BULLDOGS BEAT THOSE CAVEMEN

Red Cross Roll Call Starts Off Well This Year

Auxiliary Members to Be at Bank, Postoffice on Nov. 15, 16, 22, 23—Woman's Club Ladies Organize for Drive.

The annual Red Cross roll call drive is starting off well, although it only has been under way three days, C. J. Dexter, chairman of the North Eddy County chapter, announced this morning.

Members of both the American Legion Auxiliary and the Woman's Club have been assigned duties in order to contact everyone.

The former will be represented in the lobbies of the First National Bank and the postoffice Friday and Saturday, Nov. 15 and 16, and Friday and Saturday, Nov. 22 and 23, Dexter said.

Members of the Woman's Club are organizing the residence and rural districts for a house-to-house canvass.

The roll call chairman emphasized that this is a North Eddy County drive "to take care of our own." He pointed out that all more than 50 cents of every subscription remains at home to take care of local emergency cases and is not to be sent away under any circumstances.

In this light, Dexter said every employed person in North Eddy County should join the Red Cross this year by purchasing at least a $1 membership.

Dexter said additional workers who wish to help will be welcomed, in order to put the drive across quickly and thoroughly.

STUDENTS HEAR SPECIAL MUSIC PROGRAM TODAY

A special assembly program was presented this morning at Artesia Junior-Senior High School on "The Appealing Power of Music" by a local group which has given the same program heretofore before various organizations.

In the group are Mrs. Walter Seawell, reader; Mrs. M. C. Ross, accompanist; Mrs. Fred Cole, Mrs. Frank Smith and "Fid" Hamill, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hal Hamill, vocalists.

The program was in observation of "National Music Week."

Two Changes to Make REA Juice More Available

The board of directors of the Central Valley Electric Membership Corp., Inc., at a meeting Saturday afternoon, adopted two new steps, both of which are planned to make electric energy available to more persons, George E. Kaiser, manager, announced.

One was adoption of a special low minimum tenant rate, effective Nov. 25, and the other was the making of all new domestic and commercial connections by the coop.

The new special minimum tenant rate is only $1.50 a month, with energy furnished at 9½ cents, which should enable at least fifty more families to take advantage of the rural electrification.

Whenever a consumer wishes to switch to the regular rate of forty kilowatt-hours at a minimum of $2.90 he may do so, Kaiser said.

Under the new set-up to make domestic and commercial connections by the cooperative, to be effective after Dec. 1, the company will furnish and install a complete service entrance up to and including the service entrance switch.

Heretofore, Kaiser said, consumers have had to attend to the wiring from the service line. On a small house, the cooperative manager said, the cost should be cut in half.

TO PRINT A DAY EARLY NEXT WEEK In order that The Advocate force may observe Thanksgiving next week, the paper will be printed a day early. All advertisers, correspondents and others are requested to step up a bit, in order that the issue may not be slighted.

In order to save a day, which is next to impossible—but it has been done before—it is necessary to move some operations up more than a single day and it takes cooperation to do that.

In New Mexico Thanksgiving will be observed on Nov. 21, a week earlier than the customary fourth Thursday, but both President Roosevelt and Governor Miles have proclaimed the third Thursday as the Day of Thanksgiving, so sharply the ax and run down the old Turk, for the date is only a week away.

Artesia Band Will Perform on Cavemen Field at Carlsbad

E. L. Harp, director of the Artesia school band, announced this morning he is training the band and twirling squad this week to form a huge "Caveman club" in honor of the Carlsbad Cavemen at the Carlsbad-Artesia football game on the Cavemen's new stadium field at Carlsbad at 7:30 o'clock Friday evening.

The maneuver will be an adaptation of the arrow used at a recent game here. Harp is planning on some other interesting stunts for the "teen-halves" period tomorrow evening, just as have been presented at all of the grid games here this season.

Use of a ram's head on one of the twirling clans in honor of the Portales Rams here last Friday and a Bulldog head on the other clown for the Artesia squad caused considerable favorable comment.

Mrs. Powell, Valley Pioneer, Dies Last Thursday Aged 81

Death Comes at Home of Son Here—Buried at Elk on Saturday

Mrs. Eliza Jane Powell, 81, a pioneer of the Pecos and Penasco Valleys, died at the home in Artesia of her son, Fred Powell, at 12:10 o'clock last Thursday afternoon after being seriously ill seventeen days. She was injured in a fall at the Hagerman home of a daughter, Mrs. Lige Hooten, since when she had been poorly.

Mrs. Powell moved to Artesia from Hagerman five months ago and made her home with her son and daughter-in-law since.

Funeral services were from the Methodist Church at Elk at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon by the Rev. Allen Johnson, pastor of the Artesia Church of Christ. Burial was in the cemetery at Elk by the grave of Mrs. Powell's late husband, Thomas B. Powell, who died Aug. 6, 1906.

The First Freezing Weather of Season Hits Sunday Night

The first real winter of the season hit Artesia Sunday night, after a day of high winds Sunday, with the temperature during the night dropping to 23 degrees.

The lowest temperature so far this fall was recorded on the thermometer of the New Mexico Eastern Gas Company sometime Tuesday night for the Wednesday morning reading at 16 degrees.

The low of 23 degrees Sunday night was repeated Monday night, and last night the mercury went down to 19 degrees.

NO "RENOVATIONS," AS RENO IS TAKING EXAMS

"Renovations" does not appear in this issue of The Advocate, as Arlee Reno, the author thereof, went to El Paso Sunday to take tests for the Air Corps.

Legionnaires Are Told to Support Own Functions

Members of Clarence Kepple Post No. 41, American Legion, were asked to support the Legion dances better, at the monthly meeting Tuesday evening at the hut.

The next dance, Charles Morgan, department commander and post chairman of the dance committee, and Steve Lanning, post commander, pointed out, will be this evening.

The Legionnaires were urged to themselves support the dances, as well as expecting others to attend, in order that the post's building program might go ahead at a more rapid pace, in the end leading to better dances.

Oscar Samelson, adjutant, reported the post now has a paid-up membership for 1941 of 118 members, more than any year since the department convention was held here nearly a decade ago.

The post decided to relinquish sponsorship of Boy Scout troop 28, which, it was reported, the 20-30 Club would like to sponsor. The members passed a motion, however, to give the 20-30 Club all the support possible in caring for the Scouts.

A joint meeting with the American Legion Auxiliary was announced for Monday evening, at which time there will be a covered dish supper.

'Petticoat Fever' Is Well Presented By Little Theater

Bad Weather Cuts Audience and Funds for the Red Cross

"Petticoat Fever," the first major production of the Little Theater of Artesia for the current season, gave future casts something at which to shoot, when produced last Thursday evening in the auditorium of Artesia Junior-Senior High School, for it was one of the best directed and acted plays presented here in a number of years.

Everyone was pleased, except members of the dramatic organization were disappointed that more people did not see the three-act comedy, and as much was hoped. At that, the crowd was large considering the fact the evening was about the worst from a weather standpoint experienced in Artesia in many months.

Although somewhat sophisticated, the plot of the play was interspersed with wit and humor, and many funny, as well as delicate situations were created as the (Continued on last page, col. 5)

Cobble Is One Of Three State Four-H Winners

Lynn Cobble, a graduate of Artesia High School, is one of three New Mexico youths selected by the Santa Fe Railway as a winner of an educational award on the basis of outstanding 4-H Club work by the State Extension Service.

Selected with him were Denzil Pulliam of Bellevue and Howard Calkins of Albuquerque. G. R. Hatch, extension club specialist, certified their activities for the railway awards, which in the past have enabled thousands of boys and girls to further educational development.

The awards will permit the winners to attend the National 4-H Club Congress held in Chicago in December as guests of the railway. The congress is held in conjunction with the International Livestock Exposition.

With the awards, certificates of merit will be presented the winners prior to the annual pilgrimage to the Chicago congress.

Methodists Have District Meeting In Artesia Today

Second Session of Conference to Be at Monahans on Monday

The first section of the district meetings of the Methodist Churches of the Roswell Churches for this year is being held today at the First Methodist Church in Artesia.

The Rev. L. Bowman Craven of Roswell, district superintendent, announced the second session will be at Monahans, Tex., next Monday.

The program here opened at 9 o'clock this morning, with all of the various interests of the churches in the district represented by leaders in their special fields. Dan W. Wilmot, conference and district lay leader, is presiding.

Woman's work is represented by Mrs. George Pixler of Carlsbad, district secretary. The missionary and benevolent interests of the church is being represented by the Rev. D. A. Shaw, pastor at Hagerman, who is district missionary secretary.

The Rev. Clyde Campbell, conference missionary secretary, was to bring an inspirational message on missions at the closing hour of the morning session.

The Rev. C. E. Jameson, pastor at Carlsbad, has charge of the evangelistic program, and the Rev. R. C. Cantrell, chairman of the conference board of evangelism, is (Continued on last page, col. 7)

King May Hold One More Auction Sale Here on Saturday

B. F. King of King's Jewelry left again Saturday night for the market to buy stock and fixtures for the new store in Artesia at Main and Roselawn.

Should he return in time, he intends to hold one more auction here Saturday and then liquidate the balance of the old stock at half price the coming week, until the new stock arrives.

A successful auction sale of the old stock was closed Saturday night after a run of two weeks, but there still remains enough for another sale Saturday, he said.

Looks Like Big Game Story by Successful List

Dozens of Deer Hunters Have Checked in as 1940 Season Draws to Close—Few Bag Turkeys Also.

As the 1940 big game season in New Mexico is drawing to a close, fewer bucks and turkeys are being brought in, partly because of severe weather in the mountains, but to date dozens of successful hunters have brought in their game, some on their first trip to the hills, others after going back for more "roughin' it." The season will close Friday.

Great to Know One Another, as Points It Out

The power of a cheery "Hello" and the joy of fellowship were described Tuesday noon at the weekly Artesia Rotary luncheon by the Rev. T. W. Brabham, a member of the Roswell Rotary Club, who declared that "it's great to know one another."

The Roswell clergyman, who followed no set pattern in his talk, but approached his subject, "Fellowship," by way of numerous anecdotes and a light method of delivery, put across one of the best messages of the season and stressed one of the things for which the Rotary Club exists.

Civic clubs, the speaker said, were created to foster fellowship among men and that is had at meetings, but the members must not forget to carry that with them out into the street, "out where we live."

"We should not be so interested in making new friends," he declared, "as in treating old friends just a little better."

Neil B. Watson, Artesia club president, announced the charter night of a new club at Fort Stanton Dec. 3 and appointed Howard Williams, A. P. Mahone and H. G. Watson a committee to try to get as many local members as possible to attend.

Bishop Howden Is Dead, Victim Heart Attack on Tuesday

Services to Be at Albuquerque Saturday for Noted Episcopal Prelate

The Right Reverend Frederick Bingham Howden, Episcopal bishop of New Mexico and Southwest Texas, of which diocese Artesia is a part, died suddenly at his home in Albuquerque Tuesday afternoon after a heart attack. He was 71 years old.

Bishop Howden, father of the Rev. F. B. Howden, Jr., rector of the Episcopal Churches in Artesia and Roswell, apparently had been in good health and attended to his church duties Tuesday morning. Death came at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon as the bishop was resting on a couch in his study.

Funeral services are to be from Saint John's Cathedral in Albuquerque at 10 o'clock Saturday morning. All pastors of the diocese and many bishops from over the nation are expected to attend the services for Bishop Howden, who was well known not only in his diocese, but over the nation.

Artesia's participation in the national inspection, inventory and roll call of all Boy Scout units during the period, Nov. 11-18, will be at 7 o'clock Monday evening, when Frank Smith, district commissioner, will officiate locally.

All Scouts are to be present in uniform for the inspection and roll call. An attendance of 100 per cent is expected by the commissioner and executive officers.

In the call, troops will show their individual strength in their program action for strengthening and invigorating democracy.

Scouters this week stressed that all Boy Scouts, Sea Scouts and Cubs fulfill the Scout motto, "Be Prepared," in looking forward to Monday evening.

It is expected that other scouters of the area will be in attendance here Monday evening, including P. V. Thorson of Roswell, district executive, and George Henry of Hobbs, field executive.

GATEWAY BOWL IS IN THE BAG

The Gateway Bowl game in Artesia Friday, Nov. 29, was clinched this morning upon the receipt of a formal contract from Berry N. Alvis, principal of Clayton High School, one of the contenders.

Acceptance and a contract were received previously from T. C. Bird, principal of Hobbs High School. In a letter to Arba Green, secretary of the Gateway Bowl Association, received with the contract from Clayton, Alvis said that school will abide by the selection by association officers of officials for the game, feeling satisfied that the local group will be fair in naming them.

The advance ticket sale is under way and the various committees are functioning well, Hollis G. Watson, general chairman of the Gateway Bowl Association, said this morning.

Purchase of advance tickets, by the way, will assure a seat near the center of the field.

Farm and Range Programs Must Be Done by Nov. 30

The ruling that all 1940 AAA practices under both the farm and range programs must be completed by Nov. 30 was again called to the attention of producers in Eddy County by G. R. Howard, chairman of the ACA committee.

"It is evident that ranchers do not realize this date is only about three weeks off," Howard said, "because only thirty-seven ranchers have completed their practices out of eighty-three that made requests for participation."

"I am afraid that some of our producers are going to be caught by bad weather and not be able to complete their practices, which will mean that they will receive none or only a part of their 1940 payment."

Traditional Foes, Cavemen, Bulldogs, Will Meet Friday

Both Out to Break Scoreless Tie of Last Season—Play at Carlsbad

The Artesia Bulldogs will meet their traditional enemies, the Carlsbad Cavemen, on the new Carlsbad stadium gridiron at 7:30 o'clock Friday evening, each team out to break the scoreless tie of last year's encounter, played on Morris Field in Artesia.

The Black and Orange gridders will be without the services of the star halfback, "Icky" Lewis, who has been forced out of play because of the recurrence of an old knee injury. Lewis, a three-year letterman, finished his prep school football playing Friday evening, when he again injured his knee late in the first half of the game against the Portales Rams.

Coach Bob Cox's Cavemen have had an in and out season, raising to victory over some of the best teams one week end and then faltering the next and therefore they have not piled up a very convincing season record. The Carlsbad lads sent Clovis down to defeat 21 to 19 at Carlsbad and have outstanding ties with the Santa Fe (Continued on last page, col. 6)

Operators Discuss The Distressed Oil Situation at Meet

A number of oil operators of Eddy County met last evening on the Roof Garden of the Artesia Hotel to discuss ways and means of taking care of the distressed oil situation.

It is figured about 60,000 barrels more oil a month should be produced under proration than is being produced.

Here to meet with the operators were Glenn Staley, umpire from the Hobbs proration office, and a Mr. Kelly, also from that office; Ernest Hanson of Roswell, of the U. S. Geological Survey, and Frank Worden, Santa Fe, state land commissioner.

First Sign Up For Inactive National Guard

Phillips, Mitchell, Mays to Go to Camp in January, Instead of Draft—Plan for Larger Group, to Train Here for Present.

First steps towards definite enlistment of inactive National Guardsmen in Artesia as part of the National Guard anti-aircraft unit stationed in Carlsbad, to be called into active service for a year of training in January, were taken here Tuesday evening when three local youths were signed up.

The three will serve as a nucleus of a larger group, all to be called into active service as part of the National Guard after the first of the year, unless they are inducted into the service in the meantime.

Signing up of the men into inactive status in the National Guard, for which legislative provision was made recently, is a step in having sufficient men available in January when the present unit of sixty-six officers and men is increased to 153, with only a few days in which to recruit them, at the time the National Guard is pressed into training.

Several commissioned officers, a sergeant and a private of the Carlsbad unit were here Tuesday evening and met with the American Legion, explaining to the World War veterans what the unit is doing and what they hoped to accomplish by signing up young men here.

After the Legion meeting, the anti-aircraft officers and men signed up the three young Artesia men, who are W. R. Phillips, Charles Mitchell and Dick Mays.

The officers explained to the young men and to the Legionnaires that signing up in the inactive National Guard, with the intention of going to camp for a year with that unit, gives the enrollees a knowledge now where they will be sent and in what kind of army work they will be in.

After a year of training, should peace still prevail, the men will revert back into an inactive status, the officers said, unless they wish to follow a career in the Army.

Although the young men have an inactive status at this time, the Carlsbad men said some of them will come to Artesia regularly until January in order to give the men who signed up the advantage of advance training.

The unit will be represented here at 7:30 o'clock next Tuesday evening, when representatives of the unit at Carlsbad will meet with (Continued on last page, col. 4)

C. E. McCartney, formerly store manager at Brun, Tex., for Frick-Reid Supply Company, has been placed actively in charge of the business.

McCartney, who is married and has two children, has his family here now and hopes to be permanently located soon.

It was not learned from Lanning, who has a number of other interests here, what his plans are.

BOWL GAME WILL FOSTER GOOD WILL

As time for the second annual Gateway Bowl game nears, enthusiasm in Artesia grows, for not only sports fans, but the general citizenry, recognizes the good such an event does for good sportsmanship in New Mexico.

There is the selfish standpoint too, but that is secondary. That a few more dollars will be spent in Artesia because of the game is of far less importance than the good which such an event will foster.

The Gateway Bowl proves nothing except which of the contesting teams is victor and which is vanquished in a regulation grid encounter; it establishes no championship, other than the arbitrary Gateway Bowl title for the season.

But it does bring together two teams from different sections of the state in a sporting event, which otherwise would not be staged. It throws fans from the two sections together in the same stadium.

The idea for the annual event grew from the intersectional post-season college football games, which have become so popular in the various "bowl" encounters the last few years. If college teams can do that, local sports fans thought, why cannot we match two of the strong teams of New Mexico?

And just like that it was done last year! The first Gateway Bowl game was a success from every standpoint. It paid its own way. The contending teams were satisfied and were well paid for coming.

The second annual event should be bigger than that of last year, for local fans feel it now is established and that fans from all of New Mexico are looking forward to the Gateway Bowl game here.

They believe more out-of-town fans will be attracted than were in 1939. They believe, although the annual game cannot be called a tradition in its second year, that it is clinched for Artesia and will become a tradition.

The choice of Hobbs to represent Southeast New Mexico this year in the classic and Clayton High School to represent outstate New Mexico was made carefully. Perhaps there might be two teams rated higher at the end of the season, but there probably could be no better matched teams selected.

Choice had to be made before the contenders for the Gateway Bowl title of 1940 had completed their schedules, so either may meet defeat prior to the game here. But both are strong and both will come to Artesia Nov. 29 with fight in their blood for the honor which surely will come by winning such an event.

A GREAT PRESIDENT IS RE-ELECTED

How quickly the wounds of battle heal in a democracy! Hardly have the ballots been counted in the national election than the people turn their thoughts to something else; the election is over. They think about ways and means to make this nation mightier and more secure; of ways to help eliminate the totalitarian menace without actual combat; of business and schools and churches and of the humdrum things of life.

Forgotten are the many things said during the campaign, things which hurt and which would not be said at any time other than during a heated political campaign.

The people have spoken and a president has been elected. He may not have been your choice, but he will be your president. So the vanquished should—and most of them have—taken stock of the situation as it exists and mold an even greater nation than ever before.

All should show the rest of the world that we abide by the people's choice, that we do not bear grudges after the battle of ballots and that we do not decide our differences with a battle of bullets.

The people have spoken and a great president has been re-elected—your president and our president.

LET US BE FILLED WITH THANKS

It matters little whether we observe Thanksgiving next week or on the traditional fourth Thursday of November, except that it throws the calendar manufacturers into a tangle.

The point is that we in America should be happy to take a day on which to be thankful and to actually observe it, because we have so much for which to be thankful.

We should be thankful in the first place that we do live in America; that we are Americans.

We should be thankful that we do not live in Europe or Asia, whether in one of the warring countries or not.

We should be thankful for the national defense program grown from the threat of totalitarian powers, for their efforts across the waters have pointed out to us that we were not as strong, nor invulnerable as we thought.

We should be thankful that we can go to the polls and vote for any candidate or party we choose, without fear of reprisals.

We should be thankful that we can go to our several churches—not to a prescribed church—where we can worship and give thanks in any manner we choose.

We should be thankful that there will be a Thanksgiving Day—no matter when it is—just so we can stop a moment to think how thankful we are.

God Bless America.

It was a timid bandit who walked into Mrs. Tumine's grocery in Shreveport, La. And as timid bandits go, he went. So did Mrs. Tumine. She told police that the unmasked man walked in, flashed a pistol and demanded her money. She ran out the back door. The bandit, unmerged, ran out the front. He got nothing but the exercise, police said.

But he lured some of the boys back for candy.

Bulldogs Drop Game Friday to Portales Rams After Having Won Five Previous Grid Frays

Visitors Take Fray 20 to 6 on Morris Field, as Fog Rolls Over Stands.

(By Leon Bert)

The Bulldogs of Artesia High School toppled to defeat at the hands of the mighty Portales Rams here on Norris Field Friday evening 20 to 6, after winning their previous five games, as waves of fog swept over the stadium and a drizzling rain fell.

Portales with its powerhouse aggression counted twice in the first half with one pay-off trip coming early in the opening minutes of the first period and the other being made mid-way in the second. The Rams drove over for their final touchdown in the last quarter, after the Bulldogs made their lone tally earlier in the same period.

Patterson, Ram halfback, drove over right tackle for Portales' first score from the one-yard line on the fourth down after the fighting Artesians had held almost in the shadow of their own goal post for three downs. The place kick try for conversion was good.

It was Johnson, Portales fullback, going over into Bulldog pay dirt from the seven-yard line around left end on fourth down after the Black and Orange had again put up a brave goal line stand. This time the try for extra point went wide of the posts.

"Kit" Carson, Bulldog speed merchant, hit the center for the Artesia score, going over from the one-yard line on fourth down after the Bulldog offensive began rolling in the final period. Carson tried to run the ball over for the point, but slipped on the wet turf and fell.

The Rams came back late in the period and pushed down to the locals' five-yard line from where Johnson again went over for the counter through left guard on second down. The place kick try for conversion was good.

Artesia was well on the way to another score as the game ended, with the ball on the Rams' 14-yard line. Carson got away a long pass to Dooley Juarez, local halfback substituting for "Icky" Lewis, who sustained a knee injury just before the first half came to a close, which carried from the Bulldog 20-yard line to the 50-yard line, and Juarez went on down to the Portales 17-yard line before he was stopped.

The Artesia school band and twirling squad paraded the grid-iron at the half time intermission, forming a large "R" in favor of the visitors, and Alda Ann Crouch gave a remarkable exhibition of lighted baton twirling in the dark with the field lights turned out.

Roberts Finds Tin In Pay Quantities U. S. Assays Show

Important to National Defense —Artesian Discovers in Black Range

A. C. (Wiggly) Roberts, who left Artesia about ten years ago, has been back here the last few weeks, satisfied that he has found in the Black Range of West New Mexico tin in quantities which should be of great interest in the national defense program. Tin is one important metal seldom found in the United States.

After considerable prospecting, he found the deposit in a district where gold was known to exist, but where tin was unsuspected.

His first assay showing tin in paying quantities was made May 24, 1939, after which he interested the United States Bureau of Mines and the New Mexico School of Mines, which surveyed the place. The government has had as many as 200 men on the ground, Roberts said.

The tin was found not in a vein, but in a crater deposit, carried up through the earth's crust in some past age, there to remain until Roberts prospected and discovered it.

Roberts has three claims in his own name and there are one each in the names of his father and brother, and only a few days ago he and C. A. Vandagriff returned to Artesia with more claims staked in Vandagriff's name.

On the site Roberts dug trench holes up to ten feet deep and took samples, which have assayed from .05 per cent to 5/25,000 in trench runs, with some ore running as high as 1/2 per cent, and gold up to $4.80 a ton, heavy with iron.

Roberts hopes to get a drill rig on the ground, which is at an elevation of 8,100 feet, and drill to at least 800 feet through the capping, which surface geology shows should contain tin in pay quantities. Should the drill hole prove out his claims, Roberts hopes to form a company and sink a shaft for reclaiming the tin.

Hopes of the prospector were raised considerably in October, when he received an assay map from the Bureau of Mines, showing its findings after considerable research, work on the claims of which was up to last December.

The crater, which is about 1,800 feet across, is on the Continental Divide near Beaverhead.

State Motorists Pay Half Million Extra in Taxes

New Mexico motorists will find their 1940 gasoline tax bill increased by $553,000, according to Dudley Cornell, secretary of the New Mexico petroleum industries committee.

Of this amount approximately $278,000 will be from higher revenue of the federal gasoline tax, the rate of which was jumped to 1 1/2 cents a gallon in July.

Increased car ownership and greater average travel per car this year increased the state's gasoline tax revenue by approximately .079 per cent for the first nine months of 1940. That upward trend, said Cornell, should bring a gain of $375,000 in the state's gasoline tax revenue for 1940.

If gasoline tax collections continue for the balance of the year at their present rate, motorists of New Mexico will pay $5,135,000 to the state and $1,140,000 to the federal government, a total of $6,275,000 for 1940, he said. That tax bill will shatter all records and it will double the amount of gasoline taxes collected from motorists in this state only a few years ago.

All Right—why DO we buy Automobiles?

DON'T you really buy a car for what it can do?

They step up mileage as much as 10% or 15%, wing you down the road at 50 on a 30-mile fuel diet.

Doesn't the big kick come from being first off the mark and winging up hills as though they weren't there?

They even make driving easier, since they give so much reserve power that you'll have less need for shifting gears.

There's only one place in the world you can get such things—from a power plant that's up to its job.

We're not saying style and comfort and size don't count.

But with enough power, you can have that flashing action—and economy too.

But when you can get these and pace-setter performance too —hadn't you better at least drive a Buick to find out about it?

Our FIREBALL design and Compound Carburetion let us use a standard high gear that has the same economical result as so-called gas-saving devices.

BUICK PRICES BEGIN AT $935 for the Business Coupe delivered at Flint, Mich. State tax, optional equipment and accessories—extra. Prices subject to change without notice.

Extension Service Tells How to Prepare the Thanksgiving Turkey

With Thanksgiving "just around the corner," the mind of the housewife turns to one of the important events of the day, the dinner, and to the main feature of that dinner, which is usually the turkey. Mrs. Dorothy Y. Hannay, of the New Mexico Extension Service, gives some timely suggestions concerning the cooking and serving of the noble bird, as sponsored by the Bureau of Home Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The turkey should be roasted in an uncovered pan at moderate heat, the exact temperature depending on the size of the bird. The temperature should be lower for a large bird, as it takes longer to get the meat done without burning the skin. The roasting pan can be any shallow pan large enough to hold the turkey. No cover is needed, but there should be a rack at the bottom of the pan to keep the bird from sticking. The turkey should be stuffed and then placed on the rack with the breast down. If roasted with the back up most of the time, the thighs will be done without cooking the meat off the end of the breastbone. Do not put any water in the pan, but baste with pan drippings or melted fat when turning. Turn every half to three-quarters of an hour, or more from one side to the other, so that the thick, meaty portions will get done evenly.

Now for ways in which leftovers may be served. Cold slices of turkey are excellent "as is" or in sandwiches, or the meat can be diced and served in a salad or made into a jellied aspic. For a hot dish, it takes only a few minutes to scallop and brown in the oven, or make croquettes with a crisp brown crust, or heat pieces and gravy in the oven under a lid of biscuit rounds or mashed potato.

OUR DEFENSE

The United States Navy

This One of a Series Prepared by the National Defense Advisory Commission

The fleets draw within range. The U. S. Fleet approaching the battle is spread across a thousand square miles of ocean. Each type of ship has a different function to perform. Each unit has a duty, much like Army units.

The destroyer division is the cavalry of the fleet. These rear-echelon, plunging destroyers, about 350 long, are the tiny war horses of the Navy, and the first love of any sailor who has ever served on them. Equipped with torpedoes, depth charges and guns of five inches or less, fast and mobile, capable of forty miles an hour, the destroyers, like the cavalry, get to the fight first.

They will take on every type of ship in the enemy force, from the largest to the smallest. Depth charges dropped by a destroyer are the answer to the submarine menace. If a destroyer can smack a torpedo into a battleship, the battleship may sink. But the problem is to get close enough. A battleship can drop a shell on a destroyer at twenty miles. Therefore, a destroyer has to have protection of its own speed, of the smoke screens it can lay down, and of the heavier ships with bigger guns behind it. Except when operating against other destroyers or against submarines, torpedoes are the primary weapon of these small ships.

The unit for operating destroyers is usually a division consisting of four ships with about 600 men, and corresponds to an armored cavalry division. Racing along the ocean, tossing and pitching, leaving great swirls of foam, the destroyers dart in to attack the battleships of the enemy. They may be met midway between the battle lines by opposing destroyers. Then will come the mighty battle of the midgets as the swift, little craft attempt by gunfire or ramming to get close enough to launch torpedoes. They have no defensive armor and it is a lucky destroyer that gets home unscathed. A destroyer's first job in battle is to crash through the enemy line of destroyers and discharge torpedoes at the bigger ships behind the enemy destroyer screen. Also, on the way, they are supposed to fill in the time by sinking anything they come across.

Behind the destroyers, smoke pouring from their funnels, as they race along at 36 to 40 miles an hour, come the "Panzer" divisions of the Navy, the light cruisers. Ranging in size up to 600 feet and up to 10,000 tons displacement, mounting six inch guns with a range of ten miles, the light cruisers back up the destroyers and provide additional eyes for the fleet. Their long cruising radius, high speed, fit them for this duty. In order to attain cruising radius and high speed, they have but little armor. These wolf hounds of the sea start ahead of the fleet, their vision increased a hundredfold by the four or five planes peering from their decks, ready to be catapulted from the ship, and range ahead of the scouting line.

Scouting Forces Begin the Fight
As the scouting forces begin the fight, the heavy cruisers charge up to join the fray. These fighters were built as the result of the naval treaties after the World War. They are sleek, fast vessels with every excess pound trimmed off, so they can carry bigger guns and still be under the 10,000 ton limit set by the treaties. The sacrifice of armor enables them to carry eight-inch guns with a range of thirteen miles and still have a speed of forty miles an hour. They must be able to turn on a dime to keep out of trouble. These are the types of ships that gave such a good account of themselves in the battle with the Graf Spee off Montevideo. As they plunge forward through the ocean, they clear the final way for the biggest fighting ships we have afloat.

Bringing up the rear, comes the heavy artillery of the Navy, the battleships. These are huge and heavy armored floating fortresses. They are capable of fighting it out with anything which they encounter on the high seas. The battleship is vulnerable to smaller fry like torpedo destroyers, but its long range guns keep the destroyers at a safe distance. A battleship may be as heavy as forty-five thousand tons, as big as an ocean liner. It is capable of speed up to twenty-five miles per hour and mounts up to 16-inch guns that can heave a projectile weighing a ton over twenty miles. Its hide must be thick enough to stop the best armor-piercing shells the enemy can produce. All the smaller ships must aid in protecting the battleship from interference until they are in position, ready to let go their terrible destruction from their broadsides. When the battleships come up, each can discharge two broadsides per minute. Each broadside consists of twelve tons of projectiles carrying as many tons again of high explosives. They must be relied on to win.

As the turrets come around, leveling their guns at the enemy fleet, the Commander hopes that he will be in a position where the huge guns on every ship can concentrate their fire on one enemy ship at a time, blowing it out of the water. The story from there on in will depend on how well we have done our job. If we can match ship for ship, gun for gun, anything that will be brought against us in battle, if our guns, our sighting equipment, and our ships are as good as the best they have to face, if our men have the experience in using these tools of war, the answer will be simple. That answer, according to an old boast in the Navy is "the mostest hits in the leastest time." It is to that end that the Navy exists.

The battle itself involves four of our main classes of fighting ships. There are two more of importance. The submarines, which proved their value in the World War. The submarine, of course, is armed with torpedoes and one or two small guns. It defends itself by sinking beneath the waters and staying out of sight until the danger is passed. Modern submarines can accompany the fleet. But with the fighting ships steaming at forty miles an hour, the submarines can't hope to keep up. Above the water they can make only twenty miles an hour and under the water from 9 to 10 miles an hour. So the hope of the Commander is to put his submarine somewhere where the enemy may pass and the submarine get a torpedo shot.

Then the remaining major class of fighting ship is the aircraft carrier that started off the battle by launching its fighting planes. These ships are fast (more than thirty-five miles an hour), but they carry light armament. During the shooting their only possible position is far behind the battle line accompanied by destroyers. The carrier's planes, however, which give it the striking force, are out in front making a mess of things, fighting, bombing, laying smoke screens.

The Naval Auxiliaries
Back of the carriers is the vital train of supply ships that must be protected. Destroyers and cruisers are assigned to safeguard the supply ships. The transports, oilers, repair ships, are the links that connect the ships with their bases and through the bases to the yards and eventually back through the National Defense Advisory Commission to the production lines that supply the ships that are shooting it out up front.

Suit Yourself, Just for a Change!

Much in the tone of "how to win friends, etc." you've been reading for years about how to to keep husbands happy with meat 'n' potatoes; how to feed the kiddies; how to get your man via the way to his heart; how to serve the bridge club, your mother-in-law, the president of the ladies' auxiliary and your maiden aunt Gussie.

It now comes time to rise up in arms (and spatulas) and—for a change—please nobody but your own sweet self! It's two to one your individuality cries for dishes you like more than any others, and it's high time you had them!

Choose a day when there's no one to please but yourself, if you must (if you can!) dig up those beebowbed recipes and ideas, cubbyhoid since the year one, Gorge yourself on nothing but your favorites, be they simple as tossed greens salad or elaborate as charlotte russe trimmed with colored whipped cream. When you've finished with your tried-and-trues, make favorites of a few of the following, based on the universal feminine appetite!

FOR WOMEN ONLY!

Add boiling water 1 teasp. at a time, beating after each addition. Beat until mixture is smooth and satiny. Cool, but do not chill, until mixture thickens. Blend small amount of cream with

Volunteers Are To Receive Some Job Protection

All persons who volunteer for training under the Selective Service Act are entitled to and should receive the same job protection as men who are actually called to service, national headquarters of the Selective Service System said.

The Selective Service Act, C. A. Dykstra, director, pointed out, provides that a man inducted into training shall be given a certificate of merit if he completes his training to the satisfaction of his superior officers.

The act provides that persons restored to their jobs shall not lose seniority and shall be considered as having been on leave or furlough. It further stipulates that persons so restored shall not lose their jobs without cause for at least one year.

As it had been suggested in some quarters that a private employer or agency might not consider men who volunteered for service as eligible for the job protection, Dykstra said, "The act does not differentiate in this regard and men who volunteer for service and are inducted into the armed forces are entitled to the same job protection as men actually called up for training by their local boards."

Eddy Girls Are to Receive Medals in 4-H Club Contests

Presentations will be made by Miss Vernita Conley, county home demonstration agent. Miss Cline will receive a medal shield nearly an inch deep, on which is embossed a horn of plenty, and Miss Birchell will receive an embossed medal.

The Artesia girl also was named state winner and will receive a trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago Nov. 29-Dec. 7, where five college scholarships of $200 each will be awarded to a selected group. Fifteen counties participated in New Mexico.

WHAT'S WHAT —in— NEW MEXICO

News Briefs of the "Sunshine State," Gleaned from Many Sources

Joseph A. Bursley, who resigned as State Tourist Bureau director a month ago to head the Democratic state campaign press division, is back at his desk. He said his re-appointment was made by Highway Engineer Burton Dwyre, to whom he had submitted his resignation to avoid violation of the "Little Hatch Act."

New Mexico's selective service quota will not be filled by volunteers if the rate of such enlistments falls off too sharply, state headquarters announced. Expressing belief that young men who previously had intended to volunteer had changed their minds in the belief that other volunteers would fill the quota, officials said such an attitude, if widespread, would make drafting necessary.

Biggest buck killed and reported to the Game Department by a New Mexico hunter so far was 263 pounds, drawn, shot by Arthur Windsor of Cowles.

The famous Butterfield stage route of frontier days through Southeast New Mexico extended 2,759 miles from San Francisco to St. Louis by way of Los Angeles, Yuma and Tucson, Ariz., and El Paso, Tex. The trip was made in 25 days.

State Land Office revenue for October totaled $377,607.24, a drop of $6,359.86 from the October, 1939, figure, State Land Commissioner Frank Worden announced. Largest revenue decrease was in oil and gas lease rentals, which totaled $69,352.03, compared with $96,950.13 in October last year.

Memo for future reference in 1941: Four states that always picked the presidential winner since the turn of the century ran true to form. Ohio, Wyoming, Idaho and Missouri all wound up in the Roosevelt column. Two formerly infallible states, however, backed the wrong man this time. The Kansas record, dating back to 1896, was broken when the state went for Wilkie. North Dakota, on every ballot handwagon since 1892, missed the 1940 ride by going Republican. New Mexico and Arizona have the unique record of being the only states which have never given electoral votes to anyone but a victor. However, they were not admitted to the Union until 1912.

State sales tax collections fell off in October, but use tax receipts were up slightly, State Revenue Commissioner J. O. Gallegos reported. The sales tax yielded $313,335.89, a drop of $14,619.54 from last October and of $15,773.62 under the September receipts. The use tax produced $25,096.10 last month, $523.16 more than it did in October, 1939, and $3,438.92 over the September collection.

The low cost of tuition at Eastern New Mexico College, Portales, influenced 228 students to attend ENMC this year, a survey showed. Of the rest of the total enrollment, 158 came because the courses offered were what they wanted; 88 came because of employment opportunities; 84 because they had friends planning to attend; 83 because they admired the faculty.

A scenic location near Gallup has been selected as the site for the filming of a number of outdoor sequences in a new Western picture, "Bad Man," starring Wallace Beery.

Presidential approval has been given a Works Progress Administration project to improve the sanitary sewer system of Las Vegas. The allotment is for $41,399. Mayor Ivan J. Hilton of East Las Vegas said that project plans call for repairing and remodeling the present sewer system and for extension of the system to homes not now served by it. Work is to start on the project as soon as WPA work orders are assigned.

Completion of arrangements for a state-wide anti-pneumonia campaign in New Mexico this winter was announced by Dr. James R. Scott, state health director. Control stations have been established in each of the state health districts, with district health officers and selected local physicians as administrators. Laboratory tests will be provided, together with "type specific sera" and sulfapyridine, the recently-developed drug which has proved highly effective against the disease. The facilities will be available without cost to all patients unable to pay for them. "The most important factor in the treatment of pneumonia," said Dr. Scott, "rests in recognition and prompt institution of treatment of pneumonia cases. Thus it is incumbent upon the public, when suffering from signs of colds, influenza-like fevers, or pains in the chest and back, to call the family physician early."

Homecoming will be observed this year at New Mexico Military Institute, Roswell, on Nov. 27 and 28. The event is the traditional homecoming for Institute alumni, held on Thanksgiving of each year. The celebration will open on Wednesday, Nov. 27, with a regimental parade in the afternoon. A full day of events is scheduled for Thursday, Nov. 28. The day will open with a horse show on the new parade ground, north of Cañon Armory. The horse show will be followed with a polo game between the Institute riders and Oklahoma University, starting at 10:30 o'clock. In the afternoon, the entertainment will be highlighted by a football game between the Bronco eleven and Western State of Colorado. To conclude the week-end festivities, the Bronco polo team will face Oklahoma University again on Saturday afternoon, Nov. 30.

Classes in aviation motor mechanics and aircraft maintenance opened at New Mexico Normal University as part of the Technical Trade's Institute Nov. 12. M. W. Schommer has been named instructor.

With some leasing under way in scattered sectors of Roosevelt County, speculation has centered on possibility of future oil play in that section. Leasing is in progress in the area north from Floyd to the Curry-Roosevelt County line. Scouts are also reported active in formerly drilled areas near Milnesand directly south of Portales. These activities show that the field petroleum industry operating in New Mexico is not passing up any possibilities regarding commercial recovery of oil, and recent geologic data obtained in various parts of Roosevelt County is an influencing factor in promoting this new interest.

New Mexico's first entry for the 1940 International Grain and Hay Show to be held in Chicago Nov. 30 to Dec. 7 in connection with the International Livestock Exposition, has been made by Clifford Eakes of Albuquerque. He will exhibit white dent corn of his own raising in both junior classes for youths under 20 years of age, and in the open classes of the show. Clayborn Wayne, agronomist at New Mexico State College, will be one of the judges of grain sorghums.
