At presstime, members of the Fire Department were still checking for the source of the fire, which broke out near noon, totally destroying the living room, and at least one bedroom of the house.

Anchor Brothers Band Slate Concert At Texas Production

In celebration of 21 years of production, "TEXAS" is sponsoring "Sudan Night" at Palo Duro Canyon Pioneer Amphitheatre on Friday, July 18 at 8:30 p.m. in appreciation to the community for their continued support of the musical drama.

Limited seating is available for the night through the Sudan Chamber of Commerce.

Several Panhandle communities will be honored throughout

Early Control For Bagworms Slows Growth

Bagworms are one of the major pests of junipers and other trees and shrubs in Texas. Spring hatch began in mid-May in the Lubbock area this year and is now complete. Insecticide control is most effective in late May through early July when the bagworms are small, says County Extension Agent Spencer Tanksley.

In the spring, bagworm larvae emerge from hatching eggs inside last year's bags and begin feeding on leaves. They soon begin to construct their own protective bag of silk, twigs and leaves, making them camouflaged and hard to see. As the larvae and their bags continue to grow, control becomes more difficult.

Bagworms feed throughout the summer months, building their bags until the bags are about one and one half inches long. Tanksley adds, "In the fall, the bagworms become adults, mate and the females lay eggs inside their bags. They then overwinter in these bags in trees and shrubs. Each overwintering female bag on a tree contains from 500 to 1500 eggs."

"Since the bagworm only completes one generation a year and spreads very slowly from plant to plant, picking the bags off infested plants in the winter will help a lot toward controlling this pest," say Tanksley. "But, if bagworms were present on the plant last year an control measures were not applied, chances are very good that an insecticide will be needed this spring."

the season with special evenings. Each brings entertainment to represent their town.

Sudan night will feature the "Anchor Brothers Band," a singing ministry. The "Anchor Brothers" have produced seven different recordings and play over 70 concerts a year.

Members of the group include; Kenneth Richards, vocalist and bass guitarist; Reydon Stanford, vocalist and pianist; Dean Richards, vocalist and percussion; Jerry Howard, lead guitarist; W.T. Watson, steel guitar and Sandy Watson, vocalist.

The band will perform before the "TEXAS" show on Friday, July 18, in the patio area of the theatre from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m.

The idea for area nights grew from community interest generated from speaking engagements in ten Panhandle towns to promote new memberships in the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation, the non-profit producer of "TEXAS." This year is a start for area nights. The organization plans to feature more of the founding communities during the 1987 season next summer.

"TEXAS" plays nightly at 8:30 p.m. except Sundays under the stars in Palo Duro Canyon State Park near Amarillo and Canyon.

Written by Pulitzer Prize winning author Paul Green, "TEXAS" has entertained 1.7 million persons since 1966. Last year, audiences totalling 90,000 came from all over the world to see the historical production.

It is a story set to music and dance that tells of drought and rain, sorrow and joys of the early Texas Panhandle pioneers. Told by a cast of 80, the play emphasizes the struggles of the early settlers, farmers and

Critical Water Areas Include Bailey County

The Texas Water Commission late last week released a list of 17 areas in the state which have been designated as critical ground water areas.

Delineation of the areas is the first official action of a newly created Ground Water Conservation Section of the Water Commission.

The new section will consolidate most of the agency's ground water activities. It will be headed by Bill Klemt and will be in the agency's Water Rights and Uses Division.

Executive Director Larry Soward said the Commission "recognizes that ground water is becoming a significant water issue and is of concern to Texans." He said he believes the consolidation is the Commission's response to that increasing concern.

"We think that this new section will facilitate better focus on ground water issues and provide citizens a place to get information and have input into the various decision-making processes relating to ground water," Soward said.

The listing of the critical ground water areas is in response to House Bill 2, passed by the 1985 Legislature. Klemt said the Water Commission has been gathering information on areas considered for inclusion in the list since September.

According to Klemt, a critical area means an area that is experiencing or is expected to

It's going to take $8-$9,000 for a group of youngsters to take a trip--and it is a most important trip for a group of 12 and under girls. They will be going to National AAU Finals in basketball and will be flying to competition at Roanoke, Va.

Creative Living with Sheryl Borden

Information on using oven cooking bags, decorating on a smaller scale and using customized patterns for better fit will be presented on "Creative Living" on Tuesday, July 15 at 12 noon and repeated on Saturday, July 19 at 2:00 pm. (All times are Mountain).

Cathy McCreery is a home economist with Reynolds Metals Co. from Dallas, TX, and she will show how to use Reynolds oven cooking bags, which are made of a heat resistant nylon and can be used in the microwave or conventional oven. Recently American families are finding their living space is smaller than it used to be. Ellen Cheever, a kitchen designer with the Maytag Co. of Sacramento, CA has ideas for planning kitchens, baths and laundry spaces efficiently and attractively. She will show how to expand or contract areas as needed.

Another guest will be Laura Varney, founder of Clothing Design Concepts, Inc. of Manhattan, KS. This company drafts patterns by computer to each person's individual measurements. Clothing Design Concepts, Inc. offers basic patterns for pants, skirts, bodices, and Laura will discuss the basic bodice pattern and show how to use it and also how to vary the bodice style.

On July 15 at 9:30 pm the show will feature two topics. Cathy McCreery will be back and she will demonstrate a new way to cook -- using the Reynolds Cooking Fold. This high temperature cooking method allows light individual entrees to be ready in minutes.

Kathleen Kerr, a Consumer Advocate with the New Mexico Attorney General's Office, Santa Fe, will tell how to avoid scams and swindles.

Recipes for Southwest cooking, information on remodeling and a presentation on the National Beef Cook-off will be featured on the show on July 17 at 12 noon. Vickie Jones, Marketing Home Economist with Southwestern Public Service Co. in Roswell will present some recipes from the new cookbook called "Savoring the Southwest", published by the Roswell Symphony Guild.

Remodeling is one of the great American pastimes. As with most everything else, remodeling should be approached with care. Ellen Cheever is going to tell how to make sure the project doesn't turn into more than we bargained for.

Each year cooks from all over the country prepare their favorite beef recipe for the National Beef Cook-off, sponsored by the national Beef Council. Merle Ellis "the butcher" is the spokesman for the Beef Council, and he will be a guest on the show and prepare one of the winning recipes from this past contest. Merle will also tell how other people can plan to enter the next beef cook-off and discuss how to choose a winning recipe.

"Creative Living" is produced and hosted by Sheryl Borden. The show is carried on more than 95 PBS stations in the United States, Canada, Guam and Puerto Rico, and is distributed by the Pacific Mountain Network, Denver, Colorado.

SAVORING THE SOUTHWEST QUESITAS

1 pkg. (8 oz.) cream cheese
12 oz. Cheddar Cheese, grated, fine
1 cup ground pecans
2 cans (4 oz.) chopped green chiles, drained

Combine grated Cheddar and softened cream cheese, mixing well. Stir in green chilies and mix thoroughly. Form into bite-sized balls and roll in pecans. Chill until firm.

NAVAJO FRY BREAD

3 cups flour, either all white or half whole wheat
1 1/2 cups warm water
1 tsp. baking powder
1/4 tsp. salt

Mix flour, baking powder and stir. Add warm water and knead until dough is soft but not sticky. Tear off one piece at a time and stretch and pat dough until thin and round (about 6 inches across). Poke a hole through the middle of the round piece of dough and drop into kettle of sizzling cooking oil. Brown the bread on both sides by turning it over in the hot oil with a large cooking fork. Serve hot with honey or jam. One can toast it later for breakfast. (Poking the center of the bread to make a hole lets the evil spirits out!)

These recipes are included in the Savoring the Southwest Cookbook, published by the Roswell Symphony Guild. Copies can be ordered from the Guild, P.O. Box 3078, Roswell, N.M. 88201.

LAZBUDDIE CELEBRATES 50th ANNIVERSARY

In 1907, the Lazbuddie school started as the "Star Ranch School" with one teacher and seven students, and was named for a dominant ranch in the area at that time. Today Lazbuddie has grown, and the school has progressed to a very modern facility with up to date buildings and numerous teachers to serve the community.

Last Saturday, Lazbuddie celebrated 50 years of growth with hundreds of community individuals and exes traveling home for a couple of days of "remembering". More than 700 people registered during the two days set aside for the celebration.

The first school teacher at Lazbuddie lived in a tent two years in the community and moonlighted as a county surveyor. For a few years the school "traveled around, looking for a home" in an attempt to place the school as near as possible in the center of the students.

Lazbuddie didn't show up until 1925, when the school consolidated with the Castro County school district Red Tower and combined the names of two men Lazzrus Green and Buddy Sherley to come up with the name of Lazbuddie.

Ninety-Eight Received Reading Awards Thursday

A large crowd was on hand for the Award and Recognition Day for the 1986 Summer Reading Club, Thursday morning at the Library.

A very interesting program was given by Sammie Allison on "the clothes they wore in the good old days." She was assisted by Jeannie McVickers and her grand-daughter, Kara Black who modeled a beautiful turn-of-the-century gown with a bustle, and carried a beaded, drawstring bag. She also modeled a long nightgown and bonnet. Most of the items shown were over 100 years old. Other items that were shown to the kids are now in the display case for the public to see. We want to thank Mrs. Allison and Jeannie McVickers for bringing this very good program, and sharing their keepsakes with the kids.

After the program the awards each child earned during the Summer Reading Club were presented to them. They were required to read 10 books to get a certificate, and then could go on to get TEXAS stickers, ribbons, and a pin. The three highest received prizes. The 25 highest received "Celebrate Texas" T-shirt transfers; and the next eight received jig-saw puzzles of the Texas Sites and Symbols--in addition to their other awards. Library book-bags were given to all who attended.

After the awards, Kay Graves, President of the Friends of the Library, served lemonade, and home-baked cookies made in the shape of Texas, stars and Mules--which members provided. Appreciation goes as always to the Friends of the Library and all who helped to make this the most successful Summer Reading Club ever!

Area Soil Samples Have Decline In Nutrients To Aid Production

Over the past 20 years, cotton yields in the High Plains of Texas have steadily declined, losing an estimated ten pounds of lint production per acre per year. Results of soil sample analyses suggest that depletion of phosphorus and nitrogen from the top four feet of the soil profile may be the reason for this decrease in cotton yields in the Texas High Plains.

Results of analyses on 250 soil samples taken by the High Plains Water District, and the Soil Conservation Service from 72 fields in seven southern High Plains counties show that nitrogen levels are low enough in the four-foot root zone profile to limit crop production to one-half bale per acre, no matter what the water supply, according to conclusions made by Dr. Dan Kreig at Texas Tech University after he reviewed the results of the soil sample analyses.

Out of the 72 fields sampled, 52 had low or very low nitrogen levels and 50 had low or very low phosphorus levels in the top foot of the soil profile. In the second foot, which is the zone containing the most active roots, 36 had low or very low nitrogen

Bagworms...

Insecticides which can be used to control bagworms include sevin, dursban, diazinon, malathion, dylox and orthene. The biological insecticide Bacillus thuringiensis can also be used. To obtain effective control, thorough coverage of the foliage is important.

The addition of a small amount of liquid soap or surfactant to the spray solution will improve control because it helps adhere the insecticide to the treated trees and shrubs. Always read and follow label instructions when applying insecticides, cautioned the county agent.

levels and phosphorus was very deficient in most cases, with 54 having low or very low phosphorus levels.

All plant nutrients taken from the soil are absorbed by plant roots in a watery solution. Under full irrigation, where good moisture is maintained in the top foot of the soil profile throughout the growing season, plants draw moisture and plant nutrients for growth from the top foot if moisture and nutrients are available.

Under dryland or limited irrigation, the top foot of the soil profile is exposed to repeated wetting and drying patterns. During dry periods, plants have to depend on the lower root zone soil profile to supply a part of the water and nutrients needed. If either water or the proper nutrients are not available in these lower zones at critical growth stages when the surface soil is dry, then producers can only expect reduced yields.

Nitrogen moves within the soil profile in the presence of soil moisture, thus it can become readily available to plants at depths where moisture is present. A phosphorus deficiency in the lower root zones, on the other hand, is more difficult to correct since phosphorus has very limited downward movement with moisture in the soil. Phosphorus will move down at a rate of only about two-tenths of one inch per year; therefore, deep placement of phosphorus may be very important in future years.

Water-use efficiency by field crops can be increased by as much as 15 percent when adequate plant nutrients are available in the soil.

An economic analysis by Dr. Don Ethridge at Texas Tech suggests that increasing fertilizer applications in limited amounts can be profitable. For example, increasing the application of nitrogen from 40 to 60 pounds per acre and phosphorus from seven to 17 pounds per acre could increase yields by 120 pounds of lint per acre. At 50 cents per pound, this increased yield would return about $60 per acre in added income.

About $28 of the $60 would be net income if the producer's cost for plant nutrients is about $20 per acre (nitrogen at 18 cents per pound per acre and phosphorus at 23 cents per pound per acre) and increased harvesting and ginning costs due to the higher yields are about $17 per acre. Economically speaking, it appears that the cost of the proper plant nutrients, purchased and applied to achieve optimum benefits, may be well worth the investment.

Producers should be cautious about applying the preliminary results of this soil sampling work too broadly. It is suggested that soil samples be collected by individual producers for analysis to determine fertility requirements based on site specific information.

are complicated because other situations, such as subsidence or contamination, are also present.

The next step for the Ground Water Conservation Section will be to hold public hearings to receive information, to discuss boundaries of the areas and to discuss the problems and possible solutions in the critical areas. A schedule of the hearings will be published later this summer.

In addition to carrying out the mandates of state law, this new section will also have certain responsibilities relating to the new ground water language contained in the federal Safe Drinking Water Act reauthorization, which was signed by President Reagan on June 19.

Activities of the new section will include technical support for creation of underground water districts, ground water protection, part of the state's underground injection control program, the underground storage tank program, work with the Texas Water Well Drillers Board, and permitting of shafts for mining and waste disposal.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Cleta:
Thank you so much for the excellent coverage that the Muleshoe Journal has once again given to Sudan during our "Proud To Be A Texan" Pioneer Independence Day Celebration on June 28th. (I just got a copy today!)

It means so much for all the participants to see "their" picture in the paper; whether it is during a contest, in the parade or just visiting friends. The pictures were very good. Would it be possible for us to have the prints to put in our scrap book? We would be happy to pay you for them.

Once again a "big thanks" to you and the Muleshoe Journal. Sincerely,
The Pioneer Independence Day Committee
Jonelle Bandy, sec.

OFF TO NATIONALS--Tory Matthews, left, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Derrell Matthews of Muleshoe and Carrie Kindle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Kindle of Three Way will be participating in the National Amateur Athletic Union Basketball Finals in Roanoke, VA, July 17-25.
