British Warned Turkey.

It has been said that Germany supplied the Ottoman government with large sums of money. Great Britain warned Turkey to keep off, and recent advices from Constantinople indicated that Turkey intended to maintain her neutrality

Under stress of pursuit by British warships, the German cruisers Goeben and Breslau early in the war took refuge at Constantinople. They were purchased by Turkey, but the German officers and crews were retained. Later they sallied forth, and a warning was issued by Russia that should the Russian warships meet these two cruisers they would open fire.

The former German warships have proved a cause of irritation throughout the last few weeks to the Allies. and Great Britain asked the Ottoman

CAUSE OF CHILD LABOR.

There will be general agreement with the statement made by Mr. Daniel A. Poling, the noted Christian Endeavor lecturer, that the cause for child labor abuses is directly traceable to the liquor traffic.

"Drink," he says, "has impaired or out off entirely the earning power of the natural provider; the father has lost his job because of drink. But the fact that the natural provider has lost his job does not at all indicate that his children have lost their appetites. Child laborers are working to feed hungry stomachs, to clothe naked bodies.

EFFICIENCY.

German army officers find that out of 30 shots fired, men averaged 23 hits on abstaining days, three hits on drinking days. And the amount taken was less than that contained in a quart of 4 per cent beer. These and similar experiments have made the kaiser a total abstainer, and it is why he is urging the army to follow his example.

The Eugenist.

Praising the science of eugenics, Harold Bolce, the father of Eugenia, the eugenic baby, said in New York: "Eugenics is making headway everywhere. It is even penetrating into the exclusive circles of the old aristocracy of Philadelphia.

"A Philadelphia girl of the highest aristorcacy actually got engaged last month to a young bank clerk. A Philadelphia clubman said to her reproachfully at a tea:

"Is it possible that you, of a family eminent for seven generations, can stoop to marry an unknown upstart?' "'Well, I prefer to marry a man without a name rather than a name without a man." - Detroit Free Press.

Take the Blood Out and Wash It. Drs. V. A. Urevitch and N. K. Rosenberg have discovered a way to take the blood out of the body, wash it and put it back again. In the Roussky Vraitch the describe their experiments upon animals. The idea, of course, is to rid the blood of polsonous substances. They found they could remove half the blood, prevent its coagulation by adding sodium citrate, wash it with salt solution and return the purified red corpuscies into the circulation. It was not necessary to return the white corpuscles.

The New York Medical Journal remarks that this, taken together with the transplantation of organs and the growth of tissues outside the body, forms an entirely new chapter in experimental medicine. Who can tell what the future has in store for us?"

fill it and the rebels delayed their charge one man after another climbed up to the trenches, ostensibly to bring down the injured.

As soldiers and bystanders reported no one hit, and the bullets flew harmlessly past, their solicitude turned rapidly to disgust and then to scorn. Strange as it may seem, they were disappointed at the results, and their remarks were derogatory as they commented on the bravery of pelones and Mericans in general.

From a dread of imminent attack, of charging rebels and retreating defenders, and a fight to the death by the house, they came suddenly to a desire for blood and battle, for dead men and the cries of the wounded and all fear of the insurrectos left them.

"Come away, boys," grunted the burly roadmaster, who up to then had led in the work; "we wasted our time on that hospital-there'll be no wounded. Let's take ourselves back to the house and have a quiet smoke."

"Right you are, Ed." agreed the master mechanic, as he turned upon his heel in disgust. "This ain't warthem Mexicans think they're working for a moving-picture show!"

"I bet you I can go up on that ridge," announced Hooker, "and clean out the whole bunch with my sixshooter before you could bat your eye."

But the superintendent was not so sure.

"Never mind, boys," be said. "We're worth a lot of ransom money to those rebels and they won't give up so quick. And look at this now-my miners coming back! Those are the boys that will fight! Wait till Chico and Ramon Mendoza get after them!"

He pointed as he spoke to a straggling band of Sonorans, led by the much-vaunted Mendoza brothers, as and I thought you were brave enough they hurried to save the town, and a cheer went up from the trenches as the federals beheld reinforcements. But a change had come over the fireeating miners, and they brought other rebels in their wake.

Children Seem to Recognize Company ion and Friend in Bronze Representation of President.

In the city of Newark, N. J. there stands on the plaza in front of the courthouse a bronze statue of Abraham Lincoln. #### PRESSED HARD. Coffee's Weight on Old Age.

When people realize the injurious effects of coffee and the change in health that Postum can bring, they are usually glad to lend their testimony for the benefit of others.

"My mother, since her early childhood, was an inveterate coffee drinker. had been troubled with her heart for a number of years and complained of that 'weak all over' feeling and sick stomach.

"Some time ago I was making a visit to a distant part of the country and took dinner with one of the merchants of the place. I noticed a somewhat unusual flavour of the 'coffee' and asked him concerning it. He replied that it was Postum.

"I was so pleased with it that, after the meal was over, I bought a package to carry home with me, and had wife prepare some for the next meal. The whole family' were so well pleased with it that we discontinued coffee and used Postum entirely.

"I had really been at times very anxious concerning my mother's condition, but we noticed that after using Postum for a short time, she felt so much better than she did prior to its use, and had little trouble with her heart, and no sick stomach: that the headaches were not so frequent, and her general condition much improved. This continued until she was well and hearty.

"I know Postum has benefited myself and the other members of the familv, but not in so marked a degree as in the case of my mother, as she was a victim of long standing." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Postum comes in two forms:

AMID SHRAPNEL FIRE WRITER SEES FIERCE CONFLICT ON THE YSER RIVER

By EDGAR ANSEL MOWRER. (Correspondent Chicago Daily News.) West Flanders, Belgium .- For more than a week I have been at the headquarters of the Belgian army behind the line of the River Yser from Nieuport to Dixmude. I have seen how the remnants of the army from Antwerp retreating on the way to Ostend were sent to northern France to rest and reorganize and how the rest of the Belgian forces, being asked to hold the lines 42 hours, have actually held it for six days, thus preventing a siege of Dunkirk and saving the French coast from invasion.

Stick to Antwerp to Last.

Contrary to what was at first reported, the Belgian army left Antwerp only after all the forts except four had been destroyed, and these four the defenders blew up as they hastily evacuated the town, the heroic Belgian, General de Guisel remaining to the last. What part of the retreating Belgians en-tered Holland and are held by Dutch authorities is not known here.

It is certain that the others never would have escaped the Germans but for the heroic stand made by a mixed force of English, Belgians and French marines in the village of Nelle, southwest of Ghent, wherein two Belgian regiments-the Sixth volunteers and the Ninth of the line-particularly distinguished themselves. Walks From Dunkirk to France.

I reached Furnes October 16, having walked from Dunkirk, I crossed a bridge, reached a village street and after two turnings emerged on the quaint old market place of Furnes, the home and present seat of the general headquarters of the Belgian army. I went at once to the headquarters in the town hall, made known my identity and secured a pass.

Standing before the headquarters was an automobile containing three British soldiers. I approached and asked the nearest one where the Germans were. He looked at me with astonishment and before replying or letting me explain who I was and why I had come, he exclaimed: "Good Lord! Have they let you come this far? Well, since you are here, it can do no harm to tell you where they are." He drew a map from his pocket. "Here they are," he said, laying a finger on the village of Middlekirke. "Our line extends from Nieuport to Dixmude. The Belgians are intrenching themselves all along the line." Starts Out for Nieuport.

I thanked the soldiers and set out to walk to Nieuport. On the outskirts of Furnes I passed a regiment of Belgians starting for Dixmude. I turned to the left in the direction of Nieuport, but at the village of Wulpun I was turned back by an overpolite Belgian sergeant.

That night I heard a terrible canfear of death, but the result of the unearthly sound.

Entering the church, I found it full been used as a dormitory for soldiers, but nothing had been touched, though chairs were scattered everywhere. After mounting a rickety ladder a long tip of the steeple above the bell.

Sees Battle From Steeple.

Looking through my spyglasses over the flat country in the direction of the town, I was able to distinguish the very spots and buildings beyond which the Belgian shells were bursting. Flames were leaping high, but owing to a row of trees screening the German batteries I was unable to see what was burning. At that time the town itself was intact.

To the left stretched the poplar bordered Yser. I could see men sheltered in trenches along the roadsidetrenches so cut as to provide a skeleton covering, upon which was heaped straw making a watertight roof. In front, about six hundred yards distant, a regiment was drawn up, but I was unable to learn the reason why.

In company with an English correspondent, at that time the only other correspondent with the Belgians, I saw the battle of Nieuport at close range. Long before we reached the village of Nieuport Baines we saw part of the naval squadron lying just off the coast occasionally firing at some unseen mark and heard field artillery booming ahead.

Hear Batteries in the Dunes.

We heard the Belgian batteries firing in the dunes on our right toward Nieuport and only when we reached the south pier at the mouth of the Yser could we obtain any idea of the general situation, the lines at this point being held by the Sixth and Seventh Belgian infantry. The day was cloudy and the wind was driving the mist of rain inland. Accordingly, we sought a high, deserted building that stood nearest the river. When we finally stuck our heads through the skylight, by the aid of our glasses we saw an unforgettable sight.

At our feet lay the railroad station at the mouth of the River Yser, which stretched away right to the town of Nieuport, then bent southward and was hidden from view by the building in which we were. Behind the river. hidden in a grove of scrubby trees growing on the dunes, were three Belgian batteries of four guns each, which were firing incessantly straight across before us. The shells were striking beyond the village of Lombaertzyde. Thirteen Warships in Sight.

To the left, beyond Lombaertzyde, was the village of Westende, which the Germans had retaken that morning. Still farther away the church spire of Middlekerque was faintly visible. Lombaertzyde seemed quiet, but

The receiving station was inauguof straw, the place evidently having rated as a feature of the campaign being waged for the extermination of rodents and to prevent the entrance into Philadelphia by way of shipping of the bubonic plague which has time in the dark I reached the very caused such consternation in New Orleans.

> Escapes Shrapnel of Germans. I turned aside and approached a church in the midst of a small village. All the morning the booming of the far away German cannon had been audible, but it seemed without importance. Now I had my first experience of being under fire. As I was about to enter the church, intending to mount into the belfry, I heard an unnerving whir, of a somewhat lower pitch than that produced by projectiles from the Belgian guns. It grew louder, louder and louder. I felt as if a devil's flying machine was looking about hunting for me, and for a brief second I plish the task at all costs. wished that I had never come. Then, with a loud report, the German shrap nel burst harmlessly beyond the church and 100 feet up in the air. Since that day I have heard and seen perhaps 20 shells burst nearly over me, but never without the same awful sensation, which, I believe, is not in their minds

German shells bursting over it presently located the Belgian trenches before us and a few soldiers came running over the dunes.

But it was on the left that the spectacle was most impressive. There, lying out from the coast at varying distances, were 13 vessels of war. There were two cruisers, one of which fired occasionally from about three miles; the other lay silent somewhat farther from the coast and south of eight destroyers, four French and four English and three monitors.

Great Flashes Bare Batteries.

For a long time we watched the German shells bursting over Lombaertzvde. The Belgian shrapnel and the shells of the monitors were directed Ledger against Westende. I saw the Belgian batteries lying on our side of the Yser, but, though their thunder made our building tremble, we were able to locate the batteries only by the terrific flashes amid the trees through an occasional rift in the smoke. So well were they concealed that the Germans must have been unable to locate them, since the only shells which fell in our ters." direction seemed to be aimed at the lighthouse, which the Germans probably imagined to be a wireless station. Each time a message was sent more shells came whirling toward the lighthouse. Many fell into the river.

Tells English Officer's Bravery.

We were joined in our skylight by a Belgian captain who asked us for the loan of our glasses and when he had seen all that he desired he told us the story of the English lieutenant who had landed that morning, the particulars of which he had just learned. This officer came ashore from the monitor Severn with 20 men and three machine guns to prevent the Belgian retreat.

Reaching Nieuport, he saw that in losing Groote Bamberghe farm that morning the Belgians had weakened their position. Accordingly, he started with his 20 men across the bulletswept area right to the Belgian trenches. The men who were there say he walked as calmly as if on a tour of inspection, calling orders to his men and signaling with his hands. In vain the Belgian officers shouted that the position was already occupied by the Germans. Either he did not hear or he was determined to accom-

One of the prettiest and gayest of the Hallowe'en parties was given at the B. P. Williams' home in east Dayton last Saturday evening. The Hallow'een spirit decended upon the guests as they entered the gate. The spacious grounds were illuminated by jack o lanterns. The elaborately decorated interior suggested well the abode of "spooks", jack o lantern faces, black cats, witches and bats peered from all corners and the effects were wierd in the extreme. In one corner was a witches' tent where fortunes were told with coffee cups. Several girls came in as ghosts and afforded much merriment by their funny actions. RULER OF MEXICO

SELECTION A SURPRISE

WAS APPOINTED PROVISIONAL GOVERNOR OF SAN LUIS PO-TOSI BY GEN. CARRANZA.

Western Newspaper Union News Service. El Paso, Tex .- The conference of revolutionary chiefs at Aguas Calientes has disregarded General Carranza's protest and elected Eulalio Gutierrez provisional president of Mexico, according to offical report reaching the border.

Gutierrez was appointed provisional governor of the state of San Luis Potosi by Carranza at the beginning of the Constitutionalist revolution. He is regarded, however, as more of a sympathizer with Villa in the present controversy. Gutierrez took the field at the head of his troops, operating largely around Saltillo.

The naming of Gutierrez as head of the convention of chiefs and acting chief executive of the nation came as a surprise. He previously had not ben mentioued as a possibility for the office.

The new president of Mexico comes of the lower middle classes. Before he became a revolutionist he was a grocer.

In the voting at the convention Gutierrez received eighty-six votes. His nearest competitor was Gen. Juan Cabral, the Sonora commander, for whom thirty of the delegates voted.

Mexico stands today as a country with two claimants of the executive power. One of them, Eulalio Gutierrez, named at the Aguas Calientes conference, was elected to serve only twenty days, the shortest term of office in the history of any republic.

The other, Venustiano Carranza, now in power at the national capital, has not recognized Gutierrez as supplanting him as choice of the convention of chiefs which previously had retired Carranza and Villa, his political and military opponents.

OF MOTHERHOOD

THE CHARM

The experience of Motherhood is a try-Insexperience of Motherhood is a try-ing one to most women and marks dis-tinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or un-derstands how to properly care for her-self. Of courso nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at such times, but many supposed the average times, but many approach the experi-ence with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when it is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

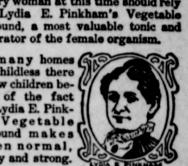

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under the right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, and with am-ple time in which to prepare, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

Every woman at this time should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organis

German officers have been drilling the Ottoman soldiers for several months. For several years it has been known that the kaiser was aiding the sultan in his military preparations. The German military system was drilled into the Turkish soldiers and in the could be recognized in the movements of the Turkish army.

British Warned Turkey.

It has been said that Germany supplied the Ottoman government with large sums of money. Great Britain warned Turkey to keep off, and recent advices from Constantinople indicated that Turkey intended to maintain her neutrality.

Under stress of pursuit by British warships, the German cruisers Goeben and Breslau early in the war took refuge at Constantinople. They were purchased by Turkey, but the German officers and crews were retained. Later they sallied forth, and a warning was issued by Russia that should the Russian warships meet these two cruisers they would open fire.

The former German warships have proved a cause of irritation through out the last few weeks to the Allies. and Great Britain asked the Ottoman

There is not the slightest doubt now that the Germans are contemplating active operations all winter. Their troops have all been supplied with heavy sheepskin overcoats. leggings and gloves, and reports received later Balkan war the German hand through Belgian sources say enormous quantities of winter supplies have been stored at the base in the vicinity of Aix Le Chappelle.

Russians Advancing Again.

The 'entire / Russian army is again advancing against the Auscro-German forces. Advices from the front indicate that the Austrian troops in Galicia are being enveloped by the Russian left, while the Russian center and right are driving the Germans back upon their advanced lines of defense inside of the East Prussia frontier. After more than a week of fighting along the San river the Austrians have now begun to retreat from the southern section.

Admit Russian Victory.

Will This Country Help?

Reports to the Belgian legation at Washington of the miserable conditions among the inhabitants of the captured country, whose fields and laid waste by four armies, have prompted the Belgian minister, Mr. Havenith, to redouble his efforts to obtain funds in the United States for the relief of his destitute people.

Open Way for Belgian Relief.

As a result of the urgent representations made to the foreign office by W. H. Page, the American ambassador, the British government has given its permission for the raising of the existing embargo for foodstuffs to the extent of allowing ships to depart for Holland with a quarter of a million dollars' worth of food bought by the American committee for the relief of Belgium.

Japan to Enlarge Forces.

At a meeting of party leaders in Japan, Premier Okuma delivered an address urging the immediate expanin order to enable the imperial government to act quickly in the event of an emergency. It is expected that the new budget, to be introduced soon, will contain the largest military fund Japan has known since the war both sides is great with Russia the allies can be resumed. Meanwhile a report comes from Constantinople of the seizure of another Russian steamer and that Bulgaria, which has been asked to choose the side on which she would fight, had commenced to mobilize her second line troops.

Martial law was proclaimed by Great Britain throughout Egypt. An official notification by the British charge d'affaires at Cairo was delivered to American diplomatic agents there.

On orders from London, the cammander-in-chief of the British forces took command of the general situation, with orders to suppress all outbreaks.

Most Trying Situation Has Shown the Resiliency of the United States in a Remarkable Degree-Matter for Pride.

Not since the Civil war was the United States called upon to meet such a financial crisis as came with the outbreak of hostilities in Europe. Foreign exports were suddenly cut off. Imports necessary to many of our own manufacturing industries were wholly suspended. All American stock exchanges had to be closed, and so a blight was put upon all our markets where securities may be bought and sold.

On top of this came Europe's clamor to be paid in gold for the securities it had sold in the fortnight before the war began. With all Europe suspending payment of its own debts and demanding gold instead of merchandise from the United States, a financial strain was put upon this country the like of which had not been seen in 50 years.

But in two short months the American people have met this crisis successfully. Our bankers have satisfied New York city's maturing debt of about $80,000,000 held abroad.

A syndicate of bankers has also raised another $100,000,000 of gold to pay off Europe's immediate claims against this country

Money is now pouring back into the large eastern cities. Big deficits in bank reserves have been wiped out. Interest rates are normal for this season of the year and even less than in some previous years when crops were moving to market. Never was the resiliency of our country shown in so remarkable a way. Without panic and without any alarming money stringency, the United States has emerged from a most trying financial situation, with the full knowledge that it has met every debt

What has happened in the financial world is but an omen of what must occur in our trade and commerce. identical spirit of quick recovery which has made the United States the paying gold during the world's worst tens of thousands.

The salient fact about this country ever has been that it cannot be kept down.

ERA OF PROSPERITY NEED MONEY FOR CAMPAIGN and Proper, But Legitimate Expenses Must Be Met.

> Not even the most fastidious reformer had a right to make objection to the frank appeal of Chairman Me-Coombs of the Democratic national committee for contributions to the campaign. As Mr. McCoombs observed, "the cost of printing and traveling must be met," and it is equally true that campaign contributions are not to be found on trees or bushes.

Reformers in congress and outside have been advocating in recent years a strict limitation of campaign expenditures. At the root of the argument, of course, is the belief that it is not right that a rich candidate should have an advantage over a poor one. The one might be able to hire so many bands and so many halls and print so much literature that the poor chap would not have a chance to make himself heard.

All this is very good in theory, but the trouble with it in practice is that a restrictive law usually provokes evasions. Thus, every month or so, in every state, there is talk of excessive expenditures and threats of investigation and exposure. The extravagance has not been confined to any one party, but extends to candidates of all shades of political belief. It is well that corporations should be barred from contributing to political organizations and candidates because such contributions may involve an obligation later on. Any effort to prevent individuals from backing the is bound to result in evasions of the law. The campaigns must be waged somehow. The limitation of $5,000 for a primary campaign and $5:000 for the regular campaign, fixed by congress with reference to congressional campaigns, is simply an invitation to deception. Past experience has shown the law to be ineffective. The expenditures may not exceed the $5,000 mark dirctly, but in a great many instances there are indirect violations Scott says: of the law.

BODY AS A MACHINE.

How will total abstinence most effectively appeal to the boy in his teens? asks many a mother and many a teacher. The angle of vision most likely to interest him in that which emphasizes bodily efficiency. Hear bat that experienced educator, Hon. Edward Hyatt, superintendent of public instruction for the state of Callfornia, has to say about it:

"Many a boy, if he could look upon his body as a machine, could stand outside himself as it were and look at himself with the same eyes with which he regards his bicycle, would be made sensible of the danger, uselessness and utter folly of triffing with a habit that has over-thrown millions of strong ones who thought it joke until it was too late to see that death hid behind the mask.

"This is an age of mechanical invention. It is an age of comprehension, an intelligent understanding of mechanism, even by the very young. The boys of our year are thinking in constructive terms, of the relation of parts to other parts, of loss by friction, chemical waste, of chemical agents that preserve a machine and other chemical agents that ruin it. candidates of their choice, however, it is ours to shift this idea until the boy applies it to his own God-given body-than which there is no more perfect machine in all the world."

Consider! Nine powers at war! But one great nation free and unentangled, but one in position of posmen of business that money is tight sible arbiter of the world's destiny; and that one our own! Behold, too, the significance of recent happenings! We cannot surmise that President Wilson foresaw so imminent a need of proving America's adherence to moral might as against physical force when he proclaimed seeming altruism at Mobile. We cannot imagine that he divined the proximate potency of strict observance of faith among nations when he demanded that our treaty with England be kept inviolate. #### CAUSE OF CHILD LABOR.

There will be general agreement with the statement made by Mr. Daniel A. Poling, the noted Christian Endeavor lecturer, that the cause for child labor abuses is directly traceable to the liquor traffic.

"Drink," he says, "has impaired or cut off entirely the earning power of the natural provider; the father has lost his job because of drink. But the fact that the natural provider has lost his job does not at all indicate that his children have lost their appetites. #### Take the Blood Out and Wash It.

Drs. V. A. Urevitch and N. K. Rosenberg have discovered a way to take the blood out of the body, wash it and put it back again. In the Roussky Vraitch the describe their experiments upon animals. The idea, of course, is to rid the blood of polsonous substances. They found they could remove half the blood, prevent its coagulation by adding sodium citrate, wash it with salt solution and return the purified red corpuscies into the circulation. It was not necessary to return the white corpuscles.

The New York Medical Journal remarks that this, taken together with the transplantation of organs and the growth of tissues outside the body, forms an entirely new chapter in experimental medicine. Who can tell what the future has in store for us?"

As soldiers and bystanders reported no one hit, and the bullets flew harmlessly past, their solicitude turned rapidly to disgust and then to scorn. Strange as it may seem, they were disappointed at the results, and their remarks were derogatory as they commented on the bravery of pelones and Mexicans in general.

From a dread of imminent attack of charging rebels and retreating defenders, and a fight to the death by the house, they came suddenly to a desire for blood and battle, for dead men and the cries of the wounded: and all fear of the insurrectos left them.

"Come away, boys," grunted the burly roadmaster, who up to then had led in the work: "we wasted our time on that hospital-there'll be no wounded. Let's take ourselves back to the house and have a quiet smoke."

AMID SHRAPNEL FIRE WRITER SEES FIERCE CONFLICT ON THE YSER RIVER

By EDGAR ANSEL MOWRER. (Correspondent Chicago Daily News.) West Flanders, Belgium.-For more than a week I have been at the headquarters of the Belgian army behind the line of the River Yser from Nieuport to Dixmude. I have seen how the remnants of the army from Antwerp retreating on the way to Ostend were sent to northern France to rest and reorganize and how the rest of the Belgian forces, being asked to hold the lines 42 hours, have actually held it for six days, thus preventing a siege of Dunkirk and saving the French coast from invasion.

Stick to Antwerp to Last.

Contrary to what was at first reported, the Belgian army left Antwerponly after all the forts except four had been destroyed, and these four the defenders blew up as they hastily evacuated the town, the heroic Belgian, General de Guisel remaining to the last. What part of the retreating Belgians entered Holland and are held by Dutch authorities is not known here.

It is certain that the others never would have escaped the Germans but for the heroic stand made by a mixed force of English, Belgians and French marines in the village of Nelle, southwest of Ghent, wherein two Belgian regiments-the Sixth volunteers and the Ninth of the line-particularly distinguished themselves. Walks From Dunkirk to France.

I reached Furnes October 16, having walked from Dunkirk, I crossed a bridge, reached a village street and after two turnings emerged on the quaint old market place of Furnes, the home and present seat of the general headquarters of the Belgian army. I went at once to the headquarters in the town hall, made known my identity and secured a pass.

Standing before the headquarters was an automobile containing three British soldiers. I approached and asked the nearest one where the Germans were. He looked at me with astonishment and before replying or letting me explain who I was and why had come, he exclaimed: "Good Have they let you come this Lord! far? Well, since you are here, it can do no harm to tell you where they are." He drew a map from his pocket. "Here they are," he said, laying a finger on the village of Middlekirke. "Our line extends from Nieuport to Dixmude. The Belgians are intrenching themselves all along the line."

Starts Out for Nieuport.

I thanked the soldiers and set out to walk to Nieuport. On the outskirts of Furnes I passed a regiment of Belgians starting for Dixmude. I turned to the left in the direction of Nieuport, but at the village of Wulpun I was turned back by an overpolite Belgian sergeant. That night I heard a terrible cannonading, and Saturday morning, October 17, I learned that the battle of the Yser had begun. Escapes Shrapnel of Germans. I turned aside and approached a church in the midst of a small village. All the morning the booming of the far away German cannon had been audible, but it seemed without importance. Now I had my first experience of being under fire. As I was about to enter the church, intending to mount into the belfry, I heard an unnerving whir, of a somewhat lower pitch than that produced by projectiles from the Belgian guns. It grew louder, louder and louder. I felt as if a devil's flying machine was looking about hunting for me, and for a brief second I wished that I had never come. Then, with a loud report, the German shrapnel burst harmlessly beyond the church and 100 feet up in the air. Since that day I have heard and seen fear of death, but the result of the unearthly sound.

Entering the church, I found it full of straw, the place evidently having been used as a dormitory for soldiers, but nothing had been touched, though tip of the steeple above the bell.

Sees Battle From Steeple.

Looking through my spyglasses over the flat country in the direction of the town, I was able to distinguish the very spots and buildings beyond which the Belgian shells were bursting. Flames were leaping high, but owing to a row of trees screening the German batteries' I was unable to see what was burning. At that time the town itself was intact.

To the left stretched the poplar bordered Yser. I could see men sheltered in trenches along the roadsidetrenches so cut as to provide a skeleton covering, upon which was heaped straw making a watertight roof. In front, about six hundred yards distant, a regiment was drawn up, but I was unable to learn the reason why. In company with an English correspondent, at that time the only other correspondent with the Belgians, I saw the battle of Nieuport at close range. Long before we reached the village of Nieuport Baines we saw part of the naval squadron lying just off the coast occasionally firing at some unseen mark and heard field artillery booming ahead.

Hear Batteries in the Dunes.

We heard the Belgian batteries firing in the dunes on our right toward Nieuport and only when we reached the south pier at the mouth of the Yser could we obtain any idea of the general situation, the lines at this point being held by the Sixth and Seventh Belgian infantry. The day was cloudy and the wind was driving the mist of rain inland. Accordingly, we sought a high, deserted building that stood nearest the river. When we finally stuck our heads through the skylight, by the aid of our glasses we saw an unforgettable sight.

At our feet lay the railroad station at the mouth of the River Yser, which stretched away right to the town of Nieuport, then bent southward and was hidden from view by the building in which we were. Behind the river, hidden in a grove of scrubby trees growing on the dunes, were three Belgian batteries of four guns each, which were firing incessantly straight across before us. The shells were striking beyond the village of Lombaertzyde.

tacle was most impressive. There, lying out from the coast at varying distances, were 13 vessels of war. There were two cruisers, one of which fired occasionally from about three miles; the other lay silent somewhat farther from the coast and south of eight destroyers, four French and four English and three monitors.

Great Flashes Bare Batteries.

For a long time we watched the German shells bursting over Lombaertzyde. The Belgian shrapnel and the shells of the monitors were directed against Westende. I saw the Belgian batteries lying on our side of the Yser, but, though their thunder made our building tremble, we were able to locate the batteries only by the terrific flashes amid the trees through an occasional rift in the smoke. So well were they concealed that the Germans must have been unable to locate them, since the only shells which fell in our direction seemed to be aimed at the lighthouse, which the Germans probably imagined to be a wireless station. Each time a message was sent more shells came whirling toward the light-house. Many fell into the river. Tells English Officer's Bravery.

THE WASTE OF WAR

The war that now engulfs Europe is only a perface to the story of sorrow and desolation that will follow.

The lives that are lost, the cities that are destroyed and the resources that are wasted will have their greatest effect upon future generations.

Until the last chapter is reached there will be a story of stagnant industries, desolate homes, barren fields and fatherless children.

While their great conflict of waste is being waged we Americans are fighting the Battles of Peace.

An army of 150,000 men and women enlisted in the ranks of the Bell System serves the telephone wants of the American public.

Over 6000 of these people work right here in the seven mountain states every day in the year.
