SAYS PAST SEVEN AND HALF YEARS IS BLACK PAGE IN AMERICAN HISTORY — Al Smith Is Principal Issue Over State.

The first speaker, J. S. Vaught, immediately launched into the discussion of the national issues. Mr. Vaught stated to the audience that he had no press agent and was compelled to bring his message to the voters as he went from community to community. The speaker stated that the republicans said they would make the campaign on their past record, when assembled at the convention at Kansas City, but had not mentioned this past record in the campaign since that date. In comparing the records of the two national parties, Mr. Vaught stated that more progressive legislation was enacted during the Wilson administration than any previous administration history. When the republicans went into power in 1921, they started a campaign of stealing and the record made by this party during the past seven and one half years was one of the blackest pages of American history; the way they have treated the ex-service men is the darkest page, Mr. Vaught charged.

NINE CARS OF CALVES ARE SHIPPED OUT OF THIS SECTION MONDAY

Jackson is chairman. Visitors present included Flay Austin, H. B. Smyrle and Earl Patterson of Roswell, H. L. and H. L. Jones Jr., city.

DANGER OF PRAIRIE FIRES GROWING AS THE HIGH GRASS MATURES

A large section of the southwest is today facing the danger of a disastrous prairie fire. The danger is not confined to the Pecos valley, but practically all of the plains of the state as well as a large part of West Texas. Midland is the first West Texas town to see the peril of a fire on the ranges and accordingly the Midland Chamber of Commerce has posted large signs along the Bankhead highway saying an exchange, warning the motorist not to throw burning cigarettes, matches, cigars or like materials where there is a likelihood of setting fire to the ranges. One rancher tells us that the needle grass some days drifts higher than his dwelling and none of the ranch employees dare light a cigarette or pipe for fear of setting the dwelling and ranch on fire.

FIRST OF THE SPRING LAMB CROP IS BEING SHIPPED OUT TODAY

The first shipment of spring lambs was made today by the purchaser Ralph Vandawart of Roswell. This shipment consisted of approximately 1500 head and was the property of Dick McDonald, Wink Hardin, Ed Watts, Frank Runyan and Fred Brainard. Mr. Vandawart expects to ship out about 25,000 head from the valley points and of this number approximately 20,000 will be shipped from Artesia, Lake Arthur and Lakewood. These lambs will go to the feeder markets in Kansas and Colorado. It was estimated last spring that about 50,000 lambs would be shipped from the Pecos valley points, but owing to a late freeze the spring crop was cut to about two thirds of the original estimate or about 35,000 head. Spring lambs are bringing from 10 to 11 cents per pound.

MEXICAN TEAM WINS ANOTHER TEST FOR POTASH ANNOUNCED IN CRANE COUNTY TEX.

W. B. Lang, in charge of potash tests for the U. S. Geological Survey, has announced the location of another test, No. 11, in Block B-25, Section 3, public school land, on the Gulf-Waddell lease in Crane county, Texas. These tests were provided by the congressional appropriation of one-half million dollars for a five-year program with funds available at $100,000 annually. Three of the ten tests already completed were drilled in Eddy county and analysis thus far published by the geological survey indicate potash in Eddy county in sufficient quantity to be commercially profitable.

DRIVE TO ORGANIZE A RED CROSS CHAPTER TO BE MADE NOV. 11th

On Armistice day there will be a Red Cross drive for donations and memberships. One half of the amount collected will remain with the chapter at Artesia. After the drive the chapter will be reorganized with new officers. Membership fees remain at one dollar each and it is hoped that over one hundred memberships will be taken out. Unlike other drives for outside charities and benefactions, no part of the sums collected will be applied to the expenses, salaries or commissions of the solicitors, as no expenses are attached to this drive, and half the money remains here.

Interest Is Growing And Big Vote Is Expectation

The Presidential Campaign Is Chief Issue With The Governor's Race Second—A Big Vote Over Nation Is Expected.

Local Politics is Warming up as the date for the general election approaches, with the main interest centered on the presidential race.

The governor's race is taking second interest and little is said of the remaining state ticket of either party. There are a number of factors entering into the present campaign, which makes a guess as to the outcome hazardous, although this precinct is expected to show a democratic majority in the national and state ticket. Present indications point to the fact that there will be a number of mixed ballots voted by the regulars of both parties, although a number who have indicated that they intend to vote a mixed ticket, will likely vote a straight ticket when they go to the polls. Predictions have also been made that a few who attempt to mix their ballots may be confused on the regulations and lose their vote.

While an increasing amount of time is being consumed in arguing politics by members of both parties, the arguments have been void of personal feeling and it is felt that Artesia can recover quickly from the after effects of November 6th.

THE OFFICIAL BALLOT THIS YEAR WILL CONTAIN FIVE TICKETS TO CHOOSE FROM, THE DEMOCRATS, WHO HAVE THE ONLY COMPLETE TICKET FROM PRESIDENT TO THE DISTRICT OFFICE, THE REPUBLICAN TICKET CONTAINING THE NAMES OF CANDIDATES FOR THE NATIONAL AND THE STATE OFFICES, THE NON PARTISAN SCHOOL TICKET CONTAINING ONLY THE NAME OF MISS LOIS RANDOLPH FOR SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION AND AN INDEPENDENT TICKET ON WHICH NO NAMES HAVE BEEN CERTIFIED.

PARDONS EDDY CO. MAN

Governor Dillon issued two pardons and one commutation Monday. Ed Taylor sentenced from Eddy county in 1927 was given a complete pardon. S. Toncroza, sentenced from Bernalillo county in 1927 was given a conditional pardon and Roy L. Henderson, sentenced from Santa Fe county in September 1927 to serve in the pen from nine to ten years had his sentence commuted from three to ten years.

REDUCED COAL RATES WILL SAVE THE VALLEY RESIDENTS $50,000.00

Reduced rates on coal from the Waldo and Gallup districts in northern New Mexico to Pecos valley point as far south as Otis, was effective on the 18th, it was announced last week. The reduced freight rate was the result of the efforts of the valley coal dealers with the Pecos valley traffic bureau, who have had the matter up before the State Corporation Commission since October 1927. The order of the corporation commission was finally upheld by the supreme court. It is estimated that the reduced rates will save the valley residents a sum of $50,000 annually.

Joe Jesse, Crowell Allen and Willis Morgan, of the Joyce-Fruit force attended the circus in Roswell yesterday.

IS CORRUPTION A MORAL ISSUE?

As the campaign progresses we hear a great deal about prohibition being a moral issue. This much is granted, however, we doubt if a number of Al Smith's critics have made real effort to understand his attitude with reference to prohibition. In this connection we wonder if honesty should not also be a moral issue. It has not been so very long ago since children were taught that it was moral and right to be honest, but it appears that this important trait has been side-stopped for the moment in upholding of a law, which has not been enforced for the past eight years.

Not many days ago we were given a taste of a matter akin to the Tea Pot Dome, which still smells of the corruption and that was the government contract with the Sinclair interests for the oil royalty from the the Salt Creek, Wyoming field. Mr. Work, now directing the republican national campaign was then secretary of the interior and quietly passed the buck and it was not until the matter was put up to the president and pressed for action that it was referred to the department of justice. Now Mr. Work will have a job of explaining his attitude on the Salt Creek royalty to the voters.

Referring to the Salt Creek royalty matter, the State Tribune remarks:

The department of justice, after some six months' investigation, finally has decided that the contract of the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Co., for the purchase of government royalty oil from the Salt Creek field is invalid.

Whether the department was prodded into announcing its opinion at this moment by charges of Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana there is of course no way of knowing. It is noteworthy however, that the department acted within a few days after Walsh had asserted publicly that there was a conspiracy of silence among government officials to withhold facts about the illegal contract at this time.

The contract was made on January 1 of this year, for five years, between the Sinclair Co., and Hubert Work, then secretary of the interior. The Sinclair Co., had held a contract for the preceding five years, which had been negotiated with Albert B. Fall.

Fall had secretly inserted into this contract an option for its renewal. This, the department of justice now holds, voids the contract, because it gave the Sinclair Co., an advantage not accorded to other bidders.

At the time the contract was renewed other oil men protested. Work relied upon the opinion of the solicitor of his department, to whom he referred the question, that the contract was not only legal, but the government was obligated to the renewal. Protests were carried to the president, who turned the matter over to the justice department.

The department's opinion is couched in strictly legal terms and avoids any reference to possible fraud. It is recalled, however, that when Sinclair was on the stand before the senate public lands committee last spring, he was asked by Walsh if it was not true that his bid had been received by telegram several hours after the advertised time, noon of November 15, 1922. Sinclair did not remember and Walsh said the telegram was dated late in the afternoon of that day.

Sinclair had spent part of the week just preceding November 15 with Fall at Three Rivers, New Mexico. He denied an agreement had been reached whereby his bid might be delayed.

PATIENCE AND OPTIMISM

The successful oil operator is both patient and optimistic, the operations in southeastern New Mexico for months have proved this. He is also a believer in the old saying, "All things come to him who waits."

Not long ago when a complaint was made that it looked like there would be nothing to write or talk about so far as the development of this section was concerned, a scout replied, "Well, we are finding out more about the country everyday." Indications are brighter just at present than at any time during the past six months, that the operators will not only learn more about the country but that they will uncover some major oil pools as well.

Activity during the past week has been very encouraging. It will take time however to prove up some of the wildcat territory. The oil industry has been compelled to adjust itself to the periods of depression as well as the flush times. Now it appears as though the tide is slowly turning for the better.

We don't know how many sheep there are in the state, but we expect to have a pretty good idea about the number in San Miguel county, when the votes are counted November 6. Delgado and Romero both raise sheep as a side line when they are not playing politics.

MAKE YOUR SELECTION NOW

The Southwestern Plainsman in a recent editorial remarks:

In a recent speech at Columbus, Ohio, United States Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Dunlap declared that he considered the present the best time for thirty years to buy farms. Certainly Secretary Dunlap is in a position to be well posted on the outlook and believing that he should know what he is talking about. According to his deductions, there are many hopeful factors in the farm situation at the present time but after reading his address, one cannot fail to be impressed with the fact that he is expecting improved conditions to be brought about by the farmers themselves rather than by legislation. He foresees that the farmers are going to become persuaded more and more, to take advantage of the information and advice which is freely furnished by the department of agriculture, the extension service and various other governmental agencies. It is no longer enough for a farmer to work hard in order to succeed. His business has become too complicated. The farmer today has to reckon with a thousand and one things that never entered into the calculations of his grandfather at all—in fact they didn't exist. A revolution is taking place in agriculture which bids fair to bring about a great change in methods. If Mr. Dunlap is correct in his deductions, farming should become more profitable in the next several years and those who like rural life should take advantage of the present opportunity to select a farm home that meets their ideals. This seems to be a sort of transition period with low prices to select—an opportunity for the farmless farmer and the farmerless farm to get together.

A GOOD SUGGESTION

Regardless of whether we accept all the suggestions offered by Bob Dow, candidate for governor on the democratic ticket, as being for the best interests of the state, there is one suggested change which smacks soundly of common sense and that is for the district attorneys to do the collecting of delinquent taxes. Mr. Dow claims that this step will save the state the tidy sum of $116,000, which would more than buy free text books for the school children. Even though we do not want the free text book law, the $116,000 savings will be welcomed by the tax payers. Not only do we believe that it would be expedient to place the collection of delinquent taxes in the hands of the district attorney, but demand that the tax suits be filed promptly. It is not right for the citizen who pays his taxes promptly to be compelled to bear a major portion of the expense of government.

Another suggested change advanced by Mr. Dow is that the highway department be taken out of politics. Lets go a step further and take another important state office out of politics, that of state school superintendent.

ROUNDER'S MOTHER

Old Trapper, who lives in Skunk canyon over towards the H. J. ranch, was in town after beans and bacon last week and with him was his favorite dog, Rounder. Rounder is a descendant of all the dogs that have lived before him to the common bystander, but Old Trapper says he has some wonderful traits.

Old Trapper says that Rounder's mother was a wonderful bird dog, never flushed a bird when she once pointed it, and would stand like a wooden dog for hours. That trait was what caused her untimely end. Old Trapper was over in the foothills of the Cherry Cows after birds, and the brush was so thick that he lost Rounder's mother but supposed that she would find her way home when night came. She never showed up and it was not until the following year that the cause of her disappearance was explained.

Old Trapper was hunting over the same ground the next year and in a little clearing came onto some bleached bones of some animal and on closer examination they proved to be the skeleton of a dog. A few feet away on a rocky shelf was the skeleton of a bird. Evidently Rounder's mother had pointed a bird and both had starved to death.—Exchange.

GETTING ACTION

Whatever the outcome of the presidential contest now being waged throughout the nation, one should give the democratic nominee's stand on prohibition credit for reviving talk on prohibition enforcement, which seems to be getting some action locally. This should be a source of satisfaction to those who are determined to stand by the democratic nominee as well as those who say that prohibition should come before party loyalty.

THAT LITTLE WATCH WHEEL

The watch wheel in your pocket runs 4,836 miles per year, says an official of the Southern Pacific railroad. One dollar collected every time your watch ticks would pile up each year a fortune amounting to roughly $157,680,000.

He further says:

"Your watch should tick 18,000 times each hour, or 432,000 times each day if it is keeping accurate time. The balance wheel should travel about one and ninety-six one-hundredths inches with each beat, thirteen and one quarter miles every twenty-four hours, or 4,836 miles in a year.

TOO MANY AUTO ACCIDENTS

Deaths from automobile accidents have increased five per cent over last year, says a recent press report. During the first eight months of the present year over 16,000 people have been killed by the autos in the United States and at the present death rate the total is expected to reach 24,000. Too many deaths by the auto.

While reading the press dispatch we were constrained to wonder how many auto deaths were due to drunken driving.

THE SUCCESSFUL MAN

The story of every successful man is the same in essential details. He began work when he was young, stuck to it, was reliable, efficient, polite, fair and had respect for the lessons of experience. The story has been told so often that it greatly enrages the loafers, and they make fun of it; but here is one fact to depend upon.—E. W. Howe.

J. MORROW'S RECORD

Attention is called to the legislation brought to New Mexico by the democratic membership in the congress of the United States, especially the efforts of John Morrow, as sole representative in the lower branch of congress.

Some twenty-one measures were enacted during the first half of the seventieth congress, dealing with constructive legislation for the state and more especially the following bills, 6496, 6497, 6498, 6499, Rio Grande river compact between New Mexico Colorado and Texas, to protect New Mexico's rights to the water of the Rio Grande; Pecos river of Texas and New Mexico; Cimarron of North New Mexico and Oklahoma. These bills were reported favorable and upon consent went to the calendar for action in the December 1928 session. Conserving and protecting these waters to the state is among the vital needs for New Mexico's future development.

Public resolution No. 7, to amend the constitution of New Mexico in order to submit to the voters of the state, the proposed amendment passed by the 8th state legislature, dealing with contracts for the protection of minerals upon state lands. Appropriation of $250,000 for Avalon dam; $71,000 for Carlsbad Caverns; $100,000 for Middle Rio Grande conservancy district; $70,000 for Hatch flood sufferers; 250,000 acres of land to care for the settlement of indebtedness in Grant, Luna, Hidalgo, Santa Fe, counties and the town of Silver City. A total indebtedness of $400,000, one half of same charged to Silver City, a matter pending for 40 years, now finally disposed of and the remaining funds from land sales, estimated more than half a million dollars to go to the common school fund of the state. Many more private and public bills, sponsored by Mr. Morrow were passed.

We also call attention of Mr. Morrow's work upon flood control; his efforts for impounding dams, his work for the Boulder dam and particularly clearing title to school lands; his work in the house with the efforts of the late Senator Jones in bringing the state mineral rights in 9,000,000 acres of public lands, which means millions of dollars, if honest men handle same in state.

Mr. Morrow stands for protection upon all New Mexico interests, live stock, cattle, sheep and wool and has introduced in congress a bill for protection upon hides and also seed products.

SECRETARY MELLON'S DENIAL

The following letter addressed to W. A. Prather of Mitchell, South Dakota, by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, under date of August 29, has been made public; and for the information of our readers, we give it in full:

My Dear Mr. Prather: I have your letter of August 27, 1928, with references to statements being made in the campaign to the effect that I am not sincere in my efforts to enforce the prohibition law and that my own fortune was built upon the distillery business.

The facts are that, while I once owned some stock in a distillery company, as I owned stock in many other business enterprises, the amount which I invested in the distillery company was comparatively small, and all my stock in this company was disposed of before I took office as secretary of the treasury. In fact, the distillery company absolutely ceased from doing any of its manufacturing business over three years before the prohibition amendment went into effect, and the entire business was subsequently wound up.

At no time was I actually engaged in the distillery business, and I have now no interest in or connection with, the distillation of liquor or any liquor business. My business interests have always been largely banking and industrial, and they were originally of a banking nature.

As regards the treasury to enforce the prohibition law, the best commentary is that on my recommendation the Prohibition Unit has been reorganized as a separate bureau under the direct charge of Commissioner of Prohibition Doran, who exercises most of the powers in connection with prohibition enforcement heretofore exercised by the secretary of the treasury. This brings to the Prohibition Bureau a unified and more concentrated and effective organization. Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Lowman also has general supervision over prohibition matters. The sincerity of both Mr. Lowman and Mr. Doran is generally recognized, and their work, I believe, meets with the approval of the leading dry organizations of the country.

Very truly yours,
A. W. Mellon,
Secretary of the Treasury.

DEMING RAISES SPEED LIMIT

DEMING.—At a recent meeting of the State Highway Commissioners all towns through which federal aid roads pass were asked to abolish stop signs on these highways and to raise the speed limit to a maximum of 25 miles per hour where the existing limit was below that. This town has gone the commissioners one better and has raised her speed limits to 35 miles per hour. With Deming in the lead the other towns on U. S. 80 will undoubtedly fall into line with the result that the driving time between points on the Broadway of American will be considerably reduced.

Mr. and Mrs. John Dunn spent Sunday at Hope, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Andy Teel.

Jim Salmon and father, W. H. Salmon, arrived from Oklahoma, Tuesday on a business trip. The younger man homesteaded a piece of land here and is known to many of our people.

Mrs. Laura Welch, who has been making an extended visit to her son, Ed, at Hibbing, Minnesota, and her daughter, Mrs. Wm. Mead at Youngstown, Ohio, is expected home about the first of the month. She will visit friends at Kansas City on her way from Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Anderson and little daughter, Christine, are expected home the last of the week from El Paso, Texas, where they are spending this week with Mr. Anderson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Anderson.

Fin Watson returned after spending a week's vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Watson, at Pecos, Texas. His mother and little brother, William, accompanied him and are visiting at the home of his brother, Aubrey Watson, this week. His father is expected tomorrow on a short business trip and the others will probably return to Pecos with him.

Fredrick was crying, when Billy came along and asked what was the matter.

"Oh, I feel so bad 'cause Collie's dead," sobbed Fredrick. "Shucks," said Billy. "My grandmother's been dead a week and you don't catch me crying."

Fredrick gave his eyes and nose a swipe and looking up, sobbed despairingly:

"Yes but you didn't raise your grandmother from a pup."

"I hear your son is at college."

"Yep."

"How' he doing?"

"Pretty good I guess, he's taking three courses. I've just paid $10 for Latin, $10 for Greek and $100 for Scotch."

NEW TOILET DESIGNS

Women are the leaders in our new standards of taste. Merchants and manufacturers are working day and night to keep pace with the influences of style and beauty paramount today. Art and artists are searching the world for new ideas and designs in patterns and styles that will enable them to show the progress in their skill and talent.

In toilet accessories they have found new thrills by reason of the patterns and designs in inspiring creations known as "Lucite."

There is an oriental motif of this material known as "Ming," described as an inspiration from the authentic bowls and vases on display at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. It is in colors of mandarin red, jade green and jet black. There is another famous design in "Empire" pattern, which carries all the romance and beauty which distinguished that high point in French art in the days of Napoleon. Paris is right now revealing anew in Empire creations that include everything from dresses and hats through the list of articles of furniture, table services, spoons forks and dishes. But Empire patterns, though French in origin, do not neglect in color our own Colonial buff and blue. The other patterns in- clude floral designs known as the "Orchist" and the "Fleur d'or," in gorgeous and flashing colors. The decorations of the Fleur d'or are, as the name implies, inspired by the chrysanthemum and consist of a rich background laid on a base of silver gray, which will provide a contrast- ing note to more delicate colors.

"Lucite" the new material is a beautiful, translucent, plastic which has satisfied the designers and won the favorable verdict of a jury of a thousand American women selected because they were recognized as the Nation's best critics and authority on style.

WHAT THEY SAY:

J. R. Shock, county superintendent of schools. "Pastors cannot reward their parish workers more fittingly than by bringing them to see it. Teachers should make it a point to lead their pupils to it en masse."

Will Rogers says: "I just now saw the movie 'The King of Kings.' This is not an ad. It's a duty to let you know it. The only way you could make a greater picture would be to have a better subject, and I doubt if there will ever be a better subject during our lifetime than the story of Christ."

Rev. L. L. Thurston, former pastor Methodist Church, Portales. "The King of Kings' is the best motion picture in the world today. No man, woman or child should miss seeing it."

Rev. Joe F. Grizzle, pastor First Baptist church, Portales. "From what I have read of 'King of Kings,' I feel sure it induces reverence, proper self thought, loyalty to the Christ and the enlarging sense of Christian brotherhood."

Rev. W. K. Johnston, D. D., of Lub- bock, Texas. "I am certain that any- one witnessing this splendid picture will come away with a feeling that the time was well spent from an en- tertainment and educational stand- point."

Rev. W. G. MacArthur, superinten- dent Baptist Orphans' Home. "It is probably the greatest religious and educational film ever produced."

TAXPAYERS SAVED $443,000 IN INTEREST THROUGH THE REFUND OF BOND ISSUES

SANTA FE.—Statistics which show that taxpayers of the state have been saved $443,684.43 in interest through the refunding during 1927 and 1928 of bond issues announced Saturday by John Joerns, secretary of the state tax commission.

The total amounts of bonds for counties, municipalities and school districts which have been refunded, Mr. Joerns said, total $1,264,900.

"If the old bonds had been contin- ued in force," Mr. Joerns said, "the amount of interest which would have to be paid would be $1,036,670.50. Practically all of the old bonds. All of the refunding bonds are serial bonds, which provide for an annual reduction of the principal and inter- est. Ninety per cent of them carry a lower rate of interest. The amount of interest which will have to be paid on the refunding bond issues is $592,986.07, and represents a saving to the taxpayers in interest payments of $443,694.43."

Eliminate - inner tire breakdown

More than 50% of all tires go on the scrap heap through internal breakdown instead of wearing out. Polson Super Tubes prevent this by cushioning tires against the impacts of the road, preventing inner cord breaks and stone bruise. In addition, they maintain air pressure evenly for from thirty to sixty days without attention, thus safeguard- ing against under- inflation and the tire evils that fol- low in its train. Yet by the mile or by the year, Pol- son Tubes cost less than any others. Let us tell you more about them.

P. E. O. MEETING

The second meeting of the month was held at the home of Mrs. Chester Russell last Friday afternoon, with an unusually large attendance. After the business meeting a program upon the pre-historic history of New Mexico was given. Our state has perhaps the most interesting history of any in the Union especially on account of its many interesting ruins of cliff dwellings and communal houses and the data obtained concerning their builders, and this fact is becoming increasingly recognized. Mrs. J. H. Jackson assisted the leader, Mrs. Stroup, in presenting the program. The roll call was famous New Mexico characters.

The Russell home was attractively decorated in a color scheme of yellow and white and light refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by the Misses Dora Russell, Merrill Bradley and Ruth Morgan. Mrs. Frank Middleton of Indiana and Mrs. Addy of Missouri were guests at the meeting.

MISSIONARY MEETING

A social service program was given at the meeting of the society last Thursday at the home of Mrs. E. B. Bullock. Mrs. Cowan was the able leader and was assisted by a number of the members in presenting this important subject. The missionary Bulletin was of unusual interest this month. Plans were made for attending the missionary zone meeting, which will be held in the Methodist church at Hope all day tomorrow. Delicious pumpkin pie and coffee were served by the hostess assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Landis Feather. There was a very good attendance.

MRS BRAINARD HONORED

A Hallowe'en luncheon was a charming reminder to Mrs. Reed Brainard of the annual return of her birthday anniversary. The luncheon was given by Mrs. John McCann and Mrs. Fred Brainard at the home of the latter last Friday at one o'clock. The luncheon table was a picture in its Hallowe'en decorations, which were scattered about the various rooms also. The two hostesses were gown-ed in costumes typical of the season, and served the luncheon which was in three courses. Covers were laid for the honor guest and Mesdames Cowan, Robertson, Dixon, Keller, Kinder W. P. Cox, Blocker and T. C. Bird.

HE WAS IN CHARGE OF THE FAMILY

(© by D. J. Walsh.)

WHEN John Reardon died and left direction that his big farm should be carried on by his five sons without change, also that John, the eldest, was to have sole charge not only of the work but also of fulfilling his plans regarding the younger children, the neighbors said it was preposterous. Even if a boy of eighteen was capable of carrying on a big farm—which, of course, he wasn't—it was ridiculous to think of his bringing up a family of four headstrong boys.

But John did not flinch. His father had been a hard-working man—killed himself that way, was the common verdict—and John was very much like him. The morning after the funeral he and the next two boys, Tom and Luther, were in the barn as usual, beginning the day's labors by the light of lanterns. When the sun rose over the eastern hills they had milked fifteen cows, done the chores and had the milk wagon standing in front of the kitchen door, ready for its trip to the factory village six miles away.

As they left the breakfast table John paused for a moment in the doorway.

"I don't suppose there's any use to go over the details," he said thoughtfully. "We all know what father's wishes were."

"To go through college, learn some profession or trade and for you to hold the reins," commented Tom, briefly.

John nodded.

"You understand what it means, too, I suppose," he went on gravely. "We have a big farm here, but that is all. A college education costs a great deal of money, and there are five of us. We will have to work sixteen hours a day, as we are doing now, year after year, without time for play or recreation, until each of us is through with his schooling. Are you willing?"

"Count me in," said Tom, sturdily.

"And me," chimed in the twins, Harry and Joe. Luther alone remained silent.

"Well, Luther?" said John his clear, uncompromising eyes turning sharply to the third boy.

"You know, John, without my telling," Luther replied, irritably. "Father and I went over it times enough. I'm willing to help you until spring, and you are welcome to my share of the farm, but I don't care for a college education. I have other views."

"But your views must come in after father's wishes," returned John. "You know he went through college, and he wants all us boys to. That's what he worked so hard for. He said a man could do better work in the world if he was educated."

Luther's eyes flashed rebelliously.

"I'm willing to work until spring," he repeated. "Going to college would be wasting too many years. Just think! By the time we were through, and helped Harry and Joe through, I would be twenty-five years old or more. No, I can't wait that long. If you'll sell two of the cows next spring and give me the money, I'll call everything square and go off and fit myself for what I like."

It was now John's usually calm eyes that flashed.

"After we are all educated the farm may be sold and divided," he said, shortly; "or one of us can take it and pay the others their share. Until then everything from it goes toward college expenses. You can share that way or not, just as you like."

Luther turned abruptly and walked toward the barn whistling. John gazed after him irresolutely, and once started as though he would call him back. Then his eyes hardened.

Luther was only fifteen, he thought, and did not know his own mind. He would come round before he was old enough for college.

But as he went down the land toward the main road he glanced anxiously toward the barn, with half a mind to leave the wagon and look up his brother instead. However, it was already late, and the milk customers would be growing impatient.

It was long past noon when he reached home, and the boys had gone back to their work. It took an hour for him to feed the horse and wash the milk cans and set them out in the sun. The woman hired to do the housework had the poultry and pigs to look after, and the butter and cheese to make, so John had taken it upon himself to wash the cans every day after his return from the village. At length it was accomplished and he took a hoe and started for the field where the boys were at work. Tom saw him approaching and came to meet him.

"Here's a note Luther gave me for you soon after you left this morning," Tom said anxiously. "I'm afraid he's up to something."

John took the note, which read: "Dear John and the Boys: I'm afraid we can't agree very well about the college business. There is one thing I like, and which I think I can do well, and it don't seem right for me to give it up for something I don't like and can't do well. Father used to say everyone should do his best. That's what I'm going to try to do, only not in the way he meant. Don't think too hard of the shiftless brother who isn't brave and patient enough to fight for a college education, and don't worry about me. I'm going to the place where David boards, and will be all right.

"LUTHER."

"Well, what do you make of it?" "Nothing now, except that I've been too hard. I'm not old enough to treat him as father could. Now let's pitch in and finish off the field before night. Tomorrow you'll have to run the milk wagon, for I'm going to the city to that place where David Brown boards."

It was only two hours' ride to the city, and little trouble was experienced in finding the big tenement building in which David Brown, the son of one of their neighbors, had lodging. Luther had taken a room on the third floor, the janitor said, and he gave John directions how to reach it. But when he went up John found the room empty, although the door was ajar. Evidently Luther had gone out on some errand, perhaps to David's room.

He recognized Luther's hat upon the bed, and flushed a little as he saw an unframed picture of his father in a conspicuous place on the wall. There was a dingy bureau in the room, and on it a violin in a cheap pasteboard box. He gave a low cry of comprehension as he saw it. Then he drew out the violin, glistening and bright in its unsoiled coat of varnish and with the price mark not yet erased.

John's eyes grew tender as he gazed. Unquestionably this was the cause of Luther's unrest. He knew the boy had brought only $10 from home to pay his fare to the city. Allowing even a small amount for the room rent, probably all the rest had been put into this cheap violin. How he must have longed for it, to risk all the money he had, with no prospect of more coming in! He remembered Luther's passionate devotion to a violin which had been given to him several years before, and which had caused him to neglect some chores, until finally his father had consigned it to the fireplace. A year later Luther had saved up his earnings and bought another instrument, which had gone the way of the first. After that the boy had been more sullen and reserved than ever.

A quick step in the hall, and John turned, with the violin in his hand, to gaze into the astonished, defiant eyes of Luther.

"John."

"Luther!" and then the older boy stepped forward impulsively and placed both hands upon his brother's shoulders. It was such an unprecedented act for the grave, matter-of-fact John to do that the defiance in Luther's eyes changed to questioning surprise.

"I've come to talk things over," John explained, "and to ask forgiveness. Lately I've been feeling almost as though I were a grownup man, and the rest of you only boys, and I'm afraid I've acted that way. If you'll come we'll try to make it pleasant."

Luther shook his head, with some of the hardness coming back into his eyes.

"I mean to learn that," nodding toward the violin in John's hands, "just the same as the rest of you mean to go through college."

"Of course I understand that," John conceded quickly. "I wish I had before. But why can't you learn at home? You can take a few hours from work every day to practice, and there's that Mr. Carew down in the village. Folks say he's a splendid musician, and he's willing to give you two lessons a week. I spoke to him about it. I'm afraid you couldn't afford to hire a teacher here."

A teacher? Luther's eyes glistened at the thought. And learn at home? The very idea made him hold his breath. Why, back there he had felt it almost a crime to even mention a violin.

"Yes," John said, answering the expression on Luther's face, "it will be best that way; and I am sure father would have wished it so had he understood. But you see he was always so busy working for us that he never found time to really get acquainted. And as to the college, I really wish you would go, like the rest of us. I think it will help you and it is what father wished. You will not have to wait so very long. Tom will go first, and then you."

"Oh, I'll wait until the last. I understand the farm better than the rest of you, and can make it turn in more money. After Harry and Joe get through college I'll take my turn."

"But you'll be pretty high thirty years old," wonderingly.

"Yes, pretty nigh. Father was thirty before he had worked his way through."

Luther looked at him with the last trace of sullenness and defiance going from his eyes.

"If you can do that," he said at last, slowly, "I guess I'll be glad to stand by and help."

Arboreal Fiction

"I suspect," answered Senator Sorghum, "that it was a cherry tree; one of the same kind George Washington chopped down when he was a little boy."

Suggestions for Veiling The Autumn Bride

Two very charming versions of head-dresses which are modish for the autumn bride are shown in the picture. Exquisite simplicity is the keynote of the one shown at the top. The other model elaborates the theme somewhat with a cap of pearls and orange blossom motifs, at the same time adhering to the snug silhouette.

The Real Thing Last
The duke of Cambridge when in Rome paid a visit to the pope, from which he returned greatly impressed: "I don't hold," he afterward remarked, "with all this spoilation of the pope; tomorrow they will be robbing the king, and, the day after, they'll be wanting to rob me."—From "Reminiscences," by Sir Vincent Corbett.

Napoleon's Consort

She had magnificent hair and eyebrows and dark-blue eyes, and her expression was full of sentiment and kindness."

Watch the Little Things
A little neglect may breed great mischief. For want of a nail the shoe was lost, for want of the shoe the horse was lost, for want of the horse the rider was lost—being overtaken and slain by an enemy—all for the want of care about a horseshoe nail—Benjamin Franklin.

Always One Smaller
Electrons are so small, investigators tell us, that 50,000,000 of them could sit on the point of a pin. Yet there are no limits to smallness. Doubtless among that 50,000,000 there could be a point so small that one electron could sit on it and say, "Ouch!"

Trail of Diamonds
Because diamonds are frequently found in glacial debris in the Great Lakes region, geologists believe there is a huge diamond deposit in the vicinity of Hudson bay. Search for it has been futile because of glacial rock covering territory.

Temperance problems cause no trouble in Afghanistan, for the country is "dry" of its own free will. That is to say, there is no law against the sale or consumption of intoxicants, but public opinion is against it.

Tailored Coat Dress for Street Wear

Interest is revived in the coat-dress for street wear, styled of one of the very new lightweight woolsens, or of the new rayon and wool weaves which are so effective. Perfected tailoring is the outstanding feature of these frocks, with attention directed to unusual detail. A handsome fur neck-piece is indispensable.

Numerous lies are in circulation about the presidential candidates and as election day approaches, we may expect them to become more numerous and perhaps more nauseating. Look out for eleventh hour canards.

Lying is a habit and any person that will deliberately lie in politics, will lie about his business and will bear watching.

Democratic Chairman Raskob in speaking on this subject well says:

"Any attempt to vilify the reputation of a man of good character who is running for the high office of President of the United States is pretty low politics, I think. To attack a man's view is proper. To attack the character of men of high reputation, such as Gov. Smith and Mr. Hoover, is highly improper. The country is in a sorry state when two men contending for the highest office in the gift of the people, whose private lives are above reproach, have got to be subject to the indignities of slander, lies and charges which have not even the slightest foundation of truth."

MAYHILL BRIDGE COMPLETE

The state highway department announces that a new bridge above Elk has been completed. This bridge eliminates the last crossing on the Penasco. A few years ago there were twenty-six fords on this route. The new bridge is fifty-five feet long and is the result of the promise of the highway department and Governor Dillon that the last ford should be taken out of the route.

BOTH PARTIES INTENT UPON VICTORY IN STATE AS CAMPAIGN FINISHES

SANTA FE.—With less than two weeks of working days left and three Sundays for everyone to catch their breath the political campaign in New Mexico swings into the stretch with the leaders of both parties intent upon their campaign strategy intended to carry them both to victory on election day. Unfortunately some one will have to lose, to make the election orderly.

The campaign in the state got away to a late start, in comparison with the campaigns in other states. From three weeks to a month before the New Mexico parties got down to the business of selecting their tickets other states had their tickets in the field and both their state and national campaigns underway.

Working on the premise that a short campaign was easier on campaign funds, political pocketbooks, and campaigners themselves, and with some jockeying for convention positions as an incentive for a little further delay the conventions were cleaned up early in September by the party camps. Five weeks of maneuvering, canvassing and speaking have just about indicated to the democratic and republican headquarters where they stand respectively with the voters, and the final two weeks give promise of showing a whirlwind finish, with both factions finally stamping the seal of security on the ground already gained and working to strengthen uncertain territory.

The wind up of county conventions apparently had republican headquarters on the edge for a few days, with regard to the situation in three counties as it might effect party harmony, but to all outward appearances, and with respect to the statements of leaders in the counties, the San Miguel, McKinley and Sandoval county eruptions were disposed of harmoniously, and completed with the party in the counties united for the tickets nominated.

About the only claims advanced so far on given territory has been the claim by republican speakers that Chaves county would go for Hoover. The claim, however, brought an immediate and emphatic refutation from Jethro Vaught and Coe Howard in a prediction to republican headquarters, that "wherever Chaves county or any of the other eastern counties go republican the rivers will be flowing up hill, the trees will be growing with their roots in the air and the republican party will have adopted Bryan's cross of gold speech as a part of its national platform."

Charges of whispering campaigns intended to arouse religious prejudice continue to be left at the gate of one party on one night and be returned to the given with the compliments of the receiver the next night.

In the gubernatorial race Governor Dillon has not departed far from his practice of short speeches and is emphasizing "the building of the highways as the state's third greatest industry" and the development of the state's resources, while attorney General Robert C. Dow has continued his charges of "extravagance in the present republican administration," and his promise to "give the people a more efficient and less expensive government and clean out the state house and highway department of political pie counter politicians."

While politics from the pulpit has cropped out prominently in several other states, the ministers of New Mexico, so far as reports to the newspapers indicate have kept out of the political situation.

Only twice during the campaign so far has there been political expressions made by ministers in the state before religious meetings, and both of those utterances were made by representatives of a church, who came into the state from elsewhere—one from Colorado and one from Texas.

The straight ticket voter, is the principal enigma faced by both parties. With both parties facing the possibility of ordinary safe votes being deflected by the unusual presidential situation, there is some conjecture over whether democrats who may vote for Hoover and republicans who may vote for Smith, will vote straight or scratched tickets.

Both political headquarters express confidence but likewise both confess that they have problems. Personal house to house canvassing has been engaged in statewide by both parties, and it may be that the real effective work of the campaign will come from the army of workers in the field.

SEEN IN THE GLASS OF FASHION

"Things are not always what they seem" as was remarked by wise Phaedrus in the year 8 A. D. This observation fits most every phase of life. For instance, a sheer dress material looks for all the world at first glance to be a fine worsted of shady blocks, reveals on close examination that it is a series of varicolorings obtained by the use of rayon. These blocks which for a plaid are of worsted in red brown, while alternate blocks are mingled with gold and silver made in chemist's textile wonder which gives it a coppery looks where the gold color is used with the brown, and yet a different tone where it is white.

Pajamas have long been Persia's pride in man's sleeping attire. Americans call them Pa-jamas—and pa and all the boys wear the snappy new rayon underthings. Pajamas and union suits have won out over the prejudices of even the old-fashioned man. Pajamas may be made along the lines of the regular cuts, or if you prefer, a knock-about indoor costume.

It might have seemed, too, that the two piece frock was destined to extinction but "there's many a miss between the cup and the lip,"—the two piece frock survives! It makes its appearance for fall wear elaborated and destined for more formal functions. Transparent velvet topped by metal cloth blouses—not a new note, you say—but it is strictly new in its latest adaptations. The jumper is decidedly longer, always belted and developed with the tight hip line.

"How is it that a little boy of your age is smoking?"
"Bad companions, ma'am."
"What do you mean?"
"I was the only boy in the family and mother made me play with my sisters until I was most ten."

How Blood Travels
Assuming the heart to beat 60 times a minute at ordinary heart pressure, the blood courses through the veins at the rate of 207 yards in a minute, or seven miles an hour, 168 miles a day, and 61,320 miles a year. If a man eighty-four years of age could have had one single blood corpuscle floating in his blood all his life it would have traveled in that time nearly 5,150,000 miles.

Sympathy
The building was on fire where a woman's husband is employed. She called her friend on the telephone to relieve her anxiety. "Oh, Mabel, did you know about the fire?" said the excited wife. "If it burns down Joe will be out of a job, and we will have to come and eat with you." "Well, I hope it don't burn down," was the sympathetic reply.

The World's Smallest License Plate

One of the most unusual and interesting automobile license plates of the entire 1929 series is that which Alaska will distribute, through its Territorial Treasurer, W. G. Smith, at Juneau. The plate is about six inches long and three inches deep. The color scheme is white on a maroon background. Doris Hill, featured in Paramount Pictures, is attaching the plate to a new 1929 Buick.

WINDS CARRY PINK BOLL WORM INTO THE U. S.

TUSCON, Ariz.—That south winds carry the pink boll worm, scourge of the cotton crop in southern United States, into this country from Mexico, was asserted by Dr. B. R. Coad, head of the investigation unit of the Federal Bureau of Entomology at Tallulah, La., who arrived here by airplane from Mexico last week.

Previously it was believed that the cotton pest was transported only on carried objects. While the insects is "a pretty poor flier" the investigation established that it can be "carried along air currents," Dr. Coad said.

Dr. Coad was accompanied by R. L. Mitchell, air pilot for the Louisiana bureau, through Chihuahua, Durango and Coahuila tracing the movement of the boll worm. Dr. Coad said that he was "certain that the form has been transported by air from Mexico into Texas" but he was not convinced that it had been carried into Arizona in such a manner.

The remedy for the situation, Dr. Coad indicated was to include northern Mexico in the protective district which now includes Texas and New Mexico.

"We are studying the problem of handling the entire district of Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, and north Mexico as a single unit in fighting the infestation of the pest," Dr. Coad declared.

SUPREME COURT ACTS GUADALUPE REGISTRATION

SANTA FE.—Holding that the new election code is not in conflict with the state supreme court has reversed Judge Luis Armijo in the Guadalupe county election registration case and instructed the judge to take evidence in the case.

Judge Armijo has denied a petition by J. D. Hannah, democratic chairman in Guadalupe county for the removal of 350 names from the county registration book. Judge Hanna contended that the registration had been illegally made, and Judge Armijo had sustained a demurrer filed by the registration judges which claimed that the petition was without effect since it did not allege that the names were of persons who were not constitutionally qualified electors.

Mr. Hannah took the case to the supreme court on a writ of certiorari and the decision was handed down Saturday.

SURVEY BEING MADE FOR NEW RAILROAD SEAGRAVES TO HOBBS

LUBBOCK, Texas.—The Lubbock Journal said Monday that a group of engineers employed by the Santa Fe railroad, headed by J. W. Stewart and J. T. Ervin of the Chicago engineering department of the rail system, Monday began an extension of the Lubbock-Seagraves branch of the Panhandle-Santa Fe lines toward Hobbs, New Mexico, scene of the latest southwestern oil strike.

Although J. C. Barton of Slaton, division superintendent of the Panhandle-Santa Fe, refused comment, authoritative information, the paper said, adds that a new townsite, about 20 miles southwest of Seagraves, will be traversed by the new line.

Survey of the extension came immediately after announcement that the Pure Oil Co., had made a location for a deep test in sec 110, block H, Gaines county, 10 miles south of Seagraves. One producing well already has been drilled in the Hobbs area and several other tests are under way.

A rail line connecting Seagraves and Hobbs would be about 36 miles long.

Few Persons Today Who Are Not in a Position To Save Money

S. W. Straus, president American Society Thrift says:

"Students of economic conditions in this try tell us that poverty is steadily being eliminated through the processes of education. There is time within the memory of many now living dire poverty existed in every city if not in every community. The general standard of living has been steadily advancing for the last fifty years and conditions are such today that there is a person anywhere who is not in a position to save money if he so chooses.

"The old saying, 'Where there's a will there's a way,' applies with full force to the practice of saving money. Those who do not save or who are unwilling to make certain sacrifices, are unwilling to make certain sacrifices. Their minds are biased by false pride or egotism. Their viewpoint is incorrect.

If they should think the problem clear they would determine to find ways by which they could save something even though the amount be small.

"Upon one's ability to find such ways of saving money, depends very much of one's chances of success in life."

CHEVROLET COMPANY GIVING ATTENTION TO THE 1929 DEMAND

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 25.—Auto- mobile leaders here at this time are paying special heed, in their surveys of 1929 market trends to the export aspects of the industry, conscious of the fact that overseas trade has been growing consistently until it stands today third in the list of American exports with a valuation of four hundred and six millions of dollars.

This is regarded as significant, coming as it does with the industry entered upon the final quarter of what promises to be the greatest year in the history of the domestic market with no decrease in home demand expected during 1929.

Far from viewing with complacency the gigantic forward strides made in foreign markets since 1921, the consensus of export opinion adheres to the view that the export business is still an infant—a giant infant which promises to achieve a mighty growth. Rehabilitation of Europe, the betterment of road conditions all over the world, the establishment of American credit systems abroad and the continuous improvement of American manufacturing methods are among the reasons assigned for view of the foreign market that is decidedly optimistic.

Last week, H. J. Klinger, general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor company, world-leader in domestic and foreign sales, issued a statement in which he predicted that America will be exporting 1,000,000 cars annually within the next few years. Mr. Klinger made this prediction fully aware that the total number of American cars shipped abroad for sale in 1927 was 460,305, and cognizant too, of the fact that foreign trade barriers are not likely to be obliterated.

Explaining his forecast, he said: "One million American made cars will be shipped overseas and sold in the next few years. Today there are upwards of 29,505,475 motor vehicles in the world, and of this number 23,000,000 are in use in the United States. I feel that this is altogether out of proportion. The United States has only about one twentieth of the world's population and only a fraction of its habitable land. Yet it owns eighty per cent of all the motor vehicles in the world."

"General Motors export, applying American methods of manufacture, distribution and credit has gone a long way in the last few years to make the world motor minded. For instance, Chevrolet cars and trucks are now being sold in 104 countries from Iceland in the north to New Zealand in the south, and each one of these cars is serving as an individual ambassador of the superiority of the American product."

Each is educating the world at large of the advantages of economical transportation that cannot be surpassed. "During the first six months of this year General Motors export reports the sale of 57,808 Chevrolet passenger cars and 50,542 trucks as compared with 38,594 passenger cars and 32,799 trucks for the first six months of 1927. This increase in the export trade has been reflected generally. Figures for the first eight months covering the entire American export field show an increase of 36 per cent over 1927.

"The home market will always remain the backbone of the industry. The prospect of a rapidly expanding volume of foreign trade supporting the excellent outlook for domestic business seems to indicate that the automobile industry is entering the greatest period of its history."

INSIDE INFORMATION

Do you know leaflet 28, "Lamb as You Like It?" It contains suggestions on cooking lamb properly, and may be obtained for the asking from the United States Department of Agriculture.

Squash as well as pumpkin, can be used for pie filling. As these pies contain eggs and milk, they must be cooked in a moderate oven. To prevent the crust from becoming soggy, prebake it until it is delicately colored, but not brown, before putting in the filling.

There are no household methods of setting the color in a dyed fabric. The use of salt, vinegar, and other substances has been found to do absolutely no good. Dyes, however, are so much better now than they used to be, that it is usually satisfactory to try a sample of the goods you think of buying, and if it does not run when you wash it, or fade too much when exposed to the sunlight, it may be considered reasonably fast in color.

Canned pineapple can be served in a number of appetizing ways when fresh fruits become scarce. Pineapple pies, tarts, and sauces for dessert are all delicious. Pineapple and sweet potato baked in alternating layers makes a good vegetable combination. Fried sliced pineapple is often served with meats, just as apple sauce or fried apples or a tart jelly is served. A good winter preserve can be made from canned pineapple and dried apricots.

ORGANIZATIONS PLEDGE SUPPORT IN CAMPAIGN FOR HIGHWAY SAFETY

SANTA FE.—Letters pledging the support of various organizations are being received daily at the state highway department offices on the campaign for greater highway safety to be especially observed during Highway Safety Week, Nov. 12th to 18th.

Practically all of the organizations of the state who make community interest a part of their program have been requested to join with the highway department and the national safety movement organizations in bringing the reasons for highway accidents before the public and the method of cure. The response has been most gratifying according to highway employees engaged in the work.

Establishing a new precedent, the department has requested the clergy of the state to give a small portion of their time to the spreading of safety information to their parishioners. Early indications are that their response will be very good.

"It seems that the state is at last waking up to the need for some stringent measures to cut down the accident rate," W. C. Davidson, state highway engineer, expressed himself. "In this campaign we hope to get before the people the fact that such measures must be taken by themselves. The department can do no more than expend every effort to build roads which modern design indicates are the safest type. This is being done. But accident records show that only a very small, almost minute percentage of accidents can be classed as road fault. The great bulk of accidents are preventable by the driver himself."

During Highway Safety Week literature will be furnished every organization and all of the schools, the latter through the cooperation of the state department of education. Each group is requested to bring the contained in the literature before members or students. It is hoped in this way to bring the doctrine of safety straight to the individual.

ARTESIA HIGH DEFEATS CARLSBAD IN SECOND GAME OF SEASON FRI.

Artesia won a second victory from the Carlsbad High school football team here Friday afternoon on the west Main gridiron by a score of 24-0. Fumbles proved costly to both teams in the first half of the game. The Bulldogs were able to make only one touchdown in the first half of the game. The lone touchdown came on the fourth down, when Clayton made an end run for a touchdown on a fake play.

The Bulldogs came back fighting in the third quarter and made three touchdowns in this quarter. In each trial, however, they failed to kick goal for the extra point.

After piling up eighteen points, the second string men were sent in against the Cavemen. One or two fumbles, however, cost the second team important yardage and the locals were backed near the Artesia ten-yard line, where they held stubbornly until relieved by the first team. The first string men went in fighting again and marched up the field. Montague and Littlejohn each broke through the Carlsbad line for 15 yard gains and it looked as though Artesia might register another touchdown, but the locals lost the ball and the whistle blew with the ball on Carlsbad's third yard line.

The following is the starting line up for Artesia and Carlsbad as near as could be obtained:

Artesia	Position	Carlsbad
Clayton	Quarterback	Farrell
Graham	Halfback	Allen
Littlejohn	Fullback	Martin
Nicholson	Guard	Douglas
Gates	Guard	Zimmerman
Montague	Tackle	Price
Horne	Tackle	Barber
Stuart	Center	Medera
Pollard	Left End	Bowman
Compton S.	Right End	McCaw
Jackson	Halfback	Brown

Fur Shawl Collars Are Most Popular

Lavishly furred cloth coats crowd the autumn and winter style parade in conspicuous numbers. There are novelties galore, to the point of being almost bizarre. Light furs on contrasting cloths and vice versa are shown. However the shawl collar with deep cuffs plays the leading role.

JOHN MORROW

Democratic candidate for Representative to the 71st U. S. Congress.

Burr clover is an excellent winter cover crop, especially where it can be allowed to mature seed so that it will volunteer every fall.

The most profitable pig is the one that never stops growing and makes good gains from the time it is farrowed until it is ready for market.

On land on which red clover or mammoth clover will not do well, alsike clover is recommended as satisfactory soil improving crop. Run down land can be brought up by alsike clover nearly as well as by red clover.

Discard spindle shaped tubers from your seed potatoes and reduce the probability of the spindle-tuber disease appearing later on. Reductions in yield of from 25 to 50 per cent may result if plants are affected with this disease.

If fattening hogs are "pushed" from weaning time to market, the most economical plan is to have them on good pasture with free access to shelled corn and tankage or fish meal in self feeders. Middlings or shorts of good quality, or old-process linseed meal, may be fed instead of tankage or fish meal.

In selecting corn for seed or breeding, farmers in the southern states are advised to choose ears having husks that are at least long enough to cover the tip of the ears and that close tightly around the silks. Very long, tight husks are an aid in preventing injury from the corn earworm and the weevil and also from birds.

Although white clover is usually an uninvited visitor in the pasture—coming in without being planted—it is one that should be welcomed more than it is. Plan to encourage this nutritious forage plant, which is relished by all classes of livestock, by giving it plenty of phosphate and also some lime. It may increase the value of your pasture 100 per cent.

Why lose valuable plant food from the soil through erosion when much of this loss can be prevented by a winter cover crop? According to the U. S. department of agriculture, soil erosion removes 20 times as much plant food as is taken out of the soil by crops. A winter cover crop to prevent waste is especially important in the south.

Temperature is a very important factor in the successful fermentation of vegetable foods, such as pickles and sauerkraut, say chemists of the U. S. department of agriculture. The foods should be kept as close as possible to 86° F., at which temperature the bacteria essential to fermentation are most active. This is especially important in making sauerkraut.

The importance of legumes in adding nitrogen to the soil is far greater than is commonly realized, says the U. S. department of agriculture. A two-ton crop of vetch, if turned under, will add more than 100 pounds of nitrogen to the soil. Vetch should be planted early enough so that the plants are well established and firmly rooted before winter begins. Delayed seeding is a frequent cause of failure of this crop.

An interesting series of studies of the effect of early grazing of the range have been conducted at the U. S. sheep experiment station, Dubois, Idaho. In a comparison of two 80-acre pastures, the one protected from grazing in the early spring and fully grazed in the fall showed, at the end of five years, a cumulative effect of about 87 per cent more forage than the pasture that was grazed heavily in the spring and again in the fall. The average difference over the five-year period was 16 per cent in favor of protection in the spring. These figures show conclusively that the pasture protected in the spring is building up while
