IS THIS ORGANIZATION WORTHY?

No established organization in Artesia or in this section should need any defense for its existence, however in summing up the benefits derived for the various organizations, some interesting facts may be brought to light to provide a yard stick by which the usefulness of such organization may be measured. Practically every institution, whether private or public, is struggling against the stress of the times. Its no easy task to carry on in the face of adversity and give the same service as maintained in prosperous times.

An important local institution, the Chamber of Commerce may reach the parting of the ways unless conditions change and more support and co-operation is evidenced in the months to come. The chamber of commerce should be able to stand on its merits and its record is a matter of public information. We are not going to urge public support as a matter of public policy, because a worthy public institution should not be at the mercy of charity. If the past record of this organization has not been worthy of the financial support and efforts contributed by the citizens, then it should be discontinued.

There is an erroneous impression existing in most communities with reference to the proper functions of a chamber of commerce. Most people have an idea that if a chamber of commerce can not high pressure wealthy citizens and new industries into a community, then it has failed. But did you ever stop to think of the competition in this endeavor. Every community wants more wealth, but not every community can set forth its particular advantages in attracting new citizens and new wealth. Some still think we need a so-called high pressure salesman at the head of the community organization to squeeze the dollars out of prospective citizens and industries and tell white lies if necessary to get these citizens and industries located. The after effects of such salesmanship is never considered. The main thing is to land what we would call in plain language "suckers." The land boomers in the early days had the same idea, but did it bring the Artesia community permanent prosperity. Let history answer this question.

No, the function of the chamber of commerce is not to high pressure new wealth into the community, except in a legitimate way, because if a new citizen is to be worth anything to the community in which he lives, he must, first of all be satisfied.

The chamber of commerce can be made to render a real type of service in solving community problems. No other organization provides the same facilities for carrying on projects of public interest. It can be made to provide a meeting ground to discuss and solve problems affecting Artesia and the surrounding communities. For instance, Artesia business men have been requested to cooperate with the chamber of commerce in stamping out questionable advertising schemes and unworthy enterprises in which the schemer benefits only. The amount saved the business houses of Artesia can be guessed with one guess rating about as high as another, but we recall a couple of projects this year calling for donations stopped by the chamber of commerce, which if put over would have cost the town not less than $300.00.

Another project which has been handled very creditably with the assistance of the chamber of commerce is the welfare work. Under the present plan the citizens of north Eddy county have not been asked to donate one penny. The money has been secured from other sources amounting to better than $2,000, (we do not recall the exact sum). Under ordinary circumstances this money would be raised by private subscription. Nobody begrudges the money and time spent in the welfare work for this was just as necessary as our own existence.

If you wish to appraise this function of the chamber of commerce in dollars and cents, figure the amount the organization has saved you in the two items above and then consider if you can afford to withdraw your financial support from this organization.

It would be folly to expect the chamber of commerce to obtain results in its usual functions until conditions improve. In the meantime, we can make the chamber of commerce worthy of its support to the community, in carrying on work necessary to the public welfare. The results will depend on co-operation. How much co-operation will you give?

Perhaps you have read some facts and figures on the recent election. Interest was higher on November 8th than usual, but the interest was not turned into votes all opinions to the contrary notwithstanding. There were according to statistics 68,000,000 Americans entitled to vote. About 47,000,000 of the 68,000,000 were registered, yet only approximately 40,000,000 cast a ballot. We as a nation are only about 58.4 per cent democratic.

An Iowa professor speaking before a Nebraska audience said that a partial guaranty of bank deposits was the keystone of prosperity. The professor might ask Texas and several other states that tried the guaranty bank law, if these states think a guaranty law is worthwhile. A well managed bank is a decided asset to any community, but to be well managed, a bank must have some real bankers behind it.

Maybe you hadn't thought about it, but the depression ended on the night of November 8th, when the people asked for a new deal and got it. Now get in the collar and help. It's your fight to aid in ending the struggle against poverty just the same as it is President Hoover's and Roosevelt's.

A few individuals may be jealous enough to envy the citizens who are apparently getting ahead, but show us a community where nobody is making a dollar and we'll show you a community where money is about as scarce as the proverbial "hens teeth."

The 100,000 board feet of lumber that a Pennsylvania furniture factory has ordered, contingent upon Mr. Hoover's election, would seem to constitute an entirely new variety of "presidential timber." —Exchange.

According to unofficial sources there are 110,000 tax payers in the state and there are 72,000 tax liens on file.

PICKED UP ON MAIN

You won't have to wait for your wine to age, if the Volstead act is repealed. The only thing to do is just to whet your taste up a bit. California grape growers have millions of gallons of wine in storage and 10,000,000 gallons in the making as the wine presses of the Golden state are being operated at top speed.

And here's another rumor you might like to know about if you don't take it too seriously. If you do, this writer is just a plain liar. But anyway they are talking of what a nice place the old bank building would be for the Artesia corner saloon. Some say the Artesia M. E. saloon would be a better name because of the 100 per cent support the M. E. churchman would give the institution. A Methodist and an Al Smith democrat were figuring on opening a saloon down in the lower end of town, but the new up town saloon puts a "quietus" to the latter plans. A brick mason they say has already given the Mann Drug Co. figures on cutting an opening between the two buildings, so the drug store can administer a "shot," in the event the customers of the new institution get too tight to stand up to the bar.

And here's another spasm of that much poetized tax business: We are taxed for our eats;

We are taxed for our drink, And soon we'll be taxed, For the thots that we think. We are taxed for the freedom They say—we have got And if we are cold We are taxed till we're hot, We are taxed if we come, We are taxed if we go, We are taxed for the things Which we see in a show. We are taxed if we're rich, We are taxed if we're poor, From daylight till dark We are taxed till we're sore, We are taxed if we fail We are taxed if we thrive We are taxed for the folly Of keeping alive. Whatever our life, Thruout its duration We are simply submerged With top-heavy taxation.

Our unqualified support of E. C. Higgins as the new secretary of treasury has created jealousy among the Higgins camp followers here and in order to smooth up the situation, we are going to make other appointive recommendations with a recommendation that a marked copy of the Advocate be sent to Franklin D. Roosevelt, the present elect. It is a non-partisan cabinet. Another strong point in Higgins' claim is that he promises to issue millions of dollars of new currency and recall a bunch of this old worn out germ laden currency. We bring this out to quiet further criticism in our "Higgins Espousal". Next week we may add to the cabinet recommendations, but the most urgent are: G. U. McCrary for attorney general. (Judge got mad when we got behind Higgins and we are offering this merely as a peace move). C. J. Dexter for secretary of interior, provided he does not wish the mayor's office, for which he is now in line. Dexter promises to wipe out the record made by Wilbur. Hugh Burch for ambassador to Russia; Jm Berry as minister to Mexico; Squire Ballard, secretary of war. Fred Cole, democratic spellbinder, post office at Dayton.

We are beginning to see thru some of the activity of these political spell binders, who were trying so faithfully to save the county up to November 8th. They want a seat at the political pie counter.

Ordinarily a political victory is supposed to go to the head, but we heard a lady who had been active in the demo cause complaining of her feet swelling recently.

Friends of Howell Gage are anxious that he make good in his new position as first deputy sheriff and in order to prepare him, they presented the new deputy with a toy pistol and a pair of rubber panties.

NO ROAD LETTING BEFORE FIRST YEAR

SANTA FE—The state highway commission probably will not be able to announce another federal aid highway contract letting before the first of the year, W. R. Eccles, chief highway engineer said Saturday.

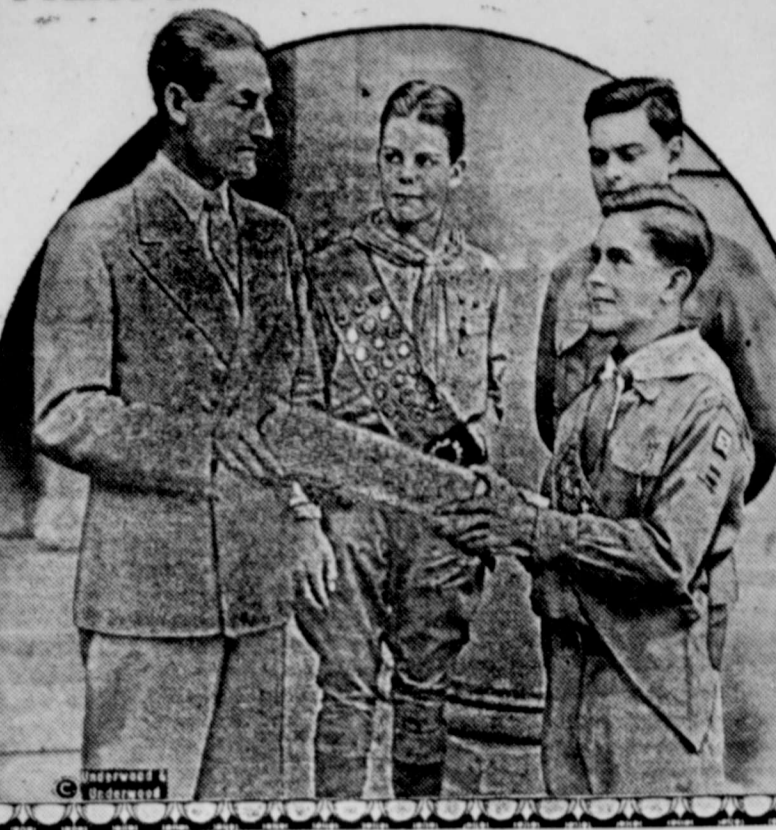

The commission had planned on having a letting at an early date but it was learned that A. E. Palen of the federal bureau of public roads would not be able to confer with them on the projects for several weeks.

The commission adjourned at noon after it had cleaned up a large amount of routine business matters.

Prince Receives a Mt. Vernon Tree

As a token of good will from American youth, Washington Boy Scouts presented Crown Prince Michael of Rumania, who is a member of their order, with an American walnut tree grown from seed from his toric Mt. Vernon, which he will plant on the palace grounds. The photograph shows Scout Harry Barnett presenting the tree to Frederic C. Nano, charge d' affaires of the Rumanian legation, for shipment to Prince Michael.

HOW A MINING ENGINEER FOUND A REAL GOLD MINE

Almost everyone has dreamed of finding a real gold mine and making a lot of money.

Now, I am a mining engineer, and I have had these dreams too; so after completing my last big job, I decided to search for my Eldorado, the place where I might make a million.

For many months I scouted and searched through the well-known mining districts, where other men Fork in the wilds of the Salmon River Country.

Here in the early days of our great gold rushes, the old prospector found fabulously rich ores, ores running thousands of dollars per ton in free gold and silver. With only the crudest of methods and pack trains for methods of transportation, he wrested from the rich surface pockets many millions in gold. Here was staged a great gold boom but this country was very isolated and hard to work in, and as the miner dug deeper into the veins, the ore suddenly changed character and became complex and no longer was he able to extract the valuable gold by his crude methods. New boom camps were being discovered, and slowly the miners left, and after awhile it was practically deserted and has been quietly sleeping all these years, just waiting for some engineer with modern milling equipment to bring it back to life as a rip-roaring gold mining camp.

Here at last I found my Eldorado, a place where I might had made millions, but always I found that the bonanza mine was gone and that only scars were left; so finally I came to the conclusion that if I were ever to find the kind of a mine that I was looking for that I would have to leave civilization behind and search in isolated and inaccessible regions little visited by man.

I decided on what is considered one of the last wildernesses in the United States, the head waters of the Salmon River in Idaho, the site where the famous motion picture was made, "The River of No Return." Surely, this would be sufficiently isolated, and often times I had heard stories of the fabulously rich ore that had been found there in the early days. So I went to Idaho, and for many months, I scouted this great district. For weeks at a time my only companion was an old time prospector, Skipper Merritt, who knows this country like a book. Sometimes we traveled on foot, and other times with pack train, in good weather and bad, and finally one day I arrived at the old ghost city of Custer, desolate, deserted, and asleep—located near the head waters of the Yankee make a million, but if you want to know more about this gold mining district and how you can share in this gold find, then just write me at my office, where I am perfecting the plans for constructing a modern gold mill at

A recent remark regarding newspaper advertising is interesting because it was made by a buyer and not a seller of printer's ink. It was made by Oscar Webber, general manager of one of Detroit's biggest stores, who told a Michigan merchants' convention: "When the going is tough our experience shows that nothing sells goods like newspaper advertising."

Belgium is said to be the most densely populated country in the world, having nearly 8,000,000 residents occupying an area of 11,752 square miles.

PERSISTENCE IS LIKE COMPOUND INTEREST

Some chronic faultfinder went up to Billy Sunday one night after the evangelist had made a strong appeal which brought a long parade of penitent people down the "sawdust trail" and said, "You're a fake! You get people all stirred up. They hit the trail. But your conversions don't last."

"Well," said Billy, "neither does a bath." And we might add, "Nor a customer." Your best customer is usually your competitor's best prospect. Someone is always after the people to whom you sell and unless you keep everlastingly after your customers and keep them sold, your customers won't last.

It works both ways, too. If you keep hammering at your best prospect and do it more consistently than your competitor, ultimately he will be your best customer instead of his.

In this connection, a recent survey made by a retail dry goods association showed that 80 per cent of all sales are made after four or more calls. It also showed that 48 per cent of the salesman who called, made one call one call and did not come back. 25 per cent made two calls and quit; 15 per cent made three calls and quit, 12 per cent made four calls or more.

The 12 per cent who made four calls or more got 80 per cent of the orders. It is the constant pounding away that gets the business.

Relieves Women's Pains

Here is an example of how Cardut has helped thousands of women: "I was very thin and pale," writes Mrs. F. H. Scott, of Roanoke, Va. "I suffered from weakness and a severe pain in my back. This pain unerved me, and I did not feel like doing my work. I did not care to go places, and felt worn, tired, day after day. "My mother had taken Cardut, and on seeing my condition she advised me to try it. I have never regretted doing so. I took three bottles and it built me up. I gained in weight, my color was better and the pain left my back. I am stronger than I had been in some time." Cardut is sold by local druggists.

Her Way of Escape

By CLARISSA MACKIE

ELEANOR BROOKE went up to her room and sat down. She had told her family that she had broken her engagement to Mark Allen and her brother Roger had informed her that it was good luck. "He is a rotter," muttered Roger from his room.

The others all murmured something or other, and her mother had smiled sympathetically. None of them had liked Mark Allen.

"That was not the reason she had broken her engagement. She had received a letter from a broken-hearted girl in another city who had told her of Mark's perfidy. Eleanor thought she was breaking her own heart when she decided to let him go; now, to her surprise, she did not care.

The next day she spoke to her mother about taking a trip West, to visit an uncle who had a ranch.

The ranch was Eleanor's heart. She learned to ride, and soon the wide-open plains were her own playground. "I wish, Uncle Alfred," said Eleanor, "that you had some hopeless bachelor cowboy who would ride around with me—it is poken riding alone, and all of your cowboys are too gallant."

Uncle Alfred thought for a long time. Then, he removed his pipe from between his lips and smiled. "I believe I know just the man to go about with you, Eleanor," he said slowly. "Over on the next place to the south lives a man whom I have known for a long time—his name is Walter Jamleson—a bachelor—sort of a recluse—lives there alone with a Chinese cook and one man of all work, reads and writes and rides all day the year around, excepting when he is traveling. I heard that he was disappointed in love once upon a time. Has lots of money. Is perfectly bullet-proof where women are concerned! He is your future escort!"

The next day when Eleanor came downstairs with the morning in her blue eyes, her uncle called across the table:

"Be ready at nine o'clock, Eleanor. Walter Jamleson is coming to ride with you."

Eleanor talked to her aunt about various matters, but they did not speak of Walter Jamleson again. Eleanor believed that he was probably some tired old bachelor and Uncle Alfred was really making fun of her, but presently when she was ready to go out she took a last look at herself in a trim khaki riding outfit, her soft hat on her ruddy hair framing her piquant face.

Aunt Laura sat on the veranda talking to a young man in riding things—very correct as to texture and cut, with a wide hat swinging from one shapely brown hand. The sun shone on the golden tan of his skin and pronounced him a handsome young man—perhaps thirty-three, with very nice brown eyes and hair to match.

"Eleanor, dear," said Aunt Laura, "may I present Mr. Jamleson, our very good friend and neighbor," and then Eleanor found herself shaking hands with Walter Jamleson. Soon the two of them were riding out of the yard. Eleanor was sure that her aunt enjoyed the joke as much as Uncle Alfred had done, but she soon found that there would be no time for retrospection with Mr. Jamleson. He wanted to talk and he wanted her to talk. He could ride well and he was the nicest, friendliest sort of a young man!

They were good friends before the ride was over. They had confessed at being completely fooled by Uncle Alfred, and Eleanor blamed herself for forgetting so soon that she would never love another man after Mark Allen. Her good sense told her that perhaps Mark Allen was not the perfect man.

She and Walter Jamleson agreed that they would not permit Uncle Alfred to believe that his jest had succeeded, so when they came back to the ranch each maintained a puzzled solemnity that quite devastated Uncle Alfred.

"Gosh, Eleanor," said her uncle frankly, "I just believed that you two would eat each other up! He's writing a book, yep, he sells a lot of them, too, so they say. But you're so young and pretty—gee whizz—the young men of today have no pep at all!"

When Eleanor reached her own room she sat down and laughed and laughed, and then, after awhile, a tender little smile curled her lips.

As for Jamleson, he smoked three pipes one after the other that first night, and then he locked up all the sheets of his latest story, closed his typewriter, and spoke to the dancing flame on the hearth.

"I see all the attributes for my own love story—and I am going to write it, too—for the first time—she is the dearest, sweetest thing in the world!"

After two months of this, Eleanor came home one day with a dreamy smile on her lips and a large diamond on the third finger of her left hand.

When she told Uncle Alfred and his wife, they laughed right out. "We have known it since the first day," they told her, after congratulatory kisses.

EXTENSION PROGRAM BROADCASTS ON KOB

The extension service is broadcasting more material over radio station KOB this season than last. The features now being broadcast include: "Housekeepers" Chats, which go on the air in connection with the home science program at 9:30 a. m. each day, except Saturday and Sunday; the "Farm Flashes" which are broadcast daily at 12:05 p. m. except Sunday. Every week day evening at 8:00 o'clock, a five minute informal talk in regard to the college, extension service or the experiment station is being broadcast. Each Thursday State College Chat features extension work. On three evenings each week talks are given by college, experiment station or extension service workers. Plans are being made for broadcasting a 4-H club program one evening each month as was done last year.

While the proportion of families owning radio sets in New Mexico was only 11.5 per cent in April 1930, the number has been increasing rapidly and a much larger proportion of the population may be reached by radio as time passes.

In a survey made last year, it was found that rural people were protesting the large amount of advertising programs on the air and insisting on more educational material. Radio education, under New Mexico conditions, offers a greater opportunity than it does in many other states. The problem of the extension service is to prepare and present radio programs that will meet the need of the rural people and become an effective part of extension work.

LINCOLN FOREST MAY GET 11,000 ACRES

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Edward C. Finney, department of interior solicitor, said Friday that the interior department is making an investigation to determine whether it can legally exchange 90,000 acres of public domain in Socorro county, New Mexico, for 11,000 acres owned by C. M. Harvey in the Lincoln National Forest for incorporation therein.

Finney said he was making a study of the legal question involved following a hearing which was held before John H. Edwards assistant secretary of the interior. He said the final decision is not expected for some time.

The Forest Service has reported that the two tracts are of substantially equivalent value. Edward Everett Gann of Washington and H. B. Hamilton of El Paso, representing the Red Canyon Sheep Company, however, contended at the hearing that the exchange would interfere with grazing rights in the vicinity of the national forest where the company operates.

DO YOU KNOW THE NAT'L CONSTITUTION

How well do you know the constitution of the United States? A subscriber has submitted some questions which will test your knowledge. Read the questions over and answer them as best you can and then grade yourself by looking at the answers. Don't look at the answers until you have attempted to answer the questions.

The questions: 1—Would the constitution permit Franklin D. Roosevelt and Alfred E. Smith to be seated as president and vice-president had such results been obtained through the national convention and election this year?

2—May national congressmen be questioned publicly regarding speeches made in congress?

3—Can the president borrow money for the United States?

4—What is the minimum amount of money value necessary to preserve the right of trial by jury?

5—Can a state pay for services rendered by its citizens in an insurrection against the U. S.?

6—May a natural born citizen of the United States, 35 years of age, who has spent twenty years abroad become president?

7—What is the order of cabinet member succession to the presidency as given by the constitution?

8—Does the United States treasury have power to coin money?

9—How is a vacancy in the United States senate filled?

10—When does the constitution provide for the president to take his office?

Answers: 1—No. President and vice-president may not be from the same state.

2—No.

3—No. Except as delegated to him.

4—$20,000.

5—No.

6—Yes. But had he been twenty-two years abroad under similar circumstances he could not be.

7—None given in the constitution.

8—No.

Not All Forms of Law Procedure Are Alike

Under all forms of criminal jurisprudence based on Anglo-Saxon law, the burden is on the prosecution to prove its charge. American and British laws are based on this, with some local exceptions in Scotland and Canada. Most of continental Europe and Latin America base their systems on the old Roman law, which presumes a prisoner innocent until the prosecution has made out a substantial case against him and then presumes him guilty until he has proved his innocence. Scottish legal procedure differs from the English in many ways. The sources of the old Scots law were the feudal system and the Roman law, the latter usually acquired in French universities and modified by French ideas. According to Henderson and Watt's "Scotland of Today," "The procedure reminds rather of France than of England." It goes on to describe how an accused person is questioned privately by the prosecutor before the sheriff and his answers are put into the form of a declaration, which is later used as evidence. Besides the two verdicts of "Guilty" and "Not Guilty," there is one of "Not Proven," which gives the prisoner the benefit of the doubt and acquits him unless further evidence justifies a reopening of the case.

COL. ROBINS FOUND

WHITTIER, N. C.—Col. Raymond Robins, accompanied by two federal prohibition agents, left by automobile early Saturday for Asheville to undergo a medical examination.

The noted prohibitionist, bearded and in dirty overalls, was found here Friday after a nation wide search of more than two months. He is described as suffering from amnesia.

John Dreier, of New York, a nephew, who identified Robins after he had been located by federal agents, left for Asheville shortly after Colonel Robins, but in another car.

Dreier said future steps would depend entirely upon the result of the medical examination.

Earlier Saturday, Dr. F. W. Griffin of Appalachian Hall, an Asheville sanatorium, came to Whittier by automobile. He went to the hotel, where Robins has been staying and presumably made a brief examination. A short time later the physician returned to Asheville. Colonel Robins and federal agents followed almost immediately.

Colonel Robins rose soon after 5:30 a. m. Saturday and was one of the first to appear in the dining room of the hotel for breakfast.

Hotel attaches said he at first insisted upon eating alone, but later breakfasted with a group of highway workers. The Colonel ate heartily and apparently was in excellent spirits when he left for Asheville soon afterwards.

Masonic Order Traced to Ancient Jerusalem

Tradition carries the Masonic order back to the building of the temple at Jerusalem, with King Solomon as the first grand master. The best authorities are agreed, however, that modern masonry is an outgrowth of the guilds or associations of builders who labored on the great cathedrals and other works of the Middle ages. Their skill and the often transient character of their employment bound them in fellowship, while the necessity and demand for them gave them prosperity and privileges beyond those of most other classes of workmen.

Ultimately persons not actually connected with building were admitted to membership, and when steps were taken in England in 1633 to put the fraternity on a permanent basis it was no longer confined to operating masons.

Music for the Blind

Dr. Alexander Reuss says: "If we should place the same piece in ordinary music and in Braille side by side no one would at first glance recognize them as signifying the same thing, the appearance is so different. The sensate impression of an ascending or descending melody through higher or lower written notes, whose difference is shown by lines or spaces, is not created in music for the blind; here we are dealing with the entirely different form of presentation. Music is pictured for the seeing in the rise and fall of the melody, while music for the blind must remain pictureless. In Braille music, although time signatures and key as well as metronome time and tempo are indicated at the beginning of the piece, crescendo and decrescendo signs, ties, accents and slurs are not written over the notes, but introduced into the musical text."

One department of the institution, in the New palace, covers the entire period from about the year 1200 to the year 1871. Another department shows the various uniforms, in time of peace and war, used by the Wurtemberg armies, from the founding of the German empire to the World war. A third room shows the uniforms and equipment used during those four years, and yet another, the "Room of Honor," contains nothing but leather-bound volumes in which are set down the names of 82,000 Wurtembergers who fell in that epochal conflict.

Upon motion made and carried the following Resolution was made by the Board.

The Board of County Commissioners of Eddy County, New Mexico hereby respectfully petition the United States Forest Service to designate the Carlsbad-Queen road as a part of their Forest Highway System. We believe that the importance of this road to Eddy County, justifies this designation and we respectfully request that the petition be given due consideration at your next road conference.

Upon motion made and carried the following Resolution was passed.

The matter of the request of the Carlsbad Chamber of Commerce with reference to the securing of land in connection with the construction of the Carlsbad-Caverns National Park Highway, coming on for consideration, after discussion the following resolution was introduced, to-wit:

Resolved that the Board of County Commissioners of Eddy County, request the Highway Commission of the State of New Mexico to acquire the land of W. B. Grammer located in Walnut Canyon, Eddy County, New Mexico, if same can be legally obtained, for the purpose of the construction of an entrance highway to the Carlsbad Caverns National Park.

It being the unanimous opinion of said Commissioners that the construction of said Entrance Highway via Walnut Canyon will result in the most benefit to the State of New Mexico.

Upon motion by C. E. Mann, seconded by R. M. Thorne, said Resolution was adopted and the Clerk instructed to notify the State Highway Commission of said Resolution.

The Clerk was instructed to draw warrants No. 15063 to 15120 inclusive for claims this day allowed.

There being no further business the Board adjourned subject to call.

CONTROL OF PUBLIC RANGE IS URGED

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Immediate federal regulation of grazing on the unallotted and unreserved public lands in the west in order to check overgrazing, erosion and damage to watersheds and irrigation districts, was called for by the national land use committees as they completed a four day meeting in Washington Saturday.

The two committees—the national advisory and legislative committee on land use and the national land use planning committee—approved the principles embodied in the cotton bill to provide the necessary protection for these lands, but did not pass on the controverted question of final disposition of the public domain now totaling 176,000,000 acres.

A committee of 35 experts familiar with public land problems submitted to the national land use committees a survey of the present status of these lands and reported in part:

"The public domain," including the remaining unappropriated, unreserved public lands in question, has always been a grazing commons for unrestricted use by all comers. No public control has ever been exercised. Fencing is not lawful.

"Without regulation as to numbers of stock, time of grazing, and management of stock, range deterioration was inevitable. Today large areas are greatly reduced in grazing capacity, some areas are depleted until they are practically unfit for grazing in present condition. Erosion has increased and the problem of range improvement is thereby made more difficult. Increased tendency to floods and silt in some localities had added to the problems of the undeveloped territory and of reclamation."

The committee also reported: "The need of some form of regulation which will prevent further avoidable deterioration of this vast resource is generally recognized. Likewise there is general recognition that as a general principle such improvement as is brought about should be accomplished without depriving the livestock industry of the use of these lands. About 50 per cent of the sheep and about 16 per cent of the cattle of the United States are raised in the public land states involved."

AMENDMENTS TO CONSTITUTION ARE BOTH RATIFIED

SANTA FE—Both amendments to the state constitution apparently were ratified at the election November 8th if official returns from 18 of the 31 counties can be taken as a basis.

The certificates from the 18 counties show the following vote: Amendment No. 1: for, 19,166; against 8,648.

Amendment No. 2: for, 16,350; against 7,450.

Amendment number one providing for an exchange of state lands which lie within national forest areas, has been before the voters on several occasions but heretofore has always met defeat.

The second amendment would prohibit the introduction of bills in the state legislature after the 45th day, except appropriation bills to carry on the state government and such bills as the governor may recommend in special messages.

HEALTH COLUMN

COLDS ARE CATCHING

Of course we all know that. But do we behave as if we knew that? Do we go to bed and keep our sneezes to ourselves? Do we wash our hands frequently when colds are all about us? Do we avoid the person with red eyes and a running nose?

Why do we neglect all the obvious precautions? Because we think that colds do not matter or because we think they are inevitable. We are wrong.

Colds may, and often do lead to dangerous and fatal complications, especially when neglected. They may lead to bronchitis and broncho-pneumonia, to middle ear disease, brain abscess and meningitis or they may arouse to activity a latent tuberculosis. Besides a running nose and red eyes may be something else than a common cold. It may be whooping cough or measles or influenza. Isolation in bed is the safe place.

It may not be possible for everyone to escape all colds. But it is certainly possible to reduce the number of colds. This can be done by avoiding infection and by building up resistance to infection. Resistance to colds is lowered by a reduction in the alkal reserve of the blood stream. It is raised therefore by a diet containing plenty of fruit and vegetables. Resistance to colds is probably increased by a sufficiency of vitamin A. Vitamin A is found in foods that are yellow or green and in the fish oils, such as cod, salmon and halibut.

The feet should be kept warm and the head cool. Draughts of cold air are to be avoided. Indoor temperature should not be much above 70 degrees and that temperature will be found comfortable if the air is kept sufficiently moist. Take plenty of sleep and avoid fatigue.

GROUND BROKEN FOR GREAT MAYA TEMPLE AT THE WORLD'S FAIR

CHICAGO.—Ground was broken last week for the first unit of the great Maya Temple—one of the outstanding attractions of Chicago's 1933 World's Fair—A Century of Progress.

The building will rise from the summit of a 14-foot terrace just north of 31st Street overlooking Lef Eriksen drive and Lake Michigan beyond, and will be a replica of one of the finest examples of architecture ever erected.

It is a copy of one of the buildings of the Monjas, or Nunery, at Uxmal, Yucatan—a striking example of the architecture of the Mayas, among whom aboriginal civilization reached the highest point on the North American continent.

Two years ago an expedition under direction of Dr. Frans Blom of Tulane University, entered the Yucatan jungles and secured measurements, casts and full details for the reconstruction of this building.

Description of Monjas

The Monjas consists of four rectangular buildings surrounding a huge court. All stand on a high terrace overlooking the surrounding country, one building fourteen feet above the others. It is this last building on which work is started.

The walls of these structures are covered with elaborate and brightly colored designs of huge mask heads and great serpents carved in stone.

The first unit will be 149 feet long by 27 feet wide, and will be made of a composition laid over structural steel to stimulate the lime stone of the original. Modern scrapers, steam shovels, derricks and other devices will erect the first unit of the Maya Temple in about sixty days, but the original was built long before the coming of the first white man in what is now overgrown jungle by a people unfamiliar with even the wheel of the principle of the true arch.

An Ancient Civilization

Although Maya civilization has produced architecture of rare sophistication and beauty of ornament and though its origin may go back as far as that of Egypt, comparatively little about it is known. Recent research has disclosed that this ancient people had calendars more accurate than those used in contemporary Europe 2,000 years ago, played a native form of "basket ball," and employed the principle of false perspective.

The Monjas is thought to have been the nursery of the vestal virgins, who appear to have played prominent part in the ancient Maya religion.

North of the replica of the Monjas will lie the Indian villages, in which will be shown the various cultures of the American Indians ranging from the most simple to the wonderful culture of Middle America. Within the Monjas will be shown the culture of the Aztecs, Toltecs and Maya.

Inner Tube Boat

Probably the most unusual form of transportation employed so far by any visitor to the Exposition is the inner-tube craft in which Captain Joe Bellocq, 52, paddled 1,200 miles from Detroit, Michigan, in thirty-nine days.

Unable to swim and inexperienced on the water, "Captain" Joe fashioned his unique craft out of four old automobile inner-tubes, some old automobile boards and the back canvas, a few boards and the back of a wooden chair. An old bicycle supplied him with the motive power for a propeller.

Early on his cruise, however, the propeller became tangled in some weeds in the Detroit river and broke. For a whole day "Captain" Joe combated a storm on Lake Erie with a single oar, until a yacht overhauled him and the owner presented him with a second oar.

The rest of the way "Captain" Joe, who is incidentally of French birth, rowed, following the shore of Lake Erie to the mouth of the Maumee river, then up the river to the rapids near Fort Wayne, portaging

Under Six Feet

The tiny craft measures less than six feet in length and about half of that in breadth and carries a slender mast bearing the national standard and a pennant with the name "Angeline" and the slogan "Detroit to Chicago 1933 World's Fair."

"Captain" Joe wore only a stocking cap, sweater, two pairs of trousers and a pair of rubber boots on his unusual voyage, despite squalls and cold.

ARTESIA-ROSWELL BID FOR THE VALLEY BASKETBALL TOURNAY

Two towns in the Pecos valley Artesia and Roswell, will bid for the annual high school basketball tournament of this region, it was said here Tuesday. The basketball tournament is usually held the first week in March and this year ten teams are expected to compete for high honors. Schools represented will be Hobbs, Lovington, Tatum, Carlsbad, Artesia, Hope, Lake Arthur, Hagerman, Dexter and Roswell.

The tournament city is selected by a secret vote among the schools. For the past two years, the event has been held in Roswell. Previous to this time for two or three years it was held here. Roswell will make an active bid this year and has extended invitations to all the participating schools. Drawings for places in the tournament will be held within a few weeks, T. C. Bird, high school athletic director, said.
