Irrigation 'Can' Become Landowner Tax Deduction

As income tax time rolls around, landowners who irrigate may take advantage of a tax deduction allowed by the Internal Revenue Service for the cost of water depleted from the Ogallala aquifer.

Landowners who wish to claim a cost-in-water income tax depletion allowance for 1985 may now request data to support their claims from the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. One, which has been supplying the information for more than 20 years.

Any landowner who purchased, inherited or otherwise attained interest in land in the District's service area after 1948, and whose ground water is depleted in the business of irrigation farming, is eligible to take the tax deduction.

The tax deduction is based on the landowner's cost in his water resources at the time of acquisition. Basically, the water value is determined as the difference in the sales price between irrigated land and dryland in any given year. Cost guidelines are updated each year by the Water District based on actual real estate appraisals of recorded land sales.

Also, the quantity of ground water in storage beneath the tract of land at the time of acquisition and a yearly decline in feet are required by the IRS to claim the deduction.

The District receives six to seven thousand requests for water decline data each year. It has been estimated that $3 to $5 million in taxes is saved by irrigating landowners in the District's service area each year.

Interested landowners or their accountants may obtain the data necessary to claim the tax deduction by contacting the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. One, to the attention of Rosie Risinger, Water Depletion Coordinator, 2930 Avenue Q, Lubbock, TX 79405, 806/762-0181.

For new claims, request should include the following information: name of the landowner, address, social security or federal identification number, a complete legal description of the land involved and the original date of the land acquisition. Those who have previously made claims need only to submit the assigned permanent reorder number.

A fee of $5 is charged for yearly decline information and $25 for saturated thickness information. These fees enable the program to be self-supporting, concluded Ms. Risinger.

Law Affecting Pesticide Use For Applicators

Bailey County Extension Agent has said that several pesticides have been classified as restricted use pesticides.

"Certain granular formulations of pesticides containing any one of eight active ingredients - aldicarb (Temik), carbofuran (Furadan), disulfoton (DiSyston), ethoprop (Mocap), fenfuthion (Dasanit), fonofos (Dyfonate), phorate (Themet), and terbufos (counter) - have recently been classified as restricted use pesticides by the Environmental Protection Agency," said the county agent.

"Some, possibly all, of the pesticide products subject to the classification action that are currently available locally may bear restricted use labeling. All such products in channels of trade on September 1, 1986, must bear restricted use labeling. Restricted use pesticide products may be used only by or under the direct supervision of a certified applicator," added Tanksley.

He added, "Bailey County producers who anticipate use of any of the granular formulations of the eight active ingredients affected by this action and who are not currently certified may wish to qualify for certification as private applicators."

"A producer of agricultural commodities may qualify for certification as a private applicator by submitting a completed questionnaire to the Texas Department of Agriculture following a review of training materials," according to Tanksley. "Materials for use in obtaining private applicator certification through home study may be obtained at the County Extension office."

"Producers, previously certified as private applicators, who no longer hold their private applicator certificate, may direct inquiries regarding reissuance of the certificate to the Texas Department of Agriculture. Forms for use in making the inquiry are also available at the county Extension office," added Tanksley. "The information given in this news article is for educational purposes only. Reference to commercial products of trade names is made with the understanding that no discrimination is intended and no endorsement by the Cooperative Extension Office is implied."

"A group of hard working, dedicated parents of area students, combine their efforts to form the Muleshoe Fine Arts Boosters," said a spokesman for the organization. "They work throughout the school year to raise funds to assist the band, speech and art departments."

"Funds are earned from concession stand proceeds at football games, the annual dinner theater, bake sales, chili supper, and the harvest festival (now being called the Sweetheart Festival)."

Total funds to be paid out by the Fine Arts Boosters this year is in excess of $7,860. This does not include any 'extra'

DECA Aids Meal Program For Shut-Ins

The Muleshoe High School chapter of DECA is helping the local Meals on Wheels in finding eligible people in this community to participate in this service. DECA students are also helping Muleshoe residents who wish to make monetary donations to the Meals on Wheels program.

Within the past two weeks, each household in Muleshoe received a flier explaining the Meals on Wheels program.

Eligibility requirements to receive one hot meal per day, Monday through Friday, are: at least sixty years of age; living alone or in a situation where no one in the home is capable of preparing hot meals; and/or unable to prepare the meals themselves.

Meals on Wheels purchases prepared meals from West Plains Medical Center at a cost of $2.50 per tray. They deliver the trays free of charge with no obligation to the recipient, though he is asked to pay if he can.

The DECA spokesman said, "Although the service is organized and operated by volunteers, and the overhead is minimal, additional funds are needed."

"If you are eligible, or know of anyone who is please contact Muleshoe High School DECA or Meals on Wheels. If you would like to make a donation to the program, regardless whether it is large or small, please make your check payable to Meals on Wheels, %Glen Williams, president, 205 West Avenue J, Muleshoe TX 79347 (806/272-3647)."

"DECA is involved in this community effort as part of its Civic Consciousness project this year, because, as future adult citizens and business people, they realize the importance of civic responsibility."

Precious SIGHT

No price is too high to pay to protect the eyesight of ourselves and our children. Good eyesight is an absolute necessity in the earning of our livelihood, in the school work of our children, and in the enjoyment of all of life.

But there is another type of sight which in these times is often neglected — spiritual sight. We and our children need to be established and grounded in the love of God and His commandments, and to rely on Him. We need to meet His requirement of loving our neighbors as ourselves, thus making a better home life, community life and a better world. Psalms 34:8 reads, "O taste and see that the Lord is good: blessed is the man that trusteth in Him." Attend the church of your choice

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH
THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Social Security
News & Views

This is the second in a series of three columns about Social Security Disability Benefits.

WHEN YOUR DISABILITY CLAIM IS REVIEWED
Do you receive Social Security or supplemental security income (SSI) disability checks? If so, by law your case must be reviewed periodically to make sure you continue to meet all requirements for benefits.

How often your case is reviewed depends on the nature and severity of your impairment, the likelihood for improvement, and other factors. Your case could be reviewed as early as 6 months after entitlement if you have a severe but shortterm impairment that is expected to improve. If your impairment is more progressive or less likely to get better, your case may be reviewed as infrequently as every 5 to 7 years.

Major reforms in 1984 greatly improved and streamlined the review process. New rules and procedures ensure that the process is more responsive and fair to disabled people. There will be greater uniformity in disability decisions at all levels nationwide.

A key change is the new medical improvement review standard. Your benefits generally will continue unless there is substantial evidence that your impairment has improved and you can do substantial gainful work. There are some exceptions but they will apply in relatively few instances.

After you get a written notice, someone will interview you in person or by phone. He or she will explain the review process and your appeal and other rights. You will be asked how your impairment now keeps you from working and about medical treatment and any work activity since the latest decision.

Your case then will be reviewed by an agency in your State that makes disability decisions on behalf of the Social Security Administration. The people there will request medical reports from sources that treated you. If that evidence does not contain enough information, you may be asked to take a special examination or test at Government expense. It is your responsibility to cooperate fully and promptly if contacted because the sooner all needed information is obtained, the sooner a decision can be made.

You will be notified in writing when a decision has been made. If you still meet all requirements, benefits will continue. If the notice states you are no longer entitled to disability benefits, it will explain why. If you agree with the decision, you will receive checks for the decision month and for 2 months after that.

If you do not agree with the decision, you have 60 days to file a written request for a reconsideration with the Social Security office. You have a right to meet face-to-face with a decisionmaker to explain in person why you feel you are still disabled. Also, you can submit new evidence or information and have witnesses present.

In addition, you can have your benefits continued through a decision by an administrative law judge if you request this within 10 days after getting the notice. If your appeal is unsuccessful, though, you will be asked to repay the benefits you have received unless a waiver is granted.

For more information about disability reviews, contact the local Social Security office. The people there will be glad to answer any questions you have.

SANDHILLS
PHILOSOPHER

Editor's note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Sandy Acres is proposing a new system for writing Congressmen.

Dear Editor:
How much do you reckon the average American family spends on postage each year? Ten dollars? Fifteen? Twenty-five? Just one letter a week would come to only $11.42, and very few families reach that quota. I can tell you how much U.S. Senators and Congressmen spend on postage. When I say "spend" however, it's the taxpayers doing the spending. Senators and Congressmen use the franking system: they put their name, not a stamp, on the envelope and we pay the costs.

Well, the cost this year, according to an article I found on an inside page of the paper, is expected to be $144 million. Divide $144 million by a 22 cent stamp and that comes to 654,545,454 first-class letters mailed by Congressmen, one-tenth of which may get read by voters, if they're in the habit of examining their junk mail. I don't know how to average out the number of letters per Congressman, but in 1984 one Senator used up $3.5 million in mailing costs. Either he had a powerful lot to say or he said the same thing over and over.

The system is backward. In the smooth functioning of democracy, it's bound to be far more important for a Congressman to hear from a voter than a voter to hear from a Congressman. The wrong people have got the franking privilege.

Voters ought to be able to mail a letter to their Congressman without a stamp. Just write your name up there in the right-hand corner of the envelope and the post office wings it on the way to Washington in a few days, give or take six or seven.

If you favor this, let your Congressman know. You could write him on the back of the next letter you get from him. Be sure to put a stamp on your envelope. The post office will not deliver a letter without postage, unless you're a Congressman.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Double Ring Ceremony Unites Miss LisaCaye Lowe, Dillman

The First United Methodist Church of Corsicana, a registered Texas historical building, was the scene of the wedding ceremony Monday December 30, uniting Miss LisaCaye Lowe and Mark Randall Dillman. Rev. Tom Graves, minister, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Lowe of Toledo, Ohio, and Mr. and Mrs. Neal Dillman of Muleshoe.

Vows were exchanged before an embankment of greenery and poinsettias. Brass candelabra entwined with balsam flanked the altar. A unity candle stood in front of the pews. The mothers of the bride and groom lit two of the candles before the bridal party entered. The couple lit the center candle from the two at the end of the ceremony.

James Kesinger presented nuptial music at the pipe organ and played "How Great Thou Art" on the chimes preceding the reading of vows.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of white silk organza featuring a fitted bodice and full skirt. The bodice was fashioned with a Victorian neckline in English net enhanced with Alencon lace and sprinkled with seed pearls. The skirt was hemmed in lace which flowed into a chapel length train. Her veil featured an English net blusher gathered by a row of silk flowers from which fell a pearl studded waltz length veil.

Her bridal bouquet was a large nosegay of silk sweetheart roses in white, burgundy, and mauve with baby's breath and satin ribbon streamers in burgundy and mauve.

In keeping with tradition the bride wore a diamond drop borrowed from the groom's mother and belonging to the groom's grandmother. Something new was her gown and something blue was her garter.

Cyndy White was her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Kim Senseman of Waco, and Gina Barron of Corsicana. Junior bridesmaids were Mandy and Jessica White, nieces of the bride.

David Dillman, brother of the groom from Sherman, served as best man. Groomsmen were Ed Mason of Lubbock, and Guy Cook of Abilene. Ushers were Mark Lowe and John Lowe, brothers of the bride from Toledo, Ohio.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the parlor of the church. Linda Murphy, Linda Graves, and Jean Tatum served.

The bride is a graduate of Whitmer High School, Toledo, and Eastern Michigan University at Ypsilanti, Michigan, where she majored in microbiology. She is employed as a biology lab instructor at Navarro College in Corsicana. Dillman graduated from Muleshoe High School, has a degree in math education from McMurry College in Abilene, and received his Masters Degree in math from North Texas State University.

Wade Donnell In Sudan Senior Spotlight

Wade Donnell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gery Donnell is featured in the Sudan senior spotlight this week. Wade was born in Canyon on October 10, 1967. His hair is light brown and his eyes are blue. When standing straight, he can be measured as six feet tall.

When Wade walks into school he looks forward to going to Ag Mechanics and Trigonometry. His favorite teachers are Mrs. Lance and Mr. Lowrance.

Wade cranks his stereo up full blast when his favorite song, "Oh Sheila" is playing. He also likes to listen to Ronnie Milsap and Alabama.

"The Natural" starring Robert Redford is on the top of Wade's movie list but any movie with Bill Murray is okay, too. When turning on the tube, he likes watching Cybil Shepard in "Moonlighting."

Basketball is Wade's favorite sport, but when spring comes around he likes to hit the golf course. Then when June finally gets here, Wade heads to the lake for a weekend of water-skiing. After a day of recreation he loves to eat steak but prefers it would not be his favorite color, blue!

Besides being involved in basketball and golf, Wade is also a member of FFA and National Honor Society. He is presently president of both organizations. He is also a member of the Debate Team. After high school he hopes to attend either Angelo State University of Texas Tech.

Wade has one sister, Ambyr, who is a seventh grader and she and the rest of his family are the most important things to him.

Wade hopes one day to be very successful and very happy. Commenting on SHS, Wade says, "It is a great school to go to."

Wade attends the First United Methodist Church here in Sudan.

sity. He is currently serving as a math professor at Navarro College.

After a wedding trip to Epcot Center and the Kennedy Space Center in Florida the couple will make their home in Corsicana.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents on December 29 in the fellowship hall of the First United Methodist Church in Corsicana.

Sudan WMU Holds Joint Meeting

The three groups of the Sudan United Methodist Women held a joint meeting, Monday evening in the church fellowship hall.

This was the annual program on the Call to Prayer and Self-denial, and the Pledge Service. Mary Tollett was in charge of the Pledge Service and used a film strip with various scripture for the program.

Grace Lopes had charge of the Call to Prayer and Self-denial program and was assisted by several other members. Dorothy Drake led the group in several songs with Sandra Nix at the piano.

Nell Lane, president, presided over the business of the evening. The annual budget was accepted. A new project was adopted by the group. They will be working toward carpeting the parsonage.

Mae White and Ginia Nichols were co-hostesses for the meeting and served a meal of soup and cornbread.

School Board Busy

the Week of April 21, 1986. Anyone with ideas or concerns should contact one of the committee members.

The bank balances were reviewed in each school fund and expenditures in each function of the school budget were examined. The trustees voted for approval of payment of all current bills.

In business action the Trustees called a local school board election to be held on Saturday, April 5, 1986 from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. for two regular terms and one unexpired term. Julie Cage's and Ronnie Holt's regular terms expire this year. Both of the regular terms are for three years. The unexpired term is a two year term for the position formerly held by Sam Harlan. As required by law, Sam resigned last fall when his sister, Connie Kenmore, was employed by the school district. Applications for candidacy are available in the school business office. Interested individuals are encouraged to come by and file for candidacy between now and the deadline, March 5, 1986.

In other business the trustees approved the continuation of a classroom grant program that provides an additional $25,000 of instructional funding. The grant program is approved on an annual basis after a preliminary review of the coming year's anticipated revenue is made by the school superintendent.

The trustees heard public comments on the new Discipline Management Plan (mandated by H.B. 72). The plan will be adopted on January 31 of this year and become effective September 1, 1986.

In other business the trustees approved the purchase of two new school buses and approved a school policy updated (Update #25).

A tax collection report was presented to the trustees.

Following an executive session, the trustees accepted the resignation of Debra Cowley as high school science teacher effective at the end of the first semester. In other personnel action, the trustees approved a new three year contract for Superintendent H. John Fuller. Rotation Of Crops Aids Land

As farmers size up the 1986 crop year, they need to give particular attention to disease control practices, according to Spencer Tanksley, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Crop rotation has long been recognized as an inexpensive form of plant disease control, he pointed out.

This practice prevents the continuous development of disease organisms that would otherwise build up in the soil and attack one plant species, explains the county agent. Crop rotation breaks the cycle of organism development and thus helps limit the damage potential when the susceptible crop is grown again.

A three year rotation is the most practical for producers, assuming that they have at least three crops that can fit into their operations, Tanksley says. This allows them to practice disease control simultaneously on all three crops.

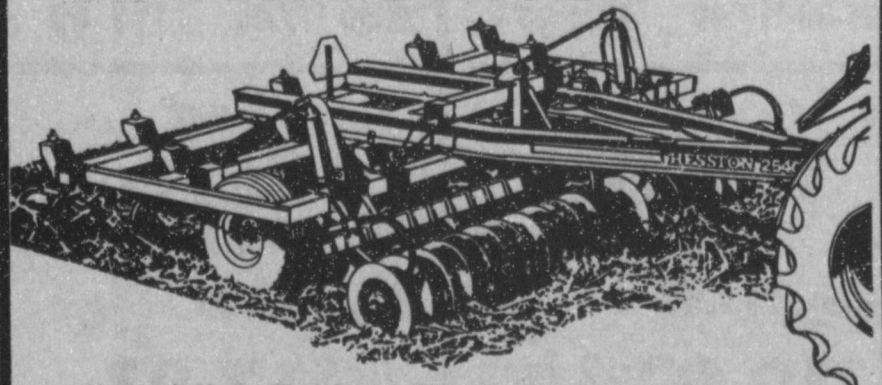

The three most common crops used in rotation systems are cotton, corn and sorghum. None of these crops are related and they have few diseases in common, Tanksley points out.

He further noted, "On some farms continuous cropping must be practiced for a variety of reasons. In this case, other forms of disease control must be practiced. These include planting a more disease resistant variety, using a fungicide, adjusting fertilizer rates and planting on raised beds.

Such practices may cost additional money but may be necessary to achieve the same levels of disease control as with crop rotation, he says.

With producers looking at ways to squeeze out a profit in these hard economic times, disease control is one practice that should not be taken lightly, emphasizes Tanksley. Producers must remember that crop losses to diseases mean losses in net profits, and thus they should use practices that keep diseases at their lowest level.

Conserve soil, moisture and time with a Hesston Cutter Chisel!

Hesston's Model 2540 Cutter Chisel is the minimum tillage tool designed for soil conservation and energy savings! Cutter blades slice through heavy trash, allowing residue to clear the chisel shanks. The shanks then open moisture-absorbing grooves in the soil, while mixing mulch throughout the worked layer of ground. The big 22-inch diameter cutter blades are spaced 7 1/2" for aggressive cutting and allow the chisel shanks to more effectively incorporate residue. And the Cutter-Reel attachment (optional) is designed to slice through stubble, pulverize soil, level ridges and mix residue in the worked layer of ground. Get multiple soil preparation benefits from one primary tillage tool! See it at your Hesston dealer!
