Invasion Contest Deadline Will Be

The deadline for guessing the time of the invasion of Fortress Europe in The Advocate's contest is midnight Sunday, April 30, in order to be eligible for the free subscription for a year.

Midnight Sunday

As this office will be closed Sunday, written guesses handed in must be here by 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon, but a postmark any time up to midnight Sunday will make a guess eligible. Of course, should the invasion come before that time, the contest will close at that instant, to be established by Army and Navy news releases. In order to clarify one point, by invasion is meant amphibious landings in an all-out assault, not commando raids and not air invasions, such as have been going on for months. It will be the opening of the "second front," which, it seems, the Italian campaign is not considered. One should not give merely the date, but the time of day, Artesia war time. It costs nothing, one does

Williams, whose trucking business occupied the period of Company 8, 2nd Battal- Southeast New Mexico localities, building, discovered a flare-up of flame near the front of his truck until the building and its contents lay in ruins was but fifteen minutes.

The explosion came as firemen were laying the first string of hose from a hydrant on the same corner as the building, tearing a hole in the top of the truck tank and coursing upwards, taking the roof and throwing debris an estimated 150 feet in the air. Heavy timbers were thrown two-thirds that height and some small pieces rained in the vacant lot across the street to the north.

Although no one was injured, about eight firemen and helpers and three children were in Fifth Street within thirty-five feet of the explosion. Fortunately the weak point in the tank was in the top and the blast coursed upwards, instead of to the east.

A moment after the explosion, the entire structure was a mass of flames, fed by containers of gasoline, oil, and grease. Firemen, who were playing three streams of water, were kept at considerable distance because of the intense heat.

From time to time there were smaller explosions, some of which were tires on the tank truck. Others may have been small containers of explosive liquids.

So hot was the fire, the building fifty feet west, occupied by the Brazos Valley Construction Company, was threatened. As firemen played water on that building, steam rose. The only other piece of large equipment in the building at the time of the fire was a pump engine. However, there were many tools and parts, the majority of which were destroyed.

Artesia Auto Company had some vehicles and Mann Drug Company some refrigerators in the building until a few days prior to the fire, and from time to time there had been much valuable merchandise stored there, but the building, used principally as a shop by Williams, was relatively Keep 'em firing-with junk!

The initial idea which culmin ates in the production of a Hollywood motion picture is born in many different ways. That for Columbia's Technicolor musical, "Cover Girl," co-starring Rita Hayworth and Gene Kelly opening at the Ocotillo Theater soon, came about through an inter-office communication.

A studio employee was thumbing through a booklet of Harry Conover's magazine models and ran across the line in which they were referred to as "Cover Girls." Thinking it might make a good title for a picture, he said so in a memo to his boss. The wheels started grinding and the result is what preview audiences have been calling "the best ten musicals of the year harmonized into one." Rita Hayworth and Gene Kelly were chosen as the stars. A story about the life of loves of a cover girl was written for their particular gifts and a supporting cast was carefully selected to surround the stars with the type of talent they deserved. In Virginia Van Upp's screenplay are to be found as feature players Lee Bowman, Phil Silvers, Jinx Falkenburg, Leslie Brooks, Eve Arden, Otto Kruger, Jess Barker and Curt Bois.

One thing won't be any different in any new cars. Whatever else is changed, as long as there's engine combustion it must produce dreaded corrosive acids.

The acid-fighter you'll want then is fortunately here even now!-for the engine that must still see you through. Right today it can have anti-corrosive OIL-PLATING!

OIL-PLATING is easy to do. In making your much-needed oil change this Spring simply make sure to get Conoco Nth motor oil-popular-priced.
