GOVERNMENT AID

The senate finance committee killed the proposed tariff on oil, copper and coal behind closed doors. We suppose this means the vote was secret and the names of the tariff opponents will not be made public. That's one list it would be our pleasure to publish. Looks mighty like the importing oil companies must have handed out a lot of hush money before the vote was taken.

But that's the way of politics, which has often made us wonder how a poor sap can be deluded into thinking that government aid is really beneficial to the masses. With all of the colossial failures which may be charged to the attempt of the federal government to but into private business, more and more people are talking about government aid. One naturally would think after hearing a few private conversations and reading some newspaper reports that the chief function of the government was to support its subjects rather than protect them.

Right now the wool industry is facing one of its darkest moments of history, with million and millions of pounds of wool stored by the cooperatives, a threat to the market. The government has sold a lot of wool on which was advanced 30 cents for less than a fifth of this amount, claiming that it was sold to make carpets of. Private buyers now won't buy wool because they do not know what time the cooperatives are likely to dump a lot of the stored wool on the market and demoralize the price. As result the wool industry is practically paralyzed. Wheat is the same and cotton is no better. And yet no effort has been made to remove or remodel on the statute books what is undoubtedly the most costly blunder ever undertaken by congress in the name of the farmer.

It looks like to us that the time is rapidly drawing near when the common people will have to band together and high pressure lobby methods to protect their own interests and remove from the statute books some of the impractical laws, which has helped to drag us into the present financial condition.

There is too much selfishness, too much special class legislation, too many high powered lobbyists and too much expense that must be borne by the average citizen. You can't lift a nation out of a depression any more by saddling the support of one half of the people on the other half, than a man can life himself by his boot-

The government employees are well taken care of; with a few exceptions they are not willing to cut an inch if the cut affects salaries. They have brought pressure to bear on congress to keep their feet under the pie table.

THE MOTIVE

Several proposals to tax certain phases of the oil and mineral industry looks suspiciously like the foreign owned companies may have had a hand in framing the measures, all for a selfish motive. The proposed eight per cent pipe line tax would fall heavy on the inland oil producers since the oil producers themselves would have to pay the tax. It would add considerable costs to the overhead of New Mexico producers and would make it that much casier for the importing companies to dump more oil into the

Now comes the proposal of the state tax commission to tax nonproductive oil and mineral lands. A peep behind the curtain leads one to believe that foreign owned companies might be proned to exercise a little undue influence in getting the tax across because there are major developments not so far from this section where a foreign owned company is operating on federal land, which would exempt this company from the burdens of the proposed tax. It doesn't take a financier to figure out that where a large company controls a large block of acreage tax free, it can operate to a better advantage than a competitor that may come in and operate on deeded land, subject to a tax.

When talk was first heard about this cantaloupe venture in Eddy bunty the writer, like a great many others, thought it might be impractical, in view of past experiences here several years ago. An inside look into the proposition, however, places it in a different light and frankly we are impressed. Where farmers enter the project in a small way from two to ten acres, there isn't much chance to sustain a heavy loss. One's time, which isn't as valuable as it used to be and a few cents per acre will start the venture. The average farmer will not require any extra labor at harvest time and the cantaloupe planting will give another means of diversification.

We recently heard of one man in the Pecos valley who is reported to be drawing a pension of $600.00 per month from the government. A pension as we understand it is supposed to offset a man's disability sustained in government service, however, we'd be willing to wager a neat sum that the old boy could not be crawing $300.00 per month in private life.

Over at Tucumcari the town and school board has had quite a fuss over the discharge of four married teachers. A married teacher of course does not help the enemployment situation, but on the other hand the chances are that he or she is a tax payer and the tax payer ought to get a break occasionally.

DECLINING WOOL PRICES

It may be interesting to note the declining wool prices since 1929, in quotations submitted by M. Lyon and Co., of Kansas City and furnished us by E. B. Bullock. In 1929, bright wool brought from 40 to 28 cents per pound; semibright wool from 32 to 25 cents per pound; mohair from 42 to 20 cents per pound. In 1930 bright wool sold for 25 to 17 cents; semibright wool, 20 to 16 cents; mohair from 26 to 10 cents. In 1931 bright wool brought from 21 to 12 cents; semi- bright from 16 to 10 cents and mohair from 18 to 10 cents; in 1932, bright wool is quoted at 13 to 5 cents; semibright from 11 to 5 cents and mo- J. seed. Alfalfa seed prices have maintained a higher level recently than a majority of other farm crops and excellent yields of seed have been produced over small areas in this section, indicating a profitable enterprise.

Alfalfa appears to live particularly long in some of these areas and a few fields over fifty years of age are still producing hay and seed on areas where flooding has occured and the soil carries considerable depth.

The Economic Strength Of The Community

Banks are a part of the economic blood and sinew of all community life. Without banks commerce and industry could not carry on, nor contribute to the economic welfare of the people.

In times of prosperity unusual demands upon financial institutions are few; therefore their stability is considered a matter of fact. But when conditions drop to normal or below-'tis then the fundamental soundness and foundation strength of a bank is tested.

Banks should therefore be conducted in such a manner that they will stand the test of good and bad times. It is imperative that adequate resources be maintained, if a bank gives a distinctive power in the promotion of local industry and community progress.

> EAGLES MENACE TO ANTELOPE IN STATE

Eagles are a great menace to the antelope in the south part of Otero county, according to Ed Brownfield veteran cowman of the B. T. ranch. "There will be over 200 baby antelopes in our pasture in the next two weeks," Mr. Brownfield said, "but the eagles begin to feed on them at once." In spite of the fact that about 200 young antelope are added to the herds each year, the herds do not increase materially. This spring there are only two or three yearlings in the herd. Mr. Brownfield believes that there are fully 500 eagles there and every one of them seems to have a liking for baby antelope.

George is a thoroughly good man." So Enid went on the ocean trip with Uncle Henry. George Danbury sent her great sheafs of flowers and baskets of fruit on the day of departure and Enid felt reasonwanted. But deep in her heart she knew that the great big thing called liver. love was not in her life and that lack of money and her little brothfor decision.

She met many men on board ship and found herself studying them and comparing them with George Danbury as a possible future mate. They reached London safely and Uncle Henry was obliged to tend business much of the time. Consequently Enid was left to wander about by herself. The idea of going back to Nev. York and marrying George troubled her night and day. She felt that Edward might be cured if they could pay for the services of a great specialist.

Enid found herself frequently visiting the wonderful old churches -St. Paul's, Westminster, St James-and finding in the shad owed, silent walls a great amount of spiritual help. And then her feet led her into the door of old St. Martin's in the Field-that church whose doors are never shut, night or day, to the worn and weary. Human drift wood, asleep on the cushions, found safety, rest and help through the

As a proof of the field, the geological survey calls attention to the fact that the United States Potash Company of Carlsbad, New Mexico, in the first year of its operation ending in March, shipped 45,000 tons of potash to numerous plants in the east where it was used by different fertilizer mixing companies.

The permian basin, 300 miles wide and possibly twice as long, lying principally in Texas and New Mexico, but extending north into Kansas and Colorado, was at one time, geologically speaking occupied by a great arm of the ocean or sea that became cut off in such a way that its waters evaporated and left their salts be-In fact the indications are that this sea may have filled up and evaporated a succession of times. Government geologists recognized decades ago that the formations here were similar to those in Germany and that there were probabilities that an investigation would establish the presence of potash. The area, in fact, proved to have much simpler structure than the German since it was much less broken. Federal and state agencies made preliminary investigations at about the same time but the first find of potash was announced by the Texas state geologist Dr. Udden, in 1912 as a result of his examination of brines taken from a deep boring.

When the World War ended the importation of potash from Germany, many soils, notably those producing cotton, failed to yield satisfactory crops. They were without the essential ingredient.

The government finished drilling its first well near Amarillo, Texas, in 1917, and a private test core was taken near Carlsbad, New Mexico at about the same time. Government geologists in the meantime were studying and analyzing the cuttings that came to light from oil operations. There were many indications of potash.

Finally, in 1926, congress authorized the more intensive investigation by the geological survey, co-operating with the bureau of mines, and provided $100,000 a year for five years for the pur-Twenty-three wells, in as many locations, were drilled in New Mexico and Texas and an additional well in the Salt Valley area in Utah. Practically all of them showed deposits containing potash at many levels, many of which were in strata too thin to make mining practicable. A number of bodies were discovered however, that have imemdiate or future commercial possibilities.

Wonderful Cheddar Caves The caves of Cheddar and Wookey Hole are beautiful beyond words. Beneath the rugged slopes of Mendip, in a vast network of subterranean passages, may be seen sta lactites and stalagmites of wondrous shape and color; translucent pools, crystal clear and cold, curtains of dazzling whiteness, hanging folds of coral-pink-all hidden there in the ice-cold depths, now lighted by electric light! The drive to the caves through Cheddar gorge is a remarkable experience. At the bottom of the steep road, in the little white village of Cheddar, a rushing stream comes bubbling from the very heart of Mendip. At Wookey Hole, too, there are some wonderful caves. The story goes that the caves were once inhabited by a witch who was turned into stone by "an ancient clerk of Glaston."-Londor Times.

Place of Tragic Memory The Black Hole of Calcutta is the popular name of a cell in Fort William, Calcutta, formerly used as the guard room.

On the night of June 19, 1756, the season when the tropical heat of Calcutta is most oppressive, Surajud-Dowlah, the nineteen-year-old nabob of Bengal, who had broken with the British authorities, thrust 146 employees of the British India company into this cell, a room 18 feet long by 14 feet, 10 inches wide It had but two small windows covered with iron bars and obstructed by a veranda. The heat and lack of air killed 123 of them before morning.

The site of this cell is now covered with a black marble slab, and the event is commemorated by ? monumental shaft erected in 1902.

Witty Response to Toast There is a good story illustrating the simplicity and silence of the late Wilbur Wright or the "Bird Man," as he was known at the time. The brothers were given a banquet to celebrate the winning of the Mich elin prize, and Wilbur was forced to say a few words in reply to the toast of his health. He remarked that they had alluded to him as a bird man: "The only bird that car talk," said Wilbur, "is the parrotand he can't fly any." With that he sat down.

VIGOROUS PROTEST TO BE MADE AGAINST PROPOSED OIL TAX

In a letter to members of the New Mexico Oil Men's Protective Association, William Dooley, secretary says the voice of southeast New Mexico will be heard in vigprous protest against the proposed tax on non-productive oil and minerals lands. Here is the context of Mr. Dooley's letter:

The following letter from the state tax commission, relative to making returns on non-productive oil and gas leases and royalties, was received by a company operating in New Mexico, which letter indicates the attitude of the commission:

"We are in receipt of your letter of April 14th in which you ask to be granted an extension of time until after the conference to be held sometime in June or July for filing the returns on oil and gas leases and royalty interest in the State of New Mexico.

"We suggest that you prepare and file the returns prior to that date in view of the fact that it will be necessary to make the assessments immediately after the conference in order that the assessors may enter same on the tax rolls.

"The statement made by the commission at the hearing held here on April 4 was to the effect that no penalty or interest would be added to returns not made prior to that time."

Chief Tax Commissioner Beall, at the hearing at Santa Fe on April 4, quoted, in support of the commission's tax program, the fact that some oil companies had already filed returns under the tax order, and it is evident that the filing of additional returns by other companies will probably be construed as an approval by said companies of the tax commission's order. In view of the assurance of the commission that no penalty or interest would be added to returns not made prior to the indefinitely scheduled tax hearing in June or July, it would eem advisable to withhold such returns until this whole matter can be "ironed out" next sum-

It will be remembered that a joint session of the executive commiteee and advisory board of the New Mexico Oil Men's Protective Association, held on March 12, 1932, at Artesia, New Mexico, unanimously passed a vigorous protest against said tax program, as said proposed taxation is considered unjust, unfair and probably illegal, as well as being impractical.

As we understand this program of the State Tax Commission, as explained to us at the Santa Fe meeting on April 4, all leases and royalties on non-proven or non-productive fee land in the state of New Mexico, whether for oil, gas, sulphur, potash, gold, silver or other minerals, shall be taxed upon the estimated or prospective value of the specified minerals, supposed to underlie each particular leasehold.

The absurdity of trying to appraise, for taxation purposes, the prospective value of oil, gas, sulphur, potash, gold, silver or other minerals that may underlie any lease upon non-producing wildcat lands, would be amusing, if it would not lead to such apparent far-reaching effects as, endless litigation and title confusion, unnecessary title and abstract expenses, the throwing of additional heavy expenses upon the already overburdened taxpayers of the state, discrimination against his right hand. The sharp horn the owners of fee lands, the cancellation of many leases with a when the animal in some manner consequent loss of rentals to the caught Mr. Anderson's hand on fee owner, etc., together with a fence board. The wound will placing this state in an unfavor- not prove serious unless compliable light with prospective investors and others.

The voice of southeast New Mexico will be heard in vigorous protest against this unwise tax
