Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER
 BIDDLE BIRDSALL.

"I have something else to tell you about Biddle Birdsall," said Daddy.

"Good," said Nick. "we'll be glad to hear what Biddle has been doing."

"He is certainly a wonderful cat," said Nancy. "Biddle follows different members of his family around," said Daddy. "and when they go out to dinner parties Biddle goes along, too."

"Of course, he is too polite to go in to the dinner parties, when he's not invited, but he does wait outside when they're in at the dinner parties and then when they've left, he walks back home with them once more."

"Sometimes when Gertrude, his beloved mistress who named him Biddle is at school and when her little brother is at school, too, Biddle takes a walk with their mother, and when she stops to rest he stops too, as though to say, 'Don't feel lonely, Biddle is with you, you know'."

"I've told you about the collar Biddle wears with the little bells attached which ring and jingle when he moves so as to let the birds know that they must watch out."

"One bell wouldn't be enough, for he might move and still keep that one quiet so his collar has many bells on it. The other day there were some more put on, to make Biddle look more dressed up, and to be of even more protection to the birds."

"The bells came off a rattle which had been given to Gertrude when she was a little baby."

"They were of real silver and had come from a very unusual and wonderful rattle which had been given to Gertrude by a very rich old lady. The rattle had come from the finest jewelry store in the world and Biddle was a proud cat as he jingled the bells of silver."

"He seemed to know they were very fine. I'm really quite sure Biddle knew," Daddy laughed.

"I wouldn't be at all surprised if he did," said Nick.

"Neither would I," said Nancy.

"Yes, Biddle looked very fine with his collar looking bright and smarter than ever, and his lovely gray fur so soft and silky and well looked after."

"He thought of the days when Gertrude had tried to call him Kitty and had called him Biddle instead, which was her way of saying Kitty."

"He thought of the days when he used to run away, but of how much better he behaved these days. He never ran away any more now."

"He thought of the time he had a sore throat and how he had worn a poultice which had made it all well, but which had made his beautiful fur look rather shabby for a time. Yes, his throat had been made to feel quite all right, and that was the main thing."

"But he had been ashamed of his looks after the poultice had been taken off."

"He remembered how he used to put his head down and try to hide his throat when anyone had spoken to him at this time."

"What a vain little kitty he had been, he thought."

"He remembered how he had taught himself how to get in the pantry door when it was closed by jumping up on the shelf or chair and turning the door knob."

"All of these things he thought of, but he said to himself, 'I must do something quite new and different. They like me to do new tricks for them.'"

"So he jumped up on the mantelpiece and curled up on top of a great big old square-shaped clock."

"And when the family came in and looked for him, he kept quite still."

"At last they saw him on top of the clock. And Biddle blinked his green eyes as though to say:

"If you had looked at the clock you would have seen me, for Biddle Birdsall is right on time, you see!"

"And often after that, Biddle sat on the mantelpiece, though he didn't always care to sit on the clock, for he thought it was too much to expect of him that he should always be on time!"

Would Have Been Postponed.

A bright little boy of five had been engaged in a combat with another boy and was reproved by his mother, who told him he ought to have waited until the other boy had commenced it. "Well," replied the youthful hero, "if I'd waited for him to begin it there wouldn't have been no fight."

The Texas & Pacific Railway has issued an order to remove all of the small revolving fans in its steel day coaches. This is done, it is said, to further reduce the cost of operation, and to cut expenses. It seems that the railroads are doing their best to discourage the traveling public to continue riding on passenger trains. If they had sense enough to reduce passenger rates to the old level, add a few conveniences and give service their net income would show a vast improvement over the present. No doubt they think the public can be fooled with such maneuvers as the one cited above.—Big Springs Herald.

WEEKLY NEWS ARTICLE.
(Special Correspondence)

Washington, D. C., June.—Apparently yielding to a world-wide sentiment in favor of a reduction in armaments and ignoring a nation-wide demand for a reduction in Federal taxation the Senate added $98,000,000 to the naval appropriation bill, which includes the Borah amendment authorizing and requesting the president to call a disarmament conference of the United States, Great Britain and Japan, making the total appropriation as passed $494,000,000, instead of $396,000,000, as it came from the House.

It is not certain that the House will approve the increase and the fate of the Borah resolution is equally uncertain in conference.

Even if the House agrees to the resolution, there are good grounds for believing that President Harding will ignore it or delay it beyond the time when it would be effective in materially checking the expenditures of the huge appropriation made.

The Washington Post, to which the presidential wagon is supposed to be hitched, calls it a "senate superfluity," says the president did not favor the inclusion of the resolution in the bill and lectures the senate on "usurping the President's prerogative." The President is said to have a disarmament plan of his own, and it is semi-officially stated that ambassador Harvey has been empowered to make informal inquiries, presumably in his capacity as the representative of the president in the allied supreme council.

In the meantime the senate displayed more or less insincerity in passing the Borah resolution by rejecting an amendment to the naval bill submitted by senator Walsh of Montana requesting the president to cooperate with the disarmament commission of the council of the league of nations.

While some senators and other leaders profess to believe that president Harding will call a disarmament conference if the Borah resolution is agreed to by the House, others are of the opinion that he will not do so except under the stress of widespread public pressure. In the meantime, the government continues to spend ninety-three cents on every dollar of taxation it levies upon the tax-ridden people for wars past and present, heedless of the nation-wide cry for relief.

Demands Harvey Be Recalled.

Ambassador Harvey, from whose name the title of colonel appears to have been dropped since congressman Stevenson asserted in the House that it was given to him at a banquet has received another severe castigation in the senate, this time by senator McKellar (Dem. Tenn.), who said, among other things, concerning the statements in ambassador Harvey's speech at the Pilgrims' Society dinner:

"They constitute a libel against the government of the United States. They constitute a desecration of nearly one hundred thousand young men who gave up their lives on the battlefields of France. They are an insult to everyone of the nearly 5,000,000 soldiers who enlisted in that great conflict. They constitute a wanton libel upon the patriotic men and women of this country. They are the words of a craven and a sycophant. . . . He (Harvey) is not a fit representative of either our government or its people. I protest against his being retained, and I again express the earnest and patriotic hope that our president will recall him immediately. Protests against Mr. Harvey are coming in from patriotic men and women throughout the nation. I sincerely hope that the president will heed these protests."

War Mothers Denounce Harvey
Senator McKellar read into the Record the following protest from American War Mothers:

"Whereas the senate of the United States of America, on April 2, 1917, declared that we were in a state of war:

"Whereas we believed that it was through no fear of loss, no greed for gain, but for a great idea, for the saving of the nations and the freedom of the world, that we submitted to the sacrifice of our sons and countrymen:

"Therefore we, the Pennsylvania State Chapter of the National American War Mothers, assembled in convention in Philadelphia, declare we have read with the utmost abhorrence the words reported to have been spoken by George Harvey, ambassador to England. Those words are an insult to everything the women of America hold dear.

They defame every man and woman who made sacrifice during the war in the hope of hastening the coming of peace and all it implies.

"Our beloved sons—soldiers, sailors and marines—fought, suffered, and died believing they were crusaders in a great cause. The words of Mr. Harvey lead us to believe that they fought in vain.

"Our dead soldiers cannot repudiate this insult; it remains for the mothers whose sons made the sacrifice to do so.

"Therefore we, the mothers of sons who were in the army and navy ask the President of the United States to repudiate this insult to the country and to remove the stain which the words of Mr. Harvey have placed upon the honored dead of the World War who died for the ideals of the United States of America."

Another protest from the women is as follows:

The Women's Pro-League Council composed of republican women, at a meeting on May 25, directed that—

"A solemn protest against such statements and such policies contained in ambassador Harvey's speech be sent immediately to the President and the Secretary of State, as a gross misrepresentation of America's war aims and ideals, and a betrayal of millions of American voters for whom the league of nations was the great issue of the campaign, and who voted for Mr. Harding in the belief that his election would assure such a league."

Appalling Growth of Taxation.

The growing burden of taxation was shown by Senator Hitchcock (Dem. Neb.) in discussing the naval bill recently passed. He cited the following appalling figures: "In 1913 the per capita tax due to appropriations made by congress was $6.75 per person in the United States. If the bills as now proposed are passed that per capita tax in the United States during the coming year will approximate $48. I saw an article not long ago in a New York paper declaring that the burden of taxation on the people of the United States, taking the state, local and national taxes into account, was something like $750 per family. That is an understatement. It is practically $50 per person or $750 per family, which we in the congress of the United States levy. That takes no account of the various state taxes."

In the matter of governmental indebtedness, he said: "The people of the United States, who in 1913 bore a governmental indebtedness (state, municipal and national) of $50 per person, now bear a governmental indebtedness of $300 per person."

Walking Backward in Democratic Tracks

Representative Stevenson (Dem., S. C.) in a recent speech gave these specific instances wherein the present Republican administration has walked backward in the tracks of the previous democratic administration:

foreign policies reversed. Let us see what we have done up to this time about reversing the foreign policy of this government. On the question and rights of this nation in Mesopotamia the policy of the former administration is being absolutely followed by the present administration. As to the question of the rights and policy of this nation in the island of Yap our present administration is standing squarely in the tracks made by the administration that preceded it. On the question of our dealings with Russia the present administration has not veered an iota from the administration that was before it. On the question of cable control this House unanimously passed a resolution to follow the leadership of the democratic administration on that very important question. On the question of the treaty with Colombia, where by we re-establish relations with the government of the United States of Columbia, the administration sent the treaty negotiated in 1916 by a democratic administration. The present administration has followed the policy of the Wilson administration in the matter of backing up the banks of this country in making a loan to China.

"It was one of the crying shames of the country, according to republicans, that General Pershing, instead of General Wood, was sent to France. Yet we find the present administration has endorsed the proposition by making General Pershing the chief of staff of this country instead of the great and heroic General Wood. (Applause.)

"Judge Hughes, when a candidate for president in 1915, denounced the appointment of E. Lester Jones as head of the geodetic survey and called him an incompetent "horse doctor." Mr. Harding reappointed this "horse doctor" in March, with the statement that his services were indispensable.

"President Wilson put postoffices under the civil service, and Harding has followed suit with a scheme that the politicians hope to use to cover the spoils system which they hope to run. Indeed, the republican administration thus far is walking in the tracks of the democratic administration but they appear to be walking backward and stumbling occasionally."

Peace—But Under Versailles Treaty. It seems that the much denounced treaty of Versailles is to be the basis of peace between the United States and Germany after all. Chairman Porter of the house committee on foreign affairs, has rewritten the Knox resolution, which now declares the state of war at an end, cutting out the proposed repeal of the war declaration, provided all of our rights and interests are protected as stipulated in the treaty of Versailles and the treaty with Austria, invoking the protection and benefits of the treaty rejected by the republican senate.

Harris-Linell.

At the home of Mrs. Jo Jacobson in Roswell last Thursday afternoon at five o'clock occurred the marriage of Mr. William Linell and Miss Martha Harris of Memphis, Tennessee.

The Rains.

The eastern part of New Mexico has been rainsoaked for the past several weeks, doing a lot of good in one way and has done considerable damage in the loss of alfalfa. But in all, the rains have been a blessing to the big rancher as it has made an abundance of grass and has been the salvation of the cattle and sheep industry of this part of the state.

The rains in and around Artesia have been near flood stage several times. Last Saturday one of the hardest rains to be witnessed in these part for years fell. On Monday the Santa Fe from the north did not arrive on account of the track being under water near Dexter.

Artesia Loses Game.

The fast Woodmen of the World team from Roswell crossed bats with the local team here yesterday afternoon, carrying away the big end of a 6 to 4 score. Both teams played an excellent game, spectacular plays being numerous and not until the last man was out could anyone tell who the game belonged to.

Clark, pitcher for the WOW'S, pulled himself out of several holes and also swung a mean stick, copping a couple of singles. Martin twirled for the home crew and did good work but his support failed him in the eighth when the town boys were ahead by a 2 to 0 count. Roswell tied the score in the eighth, getting two hits and scoring both runs on errors. They made two more in the ninth, but Artesia came right back and tied the score, Coll and Launing hitting for singles L. B. Feathers, batting for Garret, scoring both on a long single to center. Roswell copped two more in the tenth but Artesia failed to register in this frame.

Sgt. Major Bert St. Clair was base umpire, and his eagle eye was at its best, but the Roswell crew didn't see it that way and he was replaced by a Chopper from Roswell who has undoubtedly spent most of his time chopping, for as an umpire he's an excellent aviator. Bert is our choice and he can umpire for our team any old day and we'll be tickled to have him.

The Roswell ump pulled a mean one in Artesia's part of the ninth when he called Feathers out at first, the Roswell baseman moving the base to a new location, leaving Feathers stranded at the old stop, for years recognized as the initial sack. The decision was hotly contested but after a long argument was finally decided in the visitors favor.

Barber Jones, third baseman and Mitchell, shortshop, with the Roswell team, charter members of Noah's aggregation, showed up fine and look like they are good for several seasons to come.

Good Printing Pays

THE kind of printing that pays dividends is the kind you should have. Pale, muddy, poorly arranged printed matter is worse than none. The quality of your business is often judged by the quality of your stationery—inferior printing gives an impression of cheapness that is hard to overcome, while good printing carries with it a desirable suggestion of quality.

We produce only Quality Printing. Whether you want an inexpensive handbill or a letterhead in colors, if you order it from us you will be sure of getting good work. We have the equipment and the "know how" that enables us to get out really good printing—printing that impresses people with the good taste of its users. That is the only kind of printing that

THE ESCAPE.

It had been a bad time for the boy and the girl adventurers when they thought that they might be carried away in Mr. Moving Man's trunk. "Why do you want to put us in the trunk?" the girl had asked. "We might find you could sell for a good deal at the market," the old man had said. "Well, won't you go in that way, please?" the boy had asked, pointing in the direction of the Hospitality Hotel. "No sir," the old man had replied. "He hates that way," Miss Rolling Stone, or Mrs. Moving Man had said. She could be called by both names correctly. "He's mad, you see, because he didn't get to the House of Secrets. He doesn't want any one else to go there. He didn't want the long journey there." The boy looked at the girl. They didn't know what to do. They were held tight and they looked at the new wide-open trunk. They couldn't bear to think they would be carried around in it, humped this way and that, and perhaps suffocated too, and yet they couldn't but believe that they would somehow get back to the real road again so they could go on to the House of Secrets. "And we were to go to the Hospitality Hotel this very evening," said the boy. "I believe it's almost time." "Oh," said the girl suddenly, then she added very softly, "I'm free. Miss Rolling Stone has gone to sleep standing up! Oh, you're free too. Let's hurry." The old man had begun to snore. They hurried down the road, running as hard as they could. They got well out of sight of the old man and woman. "Weren't they horrible?" asked the boy. "But how strange that they should fall asleep so suddenly," said the girl. "Not strange at all," said a voice, and looking they saw a creature with a lovely face but with a great black patch over his heart. It was over where the heart should be and it was in the shape of a heart but they thought he had a beautiful face and a lovely, kind expression. "Who are you?" the boy asked. "I'm a kind friend," said the creature. He looked about the size of Mr. Wood 227. "We're on our way to the Hospitality Hotel," said the boy. The creature held his arms over his chest as though to hide the black patch and as though he had made a great mistake not to hide it in the first place. He seemed quite flustered. "They fell asleep, those two you left," said the creature, "because they couldn't keep awake any longer. They never can accomplish anything all the way through. They always have to stop before it is over. This time it was lucky for you. They're not full of harn, nor do they mean to be cross and all of that. They just go along trying everything and leaving it before it is finished. "To be sure they thought of taking you away in a trunk but they wouldn't have taken you far. You'd have been too heavy and while the Moving Man carries that trunk he doesn't like to carry anything in it. And Miss Rolling Stone, or Mrs. Moving Man, cares not to carry anything either. She won't even carry a moss blanket to put in their cottage, and they never keep a cottage any length of time. They have no real home in consequence. "Now boy and girl I say we have some soda water. There is a soda fountain down this road to refresh travelers on their way. You're on your way, I can see. That's what made Mr. Moving Man so mad. He wanted to keep you from getting to the place he had wanted to go to but had never had the patience to keep on with the long journey. He is one of these restless souls who makes everyone else restless, or tries to. "Now, we'll go to the soda water fountain."

One Petticoat Too Warm.
It was one of the first spring days and little Elizabeth, age four, who had been playing with some neighbor children, rushed into the house and throwing herself across her mother's lap exclaimed: "Oh, mamma, take off some of my clothes! I'm a whole petticoat too warm!"

GREAT INTEREST IN BIG NATIONAL ESSAY CONTEST

High School Students Everywhere
versity Scholarship.

Various government agencies and national organizations are announcing the 1921 Good Roads and Highway Transport Essay Contest which is open to all pupils of high school grade. The national prize is a four year scholarship in the university or college chosen by the successful contestant, the scholarship being offered by Harvey S. Firestone, well known tire manufacturer of Akron, Ohio, and is valued at $4,000 which is sufficient to pay tuition and all expenses at the school.

W. L. Wyman, local dealer, gives further details regarding the contest. He says the essay must contain no more than 500 words. The subject is "Good Roads and Highway Transport," and all essays must be in the hands of the local committee by June 15. School Superintendents will be glad to give prospective contestants all information desired.

"Last year Mr. Firestone's scholarship offer was responded to by nearly a quarter of a million students," says Mr. W. L. Wyman, "the prize being won by Miss Katherine Butterfield of Weiser, Idaho. In addition to winning the scholarship, Miss Butterfield was recently paid the high honor of being called to Washington to receive her certificate at the hands of President Warren G. Harding.

The idea of this contest is to bring before the pupils and their parents and everybody the urgent need for immediate improvements in the national highway system."

Tony Waldon, colored, charged with carrying concealed weapons, was fined $50 and costs in Judge Gilbert's court last Saturday. K. B. Knowles, charged with the same offense, was bound over to await the action of the grand jury.

Rev. Sewell Jones of Roswell spent Sunday in Artesia.

ODE TO THE GIRL
(Republished by Request)

Little girl, you are so small,
Don't you wear no clothes at all?
Don't you wear no snummy shirt?
Don't you wear no "pett" skirt?
Just your corset and your hose—
Are those all your underclothes?
Little girl you look so light
When I see you in the night.
With your skirts cut rather high won't you catch a cold and die?
Aren't you afraid to show your calf?
It must make the fellows laugh.
Little girl what is the cause?
Why your clothes made of gauze?
Don't you wear no undervest
When you go out fully dressed.
Do you like those peek-a-boos,
Stead of normal underclothes?
Little girl your spenders show
When the sunshine play just so.
I can see your tinted flesh
Thru your thinnest gown of mesh;
Is it modest do you s'pose
Not to wear no underclothes?
I can see way past your throat
To a region most remote;
Taint my fault now don't suppose
Why not wear some underclothes?
Little girl your socks have shoals
Of those tiny little holes;
Why you want to show your limb
I do not know; is it a whim?
Do you want to catch the eye
Of each fellow passing by?
Little girl where is the charm
In your long uncovered arm?
And the V behind your neck,
Is it for the birds to peck?
Little girl I tell you those
Are not as nice as underclothes.
Little girl now listen hear:
You would be just twice as dear
If you'd cover up your charms—
Neck, back, legs and arms.
I'd take you to see some shows
If you'd wear some underclothes;
But no lover—goodness knows
Wants "a girl "sans" underclothes.
Little girl your mystery,
Lovin' charms and modesty
Are what makes us fellows keen
To possess a little queen.
'Spos e I wore some harem pants,
Or no shirt like my aunts,
Or a ringlet through my nose—
'They'd arrest me don't you 'spose?
I must wear a coat of mail,
Clothed from head to big toe nail;
I must cover up my form,
Even when the weather's warm.
