sci-fi stories of voracious insects gobbling up the countryside, because he's seen it happen. As director of programs over maintenance operations for the Texas Highway Department's District 5 (which encompasses the seventeen counties surrounding Lubbock), Gooch has watched Panhandle roadways slowly deteriorate in an onslaught of busy ants and gophers. The varmints burrow below the pavement causing sinks that soon break down, under the weight of traffic, into full-fledged potholes. The trouble these pests can cause Texas drivers is serious indeed. On rainy days tax rate for the past year of $1.19 per $100.00 of taxable value. There was no tax increase over the previous year.

"The Texas Research League publication was the source for the information published. They are a non-profit organization located in Austin, and in reporting rates, do not calculate Appraisal Review Board decisions, or appeals made by the Three Way School District."

with standing water, sinks can cause a driver to lose control of his car at 55 miles an hour.

"Because these pests seldom burrow in more than three feet from the pavement's edge, major highways have suffered shoulder damage only. But the damage is more telling and dangerous on narrower, earth-shouldered rural roads of Texas' farm-to-market system. Depending on the intensity of the infestation, ant sinks can occur every 25 to 100 feet for miles, along both sides of the road, right where your wheel tracks.

"Ant and gopher sinks are still unfamiliar threats to most Texans, but Gooch's men have been fighting the battle for decades. Garza County maintenance construction supervisor Jerry Moore estimates that between one quarter and one third of his road problems are caused by native harvester ants (a.k.a. red ants). Bailey County supervisor R.L. Clark adds that in his region there are stretches of ant-bitten road his men hate to touch—the ants are just too thick and are stinging his crews. The humans have lost ground on all fronts, and the problem is spreading.

"Gooch's district is a preview in microcosm of what awaits several million of us. For one thing, District 5 has the most center-line miles of any of Texas' 25 districts: 4881 miles. So there's more trouble to see. Ants are drawn to these rolling roadsides for compelling reasons. They like to feast on the grain, seeds, and insects found in relative abundance along Panhandle roads. Since asphalt absorbs and retains heat well, the roadbed makes for a cozy winter home. It's also a good source of water, especially when rain puddles collect in the sinks above the ant nests. The shifting sands in the southern part of District 5 appeal to gophers. Prairie dogs, which prefer tighter soil, are causing minor but increasing harm along several roads in the district's northern counties.

"Gooch and I drove west of Lubbock on FM 2641, which had been patched last fall and was still relatively smooth. Just after turning onto FM 2130, I felt the right front wheel dip noticeably — our first ant sink. Gooch stopped the car, and we got out for a look. The colony's entry hole was six inches away from the pavement's edge, but the sink in the asphalt extended six feet in. It was two feet long and about two inches deep. Out of the hundreds of ant sinks and holes we saw that day, the largest was approximately eight feet by five feet and was about three inches deep.

"Just north of New Moore, on FM 213 at the Terry-Lynn county line, we found gopher damage: caved-in trenches several inches wide and deep, coming in several feet toward the center stripe, veering this way, that way, then back to the shoulder where the digging was easier. (Gooch likes to think the gophers veer back and forth when they hit their heads on caliche). Fresh gopher mounds dotted both shoulders, which had recently been graded level because of flood erosion. Such grading only spurs the gophers on to increased burrowing, which causes even greater shoulder erosion during the next heavy rain.

"Routine road maintenance is currently the district's only method of keeping ants, gophers, and prairie dogs at bay. Maintenance crews try to patch the sinks before they degrade into potholes, but wet weather, such as the Panhandle experienced in June, and hard winters hasten the deterioration. Sometimes the patching process itself kills the ants off. Gooch says, depending on the materials used. Most of the time, though, the ants stay put or at best move a few feet away.

"You have to bombard them continually to have any effect on them," several foremen told me. Dragging, or blading, the shoulders with a motor grader generally riles the ants enough to move them away for a while, but they usually return. And these days, budget cutbacks mean that shoulders are not graded as often as they were in the past.

"As bad as things are already, they will soon be worse. A new insect, the imported fire ant, has been moving west from the southern U.S. East Texas roads have been spared somewhat by the proximity of trees to the roads' edges, and the harsher winters and the dry climate may save District 5 and much of Texas west of the escarpment. But

Central Texas and the coastal plains are open to attack. Fire ant sinks are already beginning to pit their farm roads. Being smaller than harvesters, fire ants build smaller nests but at much higher density per acre. As the fire ant population continues to grow, Texans can expect smaller-diameter sinks more often, one and a half feet across and spaced possibly as close as five or six feet apart.

SPC Law Enforcement Program Getting 'Set'

A wide variety of courses, from beginning firearms to police tactics and techniques, will be offered this fall in South Plains College's law enforcement program.

SPC's fall registration will be 9 a.m. - noon and 1:30 - 4 p.m. Aug. 28, and evening registration will be 5:30-7:30 p.m. Aug. 27 in the Student Center.

Law enforcement courses slated for the fall include introduction to criminal justice, legal aspects of law enforcement, police systems and practices, police report writing, and criminal investigation.

"We pay a lot more attention to what goes on in the streets as a result of classes like these," explained Chuck Wright, freshman law enforcement major from Levelland and a Navy veteran. "They give you a realistic feel for police work."

The courses also prepare SPC's law enforcement majors for either immediate employment in the field or for further studies at a senior college or university, according to George Lawless, SPC assistant professor of law enforcement. "SPC offers two tracks in law enforcement, one on law enforcement technology, which provides training for immediate job entry, and a criminal justice track, designed for transfer to a four-year institution."

During their two years of studies at SPC, law enforcement majors enroll in courses like beginning firearms, an introduction to the correct use of handguns. The class paves the way for SPC's advanced course in firearms and defensive tactics, which extensively utilizes the College computerized indoor pistol firing range.

Other courses include introduction to criminal justice, which focuses on the impact of crime on today's society and an overview of the criminal justice system; legal aspects of law enforcement, which develops concepts of arrest, search and seizure laws; police systems and practices, the role of police in today's society; police report writing, the basics of gathering, evaluating and writing police reports for on the job and in court; and criminal investigation, which includes collection and preservation of evidence, interview and interrogation techniques, forensic techniques to develop evidence and theories on investigation.

"Police work is not what television programs show. We learn not to try to be super cops," said John Gonzalez, incoming sophomore from Lubbock. "We're human, just like everybody else," added sophomore Jimmy Richey, who is from Wolforth.

Diana Diaz, Lubbock sophomore whose dream from the ninth grade has been probation work, says the attraction for her is the fact that "you're accepted as you are in law enforcement. We're like one big family."

The success of a program is measured by its graduates.

Guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edd Autry Saturday was grandson's, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Jackson and 2 children also Albert Jackson all from Clovis, New Mexico, and Elwood Autry of Morton.

"We have graduates of the program who are filling positions in police agencies all across the state," said Lawless. "Many of our graduates choose the Texas Department of Public Safety, others choose probation, parole and corrections agencies, and still others have gone to work for the federal law enforcement agencies," he noted.

Several SPC law enforcement graduates now are chiefs of police, sheriffs, college training program directors, even judges.

"Recruiters from across the state contact us each year for prospective employees," adds colleague Larry Nichols, also an SPC assistant professor of law enforcement. "In fact, it is becoming more difficult to satisfy the employee needs for all the different agencies. Many police agencies never fill all their openings. Law enforcement is a career field always needing good professionals," he added.

The two helped charter three years ago the Community College Criminal Justice Educators of Texas to provide feedback and support for the state's law enforcement educators. Lawless served as the group's first president and Nichols begins his third term this fall as secretary-treasurer.

In addition to studies, SPC's law enforcement majors also participate in the service-oriented Gamma Delta Nu, named Club of the Year last spring by SPC's Student Activities Office.

"We want to get involved in community life. If we did not want to help, we wouldn't be here," explained Wright.

During the past year Gamma Delta Nu spearheaded the successful annual Hockley County Peace Officers Appreciation banquet, saluting county law enforcement officials. They also conducted a fingerprinting program for Sundown's kindergarten students, provided traffic control for all SPC basketball games and many tournaments, conducted Operation ID, identifying student televisions and radios with their drivers license number, and other projects.

For more information on SPC's law enforcement program, contact Lawless or Nichols at (806) 894-9611.

Allergy Season Still Linger Into The Fall

It's late summer and allergy season is over, right? Not so, say allergy specialists at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

While grasses and trees have stopped pollinating, July through November is the worst time for the many Texans allergic to ragweed and marsh elder weed. Ragweed is found throughout Texas and marsh elder weed is found along the Gulf Coast.

Allergies affect almost everyone to some extent. They can be caused by pollen, mold, dust, pets, certain foods and medicines. They can result in sneezing, shortness of breath, watery eyes and hives.

Baylor specialists say the best way to cope with allergies is to avoid whatever causes a reaction. Over the counter anti-histamine drugs can be used to temporarily relieve minor allergy symptoms.

An allergic reaction occurs when the body rejects a foreign substance. In hayfever, for example, pollen or dust enters the body through the nose. The body's immune system reacts by sending antibodies to fight the substance. Chemicals such as histamine are released, causing stuffiness and sneezing. However, not all allergies cause hayfever symptoms. Allergic reactions to insect stings, foods and medicines can cause hives or welts, without the congestion.

The Texas allergy season begins in January when Cedar trees begin to bloom. Oaks and other trees bloom February through March. Then grasses begin and pollinate until July. Weed season then takes control until November.

Allergy specialists suggest that people with severe symptoms learn what is causing their reactions and avoid places which aggravate their allergies, such as freshly mowed lawns or parks.

To help the millions of people who suffer from allergies, Baylor College of Medicine is offering the free brochure "Living With Allergies." The brochure contains information on allergy seasons, food and medicine allergies, the difference between allergies and asthma and ways to lessen exposure to make life more pleasant for the allergy sufferer.

For a free copy of the brochure, call 1-800-342-4444 or write: Living With Allergies, We Care for You, Baylor College of Medicine, P.O. Box 13567, Houston, Texas 77219.

Permits Refused For Livestock From Colorado

Permits for entry of horses, cattle and swine from three Colorado counties into Texas are being refused because of vesicular stomatitis outbreaks, Dr. John W. Holcombe, executive director, Texas Animal Health Commission, said today.

The counties are Pueblo, Fremont, and El Paso. Other cases have been confirmed or are suspected in Montezuma, La Plata, Jefferson, and Douglas counties. More than 70 cases have been confirmed in horses in Colorado.

VS can affect horses, cattle and swine. Symptoms include excessive salivation and vesicular lesions of the oral cavity. Lameness is frequently observed. In dairy herds, loss of milk production may be serious.

Anyone suspecting VS should contact a veterinarian for a diagnosis. Veterinarians should contact U.S. Department of Agriculture officials if they suspect VS to be present.

SANDHILLS PHILOSOPHER

Editor's note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Sandy Acres thinks he has discovered something about government borrowing.

Dear editor:
If you look in the Business Section of big dailies every Tuesday you'll find a report on that week's sale of U.S. Treasury Notes—how many billion dollars were sold and what rate of interest they'll pay the buyers.

Usually the amount ranges around seven billion dollars worth. This doesn't happen just occasionally, like a farmer's borrowing once a year to make a crop, it happens every week the year 'round.

Selling Treasury Notes is different say from selling a load of cattle. No rancher can sell a load every week the year 'round. It just takes longer to produce a marketable calf than a marketable Treasury Note, although both transactions have the same purpose: get hold of some needed money.

As I understand it, when the Treasury sells some notes it's just borrowing money from the public, what you might call going in hock to the people. At seven billion a week, you can see the government needs a powerful lot of money and the public has to do a powerful lot of lending. This explains why the government now is in debt about two trillion dollars. When you consider that a billion is a thousand million—I looked it up in the dictionary—and a trillion is so many billions it takes 12 zeroes to write it, like this: $1,000,000,000,000, and the government is in debt a couple of them, you can see what I'm getting to in a minute.

It's this: in a democracy the government is supposed to belong to the people, and if Washington keeps on mortgaging itself to the people, it's sure going to be true.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

The old question about the chicken and the egg is one that will haunt the minds of men forever. It will never be answered and fortunately need not be, but we do know from whence came life itself and that is of vastly more importance. Life was given by the Creator God who made Himself known to men and about whom we read in the Bible. We are also told in the Bible that our destiny as persons is to receive light and life from God and reflect His splendor into the world; this and this alone will give us the true joy of life. Let your light so shine that seeing your good deeds men will turn and glorify your Father who is in Heaven.

THE Know Weather

Do the winds of a hurricane in the southern hemisphere rotate around the eye clockwise or counter clockwise?
In the southern hemisphere winds around such storms rotate clockwise - just the opposite from their movement in the northern hemisphere. This is believed to be caused by the motion of the turning earth.
All the signs and warning omens of hurricanes, then, would be read differently in the southern hemisphere. Many other phenomena are different below the equator.
Nature's deflection of bullets and shells, growing characteristics of certain trees, the way rivers cut into one bank, are all different in the southern hemisphere. There the prevailing veer of these things is to the left, not the right.
Hard work hurts few people because so few work hard.
Friendship is something few people understand or enjoy.
