Local citizens, turned into 'instant auctioneers' vied for the spotlight with their particular items. Hospital attendants, local officials, salesmen and high school students hawked their wares with enthusiasm. Bidding proved to be brisk as Muleshoe residents were called by the Senior Citizens and urged to watch Channel 6 and bid on the items. The event had previously been publicized by both KMUL Radio and The Journals.

As the screen flickered into silence at 11 p.m. on that Saturday night, after coming alive at 7 a.m. that morning, more than 300 items had been sold and delivered.

COL. CLARK GRIFFITH

Reese AFB Commander Visits Here

Muleshoe Rotary Club hosted Col. Clark Griffith, Base Commander of Reese Air Force Base, Lubbock, as special speaker at noon on Tuesday.

Col. Griffith showed a film which depicted current air craft; current weapon systems, including air to air and air to ground systems.

His focus was on 'Realistic Training,' and he explained tactical air force training across the world. He also centered on 'Red Flag' training, which is a realistic training environment, such as the training conducted at Nellis Air Force Base at Las Vegas, Nev.

The Colonel also explained that the U.S. Navy has started a realistic training program, called 'Top Gun,' and currently use the program for training in the Navy.

'It is very important to have such programs as the 'Red Flag' program for training, as many pilots go down in the first 10 missions they fly.

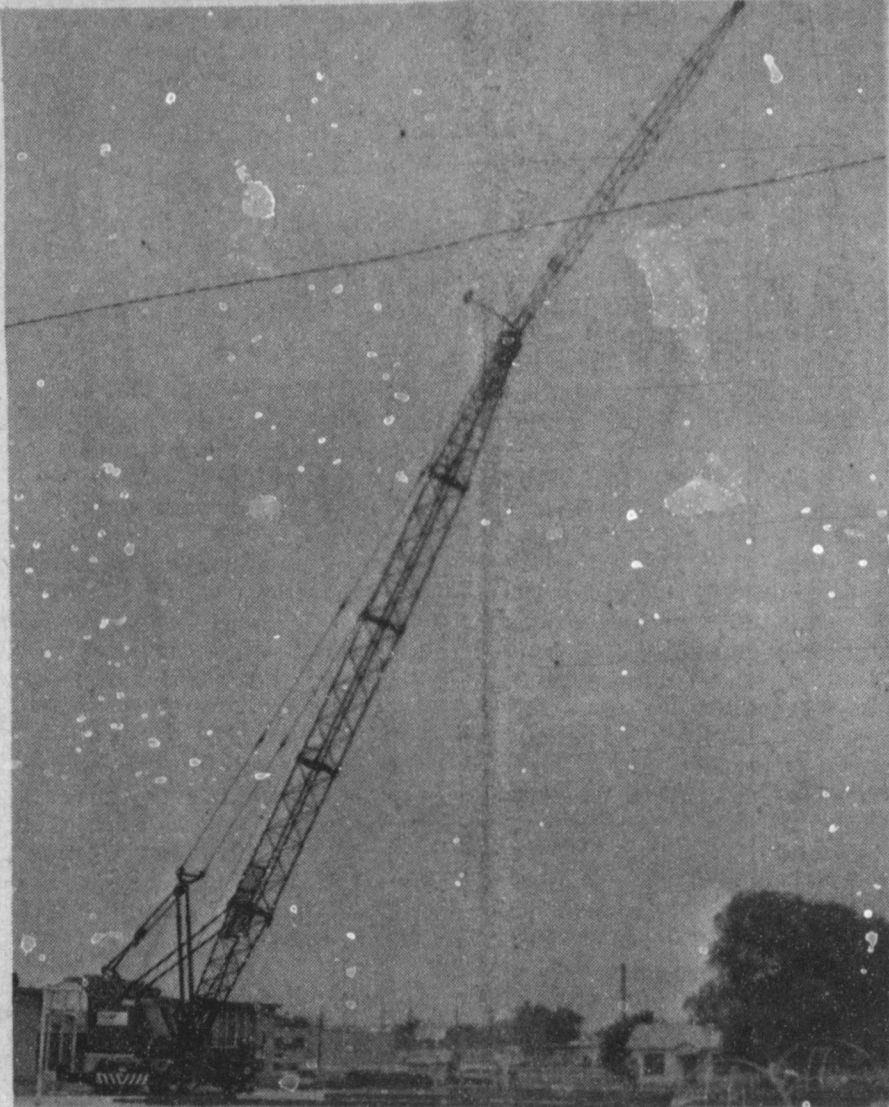

At Reese, added Col. Griffith, the major job is training pilots, who then leave for other bases, and undergo a lot of other, very intensive training before they are really 'turned loose' in the sky.

Accompanying Col. Griffith, was Bill Tynan, Reese AFB public relations officer.

Jess Winn, who was in charge of obtaining the program for the Tuesday Rotary program, is currently hospitalized in Lubbock.

A report was given by Rotary President Paul Wilbanks on the Muleshoe High School Art Club's painting at the Mule Memorial, with appreciation for the colorful painting.

Guests at the meeting included Martin Chandler, Prentiss Mills, Joe Jones, Kyle Marr, Barrett Holland, David Fields, Dan Brashall and Eric and Reagan McElroy.

SCHOOL CONSTRUCTION STARTS--This huge boom crane was moved onto the grounds at DeShazo Elementary last weekend, as a major construction job will be undertaken during the summer while school is dismissed. The crane is moving steel beams to the inner courtyard of the school, where it will be enclosed to provide needed extra classrooms.

CofC Membership Drive Is Positive

The Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture is presently conducting a membership drive," said Toni Eagle, manager. "Thanks to several enthusiastic members, the Chamber now has twelve new members. The new members are a welcome addition to the Chamber and its activities."

Mrs. Eagle said new members will be highlighted at the Chamber membership breakfast, scheduled for June 19. A membership meeting will be held at the Civic Center meeting room, beginning at 7 a.m. All members are urged to be present at this meeting as business will be discussed and new plans made for the remainder of the year.

Jackie Denham will be cooking the meal and several surprises are in store for those attending, especially in servers for the breakfast. A small fee will be charged for the meal to cover expenses.

Also, at this time, the CofC is taking names and making reservations for the trip to Dallas in October to see the Dallas Cowboys play the Washington Redskins. Mrs. Eagle reminded that only 90 people will be allowed to attend and the list is filling very fast. Call now in order to assure your own reservation.

The group will leave Muleshoe on Saturday, October 11, and arrive in Dallas in time to participate in several activities that night. The football game will begin at 12 noon the next day and the buses will leave after the game to return the group home.

Cost for the trip is $105 per person of $170 per couple.

The new members, along with the CoC member who signed them up include: Mike Caldwell, atty.-Charles Moraw; M & M's-Sheila Moraw; Bailey

Election Set

Very little local interest has been generated by the runoff elections scheduled for next Saturday, June 7. All the runoff candidates are for state offices, thus bringing about little interest.

For the Republicans, Aaron Bullock and David Davidson are seeking the bid to be shown on the ballot for the general election in November for the office of Lieutenant Governor. Attorney General candidates on the runoff ballot are Roy R. Barrera Jr. and Ed Walsh.

Republicans M.D. Anderson Jr. and Grady T. Yarbrough are seeking the Commissioner of General Land Office and John Thomas Henderson and Milton E. Fox are both asking to be represented on the Republican ballot in the fall for Railroad Commissioner.

Democratic candidates are John Sharp and P.S. Ervin for Railroad Commissioner; Shirley Butts and Oscar H. Mauzy for Justice, Supreme Court, Place I; Jim Brady and Robert M. Campbell, Justice, Supreme Court, Place II; Jay Gibson and Raul A. Gonzalez, Justice, Supreme Court, Place IV. Unexpired Term; and Rusty Dulca and George 'Jorge' Martinez, Judge, Court of Criminal Appeals, Place I.

Saturday, there will be more polling places in Bailey County for the Primaries, as Republicans will have four voting boxes in the county. Usually, the Republicans have just one box but have added three more with this election.

Polls will be open 7 a.m.-7 p.m. in the following locations:

- REPUBLICANS

All the tabulations are in, the bids have been added up, and awarded, and Bailey County stands to have additional money circulating for the next ten years.

Late last Friday, the ASC released the bids awarded for the new Conservation Reserve Program, and area ASC officials completed their tabulations Monday and Tuesday of this week.

Of the 128 farms bid into the program, including the 47, 840.1 acres, 95 have been accepted for the 1986 and 1987 CRP, according to Danny Noble, Executive Director of the local ASC office.

With Bailey County being in Pool One in the state, the bids were for $40 and under, and the total acres accepted into the program comprise some 31,76.4 acres.

This further breaks down to 33 farms accepted into the 1986 program for 9,289.2 acres; and an additional 62 farms, with 22,477.2 acres accepted for the 1987 Conservation Reserve Program.

Only 11,073.7 of the acreage bid were not accepted in this county, added Noble.

He said Bailey County had more acres, and farms, accepted than any other location in the district.

For instance, Jim McGehee of the ASC office in Lamb County, said 60 farms were bid for the program, and only 27 were accepted, for around 5,000 acres for the 1986 program.

In Cochran County, a total of 119 farms bid for the program, and 71 were accepted, which comprised 25,540.6 acres.

A spokeswoman for the Cochran County ASC office said 34 farms were accepted for the 1986 program, and an additional 37 farms will be added for the 1987 program.

A total of 17 of the 41 counties bid from Parmer Coun-

More Local Rain Recorded Here During Weekend

Another inch of rain in Muleshoe on Saturday evening left the total for the week at 5.13.

Both Sunday and Monday saw traces of moisture recorded, bringing the total for 1986 to date to 6.90 inches.

National Weather Service had predicted that moisture would linger in the area through most of the week, and said scattered thunderstorms would be roaming this vicinity each day.

No severe weather has been noted in the Muleshoe or Bailey County vicinity for the past week, although a suspected small twister destroyed a corn dryer on the Willis James farm about 10 days ago.

Farmers are beginning to get anxious about getting into their fields and planting, replanting crops that washed out in some of the heavier rains received.

NEW DINING ROOM--Scheduled for completion in the near future is this new addition to the Muleshoe Nursing Home. It will house a dining room, and offices for nursing administrative officials. It is being constructed at the west end of the current nursing home facility, as major renovation of the facility continues.

SANDHILLS PHILOSOPHER

Editor's note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Sandy Acres doesn't feel sorry about the tourist deficit facing Europe this summer.

Dear editor: Millions of Americans, I understand, won't be going to Europe this summer on account of the threat of terrorists, and the airlines, European restaurants, hotels, bars, tour buses, taxis, trains, boats, knick-knack stores, post card people and possibly pickpockets are doomed to lose a lot of money.

I don't know how many Americans had planned to travel abroad this summer, but they're in the millions. Say it costs each one $3,000. For every million staying home, Europe loses $3 billion.

This doesn't disturb me. It's about time Europeans came over here to look at us instead of us going over there to look at them.

There's plenty to see here. We've got beautiful rivers just as winding and polluted as theirs. Our houses aren't as old or as drafty as their castles and we don't allow tourists to traipse through at $5 a head to pay for the upkeep, but they're worth staring at, especially those built by over-paid movie stars.

Our cities aren't as old as theirs--some of theirs are hundreds of years older--but it doesn't take a thousand years to produce a pothole. The earth under city streets in Muleshoe is exactly as old as the earth under the streets of Rome. The same sun that rises in Paris rises here, although I understand not at the same time, if you're looking at your watch here.

Many Americans I'm told go to Europe for the food, overlooking the fact they can gain just as much weight at restaurants here at home, at prices just as high. Our menus, to Europeans, are printed in a foreign language, just as theirs are to Americans.

Our politicians, like theirs, can get away with promising more and delivering less, and both sets run their governments on borrowed money.

Let the Europeans come over here and gawk at us.
Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Education consortium expects to help improve science, math education

COLLEGE STATION — Business, education and government leaders across the state have launched a new cooperative effort to improve mathematics and science education in Texas schools.

The Texas Alliance for Science and Math, a consortium modeled after similar alliances in Colorado and Minnesota, is expected to create a closer partnership between business, education and government through the sharing of ideas, resources and programs.

"This is a great step forward for public education in Texas," said Dr. Robert K. James, a Texas A&M University professor of educational curriculum and instruction and the director of the Center for Math and Science Education.

"Every youngster who comes out of school must deal with technology and its impact on their lives," he said, pointing to the need for increased awareness of technological developments among all students. "That subject matter needs to be offered in schools, and it's not now being offered."

State education leaders hope the work of the alliance will stimulate interest in science and technology among all levels of students, not just those who intend to pursue science-related careers. The alliance is also expected to address issues of public policy that affect science and math education and improve support systems for teachers.

Delaying Cow Culling

Costs Money

Giving "Ole' Bossy" one more chance to have a calf is like tossing money out the window. And with current economic conditions, that's hardly something cattlemen can afford to do.

Just how much money are cattlemen losing with their reluctance to cull open cows?

A demonstration in Calhoun County by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service of The Texas A&M University System tied some "dollars and cents" to this poor herd management practice. The demonstration was part of the Extension Service's Integrated Livestock Management Program and was conducted by Brian Weiss, Calhoun County Extension agent; Dr. L.R. Sprott, Extension beef cattle specialist; and Bruce Carpenter, Extension assistant.

In the study, open cows were held over and exposed to a bull again during the next breeding season, explains Sprott. Annual cow costs at the ranch where the study was conducted were $295 per cow or $24.58 per cow per month. Cows were palpated at weaning in November and the subsequent breeding season began the following March.

Cow maintenance costs from palpation through breeding, gestation, calving and weaning (19 months) totaled $467.02. Sprott points out: Weaned calves averaged 450 pounds and brought 78 cents per pound for a gross of $351 per calf. Thus holding onto an open cow caused a loss of $116.02 per cow. ($467.02 minus $351).

Even if the cows had conceived the day after they were found to be open, at least a 15-month maintenance cost would have been incurred—nine months for gestation and six months to weaning. That would have cost the rancher $368.70 per cow—a loss of $17.70 per cow ($368.70 minus $351 for the calf). Selling the cow and calf as a pair may have grossed some

Creative Living

with Sheryl Borden

Three topics will be presented on "Creative Living" on June 10 and 14. These include osteoporosis, consumer and economic crimes in New Mexico and healthful salad ideas using safflower oil.

Osteoporosis is a topic we're hearing more about because over 15 million Americans have some degree of the disease. It's a painful and crippling bone disease that develops very slowly. There is no cure for osteoporosis, but it can be prevented. Jan Newquist is a home economist and registered dietician with the Associated Milk Producers, Inc. She will share some tips on getting more calcium in the diet, which is very important in preventing osteoporosis later on. Jan is from Albuquerque.

Audrey Cross is a nutritionist with the Safflower Information Bureau and she will demonstrate some luscious, heart-healthy salad ideas and give basic tips on reducing cholesterol and saturated fat in the diet.

Another guest will be Kathleen Kerr, a consumer advocate with the New Mexico Attorney General's office in Santa Fe. She works in the consumer protection and economic crimes division. Their primary purpose is to protect consumers and businesses from unfair or deceptive trade practices and unfair methods of competition.

New information on pain, what's in and what's out in the fashion world and an interview with Richard Grayson, a novelist from England will be featured on "Creative Living" on June 13.

Dr. Richard Sternback is one of the country's foremost experts on the pain and pain management. He's from La Jolla, CA, and he will discuss why we experience pain and what some of the treatments are to relieve it.

Jhane Barnes, a well-known designer of men and women's wear will discuss new fibers, fabrics and how these combine to make fashion practical and accessible for consumers. She will show some of her line of fashions for both men and women. Flattering shapes, vibrant colors and fresh textures are trademarks of Jhane Barnes' designs and her fashion is characterized by its architectural simplicity. Jhane's from New York.

Richard Grindal is a mystery writer from England and used the pseudo-name of Richard Grayson. He will discuss his best-selling books and tell where he gets ideas and characters for this writing.

"Creative Living" is produced and hosted by Sheryl Borden. The show airs on KENW-TV, Channel 3 in Portales on Tuesday and Thursday at 12 noon and at 2:00 pm on Saturday. (All times are Mountain Standard).

"Proving sound teaching in the areas of Bible and doctrine and in Biblically based marriage and family living are among the most crucial needs in East Africa," says Assemblies of God missionary Marvin Gilbert, assigned to Kenya. Dr. Gilbert will be guest speaker June 8 for the 11 a.m. service at the First Assembly of God, 521 South First, the Rev. Ron Dysart, pastor has announced.

DR. MARVIN GILBERT

Also, the Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture is gathering site information on land and buildings in and around Muleshoe. Mrs. Eagle said that anyone owning a building or land, who would consider selling to an industrial prospect is asked to contact the CofC office.

"Even if the site is listed with a realtor," said Mrs. Eagle, "you still need to list with the Chamber, as the CofC will be furnishing a list to Southwestern Public Service Company."

"Southwestern Public Service Company has a very good area development program where they send prospects to the cities that they are aware have industrial sites available," she continued. "The realtors will still do the actual selling. SPS just needs to know of all the possibilities in order to know what prospects to send to Muleshoe to look around."

If you would like to join this site list, please contact the CofC office and they will assist you in filling out the forms.

Singers, comedy acts and pianists had entered the act, by performing periodically during the day, and were joined by a jazzercise group, as well as the Muleshoe High School jazz band. With thunderstorms pelting down, the bands continued to play. The Larry Buchanan Band from Floyd, N.M., helped with the entertainment.

The Jennyslippers presented prizes from a recent Walkathon on the lawn of Channel 6. Prizes distributed included two bicycles, four wagons, four radios with headphones, a clock radio, and 28 Mule sportsbags. Funds from the Walkathon are used to purchase fireworks for the Fourth of July. Collected for the fireworks was $1,900.

One of the 'top' sellers during the auction was a Southwest Conference football autographed by the players and coaching staff at Texas A&M University.

Both Republicans and Democrats bid for flags flown over the capitol and a gavel used in the House of Representatives.

A group of youngsters donated $5 each and challenged others to match their contributions.

Someone wanted to 'walk in' Lee Horsley's size 12-D boots and paid $65 for the pair worn by the television star in the 'Matt Houston' series.

Caps and practice T-shirts of favorite professional football teams proved to be popular items, along with pictures and records of nationally-known entertainers. A hotly contested item was the press box tickets to the Tech-Kansas State football game for September 6 and a Dallas Cowboy pennant autographed by Tom Landry was another popular item.

At midnight, as the Muleshoe Heritage Foundation tabulated the results of the auction, plans were already underway for a similar event next year.

The Heritage Foundation said they wished to express their thanks and sincere appreciation to everyone who helped make the celebrity auction a big success.

All proceeds will be used to help renovate the old Santa Fe depot into a senior citizens service center and to renovate the Janes Ranch House and to furnish it with antiques of the era.

program is slightly more than the one-third of the amount originally allotted.

CRP was authorized under the 1985 farm bill, and established to remove from production some 40 million acres of highly erodible land in the nation by 1990.

Texas officials could have accepted up to 825,000 acres for 1986, but the 278,913 announced Friday added to the 31,298 acres first accepted - totalling 310,211 acres - is about 37 percent of the allotted figure. In pool one, which includes Lubbock and all other counties above the Caprock from the northern state line to the Rio Grande River and west of New Mexico, 179,435.3 acres on 554 farms were accepted.

Lubbock County only had three of 21 bids accepted, and it was also reported that Deaf Smith County only had about three or four farms accepted.

LUBBOCK, Friday, May 30, 1986

Official figures released May 30 to Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., Lubbock, by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service (TCLRS) show 1985 cotton production from the 25 PCG counties on the High Plains totaling 1,893,850 bales of 480-pounds net weight.

That is over 400,000 bales short of the 2,324,250 bale 1984 crop. It compares to the respective five and ten-year averages for the Plains through 1984 of 2,106,260 and 2,195,330. Record production for the 25-county area remains at 3,522,000 bales, produced in 1981.

TCLRS reported 3,051,800 planted acres for the Plains, 2,781,900 of which remained for harvest after an 8.8 percent abandonment. Blame for the loss of almost 270,000 acres, as usual, is shared by drought, wind and hail. Abandonment in 1984 was 7.7 percent. Ten year average loss from planting to harvest on the Plains through 1984 was 12.1 percent, including the huge 35.4 percent loss of 1.3 million acres in 1982.

Average yield in 1985 was 326.8 pounds per acre, a hefty decrease from the 359.6-pound average of the previous year. Five and ten-year average yields per harvested acre for the area through 1985 come to 325.7 and 328.8 pounds, respectively. All-time record yield was set 20 years ago in 1965 at 513 pounds per acre.

The chart below shows 1985 planted and harvested acres, yields per harvested acre and total production in 480-pound net weight bales for each of the 25 PCG counties.

Low-income households may be eligible for energy assistance

AUSTIN—Some low-income Texas households may be eligible for help in paying their cooling bills this summer through the Home Energy Assistance Program, according to Texas Department of Human Services Commissioner Marlin Johnston.

Commissioner Johnston said the one-time payment is available to many low-income households. Households which this month received food stamps, Aid to Families with Dependent Children, or Supplemental Security Income will be mailed applications automatically. Other low-income households may request an application from DHS during the enrollment period of June 16 through July 18.

Eligibility is limited by gross income. For instance, aid is available for a one-person household having less than a $547.49 gross income per month. The gross income limit is $733.49 for a two-person household, $919.49 for three, $1,105.49 for four, $1,291.49 for five, and $1,477.49 for six.

Eligible households must be subject to energy cost increases—because of bills or rent being higher due to rising energy costs.

Households in privately owned or rented housing are eligible if the cost for cooling is included in the rent payment or if the household pays a portion of its home energy costs.

Energy assistance checks are sent directly to the people who are eligible for assistance. However, the checks are made payable to the energy company for the benefit of the eligible person. Households receiving one of these energy assistance checks should mail it, or take it in person to the energy company business office with the regular energy bill. The check can be cashed only by the energy company. If the HEAP check is more than the energy bill, the additional amount will be credited to the person's account for the next month's bill. If the energy bill is higher than the check, the person is responsible for paying the difference.

Farm Bureau Is Supporting Re-Evaluation

Farm Bureau supports efforts to re-evaluate the role the United States plays in supporting international development organizations, Texas Farm Bureau president S.M. True told Congress this week.

"We believe such a review of the benefits and costs of the multilateral lending institutions is long overdue and desirable at this time," True told a subcommittee of the Joint Economic Committee.

As a member of the board of directors on the American Farm Bureau Federation, True represented the AFBF before the group which is examining proposed reform of foreign agricultural investment priorities.

True said farmers are unhappy with World Bank loans that subsidize foreign products that are in direct competition with U.S. farm exports.

He pointed out that a loan to Argentina was for the specific purpose of allowing Argentine farm exports to become more competitive in world markets.

He said that other international lending institutions have also made mistakes, but that he did not wish to imply that all international agricultural projects are unworthy.

"Farm Bureau recognizes the need to promote economic development in less-developed nations," he said. "If we ever hope to return to the days of $40 billion annual farm exports we will need greatly increased demand and purchasing power in those same countries."

He said development assistance programs could be of major importance in improving the economics of underdeveloped nations.

"However, such programs should be based upon well-formulated, long-range plans of recipient nations in order to insure proper utilization of aid funds and technological assistance," he said. "We do not believe that the current operations of international development banks have been based upon well-informed, long-range plans."

True told the subcommittee that the Foreign Agriculture Investment Reform bill introduced by Rep. Beau Boulter, R-Amarillo, and others, "appears to us to be an excellent starting place for consideration of needed changes in U.S. participation in international lending institutions."

Anthropologist says cavemen's diet better than today's diet

COLLEGE STATION — Did cavemen 20,000 years ago, before the widespread practice of agriculture, eat better than many Americans today?

If that means "better for you," then perhaps they did, says a Texas A&M University anthropologist whose studies of prehistoric diet based on fossilized pollen and charred remains of other food have made him a top authority.

Our prehistoric ancestors — out of necessity rather than for a trendy trim look — consumed a wide variety of plants, flowers and lean game, said Dr. Vaughn Bryant, head of anthropology at Texas A&M.

Concerns about too much salt and sugar were fewer then since both commodities were rarely available, he said.

Evidence from pollen studies in Texas and elsewhere suggests that cave dwellers ate a sufficient variety of foods to obtain an adequate supply of vitamins, minerals and protein, said Bryant.

Feedmill, Elevator Classes Are Offered

In an effort to provide competent, trained professionals to the cattle feeding and grain elevator industries, Texas State Technical Institute (TSTI) will offer a Feedmill and Elevator Technology course.

The course, set to begin September 8, was developed by TSTI at the urging of the cattle feeding and grain industries because of difficulty in finding trained people to operate feedyard feedmills and grain elevators, according to Charlie Ball, executive vice president of the Texas Cattle Feeders Association.

"More than 23% of all the fed cattle in the nation (6 million head) are produced in Texas and the neighboring states of Oklahoma and New Mexico," Ball says. "With the concentration of cattle feeding in the Texas Panhandle and surrounding states, there is a need for highly skilled feedmill operators."

"Feedyards process a tremendous amount of grain daily, requiring skilled, well trained people," continues Ball. "But there presently is no structured training program for feedmill and grain elevator operators. Thus, we asked TSTI to initiate this course."

Ball points out, since TSTI is a vocational school, many others beside recent high school graduates may be interested in the course. "With the recent financial difficulty many area farmers have experienced," he says, "there's a potential pool of people who already have many of the mechanical skills needed to become a feedmill or grain elevator operator."

The course will train students in the operation of feedmill and grain handling equipment, dust control techniques and hazards, electrical/electronic weighing controls, hydraulic and pneumatic systems and advanced trouble-shooting, according to Jim Lutes, course instructor and program coordinator at TSTI. Coursework will include training in equipment maintenance, electrical systems, welding and mechanics as well as industrial management and computer operation, Lutes says.

Two training options will be offered, he says. One is a certificate program lasting four quarters or 12 months. The other option, which will allow students to obtain an Associate of Applied Science degree, will last six quarters of 18 months.

More information on the Feedmill and Elevator Technology course can be obtained from Lutes at Texas State Technical Institute in Amarillo, telephone (806) 335-2316.

The Texas State Mathematics League recently sent the results of their Elementary math exams. This is a test given annually to sixth graders in Texas schools. It is not a mandatory test, but is one given to classes whose teachers want to give it. The test is 40 multiple-choice word problems. Each problem is designed to test the student's ability to logically determine a solution to a math problem. The test covers concepts from elementary mathematics, algebra and geometry.

There were several winners from the Sudan sixth grade class when the results were announced. Clay Carr was named the winner of the Sudan group. It was announced that he then scored twenty second in an eight county area which covers 200 students. Clay was also recognized for scoring the highest score of any Sudan student who has ever taken the test. He received a certificate from the Texas League for his efforts.

Other winners in the Sudan scorers were Shannon Fisher and Jamie Gatewood who tied for second and Mandy Davis and Javier Azua who tied for fourth. They also received certificates of recognition.

The sixth grade math teacher is Mike Fisher.

Sympathy is extended to James Withrow in the death of his uncle, Bob Wheeler of Atoka, Okla.

Cook Out

Smell that tantalizing aroma in the air... Yes sir, no wonder thick steaks cooked over a slow charcoal fire with just a hint of hickory smoke are such a great favorite. And this young chef seems to be doing a superb job... with only an occasional bit of advice from his father.

The deep affection and understanding between this father and his son goes far beyond the art of outdoor cooking. They are also partners in the great adventure of a boy growing into manhood. The father is the teacher and his son, the willing pupil. They talk of remembered fishing trips, of school and football. They discuss plans for the boy's future in the business world. And they also have quiet talks about the church and a man's need to make God a very important part of his life. This father, by his example, is showing his son that a life without the church is a wasted and purposeless life. Go to church and take your family. Show them by your example.

Beware Of Slow Moving Vehicles

Motorists throughout Texas should be on the lookout for slow moving farm vehicles and equipment.

With the hustle and bustle of spring farming operations, drivers need to be particularly alert for slow moving tractors and other types of farm equipment on state highways and other public roads.

"The usual slow speed and road-blocking width of these necessary machines may be dangerous to vehicles coming up from the rear as well as those passing in the opposite lane," points out Dr. Gary Nelson, safety engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"A driver recognizing a farm machine should instantly brake and reduce speed until he can successfully judge the machine's size and speed," notes Nelson.

A tractor may be pulling a wide tillage tool or a tool bar and could have axles extending into the oncoming lane, says the engineer. The tractor may be seen easily, but protruding steel beams are difficult to see because of their small appearance and often dusty covering.

"Dusk and dawn hours are the most dangerous because of poor visibility," Nelson points out. "Drivers should look for flashing tractor lights; reflectors; the red-orange, triangular shaped Slow Moving Vehicle emblem on the rear of a machine; a lead car or truck with flashing lights; or flagging tied to protruding parts of equipment."

Drivers who pass or meet farm vehicles and still maintain highway speeds are risking a serious accident, cautions the safety specialist.

At night, flashing lights may be on an oncoming farm vehicle with parts that extend into an opposite lane or the passing lane. The driver should immediately slow down and make certain there is no obstruction.

"Unfortunately, sometimes deadly obstructions that do not comply with safety measures are present on our public roads, whether they be farm, forestry, construction or personal vehicles or loads," says Nelson. "Drivers should always be on the lookout for these and should report them to law enforcement authorities. This can help avoid accidents and perhaps save a life."
