ENGINEER TALKS WITH BRAKEMAN OF FREIGHT TRAIN BY RADIO DEVISE

Schenectady, N. Y.—By means of a radio an engineer of a freight train may talk with the brakeman in the caboose a mile away at the other end of the line of cars as easily as by telephone.
 Photo shows the engineer of the freight speaking over the radio to the brakeman in the caboose, over a mile away. Short wave transmitters were used.

FOUR MILLION ACRE FEET OF WATER WASTED EACH YEAR

Nearly 4,000,000 acre feet of water in the streams of New Mexico is now annually going to waste, it is estimated in a bulletin issued by State College.
 The average annual water supply of all streams is about 5,250,000 acre feet. This, if utilized for irrigation, would water 2,000,000 acres, it was reckoned.
 Present irrigated area of the state is about 500,000 acres. More than 100,000 acres will be added to this total on completion of the Middle Rio Grande Conservancy program.

BEWARE The Germs

The next few months are the deadliest time of the year, from contagion. Germs are everywhere, and during the warm summer days increase rapidly in the most unexpected places.

Keep your premises clean and sanitary by using disinfectants liberally. We have every kind you can think of, and will gladly advise you concerning any disinfecting problems you may have.

Smokers of this day prefer Camels

MODERN smokers insist upon value received, and they place Camel first among cigarettes.
 Regardless of price, Camel is the popular smoke, because it has the most to offer. Its choicest tobaccos and careful blending have made Camels supreme in an age that demands quality.
 All the money in the world could not make a better cigarette than Camel. It has proved itself to the experienced taste, to the careful smokers of the modern age. Let this cigarette show you how mild and mellow a good smoke can really be.

Andrew Jackson's Politics
Andrew Jackson is popularly supposed to have started the modern Democratic party. It was to a large extent the successor of the Jeffersonians. But Old Hickory himself did not apply the name "Democratic" to his followers. During his Presidency and after his retirement to the Hermitage, in all his correspondence he called himself a Republican and spoke of his party as the Republican party.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Night to Be Remembered
The "Big Wind" occurred in Ireland on the night of January 6, 1839. In Limerick, Galway and Athlone hundreds of houses were blown down and hundreds more were burned by the spreading of fires from those blown down. It was called "The Big Wind," because it is the worst of its kind known to the people of Ireland.

Sea Superstitions
We are indebted to the seamen of antiquity for the belief that kingfishers cast a spell upon the deep, so that calm weather prevails during the "halcyon days," about the time of the winter solstice. Old salts object to the presence of a cat on board ship, because she "carries a gale in her tail."—Exchange.

Hermits' Cells Remain
The mountains near the city of Jericho, says one who explored many of them, "are absolutely honeycombed by the cells of ancient anchorites and hermits from top to bottom." Some of these contain frescoes and inscriptions of much interest, dating back to the earliest years of the Christian era.

Life's Law
Life yields her rewards to those who work for them. If you plant cabbages don't expect to pick roses, for the laws of life are exact, and never deviate the slightest bit. Your life will shape itself according to the mental pattern which you shaped for it.

A Hint
The photographer was taking a picture of a newly married pair and there was some difficulty in getting the right expression. "Too strained," he complained; "too strained. Don't think of each other all the time. Just look pleasant."

So Talking Is Hot Air
A physicist has calculated that if 1,000,000 persons were to talk steadily and the energy of their voices were converted into heat, they would have to talk an hour and a half to produce enough heat to make a cup of tea.

CANNED APRICOTS, PEACHES AND PEARS

Useful for Many Tempting Desserts and Salads.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

There are so many uses for home-canned peaches, pears, and, if you happen to have them, for apricots, that it is well worth while to can a generous supply of these good fruits, especially if you have a home-grown surplus. In some markets it may even pay to buy peaches and pears for canning. In addition to their use as breakfast fruits, there are many tempting desserts and salads that can be evolved with canned peaches or pears as a basis—fruit mixtures, gelatin desserts, combinations with ice cream or whipped cream, pastry, and plain canned fruit with cake or cookies.

These fruits may all be canned in a water-bath. There are slight differences in the preparation of each fruit for canning, and in the time of processing, but the general method is about the same.

Before preparing the fruit make a thin or medium sirup to pour over it in the jars. For a thin sirup put one part of sugar into three parts of water and bring to the boiling point; for a medium sirup use one part of sugar to two parts of water. The choice of sirup depends on personal taste and the sweetness of the fruit you are using. In making the sirup for peaches, an unusually fine flavor is obtained by boiling a few cracked peach pits in the sirup for five minutes.

Use only clean sound fruit, and can it as soon after picking as possible. To remove the skin from peaches and apricots, scald them and then dip them into cold water. If you are canning a very large quantity of peaches, the lye method of removing the skins may be used. Directions for doing this are given in Farmers' Bulletin 1471-F, "Canning Fruits and Vegetables at Home." Send to the United States Department of Agriculture for it. After it has been peeled, cut the fruit into halves or smaller pieces and remove the pits. Pack at once, placing the halves in overlapping layers, the concave surface of each half downward. Fill up the containers with boiling sirup. Process quart and pint glass jars for 25 minutes in boiling water if the fruit is fairly hard and firm, or for 20 minutes if it is ripe and tender. Process No. 2 and No. 3 tin cans for 15 minutes.

Select firm sound pears that are not overripe. Pare, quarter or halve them and cook in boiling sirup for four to eight minutes, according to the size and ripeness of the fruit. This precooking makes the hard varieties of pears pack better. Pack the pears hot into containers and fill them up with boiling sirup. Process containers of all sizes for 20 minutes in boiling water.

DE AUTREMONT CONFESSION
was plenty of room. I learned to shoot. We were shooting with rifles. Dad let us boys take rifles whenever we felt like it. We had shells for our rifles and shells for the shot gun. I killed many and many a rabbit before I was ten years old.
Ray and I had our tenth birthday on the old Gossett farm. It has all gone back to desert now and the artesian well has gone dry and many a one of those range cattle have I shot. That was my answer to the cowpuncher, driving their cattle in on our farm.
In that country it is a fight to live. That is the desert country and it is a fight to live in that country. In that country beans are strawberries and it is a good deal the same today as it was then. Well Dad put up a hard fight there but he lost everything he had. There was no Catholic church anywhere near where we lived and Dad never knew that as he never would have gone there if he had. He was misinformed about it. So he saw he could not make it out there in the country—oh, he saw he would be killed there—killed or starved to death, one or the other, so he moved to town with what he had left and bought out a store. He bought this store before he left the farm. He had an offer from one of those cattlemen to trade the store. It wasn't worth much, I don't know how much; anyway, he had an offer to trade it for about 1,000 head of cattle. That is how fast they were dying off.

Domestic Trouble Starts
Well, we lived there in Lakewood then and Dad and Mother tried to make a living running this store there. The people that had been beaten by this land promoter commenced leaving the country and going back where they came from, and business got bad and Dad became prejudiced against the country, and he naturally would be, and he wanted to leave, but Mother seemed to like the country and she wanted to stay and I guess that was the beginning of what caused the separation of Dad and Mother.

Mother wanted to stay in New Mexico and dad wanted to go back to Colorado so they finally compromised by Dad going back to Colorado and Mother staying in New Mexico at the store. Dad finally prevailed on mother to move back and live with him in Colorado and we went back and tried it there. We hadn't sold out the store in New Mexico.
Well we seemed to get along pretty well in Colorado. Ray and I went to school at Victor. We stayed at Victor then for two years and Ray and I commenced running around with a pretty tough gang of boys, but they were good boys at heart. They were into mischief most of the time, but at heart they were good boys. I don't think any of them ever got into trouble since they have grown up.

Well, it soon go so that mother was dissatisfied with Colorado and she wanted to move back to New Mexico. Dad didn't want to so their marital troubles started there. Mother was determined to go back to New Mexico, which she finally did and took us boys back with her, I believe, and dad stayed in Colorado if my memory serves me right. He couldn't bear to be away from the family so he finally came back to New Mexico. He didn't like it there and didn't want to stay.

Parents Quarreling
He and mother quarreled about half the time and finally they agreed that they would both try to make it there in New Mexico and dad bought a farm down on the shores of Lake McMillan, an artificial lake. He bought it on credit, so much down but never was able to pay for that farm.
Us boys and dad worked like mules there. Worked hard and raised good crops and got beat out of that by commission men. The commission men not only beat dad, but all the rest of the farmers. So that all we got out of our work was a meager living.
When we were living at Lakewood the priest would come up about once a month and the boys would go to confession and communion and go to mass. Dad done his very best to raise us to be good Christians, but their married life got to be worse and worse. It seemed like they absolutely couldn't get along. It made it so disagreeable for us boys that Ray and I decided to leave.

Twins Run Away
I left and went up to Oklahoma when I was 16 or 17 years old, after I had finished the grammar school and then started into high school there at Lakewood. I left home while dad was out one day to Williams, 20 miles from home and then was when I left. I went up into Oklahoma and into Kansas and Colorado. Tried all kinds of work, but couldn't last very long, because I wasn't strong enough to do a man's work, but I got along pretty well.
Finally I landed in Oklahoma City—was going down California street and passed a barber college. That came to me—I saw the sign "Barber College" and I thought there is the answer to my problem. I learned the barber trade. That doesn't require great physical strength and I could do that work all right. I talked to the manager or instructor and they told me they thought they could help me get through without money.
Ray was in Oklahoma then. He left home a little before I did. We didn't leave together because we knew it was easy for dad to get trace me. No, going back to Oklahoma and the barber college,—I learned—I thought I would learn the barber trade when I seen that sign and I talked to the manager and he told me that he thought I could get through without money. So I sent a letter to Ray. He was close to Oklahoma City then, and finally managed to get in touch with him—took one trip, 500 miles, to get near Ray, or where Ray was and when I got there he had just left and I was sick—couldn't work and was broke, too.

The BARTLETT JUVENILE BAND OF ARTESIA, SCORES AGAIN

Many people have an idea in their craniums that a small town cannot do anything big. If any here have anything in their think tanks like that it is time to take another think.

The celebraion at Dexter yesterday would be a credit to Roswell, Amarillo or any other seaport. People were there by the thousands, from all over the slope. The program as published was carried out. Ball games, races, dancing, swimming, boating, diving and every other kind of innocent amusement was provided. The Bartlett Juvenile Band of Artesia furnished the music, and such music as only this band can produce. This is probably the most talked of band in the west. It is the champion band of the state and probably of the United States.

The fireworks display over Lake Van was wonderful. All who attended this celebration were glad they went to Dexter. The Dexter organization expect to make this an annual event in the future.

THEY'S BROTHER S YOUNG WIFE COMMITTS SUICIDE

John Dempsey, managing editor of the Newark (N. J.) News, says:

THAT newspapers are the glasses through which strangers view and estimate the communities they represent. Interests of a city and its press, by an iniolable law, are one. Inevitably, therefore, in order that a newspaper may prosper in a material way and at the same time gain the inestimable assets of respect, repute and wide influence, the thought guiding its editorial, news-presentation and business policies must be a thought of the community it serves, its growth, development and future welfare.

The perfect newspaper has never been achieved. But there is an ideal, to approach which is the impelling ambition of every editor, every publisher, every newspaperman imbued with the jealous love of his profession which has built, day by day, the truly great newspapers of this time.

The newspaper which enters the largest number of homes in its territory is the newspaper of greatest home interest and clearest home influence. That is a condition reflecting both good ethics and hard business sense, for in its homes are held the purse strings of the nation. Honesty in circulation methods, based on the quality, dependability and appeal of the newspaper for sale, with no artificial or claptrap stimulus, is the foundation on which is based that substantial circulation the value of which is recognized by advertisers with wares of a like quality to sell.

A conscientiously conducted newspaper recognizes a high obligation to the city and the people whose well-being is one with its own. And the great newspaper of today, preservation of the highest standards humanly attainable ever its purpose, is the greater newspaper of tomorrow.

BEAN BEETLE CONTROLLED BY SPRAY

American bean beetle feeds common varieties of garden beans, including lima beans, and is recognized as serious insect pest at present. In Press Bulletin No. 12, R. Douglas, assistant in charge of Estancia, gives the following information concerning this pest. The beetle resembles in general the other large lady beetle about one-fourth of an inch in length and has yellowish colored and black spots on the wings. The larvae both feed on the underside of the leaves. The beetle often eats completely through the tissue so that the leaves have a hole-like appearance. The cut through the leaves is on the upper surface intact. The larvae through the winter hibernating in woodlands and drainage conditions are preferred winter quarters, especially on wooded slopes, especially on oak growths. They emerge from their winter quarters after the rains have begun in the month of June or July, depending upon weather.

Take Inventory of Farm When Least to Figure

The best time to take a farm inventory is when the least figuring has to be done. For general crop and stock farms, this is usually between January 1 and when the spring work starts. For poultry farms, the best time to take it probably is just after the pullets have been put in winter quarters. For those who have to comply with the income tax regulations, January 1 is the best date.

No specific date is set for taking such an inventory, but any convenient time will do if it is taken approximately the same time each year, according to the farm management department of the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y.

The inventory should include real estate, horses, cattle, sheep, hogs, poultry, farm tools and equipment, and supplies on hand such as hay, straw, grain and silage.

In placing values, a conservative estimate of what an animal or article would sell for, with a reasonable length of time in which to dispose of it, is the best basis. This is about comparable to what it would bring at a well-attended farm auction.

After inventorying all the farm property, list other assets such as liberty bonds, certificates of indebtedness, receivable bills and cash. Shares of stock in corporations should be included at market value.

After inventorying all resources, list debts such as mortgages, notes, and bills owed, including with the notes and mortgages the dates of maturity.

After a complete list of all that is owed is made, make a summary showing the total value of each kind of farm property.

Compute the total resources, and from this subtract the total liabilities. This, then, represents the net worth or the true financial standing.

Sweet Clover Is One of the Best Soil Builders

Sweet clover is one of the best soil builders we can grow for soil building purposes. This does not mean that we should grow it to the exclusion of alfalfa or even red clover, but it does mean that we ought to seed down every acre of small grain with sweet clover that is not being seeded to some other legume intended for hay. Or perhaps at least half of the farms in Iowa we ought to grow sweet clover for pasture. It should be introduced in the rotation for both pasture and soil building. Let us pay more attention to that crop, not for hay, for alfalfa is much superior for that purpose, but, as stated, for pasture and for the addition of nitrogenous organic matter to the soil.

"HARVEST BULLETIN"

The Kansas wheat harvest is too far advanced for men from a distance to attempt to make the harvest with any assurance of employment. The harvest is now on full blast with several thousand men employed. There is demand now for men in north central Kansas, but these needs are being met from nearby points and with releases from the southern Kansas counties.

Nebraska's harvest will follow closely upon Kansas. This state has excellent wheat and will need outside labor. South Dakota will follow closely upon Nebraska and has the best prospects for a fine small grain crop the state has had in years. It will need outside men.

Harvest this year has been delayed, first by a late season which prevails generally over the entire wheat belt; later by rains which prevented cutting for several days.

As a result of this condition several thousand men, who were out of work and anxious to make the harvest, drifted into Oklahoma and Kansas in advance of harvest. Thousands of men on our mailing list were warned that Oklahoma would need no outside labor. In spite of statements from this office and from the office of the state labor commissioner of Oklahoma, three or four thousand men went to Oklahoma. Few of these secured employment. They drifted on into Kansas and these, together with several thousand others, scattered over the southern wheat counties and supplied the labor needs of southern, southwestern and central Kansas.

Those who came early, came without advice from this office. Some finding no work returned home. Others, having received word of the delayed harvest, came later without awaiting definite calls for men. This drift has been meeting the harvest labor requirements. And this condition prevented this office from issuing a bulletin telling men of opportunities for work in the Kansas fields. In spite of this abnormal situation no town in Kansas has reported more than a small surplus of harvest hands at any time since cutting started. The surplus in the state, even in advance of the harvest, has been less this season than during any previous year.

This week this office has been besieged with orders for harvest hands from North Dakota and Northwestern Kansas wheat counties. Yet the harvest was so far advanced that men could not be urged to come from a distance to meet this need. It has been necessary to recruit labor from nearby points. It has not been possible to fill all orders at the exact time hands were called for, but calls for laborers are being met gradually and releases in the southern Kansas counties now are starting and should be ample to meet needs for hands without loss to the wheat crop.

This office now is gathering definite information as to cutting dates, labor needs and probable wages in Nebraska and South Dakota. This information is coming in now and another bulletin will be issued within a very few days giving all interested parties this information.

TRUTH IN ADVERTISING

The following story clipped from a Coast paper, typifies the average guarantee:
"Jones answered an advertisement, and sent a dollar for four pair of socks. When they arrived, he looked them over, and then wrote the advertiser: 'Socks received. The patterns are vile. I wouldn't be seen on the streets with them on.' Back came the answer: 'What are you objecting to? Didn't we guarantee you wouldn't wear them out?'"
