PROPOSING TO AMEND SECTIONS 1, 12, 13, 16, 17, 23, 25 and 27 OF ARTICLE VI OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE OF NEW MEXICO.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF NEW MEXICO: Section 1. That it is hereby proposed to amend Section 1, 12, 13, 16, 17, 23, 25 and 27 of Article VI of the Constitution of the State of New Mexico, said Article being entitled "Judicial Department" so that said sections are to read as follows:

Section 1. The judicial power of the State shall be vested in the Senate when sitting as a supreme court, district courts, and justice of the peace, and such courts inferior to the district court as may be provided by law.

Section 16. The legislature may increase the number of district judges in any judicial district, and they shall be elected as other district judges, but such increase shall be made only when the population of the district where such increase is proposed exceeds fifty thousand people, and the number may then be increased on the basis of one district judge for every fifty thousand people or fraction thereof actually enumerated in said district or officially reported by the United States Census.

Section 17. The judges of the district court shall receive for their services, a compensation, which shall not be increased or diminished during the term of their office.

Second District—Bernalillo and Sandoval. Third District—Dona Ana, Otero and Lincoln. Fourth District—Colfax, Union and Mora. Fifth District—Chaves, Eddy, and Lea. Sixth District—McKinley and San Juan. Seventh District—Grant, Luna, and Hidalgo. Eighth District—Curry, DeBaca and Roosevelt. Ninth District—Valencia and Torrance. Tenth District—San Miguel. Eleventh District—Quay, Harding and Guadalupe. Twelfth District—Catron, Socorro and Sierra.

Section 27. Appeals shall be allowed in all cases from the final judgments and decisions of Justices of the Peace to the district courts, and in all such appeals trial shall be had de novo unless otherwise provided by law.

Section 2. In the event of the passage of the foregoing resolution, the said amendment shall be submitted to the people for their approval or rejection at the general election in November, 1934; Provided, however, that in case a special election is held in this state prior to November, 1934, the said amendment shall be submitted to the people at such election.

BRIEF PREPARED IN PUBLIC RANGE FENCE REMOVAL SQUABBLE

ALBUQUERQUE—Former New York Congressman Walter Chandler Monday asked the co-operation of livestock men in the state in his efforts to gather material to show why Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes should cancel his fence removal order.

Chandler is preparing a brief showing that immediate enforcement of the order will work "irreparable damage" to the cattle industry and the schools of the state who obtain some of their revenue from public lands.

He also pointed out his brief will contend that the order will tend to injure the RFC loans made to stockmen who as a part of loan agreement must agree to keep their stock penned up.

Chandler last week made a personal call on Secretary Ickes and asked delay in enforcement of the order. This was denied. He said if his brief was not recognized he would draft legislation to present at the next session of congress which will repeal the law.

He said he was making the brief as a public service and asked co-operation of the sheep and cattlemen in preparing it. He has taken up his residence in New Mexico and will live in Albuquerque.

MRS. GEORGIA LUSK REQUESTS THOUGHT VOTING AMEND. NO. 4

Following is a letter from Mrs. Georgia Lusk, state superintendent of public instruction with regard to amendment No. 4 which will be voted upon September 19, which is self explanatory:

Santa Fe, New Mexico September 12, 1933

My Dear Citizen:

I feel considerably worried and distressed over the possible effects on the schools of the proposed twenty mill limit amendment. I wish to take this opportunity of soliciting your support in the fight that the friends of education of the children are making to defeat amendment No. 4.

You, as voters and taxpayers of the state realize well enough that our schools today are not what they should be. Terms are cut, teachers are underpaid, children are retarded educationally an average of 2.5 years, and only 10% of our first grade enrollment reach the 12th grade; all in all we should not hamper further the education of our children. The seriousness of the situation is particularly true if we consider the education of our Spanish speaking children who comprise 50% of the total. For many years we, because of ignorance or negligence, permitted a tremendous waste to occur among our native people through educational inefficiency. I mean by this that although over 50% of the school census is Spanish speaking, only 17% of them graduate from our high schools.

These figures speak most eloquently of a condition that exists which challenges the best efforts of our people. It behooves us as intelligent citizens to see that nothing more is done to accentuate the condition which already exists. Any further limitation of public support and revenue for our schools would be a great misfortune and would harm irrevocably the future of our children in the state.

If the proposed constitutional amendment No. 4 is unfortunately ratified by the citizens of our fair state the schools will suffer a blow from which they will not recover for years to come. In the counties least affected, there will be not more than six months of school. For the greater number of counties we estimate that the school revenue will be cut at least in half, which will result in a complete wrecking of the public schools during the period in which our tax system will be readjusted or reorganized to provide revenue from some source to take the place of the revenue being provided at the present time by the property tax, because it is reasonable to suppose that a certain amount of money is necessary for state, county and municipal functions of government. If the corporations are relieved of a certain percentage of property tax, that income must be replaced by an added burden upon the small property owners and the masses of people. During this reconstruction, let me emphasize that the public school system will be completely wrecked and many of our 150,000 school children will not again have the opportunity to make up for the time lost during this period of reconstruction. I appeal to you to vote against amendment No. 4 that the interests of the children may be safeguarded.

Cordially yours, GEORGIA L. LUSK, Superintendent of Public Instruction. GLL:SV stored product).

Cool and dry: Onions and beans.
Warm and dry: Squash, pumpkins, and sweet potatoes.
All vegetables except dry beans, onions, squash, pumpkins and sweet potatoes may be kept in the same storage room if cabbage is kept on shelves and potatoes in slatted crates or bins. The best temperature for most vegetables is barely above freezing. If potatoes are included, temperature should not go below 34° F. since potatoes become sweet at lower temperature, even though not frozen.

Drying Garden's Surplus
It is difficult to state dogmatically what foods will dry successfully, since they vary as to both kind and variety. Fruits and vegetables may be dried, but fruits are easier to dry than most vegetables. The higher sugar content makes them easier to preserve and they give up water more easily than do vegetables. Apples, pears, peaches, apricots, cherries, prunes, plums, figs and berries are the best fruits for drying.

Among the vegetables corn, mature beans and peas, celery, okra and sweet potatoes are best for drying. The quick-maturing varieties, such as green snap beans, immature green beans, asparagus, cauliflower, broccoli and spinach, are difficult to dry successfully. With a preliminary steaming or hot dip and quick drying, a fairly satisfactory product may be obtained, but some tend to be woody and fibrous and all tend to lose flavor and color if held too long. Other methods of preservation are suggested, therefore, except in case of green beans in late summer or fall. These may be dried if not held too long before using—that is, if used before Christmas. Any surplus of green beans earlier in the season should be canned for use in the late winter.

Potatoes, turnips, beets, parsnips, carrots, cabbage and onions can all be dried successfully, but they store so well and so simply that it seems uneconomical to preserve them in any other way.

Sweet potatoes also store, but they dry so easily and successfully that any injured in harvesting may well be dried for use in late spring. Pumpkin and squash both dry successfully. Corn properly dried compares in flavor and palatability with canned corn. Sliced okra may be dried successfully for soup, though the color of the fresh product is not retained if held too long. Celery dried serves as a source of flavor, and may be used as a vegetable alone or in combination with other vegetables.

Beans and peas may be allowed to mature on the vine, but even these are stored more successfully after a short treatment in the dryer. It is to be strongly urged that more beans and peas be planted and used. They add both variety and food value to the diet. A variety of flavor is obtained if some are gathered and dried when the seed obtain full size, but before the pods have turned yellow. Some of all varieties, including field peas, black-eyed peas and lima beans, can be treated this way to advantage.

Drying is simply a removing of water. Any fresh food, if exposed to the air dries out. The rapidity with which it dries depends upon the amount of water in the air, humidity, we call it. The warmer the air the more water it takes up before it becomes saturated. When saturated air is cooled it gives up water, as we see in dew and sweating of a pitcher of iced water on a humid day. The faster the air passes over food the more rapidly it dries. These principles are applied in drying vegetables.

A final heating of 165 to 170° F. should be given all foods dried in the sun. This will kill microorganisms that might be adhering. Heavy paraffined paper containers that can be tightly closed, friction top-tin cans, tin coffee cans, etc., at satisfactory for storing as they keep out dirt, dust and water.

THREE LIQUOR DISTRICTS TO BE ESTABLISHED IF LANE LAW PASSES

There will be three liquor control districts in the state, when and if the Lane liquor law becomes full operative after the September 19th elections. This was decided by the state liquor control board at its first meeting.
Dr. J. Rosslyn Earp, director of public health, was chosen chairman, and E. K. Neumann, attorney general, was named secretary. Mrs. Marguerite P. Baca, secretary of state, is the third member of the board.
Neumann was directed to prepare forms for submission at the next meeting of the board. These forms are required by law and the board is to prescribe their use in counties and municipalities, and are permits for wholesale and retail dealers, and buying permits for individuals desiring them in local option districts, both resident and non-resident, and permits for the transportation of liquor.

The three districts to be created include: No. 1—Rio Arriba, Taos, Colfax, Union, Santa Fe, Bernalillo, Sandoval, San Miguel, Guadalupe, Harding and Mora counties; No. 2—Curry, De Baca, Roosevelt, Lincoln, Chaves, Lea, Eddy, Otero, Dona Ana, Quay and Torrance; No. 3—San Juan, McKinley, Valencia, Sierra, Luna, Grant, Hidalgo, Catron and Socorro. The districts are for administrative control only.

The board also decided if the 23rd article of the state constitution is repealed September 19, to employ five persons, three to be inspectors, each of whom shall be given administrative jurisdiction over one of the districts created and the other two to be employed to be a secretary, capable of auditing records of dealers, and a stenographer. The board will fill these places at its next meeting to be held September 22.

FARM NEWS

Pit Storage Of Vegetables
Home storage of fresh vegetables is a practical and economical method of conserving the winter's vegetable supply. It is quickly done and is easier and cheaper than canning or drying, says W. A. Wunsch, county extension agent. Properly stored vegetables will retain their natural flavor.

Successful methods of storage have been developed to meet the conditions on every farm. These methods are inexpensive and only a few simple rules need be followed. Several types of storage may be used, such as the house, cellar or basement, the outdoor pit and the outdoor cellar. The outdoor pit, covered with a mound of soil, is perhaps the most commonly used and surely the cheapest of all types of storage. It can be used successfully in all parts of New Mexico.

In preparing the pit, select a high well drained spot. Vegetables will rot if left to stand in water. Dig a pit six to ten inches deep, and about thirty inches in diameter. Place a layer of straw or leaves in the bottom of the pit about four inches deep. It is better to have several small mounds than to have one containing all of the vegetables as then when vegetables are needed an entire mound can be torn down and all the contents removed to a protected porch, basement or kitchen until used.

Pile two bushels or so of mixed vegetables, such as beets, carrots, turnips, potatoes, etc., on this straw in a conical or round pile, and cover with about four to six inches of straw. Sufficient dirt should then be put on the straw to keep out the air and cold. The dirt should be as fine as possible, and free from stones. At the top of the pile, the straw should be pulled up and allowed to stick out thru the dirt, to act as a chimney for ventilation. Later, when the weather turns colder, additional dirt can be added until about eight inches thick and covers the ventilator. If the temperature should drop much below zero, a ten inch layer of straw manure should be placed over the dirt.

Store All Vegetables Can't Can
Many vegetables not adapted to canning may be stored fresh cheaper than if canning were attempted and the quality may be even better than if the same products were canned, says W. A. Wunsch, county extension agent. An abundance may be easily stored with a minimum of expense and labor.

The conditions for successful storage are: a product of good quality, vegetable at the proper stage of maturity; the proper temperature and degree of humidity maintained.

The desirable stage of maturity varies with the crop. Cabbage, onions, squash and pumpkins will not keep well unless fully matured. Beets, carrots, parsnips and turnips should not be allowed to mature fully as they are likely to be woody. The quality of potatoes is better and the shrinkage less if they are harvested after the vines have matured and died. The temperature and moisture conditions may be summarized as follows:

Cool and moist: Beets, carrots, parsnips, turnips, winter radishes and celery.

Cool and moderately moist: Cabbage and Irish potatoes. (The atmosphere should be moist but not moist enough to allow the accumulation of water drops upon the "Proud and glad to do our part"

WITH President Roosevelt's acceptance of the NRA Automobile Code, Chevrolet, the world's largest builder of motor cars, officially begins operations in accordance with the administration's recovery program.

Although the official code was signed only a few days ago, it will be of interest to Chevrolet's many friends to learn that the Chevrolet Motor Company started to carry out the spirit of today's recovery program over three years ago!

At that time, we put into operation a "share-the-work" plan, whereby our workmen cooperated in spreading the work to give more men jobs. By means of this plan, as well as by regulating hours of work per week to meet retail demand, and by building up parts stocks in lean seasons, it was possible to carry 33,000 men on our payroll through the depression. For eleven months of each year since 1929, we have kept our employment within 10 per cent of this average. We are justly proud of that record. We are also proud to say that Chevrolet workmen did not, at any time during the depression, become a burden on public welfare departments.

On August 1st of this year, Chevrolet announced a blanket wage increase as well as the adoption of a 7 1/2-hour, 5-day week and the employment of 12,000 additional men. This wage increase was the second in the last 4 months, Chevrolet having been among the first to put a blanket wage increase into effect.

We feel that the President's recovery program deserves the whole-hearted support of every citizen and manufacturer in America. It is a bold, swift, courageous plan to start the ball rolling toward economic recovery. Its sincerity is unquestioned. Its objectives are admirable. And the direct, forceful steps the President and his associates are taking to make it a success, should stir the pride and admiration of every American.

We are proud and glad to do our part. And we are deeply grateful to the American people for the patronage that has enabled us to anticipate the present recovery program and to play our part today. After all, the immense number of men employed by Chevrolet is a direct result of the continued preference America has shown for Chevrolet.
