New Mexico the Place.

The following words from the New

Mexican are as true as the truth: "Consumption is not only the bane of the cities. It is just as strong in the rural districts. In the mountains and pine forests of Vermont, the percentage of deaths from consumption is as great as in the slums of New York city. While Vermont has the mountains and pine forests it does not have the altitude, sunshine and aridity of the armos phere that New Mexico possesses. Let no man fool himself that he can get well from consumption in the humid east. The first and best thing he should do when he learns that the disease threatens him is to pack his grip and "hike" for the southwest, where at an elevation of 7,000 feet and in such sheltered val leys as those of the Santa Fe and the Tesuque, his chances for recovery are ten times as great as in any sanitarium in the Adirondacks o New York or the Blue mountains of Vermont. Every month's delay in taking the trip reduces the chances of recovery 10 per cent."

OLD VETERANS.

Spend Great Day at Their Annual Picnic.

The Confederate Veterans of the Val Verde Camp No. 1419, of Roswell, held their annual reunion at the Slaughter farm two miles east of that city on Saturday last. There were thirty of the old soldiers present, who with their families and friends numbered about 200. Elder C. C. Hill, pastor of the Christian church of Roswell, was orator of the day. We would be glad to publish his entire speech, but our space is too limited. An extract follows:

"A southern states man, was the prime mover in the convention that framed the Constitution, the Magna Chartar of our great nation.

A Southern Chief Justice (Marshall) analyzed and stamped a construction upon it that will be respected as long as we remain a nation.

A southern man (Jefferson) was the author of the Republican theory land claim No. 723, for the Wh NE4, of popular government which prevailed during the sixty years of our

> Of the fifteen presidents of the old Continental Congress, eight were men from the south.

From 1789 to 1853 the south furnished eight presidents, whose terms of service covered 52 years. Also during this time she furnished a large proportion of the Vice-Presidents, Cabinet Officers, Chief and associate Justices and Foreign Ministers.

All students of history will bear me out in the statement that it was during this period that the most broad and lofty statesmanship prevailed, bold and fruitful enterprises were undertaken from which have evolved the pride, the power and the glory of America.

The war of 1812 was scarcely less important in results than that of the Revolution. One left us a nation in embryo. The other a full grown world power, with the insults of a quarter of a century completely wiped out. Who were the master spirits in that struggle? Clay, Calhoun, Monroe, Gumdy, Crawford and others. That war was supported by a solid south, while only five senators from north of the Delaware voted to sustain it. 'Twas "Old Hickory" with his trusty southern troops, who repulsed the British at New Orleans and won as brilliant a victory as ever achieved on the field of battle.

'Twas when the ship of state was guided by southern brains, the Indian wars were fought, and a magnificent country opened to white settlement. It was during that time Florida was acquired from Spain and Louisiana from France.

That great territory of more than one million square miles, now the richest and best of our entire country, conceived and accomplished by a Southern President (Jefferson) overshadows in its splendid proportions ing Dr. Weems might live forever. every national measure since the landing on Plymouth Rock. New Plans Called For.

There has been some delay in let ting the contract for the new school building, and no one is more fully aware of that fact nor has better cause for regret than the individual members of the school board.

The plans drawn by Joe A. Clayton and which were accepted by the Directors some time since with the understanding that they were to be paid for if the building could b constructed with the money availaable for that purpose were good plans, so pronounced by architect J. M. Nelson, of Roswell. It was thought by some that the building could not e put up according to the Clayton plans for $9,000.00, but Mr. Clayton greatest prosperity, peace and hap- believed that it could be done and that bids would be received within the money, therefore the directors were forced to wait, and at the proper time open the bids, or else remain under obligations to Mr. Clayton. The bids were duly opened and the lowest one received was $10,800.00 just $1800,00 more money than can be used for that purpose.

The Woman's Literary Club.

In spite of a fierce dust storm Wednesday afternoon, quite a number of the Woman's Literary Club members answered to roll call at the meeting with Mrs. D. I. Weems. Mrs. Sholars, on account of illness, lead in her stead. Papers were read on George I and III by Mesdames Atkeson and Gore, they were very interesting and were prepared by Mrs. Sholars. Mrs. Kemp read a character sketch on George III, and Mrs. Weems a paper on George IV. Mrs. Phillips gave a reading on Whitfield, Mrs. Beckham on William Pitt, Mrs. Cecill on the Battle of Trafalgar, and Mrs. Talbot on the Battle of Waterloo. This closed the lesson for the afternoon, and the members were invited by the hostess to partake of a tempting lunch, prepared in honor of Dr. Weem's birthday. The table was profusely decorated with gorgeous wild flowers and a bunch of these gems of nature adorned each plate. Turknett Well at Artesia in a Suit for Their Profits.

Richardson, Reid & Hervey, as attorneys, brought suit in district ourt today for Warren Wagner against J. A. Wiggs and Eugene Ockerman, and the case will be one of unusual interest because it is brought over the profits made in drilling the famous Turknett well at Artesia: Plaintiff claims that on Dec. 13 last he entered into a verbal agreement or partnership by which he was to fornish the drilling machine, J. A. Wiggs was to furnish. the casing and finishings, and Engene Ockerman was to furnish the ready money for putting down a well for J. W. Turknett. He states that they were to share equally the profits or losses made in drilling the well and that they received 240 acres of land in section 21, township 17 S., range 26 east, for their work; that land was deeded to Wiggs and that he never made a division with plaintiff. Plaintiff states further that the other members of the partnership have since the completion of the Turknett well used his machine in drilling other wells and have injured and worn it out. He also states that he believes that defendant Wiggs is preparing to dispose of the land of the partnership. He asks that Wiggs be enjoined from disposing of the land; that a receiver be appointed and that a division be made according to the rights of the parties .- Roswell Register.

Pouting as in dainty scorn; ilk white teeth that gleam delicious With the fragrance of the morn. Here's a piquant, pensive maiden, Gracious as soft summer night.

When the breeze with balsam laden

Shapely as firm Grecian shepherd
Fosing in untutored ease;

Supple as some tawny leorard
Freicking amid the trees Frolicking amid the tree

How describe that liquid laughter, Gurgling like a mountain rill.

Soaring, ringing 'neath the rafter,
Sanguine, splendid, never still?

How portray that regal bearing.

Stately as some gracious queen,

Jewels soft, superb, serene? Soft and shy those lustrous glances,
Tender as the dream of dawn,
Flushed with old and quaint romances,
Frank and fearless as the fawn;
Inky black those tringing lashes,

In a Colorado Snowslide

"My first experience with a snowslide was at Creede, Col.," writes Dr. J. Q. Allen of Telluride, in that state. "I, with three other men, was on the side of a mountain looking at some Statistician says the "telephone mining property. We were above timber line and about half-way from the bottom of the gulch to the top of the mountain. I did not think at the time of danger, as the snow where we were was only about eighteen inches deep. The field suddenly cracked and the snow below us moved down a foot or two. This took away the support of an immense mass of snow above us, where it had blown over the top of the ridge to a depth of fifteen or twenty feet. It broke at the crest of the ridge and all the snow on our side of the mountain came rushing down upon us. The mountain curved around us in a circular manner and the width of the slide was more than 1,000 feet, we being about in the center.

"I glanced up on hearing the snow break and, acting upon my first impulse, turned my back to the avalanche. It struck me first on the legs and I sprang into the air as high as I could. The mass passed under me and by the terrific rush of the snow I was kept on the top all the way down into the gulch, about 500 feet. I was the only one free and proceeded to dig the others out. As the snow frequently packs after running, almost to the consistency of ice, this was no easy matter.

"It happened that the man next to me was buried in a perpendicular position with only his hair visible. I had to free his body down to the ankles before I could pull him out. The last man reached was dead when extricated. The rest of us escaped with slight bruises. It was the next July before articles we lost were found.'

Electron Manuelle and a second manufacture and FRESH AIR FOR CONSUMPTIVES

Most Effective Weapon Available for Conflic With Dreaded "White Plague"

The following abstracts from an ar- nished. There will be frequent ticle by J. E. Stubbert, M. D., in the Medical Record, should receive wide and careful attention. No doubt if these ideas could be carried out, the "waite plague" would be robbed of much of its terror:

In ancient times it was highly improper to expose a tuberculous patient, especially one beyond the first stage, to a breath of fresh air except on the mildest days in summer, while the night air was dreaded and avoided as the plague. Then the more observant and thoughtful men noticed that those who lived more in the open air did not die as quickly as the hot-house patients, and they began to urge an outdoor life and moderate exercise as a prophylactic as well as a cure for those in the early stages of consumption. Those in the more advanced stages were allowed fresh air only when it was at summer temperature, but even this was better than being kept indoors in warm, ill-ventilated rooms the whole year.

There are several plans by which the victim of tuberculosis may continuously breathe pure, fresh air by night as well as by day. Sleeping out in the open air is not harmful to a large majority of tuberculous people.

Millet, of Brockton, Mass., reports the cases of five patients whom he recommended to sleep out of doors at night. They were allowed no roof over their heads except in rainy weather. They wore soft felt hats and cotton nightshirts, sleeping under ordinary bedclothes in beds arranged on the roofs of their houses. Improvement was noted in two weeks. Coughs disappeared, temperatures became normal, respirations were easier and weight increased rapidly. No attention was paid to dampness and drafts, and heavy dews were regarded as inconvenient simply because of the necessity of drying the bedclothes.

Sleeping in a small room with an open window does not appear to be nearly so beneficial to the patient as when the nights are passed on a veranda or in a tent where there is a free circulation of air on all sides. If a patient were fortunate enough to have a large room with a southern exposure and containing one or two open fireplaces, in addition to large windows on three sides, which might be opened at night, he might derive approximately the benefit incident to tent life. McGraham, of South Carolina, prefers the circular to the army tent, and thinks it better to place it on a platform two feet from the ground, and to do without carpets and draperies. Draperies are not necessary, but rugs add greatly to the comfort and convenience of those in ill health, and their use can be made perfectly safe by exposing them to the sunlight for a few hours daily.

Special Hospitals for Consumptives.

A hundred years ago the city of Naples, Italy, erected a large hospital for consumptives, and required the isolation of all persons suffering from this disease. It is only recently, however, that the authorities of modern cities have become awakened to the importance of this sanitary measure. Recently a number of cities have taken steps for the establishment of hospitals especially for the treatment of cases of consumption by the socalled "open-air method." Excellent results are reported from this method of treatment.

The German government has a large central committee numbering hot. more than thirteen hundred persons. organized for the purpose of erecting hospitals for the treatment of tuberculosis. This committee has under its supervision seventy-four such hospitals, and last year treated over thirty thousand patients, of whom eighty per cent were returned to their homes practically cured after remaining in

An Extra Good Appetite.

A good appetite is a symptom of good health. An extra good appetite is sometimes a symptom of constitutional disturbance somewhere. A sample letter sent to the "Questions and Answers" column of a prominent health journal was something like

"I am troubled with pimples, not to a great extent, but still very annoying. They appear principally on the forehead, but occasionally on other places. I often feel languid, and tire easily, and cannot gain flesh, although I have an extra good appetite. Still I ani not sick, and have not been in bed for a day in my life. Age, nineteen years. prove. Will you kindly advise me what you think would remove these pimples?"

There is little doubt but that the "extra good appetite" alluded to affords the key to the situation. The digestive organs have more than they can take care of, and consequently do not properly take care of snything fur- Serve in squares.

"I'm mostly known as Jake Morris," ! said the guide, in answer to a question from his employer, "though my last name is the same as yours-Lane. I'm Jackson Morris Lane by rights, but don't like the last-it makes me think of my father. You see, it's this way," in answer to a startled look of inquiry which flashed to his companion's face; "my father was Jackson Lane, an artist man from the north, who came down here and married my mother, who was only a beautiful, isnorant mountain girl. When I was six years old he deserted us. Mother never doubted him, but used to sit there by the window watching for his coming month after month and year after year, her eyes just as loving and hopeful as ever. And I'd sit here watching mother, trying to think of ways to make her life more easy. That's why I didn't leave the mountains. Last year she died." "Do you wonder that I like my mother's name of Morris better than I do my father's of Lane. I wasn't but six when he went off, and I remember him as a tall, handsome man with soft hair and brown eyes. No wonder mother believed in him. Seems strange such a man could be a-a scoundrei."

"How long ago was it, Jake-since your father left, I mean" Mr. Lane

Mr. Lane looked at him strangely. Then a curious twinkle came to his

"No wonder you and I resemble each other, Jake," he said; "we are cousins." Then he placed both hands upon his companion's shoulders and searched his face. "You have been laboring under a mistake," he went on, "there never was a nobler and better man than my uncle, Jackson Lane. He was in the habit of going off on long, solitary journeys to various parts of the world in search of material for his pictures, and it was that way when he was down here in the mountains. My father and mother have told me about it. They did not hear of him for forty years, then one day he was brought home unconscious. Apparently he was going off on a long journey through the woods -perhaps to send off a telegram or to order goods-and his horse became frightened and threw him among the rocks. He was picked up and carried to a city hospital, and was recognized there and brought home. He lived only a month, and only spoke two or three times, about a little Jackson and somebody he called Molly."

"My mother," said Jake, softly. "Yes, I understand now. But it was all strange to father and mother. They thought he was raving."

Jake was gazing out into the woods, back into the past, his face full of regretful tenderness

"Mother believed all the time," he murmured, more to himself than his companion; "but I haven't. I'm glad to know.'

"There is another thing, Jake," continued Mr. Lane. "I haven't told you half yet. It's you who are the rich Mr. Lane now, not me. All the money belonged to Uncle Jackson. My father was only a poor professor in a struggling college. But I'm glad to say he was a good custodian. The

'I-I wish you luck." he said, huskily. half million your father left has more than doubled under his charge.'

"Half a million-doubled," said Jake thoughtfully. "That's a good many thousand, Mr. Lane. But I don't believe I want it. I ain't been brought up to need much. You and-and Meta will have more use for it than me."

"But we can't use it, Jake," expostulated Mr. Lane. "It isn't mine now. We will start for the north to-day. I want you to see my father and mother; and besides, they will want to transfer the property."

"Before you see Meta"

"Before I see anybody. This duty comes first now." "But-but the money would mean right much to Meta and her family." "Jake!" The voice had a ring in it which caused the two men to look squarely into each other's eyes. Then they clasped hands. "You remember what you said about not caring for a woman who could love any one better than you. I honestly prefer to seek Meta as a poor man. Now help me get ready to start."

"I'll be glad to see your folks, Mr. Lane," Jake answered. "Your side of the family is all the kin I have now. As you say, we'll fix up about the money there."

A week later, after being taken into a home the like of which he had never dreamed, and among people that made his heart beat pleasantly merely to know that they were of his kin, Jake went to a lawyer and had a paper drawn, which he gave to his uncle.

"Just a paper settling things up like your son 'lowed was right. He said you all couldn't use my money just because it was mine; so being of his blood I can't use any that ain't mine. I've kept what my father left me, and what he didn't leave me I've put back where it belongs."

'But we cannot-" "Oh, yes, you can. It's yours by rights. I wish you had part of mine. Seems like I've got the whole Government resting on my shoulders .: ' The next day Mr. Lane sought Jake.

"I suppose you will stay here a while," he said. "I am going to take a run back to the mountains."

His hand was on the door. He was thinking of a girl in a little cottage on the other side of the Blue Ridge. hope from his face, leaving more of come.

the harsher lines of strength and determination.

"Yes, I'll stay a while," he replied. I want to get used to a few things; and your mother's going to show me round some.'

Mr. Lane had the door half open now, and Jake rose suddenly.

"I-I wish you good luck," he said, huskily. Twenty-four hours later he received a telegram. It was brief and read: "Another big mistake, Jake. It is you, not I. This afternoon I start for Florida on a short trip."

The railroad station was half a mile away, and already the through train for the south was backing in under the great dome; when it pulled out Jake was on board, radiant, but fuming at the tardiness of a train which would not go faster than sixty miles an hour.

ANGORA GOAT FARM PAYS.

Maryland Boy Winning Fame and Fortune Raising Them.

William J. Cohill, son of School Commissioner Edwin P. Cohill of Hancock, Md., is winning fame and making money by raising Angora goats, says the Baltimore American. Although only 17 years of age, he has been engaged in breeding Adgora goats for seven years, and is thoroughly familiar with all of the details of goat culture. When he engaged in the business seven years ago the the purpose of having them clear the underbrush from a large tract of mountain land belonging to his father.

To-day the tract is set in apple and port, other fruit trees, which will soon be in bearing condition. The flock of goats has been added to until now young Mr. Cohill has several hundred Angoras, some of them blooded stock. At the St. Louis exposition his exhibit of goats won $100 in gold, and in addition he received an order from Hagenbeck, the animal trainer, for eight of his best Angoras, to be sent to Hamburg for starting a goat herd there. At the recent poultry and pet stock show at Madison Square garden, New York city, he won a $100 silver cup for the best specimen of Angora.

The Czar No Coward.

A lady who has seen a good deal of the home life of the czar tells the Brit ish Weekly that she does not believe that his failure to meet his people face to face was due to cowardice. At the time of the Servian murders it was rumored in the palace at St. Petersburg that one of the ministers had been so overwhelmed with terror that he ran away and hid himself in a dressing room. The czar spoke with contempt of the Servian's supposed timidity. "I cannot understand," he said, "how anyone who fills a public post could hide himself from the fear of death. Santa Fe, N. M , May 8, 1905 The temperature of the week averaged nearly 4 degrees daily below normal. Frost occurred on Wednesday and Thursday morning, light frosts reaching southward in the Pecos Valley to Roswell; little damage however, resulted. Light scattered showers and snow flurries occurred in the northern counties on Wednesday and Thursday, but elsewhere the week was dry. Moisture, nevertheless, is abundant, rivers and creeks are full and little or no irrigation is required.

The soil continues in excellent condition for plowing, seeding, planting and the growing of crops. Practically all available valley land is being brought under cultivation. The early sown small grain is growing finely.

In the southern valleys the first cutting of alfalfa is in progress and the plant is rapidly nearing cutting in all sections. Range grasses are and goats are generally in good condition, only northeast counties re-

Ifalfa hay in car lots. CREIGHTON FARM. Dexter, New Mex. Starting Celery Seed.

Celery is a crop that is to be trans planted. The seed must be started in a seed-bed and there cared for until they are large enough to be transplanted either into a temporary bed or to the field. Celery seed is very small, light, and quite slow to germinate, and for these reasons great precautions are necessary in starting the plants. Methods employed for nherd pups, ready to take from starting cabbage, onion, or tomato Price $1.00 each. Call on seed would in most cases, prove failures with celery. Very few other vegetables require such careful and constant attention of the seed-bed, and, this is particularly true in this climate.

The seedlings, as they germinate are delicate and it takes a few days before they are strong enough to withstand any neglect of the seedbed. During this time one must not forget to water the little plants regularly, or else the hot sun or arying winds are liable to cause many of the delicate seedlings to die.

The seed-bed should be well prepared. The soi, aside from being light and rich, should be perfectly fine on the surface. The seed should be planted as shallow as possible. Sometimes it is broad-ca.t and thinly covered. While this way may give a good germination, if the seed-bed is properly taken care of, at this station we have had excellent results in the germination by the drill method. The seed is planted quite thick in drills about 3 to 4 inches apart and from 1 to 1 inch deep, and then covered very shallow with the lightest kind of soil. Immediately after the seed is planted the bed is watered. From this time on a careful management of the seed bed is necessary, remembering that the surface soil must not be allowed to become too dry and hard. To keep the soil from baking, it should te watered at regular intervals. The frequency of the watering of the seed bed will depend largely on whether drying spring winds. If the seed-bed is open, it is advisable to have it in a place where it can be sprinkled every evening. While the ideal seed-bed is one that is open or unprotected, tetter results and with less care, can be had when some kind of a covering is used. Boards, straw mats, cloth, gunny sacks and glass can be used to prevent evaporating, and to keep the soil from baking.

Straw mats, cold-framed glazed ashes, gunny sacks and common cotton cloth have been used at the Station on the seed-bed. In each case the results in germination have been quite satisfactory, but the stand has been slightly more uniform from the beds covered with the cottan cloth. The beds covered with the glazed ashes usually bake more, and more frequent watering is also necto water such beds every two days. and when the days are very hot and windy, every day. Beds covered with cloth have been watered on an average of every three or four days.

In covering the beds with the dif ferent materials above mentioned, it is generally better to have the seed bed made in such a way that there will be a space, from three to six inches, between the covering and the soil. Beds made in the form of a cold-frame are very satisfactory. If lumber cannot be had, the border on the outside can be raised to the necessary height.

It is advisable in using cloth covers, to stretch the cloth over a light frame made from inch lumber. The frames can be made 3x6 feet or larger. Such cloth covered frames are easily handled and when placed over the seed bed the wind does not blow them around. As soon as the seedlings are well started the covering should be removed. If left too long, the plants tend to grow too tall and spindling. When the cloth is simply laid right on top of the ground as the little plants germinate. they strike the cloth and bend over to one side, and are liable to grow spindling.-Fabian Garcia, Agricultural Experiment Station, Mesilla Park, N. M.

Municipal Ownership of Public Utilities. ARTESIA.

Mayor C. E. McConnell, of Durango, Colorado, who has visited Santa Fe several times in recent years, is not a Socialist, nor is he an Anarchist. He is rather a member of the class whom Colonel Bryan calls "bloated plutocrats." He is president of a bank, a railroad promoter and a capitalist. Yet, he believes in the municipal ownership of public utilities and advocates that Durango, which is not larger than Santa Fe, should furnish its own street lights, run its own water works, operate its own street railway and build its own sewers. He seeks a large revenue and better service in sight with municipal management of these public utilities, while under corporate management, these utilities yield no revenue to the city and the service is very poor. Mayor Mc-Connell, who is a shrewd business man and not a visionary, believes that it will pay the city of Durango to buy the present water and light works and the street railway at a fair price and in the future to manage these for itself. When men of Mr. McConnell's standing and acumen take a view of this kind, it is well to look into the matter closely, even in New Mexico towns, which as a rule are ultra conservative. - New Mexi-

Main street and Quay Ave., have been graded from end to end, men are now busy with scraper and plows grading Richardson and Grand avenues. Grading the streets certainly adds wonderfully to the beauty of the town and will enhance the value of all the property to an extent that will far exceed the amount of money required to do this work. Some, however, will complain, as long as the earth goes round and if it should stop they would complain.

Fichus Again in Vogue.

A most universally becoming fashion has been brought again into popular favor by the revival of the Marie Antoinette modes. The fichu returns in many varieties and is frequently used for the neck of the evening gown, although its grace and simplicity recommend it for any dress fashioned of soft, clinging materials after the fashion of the French custom during the time of Marie Antoinette.

Chiffon is the most successful material that can be found for the fichu. but net and lace may be used with effect. The fichu should be draped around the shoulders very loosely, that it may fall in graceful folds, and fastened in front in a soft knot.

It is interesting to find that the flat-iron turban still is to remain one of the leading styles in hats this spring, for its convenience in battling against the March winds is appreciated by its feminine admirers. A number are being shown of shirred taffeta, with the top crown of horsehair braid, and chiffon, shirred and tucked, is also used in covering the turban.

In spite of the acknowledged utility of the "trotteuse" skirt for practical purposes, English tailors are making the smart frocks with long skirts. They do not trail the ground, but are not allowed to show much boot. The plaited skirts, however, must always be short, close-fitting about the hips and very full at the bottom.

Smart Silk "At Home" Dress. This is designed for afternoon wear, but would be suitable for a home dinner frock too. It is of light taffetas, trimmed with frills of narrow black and white lace and medallions of the same lace; black velvet bows as a "ladder."

Sunderland Pudding.

Half cup sugar, 1/4 cup of butter, 1/2 pint of milk, 1 cup of sifted flour and 3 eggs. Heat the milk hot; stir in the butter and let it cool before the other ingredients are added to it; then stir in the sugar, flour and beaten yolks of 3 and whites of 2 eggs. Flavor with a little grated lemon rind and beat the mixture well. Bake in well buttered cups half filled with the batter for about half an hour. Serve with any sweet sauce, and the white of 1 egg beaten with 1 spoonful of sugar dropped on each pudding in small drops.

Pork Cake.

One pound salt pork chopped fine, 1 1/2 pound of citron, 1 quart flour, 1 pint of brown sugar, 1 pint of boiling water, 1/2 pint of molasses, 2 teaspoonfuls each of cloves and cinnamon, grated rind of 1 lemon, 1 tablespoonful of soda dissolved in hot water; pour the water on the pork, stir until melted, then pass through the colander; add the sugar, molasses, spice and half of the flour; rub the fruit in 1 gill of the flour, then add it to the soda and the rest of the flour; bake in well buttered tins in a hot, steady

Coming Styles.

Skirts are to be fuller than ever about the feet-every conceivable trick that will get a few more inches into the width will be employed; but about the hips they will fit smoothly.

Lace will be everywhere, principally Irish crochet and Valenciennes; a daring use, which is as beautiful as it two. And lace will be used in every possible way, from allovers and strips | and diamonds.

and edgings to wonderful motifs which contain a host of suggestions in themselves for unusual, original uses.

Even embroideries will be used to trim these dresses, but embroideries this year have lifted themselves high above anything we've ever known before, and come in a new dignity that fits them for any use.

When cooking sausages let them heat very gradually and the skins will rot burst.

Velvet Walking Costume. An attractive short walking costume of black velvet has a skirt gored to fit the figure and in the back are two underlying plaits, and scanter ones in the center fronts are pressed in and secured invisibly, while down each side are rows of small old silver buttons. The blouse closes with dcuble rows of buttons to match the skirt and the sleeves are plaited and held in place by the buttons. The blouse is collarless and trimmed with several rows of silk braid.

Jellied Oranges.

Cut off a small portion of the ends of oranges, scoop out the pulp and juice. Fill with orange jelly before it is thoroughly hard, and let the cranges stand on ice. When set, cut in quarters and serve on green leaves. To make orange jelly, put juice of oranges into agate saucepan, with 1 cup sugar, 1 pint of hot water and 1 teaspoon orange extract. When sugar is dissolved add 1/2 box powdered gelatine. When cool fill oranges.

The Morning Costumes.

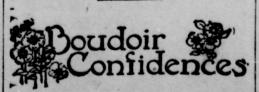

The skirts of morning costumes will continue to be cut short, and they will fit closely about the hips, but they must flare a little below the line of the knee. With the long coats are worn the round skirts, either touching or just freeing the ground. These skirts are more becoming than the very short ones unless a woman has a pretty foot, and they are the only ones that can be worn with the redingotes. The very light weight broadcloth will be worn well into the summer, and tweeds, serges and coarse canvases will come in for their share of popularity.

Bits of Lace.

A bit of real lace will often contribute greatly to the style of a frock, and it is an cellent plan to rip from the garments before they are thrown aside any lace trimmings,

No matter how badly soiled, every scrap of lace is worth saving.

And this applies to the imitations as well as to the real, for if there is pound of raisins, 1 pound of currants, only sufficient to trim a stock collar it may be used for that purpose very conveniently and effectively on some future occasion, and as lace does not occupy a great deal of space and is not so popular with most as are many other materials it may easily be preserved.

Both plaited and circular skirts will be worn.

Suppleness and luster are characteristics of the fashionable silks. Skirts will only be trimmed at or near the bottom. The long unbroken line is the thing for this season. Amethysts are promised considerable vogue this season and will be worn alone and combined with pearls

For summer wear are even the daintiest of white tulle and lace toques and small chip hats, green, brown and biscuit color.

A coarse embroidered white cr light-colored linen, resembling a stamped leather effect, is a pretty material, and will be used as a note of originality in the way of vests, collars and cuffs on many of the light cloth and cashmere toilets this coming spring.

Black Broadcloth.

Black is as popular if not more so than it was earlier in the season. A model recently turned out by a leading dressmaker in black broadcloth has a tight-fitting coat and an almost plain skirt that just clears the ground. The coat fits tightly in the back by means of curved seams, and a piece of the cloth about five inches wide and pointed at the lower end extends from the neck down the center of the back to a little below the waist line and is stitched twice at the edges. On each side of the coat skirts on both sides of the center seam similar rointed sections of the cloth appear. The sleeves are almost tight-fitting. Another attractive cloth model in steel gray has a plain skirt cut ankle length and is untrimmed. The coat butter in the stewpan, add the flour, is a tailor-made affair, partly loose fitting and partly tight-fitting, singlebreasted and reaches to the knees," To make varnish dissolve a pound with a velvet turnover collar and and a half of shellac in a gallon of deep velvet turnover cuffs. well indeed.

Novelty Silks. In the new goods there are so many novelty silks that one hesitates to start upon the task of naming them, knowing it to be absolutely hopeless. The chiffon taffeta is one of the best of taffetas. It is very light in weight yet strong. And there is a taffeta glace which is lovely and of the nonwrinkle order. Taffeta by the way has been marvelously improved the past season and it now wears very Spinach in Molds.

Boil the spinach, press out every drop of water and chop fine. Cook together in a saucepan a tablespoonful of butter and two of flour. Add the spinach with pepper and salt to taste; cook for five minutes. Butter the insides of muffin-tins or pate-pans and press the spinach hard into these. Set in the oven to keep hot while you make a white sauce. Carefully turn out the forms of spinach on a hot platter, lay a slice of hard-boiled egg on the top of each form and pour the white sauce around it.

Directoire Coats.

There is a decided liking shown for the well fitting directoire coat, with sleeves that set to the shape of the arm, though fancifully puckered and gathered and gauged very often, and with the outline of the figure carefully preserved.

Quaint Note in Drapery.

To tone up and invigorate both stome

To tone up and invigorate both stomsch and liver and start the digestive processes into healthy action, there is, to say the least, no superior agent to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is prepared without the use of a particle of alcohol, from the active medicinal principles extracted from the roots of native American plants, and is an honestly made, safe med-icine that any one may take without fear of forming an appetite for stimulants.

Its benefits and cures are lasting and not simply the temporary exhilaration sometimes experienced from strong alcoholic preparations.

No man is stronger than his stomach, therefore, when the stomach is weak it should be promptly toned up and put in order to the end that it may properly digest and prepare for proper assimilation the food which otherwise can not strengthen the body. You cannot find a medicine that will do this more promptly and permanently than "Golden Medical Discovery." A whole train of bodily ailments result when the stomach becomes foul, torpid and weak, and, naturally enough, when the stomach trouble is cured they, being dependent thereon, disappear: hence it is that rheumatism.

Plantal and Liver Trouble Cured.

Dear Sir—I was a victim of malaria so common in the South and also had liver trouble. Doctored for some time but my condition continued to grow worse and I began to describe the food which otherwise can not strengthen the body. You cannot find a medicine that will do this more promptly and permanently than "Golden Medical Discovery was recommended and I am happy to say that a course of treatment with this remedy was most effectual. I soon began to improve, appetite returned, my complexion became clear and bright, I regained my good spirits and was soon restored to health. I cannot say enough in favor of your medicine. Yours truly.

Miss Lucille Deval.

Much of the black hair that is sold in the hair market comes from China. The London Daily News interviewed the other day a wholesale dealer in hair, who said: "I am not fully acquainted with Chinese customs, but I understand in a general way that the Chinaman who disobeys the law suffers the loss of his tail, which a thrifty government turns into cash, perhaps to defray some part of the cost of the prosecution. > Dear Sir—About two years ago I had an attack of grippe which left me in a very weakened condition. My stomach was in bad shape; could not eat a meal without being greatly distressed, and the taking of food was frequently followed by vomiting or looseness of bowels. Had headache and catarrhal trouble. Had a physician but he did not help me. After I had been suffering like this for some time, a man who had used Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, told me about the medicine and I procured a bottle of it. I felt a slight improvement by the time I had used the first bottle, so continued the use of the "Discovery" for several weeks until I was myself again. It is an excellent preparation and I am glad to tell how good it is.

Powerful Shimose.

Shimose, the smokeless powder, is a Japanese invention, and is acknowledged far more powerful than the Engyddite or the French melinite. This powder is by an actual test five times as strong as the European powders. STOP! WOMEN

AND CONSIDER THE ALL-IMPORTANT FACT

That in addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are confiding your private ills to a woman -a woman whose experience with woman's diseases covers a great many years. You can talk freely to a woman when it is revolting to relate your private troubles to a man-besides a man does not understand-simply because he is a man.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing full well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty impels them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probably examinations of even their family physician. It is unnecessary. Without money or price you can consult a woman whose knowledge from actual experience is great.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation:

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established the eternal confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Out of the vast volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge that will help your case. She asks nothing in return except your good-will, and her! advice has relieved thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she/ does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance. — Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Following we publish two letters from a woman who accepted this invitation. Note the result.

A Worthy Official.

W. W. Rookhill, appointed United States minister to China, is an eminent Orientalist and traveler. He began his diplomatic career as secretary to the American legation in Japan and it was then that he became imbued with a desire to make a scientific study of the Oriental questions. He obtained leave of absence from Tokic and set out disguised as a high priest, with two native attendants, to reach L'hasa, the forbidden city. He penetrated farther into the forbidden country than any white man had done up to that time and was finally put to flight because one of the provincial viceroys, learning of his mission, set a price upon his head. As a special commissioner to Peking after the Boxer" uprising he was able to contribute in an important way to the solution of the delicate problems which grew out of that affair.

EFFECTS OF PROSPERITY.

In the six years of the country's greatest prosperity, from 1897 to 1903, average prices of breadstuffs advanced 65 per cent., meats 23.1 per cent, dairy and garden products 50.1 per cent, and clothing 24.1. All these were products of the farmer and stockman who profited more than any other class of the community by these advances. The miner benefited 42.1 per cent by that advance in the average price of metals. The only decrease in the average prices of commodities in that period was in railway freight rates which decreased from .798 per tonmile in 1897 to .763 in 1903, a loss of 4.4 per cent. The report of the Interstate Commerce Commission shows that the average increase in the pay of railroad employes in the period was a trifle above 8.5 per cent.

St. Jacobs Oil

Known the world over as the Rheumatism and Neuralgia

From New Mexico Experiment Station. Mesilla Park, N. M., May 5th, 1905. Mr. C. J. Moore,

Artesia, New Mexico. My Dear Mr. Moore:

I have your favor of the 2nd, inst., and in reply I beg to inform you that an ounce and a half of good chrystalized sal soda is sufficient, with about one fourth that amount of good fresh lime, to remove the hardness from a 50 gallon barrel of your water. The softening process is only for washing as the same amount of soda salts are added as you remove the lime and magnesia, and these soda salts are probably just as objectionable in drinking water as the lime and magnesia, perhaps more so. They will not curdle soap as do the lime and magnesia, however.

I wouldn't advise the use of any chemical with your drinking water. If you wanted to do anything with it you might boil it, but in my opinion this is not necessary, for unless water is well aerated after being boiled it looses its palatableness. Your water is good enough as it is for drinking purposes. Let good enough alone.

I thank you very much for your kind invitation to show me the Pecos Valley, and hope some day to avail myself of the opportunity.

Very respectfully,

R. T. Hare, Station Chemist. The above letter received this week by Mr. Moore from Station Chemist Hare, was kindly given to us for publication, and some very valuable information will be found therein. It furnishes a very chear method for softening the water for washing purposes, and that alone is worth a great deal as it removes every objection that can be offered against our water.

Music Recital.

Friday afternoon, at Mrs. Duckworth's home, about twenty parents and friends assembled to hear the third monthly recital of Mrs. Mc-Crary's pupils. Just half of the class were on program, and there were some beautiful numbers played. The program was as follows: "After wild Flowers" - Streabbog

Rev. J. C. Gage, Walter Weems and father and Dr. Weems spent yesterday on Seven Rivers angling the finny tribe. An anomaly among accident happened to brother Gage while making coffee for their noon repast. As he was bending over the pot to remove the lid, hot coffee was blown into his face and eyes, caused from the accumulation of steam which could not before escape, resulting in a badly scalded face and eyes reddened nicely for conference. He is confined to his room but will be alright in a day or two.
