Spelling Needed

WE WENT over the curriculum rather carefully
to be offered at the Artesia high school.

We checked over the list of teachers and the subjects, which they will teach.

And we admit that we are just a little disappointed. We realize and appreciate the fact that our subjects for study are worked out on a statewide basis. It is not only that way in our state but in other states as well.

And in our checking over the subjects for study
we found plenty of instruction in social studies and about everything else but some good old fashioned spelling.

And our years in the newspaper business has taught us that spelling is about as important a thing that a student can learn today. And we know they are not learning to spell. We have had many a youngster, who has completed high school and some instances those, who have come out of college,
come along to write newspaper copy.

They couldn't spell. They not only couldn't spell but they had never learned how to use the dictionary.

We are still hopeful that sooner or later someone will realize and appreciate that spelling along with reading, writing and arithmetic are about the most important things and that some of the things being taught should be cast aside until we have taught boys and girls these really and truly fundamentals.

But we are still kinda hoping the day will come when spelling will be a required subject during the entire years of public school.—O.

Money Remains Here

THE money, which we spend here, which remains here and continues to circulate here.

The money, which we send away or spend elsewhere seldom if ever returns.

"Trade at home" has been an idea that has been preached and talked for years.

It is a splendid thought and we can't escape the impression that if we spend it here—then it remains here.

But regardless of how much we preach and talk that and regardless of how true it may be there is just one way to convince folks to spend their money at home. That is by giving them the merchandise, the quality, the price and the service,
which they demand.

This can't always be done. But as a rule we,
who serve the public and sell the public, can usually come nearer doing it than we sometimes do.

Don't just remind folks they should trade at home. Offer the merchandise, quality, service at prices that can be found elsewhere—tell them about it through advertising; keep them posted and inform the majority of them will spend their money at home. And that traveling regardless of how far is a part of the price we pay for the goods.

But the money of the folks—in fact all the money, which has sold him something they buy elsewhere, which they buy at home.

Dr. and Mrs. A. C. McGuire and daughter, Mrs. David Coggin, and her two children, formerly of wood, which the doctor has purchased.

Dr. McGuire, a dentist, had been ber of times in the past, coming

Artesia's Future

ARTESIA seemingly has a rather outstanding and remarkable building program planned for the future or if and when materials are available.

A program, which is almost natural—building
to meet the needs of the citizens and the city.

As the weeks and months go by there will be more of the needs of the city listed, enumerated
and perhaps provided.

And all of this should just aid not only to keep down unemployment here but to help build Artesia into the city it can and will be.

The growth of Artesia through the years, which have gone by, has been remarkable. Those who lived here many years ago can testify to that.
Others, who were here then and who have since returned, declared that back a few years Artesia
was nothing—just a little wide place in the road.

But tomorrow the future is bright for Artesia just as it has been bright for many years now that have rolled by.

Included in those plans for the immediate future are many projects, which mean much to the city, much to North Eddy county and even much to the state.

These projects represent the investment of money; they represent jobs for those needing work;
they represent institutions to render service and to increase the joys of living.

Topping the list of these projects is the proposed superhighway, which will mean much to Artesia county and to all southeastern New Mexico.
Then there is the airport with proposed improvements and the construction of hangars. The enlargement and expansion of the hospital means more facilities here to care for the sick and to provide medical care and attention. The country club to provide social activities and a center where Artesians can get together and enjoy relaxation and enjoy their leisure time. And the construction of the American Legion home not only a center for the boys and girls returning home from service but a memorial to those, who paid the supreme sacrifice.

Besides these projects there are many new business dwellings to be erected; new homes to be constructed; water and sewer extensions to be laid;
new additions to be created for residential sections;
new businesses to come into Artesia.
There possibly are other projects planned for Artesia for the future yet not disclosed. There are probably others, which we need, that may come along.
Certainly as a city and a community we need to take what ever action and steps that are necessary to keep our business at home and to make it possible for our people to trade at home. It is an admitted fact we lose too much business out of Artesia. It is a known fact that we perhaps could have and enjoy all this business if proper steps were taken to keep it here.
We are firmly convinced that we will do this.
After all it is only the things, we do, which help Artesia. No one else is very much interested in the growth and development of our city.—O. E. P.

The Vets Come First

THERE SHOULD BE no connection in anyone's mind between the American Legion's building program and the country club proposition. One is a community affair and an obligation to the hundreds of men and women who have been in the armed forces and the other is strictly a private thing.
We are for the formation of a country club association and sincerely hope that it will go over and that Artesia soon will have a country club of which the community can be proud. It will provide a place for pleasure for those who can afford such a thing and for the entertainment of visitors to the city.
But the American Legion building will be for the benefit of veterans from all walks of life, whether they have jingling money in their jeans or
are fighting to provide the necessities of life.
While they were and are in uniform, no one asked or is asking as to their financial status, their peacetime occupations, or other questions which would be pertinent in regard to a country club.
They are "our boys and girls."
It has been indicated to us that a few people in the community, interested in the country club, are placing that project first in their minds. That is wrong. Take care of the veterans first, for they soon will be coming home in increasing numbers.
By all means, if interested and able to afford to belong to the club, indicate your intention of becoming a member, but don't let that cut your contribution to the American Legion one cent.—A. L.

Up and Down Main Street

GOOD OLD DAYS
UP AND DOWN AVENUE
MAYBE, WE'RE WRONG

We talk a great deal about the good old days. We have it thrown at us that most of us would not want the 'good old days' returned if we had to give up some of the things we have today. That is perhaps right. But there are some of the things we have today. That is perhaps right. But there are certain things about "the good old days" we should never have lost.
For instance—the trait of those good old days of a man's word being as good as his bond. But every time a circus comes along we can't keep from thinking of "the good old days." Especially is this true when we dig into and see all the extra charges and costs, which are assessed now. We remember the days when the youngster with a shiny fifty cent piece could take in the circus, sit on the hard seats and really enjoy it. Today it takes twice to maybe four times that much even to see one of the little shows and as a rule when it is all over the youngster kinda feels he has been cheated a little bit. Certainly our point of view changes
but we can't keep from thinking that even the small circus of 25
to 30 years ago was far superior to what we have today. We remember the names of many outstanding circuses back in those days.
Goldmar Brothers, we believe, was one of the outstanding small circuses with a complete show and many fine features. Gentry Brothers Dog and Pony show ranked high. Back in those days we saw Yankee Robinson's circus, The Robbins Brothers show, Sells-Flot-
to, Hagenback-Wallace, Al G.
Barnes, Barnum and Bailey and Ringland Brothers, Pawnee Bill and Buffalo Bill had shows on the road then that filled a place with high class performances. The American Circus Corporation, of course, bought some of these shows, combined them and squeezed others out of business. They are gone.

THE OLD FERRET
A smile is better far
Than forced hilarity;
His memory
Lasts much longer.—A. L. B.

Appearing in faint lettering on the old, inadequate scoreboard at Morris Field, in case you hadn't noticed, now that the weather of years has washed off the surface
paint, is the sign: "Hot Dogs, 15 Cents."

Now, in the first place, it's not really hot dog weather yet. And then we're not too fond of them.
But it all does attract attention to the old scoreboard, which never was just what an up and coming city like Artesia should have.

So we get in our opening wedge for a new scoreboard, one which would show spectators at a football game those things which it is hard to discern accurately from the stands, not the score especially, although one can forget what it is after several touchdowns, but the downs, yards to go, and ball passes.

Coach Alan Thompson has made the suggestion that by some means a fine scoreboard be acquired, one on which score, downs, yardage and possession could be shown in figures large enough to be seen from any place in the park.

As a supplement to the scoreboard, we should have new line markers, with figures large enough
and bright enough to be seen.
Then for the operation of the whole dingus, there would be two boys atop the ticket office building, changing the figures just as rapidly as changes are indicated,
and a third boy would be running
up and down the sidelines, equipped with numbered paddles, with which he would signal the two at the board.

Immediately, when a play is completed, he would flash the proper paddles and the boys at the scoreboard would change the numbers.
Coach Thompson estimates the scoreboard should not cost more than $50 for materials and labor.
Well worth it, don't you think?
Then let's find ways and means
to get the job done.

We will want the board for the four regularly scheduled football games which the Bulldogs will play at home. But, even more, we will want it if the Carlsbad Caven and Hobbs Eagles play here
on Oct. 26.

We were asking a few fellows around town what they thought about the proposed change back to standard time.

Doc Clarke, who declared he was fer it, always was agin' the change
to wartime, said, "If we leave it as it is—wartime—we get 365
hours nearer the grave every year,
and that's about 30 days, or a month. And we get there fast enough in the first place."

The average flea can jump about eight inches.

a show than from any other form of entertainment. Unfortunately the prices of circuses have had to be advanced or have been advanced now so that many a youngster
can not enjoy the privilege of seeing and enjoying a circus. The family budget just won't stand the cost. Maybe the day will come when youngsters can once again
enjoy the circus. Maybe the time will return when the circus performance even among the smaller ones will equal that of a quarter of a century ago. We sorta hope so.

A circus is just part of America and we believe that it is good for every boy and girl to enjoy a circus. In other words we are rather convinced that the thrills or combining of circuses of the average American youth and has denied him the joys that his parents enjoyed only a few years ago.

Rotary Looks Over Legion's Building Plans

Sketches and drawings of the proposed new American Legion home were shown at the regular luncheon of the Artesia Rotary Club Tuesday of last week on the Roof Garden of the Artesia Hotel. Howard Whitson, chairman of the campaign for funds for the construction of the building, made a brief talk regarding the Legion's plans.

He urged Rotarians to study the plans and to check them over carefully. He also stated that the home would not only be a memorial for those, more than 1000 boys and girls, who had served in the armed forces, but it would provide a center for them.

Many, he stated, had declared that $50,000 was too much to spend,
but he explained that the building could not be constructed for less with present costs. He also stated that some 75 per cent of the funds on hand had been raised or given by Legionnaires. He asked all to be generous when contacted with their gifts.

The drive is set for this week.
The attendance report showed that the Artesia Rotary Club ranked 23 in the district and President
Bert Mundy urged an improvement
in the attendance.

The regular program for the day was in charge of Orville E.
Priestley, who gave a brief talk
on "Something About This Thing Called Rotary."

He gave a brief description of Rotary, its activities, and the interest shown in the club. He described the efforts members make not only to attend meetings but
to attend conferences, conventions,
and to keep up their conventions.

He described incidents, which have occurred at Rotary International conventions and declares
these were the result of "Something About This Thing Called Rotary."

And then in his concluding remarks he quoted the motto of Rotary, "Service Above Self" and
"He Profits Most, who serves Best." Although these were adopted by the clubs sometime after 1905 when Rotary was founded,
he declared that the motto, "Service Above Self," was enunciated
and practiced more than 1900 years ago by the Greatest of All Rotarians, Jesus Christ. This he described as the "Something About This Thing Called Rotary," which

Highway Construction Will Mean Lots of Jobs

Postwar highway construction is going to mean a lot of jobs for returning veterans. M. Upham, president of the American Road & Builders Builders' Association, said that getting the men together may not be the problem. Upham continues, "We must have a plan to launch a program. Some highway projects are being delayed through the discharge of men. Yet trained men are being discharged, and the problem already exists."

The government has a plan to launch a program to fulfill this need. The Selective Training and Employment Service of the War Relocation Authority is the fighting force in separation centers and here the men get their first taste of the anxiety to help them. At the employment center, the men get their discharge papers and Army ties, and special employment training and experience. In the service they get their application to look for work. The Selective Service is prepared to help them. He is sent to his local board, where nearly all the men are placed on the board. These men are the proper steps to the Selective Service. He is sent to his local board, where nearly all the men are placed on the board. These men are the proper steps to the Selective Service.

MORAZAN OF HONDURAS
To Honduras, one of the smallest of the American republics, has befallen the honor of producing the most outstanding man in Central American history, one whose glory is now shared by all the countries of Central America and ten on the honor roll of the Western Hemisphere, Francisco Morazan.

Morazan was born on Oct. 3, 1792, in Tegucigalpa, today the capital of Honduras. His father—like that of Napoleon—was a Corsican, while his mother was Honduran. Schooling of any kind was difficult to get in Honduras at the time, but Francisco did study Latin grammar, geometry, and drawing and completed his education by listening to the conversation of the men of culture of his home town. By nature, the young man was courteous with a mild and thoughtful temperament, a firm disposition, high intelligence and great kindness. He had a fine figure and a frank penetrating expression. At an early age he started life in the office of a notary public and he was still engaged in this capacity when the independence of Honduras was proclaimed in September, 1821. Freedom from Spain, which had come to Honduras together with Mexico and the rest of Central America through a bloodless revolution, was to be followed, however, by a period of confusion and unrest. For a short time, in 1822, Central America, including Honduras, became part of Mexico. A year later, the Central American provinces took advantage of the downfall of Emperor Iturbide to break away from Mexico and form themselves into a Central American Confederation with the capital at Guatemala City. The public life of Morazan began in 1827, when the federal government of Central America at Guatemala tried to change the political order of El Salvador and Honduras, and had them invaded by forces sent to depose the legally constituted authorities. Honduras resisted courageously and placed Morazan at the head of its defenders. The invaders laid siege to Comayagua, then the capital of the state, and the town was eventually forced to surrender while the authorities were taken prisoners. Nothing daunted, however, Morazan promptly organized new forces, and on Nov. 11, 1827, in the vicinity of La Trinidad, he defeated the invaders, thus establishing his reputation as a military leader. He subsequently met the enemy on Salvadorean territory, which he succeeded in liberating before entering Guatemala itself where, after engaging in several battles with success, he reinstated the legitimate authorities. To describe all the battles which the military and political genius, Morazan, fought to maintain the Federation of the United States of Central America would make a long story. He fought for 12 years. The country is sparsely populated and Morazan had no railroads by which to transport troops. His men had to make their way over dizzy mountain trails, and again to withstand the heat of low lands along the coast. Rewarded for his services by being made president of the republic of the United States of Central America, Morazan would have been remembered as a great statesman had his administration not been continually jeopardized by his political enemies. Obligated to resign and to go to South America as an exile, Morazan was offered in Peru the position of commander-in-chief of the army, an honor which he declined. In 1842 the great leader was called back to Costa Rica by its people who begged him to help them overthrow the oppressive dictatorship of General Carrillo. The army surrendered to him and he entered San Jose, the capital of Costa Rica, without having shed a single drop of blood. He was enthusiastically elected governor, and immediately proceeded to organize a legal government, but his advocacy of the Central American Confederation led to another insurrection. Turned by treason into the hands of his enemies, Morazan was executed on Sept. 15, 1842. The serene and confident attitude he displayed that morning of September when he firmly walked to face the firing squad, more than 100 years ago, has not been forgotten by his countrymen and the world at large. His last words, unequivocal evidence of his courage and patriotism, will always be remembered: "Aim well, my sons! Now fire!" He had given his life for liberty and for the democratic principles in which he believed. "Suppose the figure of Morazan," said one of his admirers, "and you will have annihilated the soul of the history of Central America." To the soul of the history of all the Americas, Morazan belongs too. Was he not, in fact, one of the first Pan-Americanists when, on Sept. 16, 1830, he declared that only the union of the Americas would give the New World the importance and prestige which it is entitled to, because of its advantageous geographical position, its immense wealth, the justice of its governments, and the identity of their systems, and the large number of inhabitants and the common interest which unites them.

Pfc. Leonard R. Rust, who is a patient at the Bruns General Hospital in Santa Fe, is now on furlough and is visiting his brother, Dalter G. Rust and friends here. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe R. Rust of Carlsbad.

Louise Cunningham, who was here visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Spencer, returned to her home at Fabens, Tex., last week.

T/Sgt. Dwight Triplitt, after spending seven months in Italy is at home spending 30 days visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Triplitt.

Betty Ruth McDonald returned home Thursday, Aug. 16, after visiting friends at Santa Clara and San Francisco, Calif.

Mrs. O. T. Mayes had as her guest Sunday, Mrs. Nell Anderson of Roswell. Mrs. Mayes took her guest to Carlsbad, where they visited Mrs. Cecil Elrods.

goes back home, and a large percentage of them will, is going to find a road building job close at hand.

Another importance of road building is its effect upon the national economy in fanning out through offsite employment. We can add to those actually working on a project, many others are engaged in aggregate quarrying, cement mills, transportation, equipment plants, petroleum fields, and affiliated industries.

Artesia Postwar Building Program Embraces Business and New Homes

Although there has been no particular survey made here by any large concern in an effort to determine what should be included in a postwar program for Artesia, present plans indicate there will be an extensive program with the possibility a number of other projects may be added in the future. The list of projects all slated to be gotten under way here now as soon as possible is large and will likely grow.

The biggest project, of course, receiving the attention of civic and community leaders and the major project of the Artesia Chamber of Commerce, is the super-highway across the Central Pecos Valley and over the mountains to join Highway No. 90 at Las Cruces. This highway is to branch off the Bankhead highway in Texas and extend west across that state into New Mexico.

Other projects included in postwar plans here are the enlargement of Artesia Memorial Hospital; erection of the new $50,000 Legion home; improvement and construction of a country club; tesian airport; creation and the construction of a country club; street improvement program; sewer and water expansion program; construction of new business dwellings; and the erection of many new homes here besides the erection of possibly several apartment houses.

Many of these things, of course, will have to await the availability of materials. The highway project, of course, will depend on the federal and state governments. The construction of the addition to the hospital will depend on the taxpayers of Artesia, since this will probably require the approval of a bond issue.

The plans and specifications for the addition to the hospital, however, are being prepared at this time by architects.

The Legion, which has part of the funds for the construction of a home to serve as a memorial, is conducting its campaign to secure $120,000 for the funds needed. The country club and golf course have now been secured and it is hoped that another 40 acres will be added to this. The country club, of course, will be a member with the club open to all interested.

The plan of the funds for the improvement of streets here is already available and it is expected some of the paved streets, which are extremely rough, will receive new coverings of asphalt. It is also understood that there will be considerable extending of sewer and water lines when materials are available. This doubtless will result in an extension of the gas mains and the electric lines.

Other city improvements will include street sweeper, improved garbage service, and providing every facility possible for keeping the city clean.

Construction of new homes for several businesses here are included in the plans for the future. Two concerns, of course, are erecting new buildings now. These include Garland (Scratchy) Rideout, who is erecting a brick and tile building at the corner of Third Street and Texas, just off Main Street. The other is the new construction being erected here for the Artesia Electric Co. on Main Street west of the street.

The new building now receiving its new home, at the corner of Main, on the north side of the street, will be located in the new steel building. The other building is located on Third Street. Part of this structure is now under way. Present plans for the erection of the main building for the business here which they plan to erect on the northwest corner of Main Street and Texas. The Union Gas Co. lot just west of the main building. Bakery plans to erect a building just east of the city and which they plan to build as a possible the building programs which schools hope to expand additional needed and rooms for their rapid growth and increased enrollments.

The most recently completed building here, of course, is that of the Carper Building Company. This structure located just across the street from the Carper building is being occupied on the street floor by the Southwestern Public Service Company.

Home building, which has been carried on as much as possible even during the war is expected to grow rapidly when building materials can be secured. Not only do many plan to erect new homes but it is also expected that several rent houses as well as apartments will be constructed. Houses and apartments are one of the biggest needs in Artesia at this time.

Carman Says Pond Culture Similar To Agriculture In Fish Raising Story

(L. Q. Carman, superintendent of the U. S. Fish Cultural Station at Dexter, has been writing a series of special articles about the breeding and raising of warm-water fish, for the stocking of streams in this part of the country. In the previous chapter, Carman said a single hatch of bass might amount to 50,000 fry, which the male fish guards for 10 to 15 days, as they swim about in a school. Then they scatter. He takes up his story there.)

Sixty days later this same fish, the male, is moving about the lake, enjoying the fresh water, and looking for his breakfast, when he meets up with 4 or 5 nice 3-inch bass playing hide and seek around a bunch of moss. Did he, like the prodigal son of Biblical fame, swim up to these, his own children, and caress them, and bid them go with him back into the deeper waters for a feast? It's a sad story, but true, that he had forgotten his once parental affection, and his cannibalistic nature won the victory. He darted at these fingerling bass with aim that seldom missed, and they were soon in his stomach.

This is representative of much of fish life, though some species have a stronger tendency for eating other fish than others do. The strong survive on the weak. It is nature's way of feeding fish, and for this purpose rough and undesirable fish have been created to provide food for the more desirable edible fish. It also helps to keep our waters from becoming overstocked with fish, and maintains a balance of food in the lakes.

We fish culturists have not as yet been able to produce a species of fish entirely free from this habit, but we encourage and produce other kinds of food in the ponds, which we hope is as palatable as live fish, and try to reduce this cannibalism as much as possible.

And, by the way, if fish were not "fish eaters" they would not grab at that nice shiner or carp which you intend to use next week end when you go fishing.

Pond culture is the art of propagating fish in ponds, which term is used in connection with bass and sunfish culture, and all other pond fishes. Pond culture is in many ways similar to agriculture. A fertile field will produce more grain or hay than an infertile field. A fish pond with a fertile bottom soil will produce more fish than a pond with poor soil. Why? Because fertilizers feed insect life and all kinds of aquatic life useful for fish food, and fish cannot thrive without food. Your fields grow both grasses and livestock. The fish pond grows both vegetation and fish. It provides shade and protection for the fish as well as furnishing a breeding ground for insects and bugs for fish food.

As mentioned, young fish are fed in ponds by encouraging the growth of daphnia and other insects. Stable manure and commercial fertilizers are applied to the ponds in the spring season, at intervals of every 2 or 3 weeks, to produce fish food. This should be applied to the ponds in quantities sufficient to produce a "water bloom," or to cause a discoloration or turbidity of the water to the extent that objects may not be seen for more than 12 inches below the surface of the water. After a bloom is once created, it may require less fertilizer to maintain the bloom. It might be interesting to know that we have learned by experience that the hard water at the New Mexico hatcheries is very difficult to make bloom, and while the fertilizers are beneficial and produce an abundance of minute aquatic life, we are finding it a hard job to get a true water bloom.

Fish ponds are constructed with an inlet whereby the water delivered to the pond can be gauged to suit the needs. An outlet is also constructed so that the pond can be drained dry, with a screen in front of the outlet to hold back the fish. Once each year every pond on the station is drained, and all fish are removed. The fingerling fish are distributed to need. ed waters and the parent fish are held on the station for brood fish for the next season.

The pond is then allowed to lap open to the sun and wind for a few weeks to revive the soil, and sometimes the bottom soil is cultivated, or even a short growing cover crop planted on it. They are refilled with water several days in advance of another season.

The proper size of most successful fish ponds is a matter of opinion. Some of our smaller ponds produce almost the same amount of fish as a 30-acre pond will bumper crop. Another sults might be reversed.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Renshaw have as their guests Mr. Renshaw's parents of Oklahoma, who plan to spend two months visiting their son and family.

The last quarterly conference of the Cottonwood and Lake Arthur Methodist Churches will be at the Lake Arthur church at 8 o'clock Sunday evening, Sept. 2.

Translations from documents concerning ancient India show that in 2000 B. C. primitive soldiers went to war with equipment comparable to chemical warfare equipment—a "deathful weapon flaming with celestial fire," and a projectile "wrapped in smoke and flaming flashes, speeding from the circled bow."

Although chemical warfare is as old as history, it did not come back into general use until World War I, when Germany initiated the use of toxic gas, flamethrowers and aerial incendiaries.

Lower Cottonwood

(Crowded out last week)
 (Ora Buck)
 Dr. and Mrs. A. C. McGuire of Blooming, Ill., who recently bought the Hersey farm on Cottonwood, have moved to the farm, where they plan to live in the future.

Pfc. Robert McCaw was here on a three-day furlough visiting his wife at the I. P. Johnson home on Cottonwood. Private McCaw is stationed at Camp Roberts, Ark.

Mrs. Noah Buck and son, Eugene, of Cottonwood were business visitors at Roswell Tuesday. They also visited their daughter and sister, Mrs. Franklin.

The Norris & Taylor store was closed Wednesday, Aug. 15, in celebration of VJ-Day.

The Rev. and Mrs. Chester Rogers of Lake Arthur transacted business at Albuquerque Sunday and visited their daughter, Mrs. W. A. Wheller, and children.

Mrs. Brock Dobbins and daughter, Audrie Lee, visited their parents and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Adams, at Carlsbad last week from where they and a group of relatives and friends went picnicking and fishing at the state line.

Friends at Artesia and here recently received letters from Ralph Hersey, formally of Cottonwood, saying that he is now in Colorado and is operating a bar.

Mrs. I. P. Johnson entertained the Cottonwood Ladies' Aid at her home last Thursday. A splendid program was enjoyed by the many members and visitors there. The hostess served refreshments at the end of the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. James P. Bates and daughter, Margaret, of Portland, Ore., formerly of Artesia, arrived here Tuesday night to visit old friends until today. They have been in Massachusetts, where the colonel was stationed.

Lt. Preston Dunn, a Marine Corps dive bomber, who was in the Pacific about a year, recently arrived at San Diego, Calif., and is expected home in the near future. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Dunn.

Although chemical warfare is as old as history, it did not come back into general use until World War I, when Germany initiated the use of toxic gas, flamethrowers and aerial incendiaries.

Lemon juice added to the cooking water makes rice whiter.

Charles Annett, editor of The Southwestern, magazine published by the Southwestern Public Service Company, and Norval Washburn, safety director for the company, both from Amarillo, Tex., were through Artesia last Thursday and visited at the Southwestern office here.

They were dinner guests that noon of J. D. Smith, local manager for the Southwestern Public Service Company.

Conservation Of Soil in North Eddy

John Buck is rough leveling approximately 23 acres in order that he may sow it in alfalfa this fall. The Soil Conservation Service is helping him complete soil and moisture conservation plans on his farm. Twelve acres in irrigated Bermuda grass pasture provided grazing for 23 cows for a period of eight months, according to Buck. The pasture is located in the overflow area on the Cottonwood creek.

Roy Angell, a farmer in the Seven Rivers community, plans to purchase this winter land leveling equipment to be pulled by his farm tractor.

Howard Stroup's bindweed fight has been successful. He has been using the new hormone chemical as his chief weapon. This chemical works slowly, first causing the weed to cease blooming, very important because seed production ceases. A little later the leaves turn yellow and begin to die. Approximately three weeks after application, most of the bindweed dies. A few sprigs of the weed that were missed may be sprayed to complete the kill.

Bindweed in the Central Valley Soil Conservation District covers a few very small areas. Farmers cannot afford to let this weed live any longer, as it could become as widespread as Johnson grass.

Lt. Col. and Mrs. James P. Bates and daughter, Margaret, of Portland, Ore., formerly of Artesia, arrived here Tuesday night to visit old friends until today. They have been in Massachusetts, where the colonel was stationed.

Lt. Preston Dunn, a Marine Corps dive bomber, who was in the Pacific about a year, recently arrived at San Diego, Calif., and is expected home in the near future. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Dunn.

Although chemical warfare is as old as history, it did not come back into general use until World War I, when Germany initiated the use of toxic gas, flamethrowers and aerial incendiaries.

Ranchers Cannot Afford To Ignore Cattle Grubs

No New Mexico ranchman can afford to ignore cattle grubs, in the opinion of Ivan Watson, extension animal husbandman of New Mexico A. & M. College.

"In States that have conducted an eradication program," he said, "ranchers estimate that cleaning up grubs and heel flies meant returns ranging from $5 to $25 per breeding cow. Heavier calf weights and a saving on winter feed account for the extra profits."

"Feeding tests also indicate the importance of a control program. Freedom from cattle grubs means more economical gains in the feedlot. During a feeding period of from 160 to 180 days, yearling steers free of cattle grubs will make a saving in the feed bill ranging from 6 to 10 dollars a head, as compared with similar lot heavily infested."

Watson, who expects to start a state-wide cattle grub eradication program this fall, believes that unless all sections of the state begin practicing control measures as well as some already are, many New Mexico cattle will be penalized when sold for stocker and feeder purposes.

"Right now we're getting behind the eight ball," he said. "Last winter Idaho and Wyoming treated more than 300,000 head of cattle each. California treated 120,000 head in 37 counties, and Kansas, Colorado, Oklahoma, Texas, and Dakotas have programs well under way."

Charles Annett, editor of The Southwestern, magazine published by the Southwestern Public Service Company, and Norval Washburn, safety director for the company, both from Amarillo, Tex., were through Artesia last Thursday and visited at the Southwestern office here.

They were dinner guests that noon of J. D. Smith, local manager for the Southwestern Public Service Company.

Mrs. Luther Jones Is Honored By Many Friends

Mrs. Leon Barker entertained Friday evening at her home, 320 West Grand Avenue, complimenting Mrs. Luther Jones, a bride of this month, with a garden party and bridal shower.

The lighted garden was decorated with baskets of flame-colored gladioli, bouquets of mixed garden flowers, and a tea table which was covered with a beautiful lace cloth and appointed with a covered punch service. From the table dainty white cakes, inscribed with old English letters of pastel pink which read, "Mary and Luther," were served with iced grape punch. Mrs. Floyd Davis presided at the punch bowl.

Wedding gifts wrapped in white tissue and tied with pastel ribbons were stacked on and around a snow white draped second table.

Included in the shower among many other lovely gifts received by Mrs. Jones, were a number of beautiful wool blankets, a silk quilt, many pieces of kitchen pyrex, stacks of linens, china and crystal. Mrs. Jones, "Mary," as she is known to her many friends in Artesia, is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. U. M. McCaw, one of the pioneer families of the Pecos Valley, who settled here in 1907 and reared a large family in this community. Mrs. Jones who is chief operator at the Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph Company exchange in the city, will have been an employee of the company 25 years in October of this year and because of the extreme shortage of help she plans to return to her duties and will remain with the company indefinitely.

At the party it was brought out that a tribute which is paid to but few is paid to "Mary" by many people in Artesia, "in all her years of public service with the local telephone company we have our first time to have known her to have been discourteous to anyone."

Guests at the garden party were the honoree, Miss Cecilia Rheberg, Mrs. C. Bert Smith, Mrs. R. M. McDonald, Mrs. B. G. Robinson, Mrs. Calvin Dunn, Mrs. J. M. Story, Mrs. Buford Gray, Mrs. W. S. WHAT'S WHAT —in— NEW MEXICO

News Briefs of the "Sunshine State" Gleaned From Many Sources

Needed soil conservation in New Mexico will require 24,730 man-years of labor, the Agriculture Department estimated. A man-year of labor represents the amount of work done by one man in a year. Placing the state's total land area at 77,769,000 acres, the department's Soil Conservation Service said 1,985,000 acres are suitable for continuous cultivation, 5,566,000 acres suitable for occasional cultivation, 65,000,000 acres suitable for grazing or woodland uses, and 5,188,000 acres useful only for wildlife purposes. There are 38,907,000 acres in New Mexico not included in farms, the department reported. Conservation practices recommended by the department included contour planting, crop rotations, drainage, emergency tillage, irrigation, proper stocking and rotation grazing, fire protection, streambank management and field and gully planting.

A record number of entries is predicted by officials for the Junior Livestock Show and Sale, Sept. 9-11 at Albuquerque. Vocational agriculture teachers and county extension agents report 161 Future Farmers of America and 4-H Club boys and girls will have animals entered. They will represent 17 New Mexico counties and El Paso County in Texas. Advance entries of 110 steers, 69 fat lambs and 76 fat barrows have been tabulated at Las Cruces by Ivan Watson, animal husbandman for the Extension Service, and L. C. Dalton, assistant state supervisor on vocational agriculture. Animals will be weighed in the morning of Sept. 10 at the State Fair grounds. The junior exhibitors will be shooting at last year's all-time high prices, including $789.30 (90 cents a pound) paid Stanley Williams, Clovis, for the grand champion calf; $200 to Jim Shearman, El Paso, for the grand champion fat lamb, and $250 to Ruby Bivens, Roswell, for the grand champion fat barrow.

Land status is being checked on the Diamond A Ranch holdings and land surrounded by it in order that it may be added to the Central Valley Soil Conservation District, according to G. L. Beene, district conservator.

A shortage of ice threatens New Mexico vegetable shippers in the next few weeks, Cecil Kenmore reported. The manager of the Albuquerque Ice Company plant reported in addition that his company had been unable to fill orders from virtually every section of the state. Orders, he said, had been turned down from Santa Fe, Gallup, Roswell and Alamogordo. The Roswell requests included one from the Army Air Base. Supplies for Army installations and at the Los Alamos community take up a large portion of the company's ice, he said, explaining that the firm now is drawing ice from storage to meet daily distribution of 107 tons.

Receipts from New Mexico's seven national forests totaled $309,821 during the fiscal year ending June 30. Twenty-five per cent of the forest receipts will be apportioned to the counties from which the revenues were derived, on the basis of the national forest areas they contain. The money will go into road and school funds. An additional 10 per cent will be returned to regional forest office for the construction and maintenance of forest roads and trails within the national forests.

Miss Elsie Cunningham, who has 13 years' experience in home economics work in New Mexico and Texas, has been appointed state home agent, the New Mexico Extension Service announces. She will assume her new duties Sept. 1, succeeding Mrs. Helen D. Crandall of Mountainair, who resigned after eight and a half years on the job.

New Mexico's 1945 cotton crop is estimated at 120,000 bales on the basis of Aug. 1 conditions, the Agriculture Department reports. The forecast yield is 400 bales, or about 3 per cent greater than last year's production in the state. Acreage in cultivation July 1, less 10-year average abandonment, was 117,000 acres. Condition of the crop on Aug. 1 was 88 per cent of normal.

Farm labor placements made by county agents and farm labor assistants during the first half of this year were 33 per cent greater than for the same period in 1944. In filling 1,645,279 farm jobs, the Extension Service gave assistance to 250,000 farmers. During June, 640,216 placements were made, compared with 599,476 in June, 1944. Last year the New Mexico Extension Service made a total of 108,322 placements with 6229 farmers and ranchers.

State Police headquarters said that an absence of reports to the contrary indicated New Mexico's celebration of victory day resulted in no unusual incidents in the initial stages. Assistant Chief A. B. Martinez said he had no reports of accidents.

The monthly bulletin of the Bataan Relief Organization, published in Albuquerque and distributed nationally, demands editorially in its current issue that the Senate investigate reported sinkings of Japanese ships carrying American prisoners of war. Relatives have received a "flood" of death notices, the publication said, following official announcements of vessels sunk last year. It credited to the War Department these figures on losses: 1001 of 1600 aboard an enemy prison ship sunk last Dec. 15, all but nine of 1800 on a vessel which went down last October, and all but 83 of 750 aboard a ship sunk last September.

Land Commissioner John Miles in an unusual action rejected all bids on two state oil and gas tracts, and expressed disappointment over the average price received for 37 other tracts. The action came at the August sale of oil and gas leases which realized $77,906 on some 18,000 acres. Employees in the Land Office expressed belief that the rejections were the first since early in the administration of Commissioner Frank Worden. Miles said the rejections were because he believed them to be "in the best interests of the state." The tracts involved were described as one in the vicinity of Lea County's Texas-Eaves wildcat deep test, which has been reported to have bright prospects, and another between two producing pools in the Eunice area of Lea County.

At the end of 1944, 2000 persons in New Mexico were receiving $31,000 monthly under the federal old age and survivors insurance program. This figure compared with monthly benefits of $7000 to 400 persons in 1940. The program, which is entirely federal, was begun in 1936. Currently there are 263,000 accounts in New Mexico, the governor's special Social Security committee announced. Their accumulation of wage credits now totals $84,000,000, an average of $652 per person.

Forty-four per cent of the land in New Mexico is in federal ownership by administering agencies, according to the New Mexico Tax Bulletin. New Mexico's total land area is 77,767,040 acres. Under federal ownership are 34,211,071 acres. The report shows acreage as follows under the various administrative agencies: Department of Interior, 22,877,763; Department of Agriculture, 9,628,274; Navy and War Departments, 1,681,879; other departments, 23,155; total 34,211,071.

An exchange of letters between Editor George Fitzpatrick of New Mexico Magazine and Governor Dempsey disclosed that the State Land Office has discontinued its $250 a month contribution to the magazine. Fitzpatrick wrote Dempsey that Land Commissioner John Miles had said it had been decided his office "needed the money for other things." Fitzpatrick added, "The loss of $300 a year is bound to affect our operations," but said this would not be felt for about a year because a small working balance is available. In reply to Fitzpatrick's request for suggestions, Dempsey wrote: "I am sure we can arrange to have the space formerly utilized by the Land Office sold for advertising which will, in part, reimburse your department for the discontinuance of co-operation by the Land Office." Dempsey "strongly urged against increasing the magazine's subscription at this time. Fitzpatrick's letter had suggested the loss of revenue "might necessitate an increase."

Every year farmers are relying more and more on terraces to keep their top soil from washing away and to get full benefit from rain and snow. AAA reports from farmer-committeemen show. In New Mexico alone, 163 cooperating farmers built 1,103,386 linear feet of terraces last year at a total cost of $13,777. The trend throughout the nation is the same, according to State AAA Chairman C. V. Hemphill. With AAA assistance, farmers set a new record in building 86,000 miles of terraces last year—50 per cent more than in 1943 and 60 per cent more than the 1939-43 average. The value of terraces in conserving soil and water has been proved. Soil wash in Missouri experiments was eight and a half times greater on unterraced land than on terraced land. In Wisconsin the loss of soil was seven times greater on unterraced land.

Add a teaspoon of curry powder to two cups of cooked rice and heat in a double boiler. This makes a delectable variation of rice and is particularly good with pork chops.

Barham Resigns As Farm Agent In Eddy County

Fred A. Barham, Eddy County extension agent the last 10 years, who recently was honorably discharged from the Navy after being on military leave, has tendered his resignation and will not return to his post here. Dallas Rierson, who served as acting county agent during Barham's absence, will continue on the job. During his 10 years as Eddy County agent, much progress was made in agricultural and ranching developments under Barham's leadership. Prior to coming to Eddy County, he served as county agent in Oklahoma, seven years in Osage County and two years in Lincoln County. Barham served in World War I in the Army and then enlisted for Navy service in World War II, although past the draft age. He saw considerable action. The Carlsbad Current-Argus quoted farm leaders as saying, "We regret to lose Mr. Barham as county agent, but he has been replaced by a splendid young man, highly trained and interested in the work."

NOW... a preferred* quality tire
built especially for war-weary cars

Every car in America today is a used car—a war-weary car, and some of its wheel parts are wearing out faster than others—causing spotty and uneven tread wear which shortens tire life by thousands of miles.

Your replacement tire must be a much more rugged tire than one built for new car "standard equipment". It will have to be better to give satisfactory service on a war-weary car. That's why Dayton has developed the preferred* quality tire—the Thorobred.

Into the Dayton Thorobred has gone the technical skill of over a quarter of a century of practical experience in mastering the use of synthetic rubber.

So, when you part with your precious new tire certificate, insist on the preferred* quality Dayton Thorobred built especially for war-weary cars by experts in synthetic rubber.

Sug Hazel Is Named Inspector By CAA, Effective On Friday
 Sug Hazel, Artesia pilot instructor and operator of Hazel Field, has been appointed an inspector by the Civil Aeronautics Administration for Artesia and vicinity, effective last Friday.

This will enable him to give written examinations and flight checks for pilot and commercial licenses at any time, without those seeking to take the tests having to wait for a periodic visit of a CAA inspector.
 It is expected that the presence of a resident inspector will increase the interest in flying here especially when flight activities are moved to the CAA airport west of town.

If Cookbooks Teach, Will Robinson Would Run Mrs. Paton For Governor

The Artesia Woman's Club may get into politics with the publication of their cookbook, if Will Robinson, editor of The Roswell Dispatch, has his way, judging from his recent comment in his columns.
 He is particularly interested in the ladies in the Pecos Valley being able once again to bake good corn bread and pies and declares if they do, then he is another advocate for Mrs. H. R. Paton, chairman of the cookbook committee, for governor.
 Anyway his comment has resulted in the sale of three cookbooks in Roswell and other orders may be received. Mrs. E. J. Neathery ordered the books sent to her in Roswell.

Vox Populi

The following letter was written by a young woman in Artesia after the news of victory Tuesday, Aug. 14, as an open letter to our G.I.'s:
 Dear G. I.:
 Tonight in our little city of Artesia, we experienced a world-wide joy, a joy no pen can express or artist can paint. A storm was brewing in the north when we heard the alarm of "Victory."
 You boys upstairs put your bid in, too, when loud thundering drowned out everything else. The Heavens poured out blessings of rain. In a moment the streets were swarming with people in spite of the downpour. Everyone, young and old, was hollering, blowing horns, laughing and tears of joy fell unashamed. Small children jumped up and down. The little girls' pigtailed doing a rumba to the tune of jingling marbles or what have you in pockets of the little boys.

Somewhere a loud speaker was playing our patriotic songs along with a blessed hymn. I recall hearing "Jesus died to make me holy, let us die to make men free," and "His day is marching on." It seemed His day had come.

You remember the popcorn you always got at the movies; it played the role of confetti. Our "teenage" "bobby-sox" group went wild. You have made the future free for them. They can make real plans now.

Not long after the shower, a spectacular rainbow appeared in the East. I imagine I could see your face in its splendor. You were wearing flags that read "Pearl Harbor," "Solomons," "Bataan," "Corridor," "Iwo Jima," "Okinawa," "Ita," "France," and many others. You will never come back in person, but you will always be here in the heart of each American.

Yes, you Yanks have done it again, which proves that from the halls of Montezuma to the shores of Tripoli, with those anchors away, that nothing can stop the Army Air Corps, when those calsons are rolling along.

To climax a most glorious day, we experienced the thrill of watching an extremely beautiful sunset. You dear soldiers gave this day to the American. May God bless you all.

Another Grateful Civilian.

SHE WON'T STOP by shouting Whoa!

Driving on today's crowded streets and highways doesn't give a man time to say "Jack Robinson" or "Whoa" either — when he has to stop in a hurry. Good brakes are the only thing that count then.
 It pays in more ways than one to have your brakes in tip-top shape. The safest plan is to have your brakes inspected every 3 or 4 months. A simple adjustment then may save your brake lining for many thousand more miles.
 Come in and have your brakes checked on our fast, automatic Bear Hydraulic Brake Tester. It is accurate and uncovers all brake troubles.

Dr. Catherine Clarke Returns To Washington

Dr. Catherine Clarke, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Clarke, left by plane from Hobbs Tuesday morning for Washington, D. C., after spending her vacation here with her parents. She is with the United States Public Health Service. While in Artesia she was privileged to see her two brothers, Capt. J. J. Clarke, Jr., and Capt. L. R. Clarke, both of whom are in service.

Scout Water

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE) of holding the scheduled campfire. Their water carnival was resumed on Friday morning. A special event, the flutter-board, was used as a surprise to get the scouts to use their arms and legs in proper form. The medley race was perhaps the most thrilling event of the entire meet, for the teams were evenly matched and the winner was not decided until the last minute. The carnival was concluded with two special events, a tub race and clown diving. All scouts and scouters expressed their appreciation to City Manager P. V. Morris for the use of the park for camping purposes; to Coach Alan Thompson for the use of the swimming pool; and to Camping and Activities Chairman A. P. Mahone for making the water carnival possible. Winners of the different events were:

Two-hundred-yard relay, a team of four scouts from each troop; Rotary Club troop won first place with the following scouts making up the team: Stanley Saiken, Junior Russell, Ronald Dublin and Clarence Juarez. Loco Hills troop was second with Scouts James Briscoe, Bobby Morgan, Kenneth Newton, and Alton Unangst making up the team.

Egg race, each troop entering as many scouts as desired: Bobby Morgan, Loco Hills, first; James Briscoe, Loco Hills, second; Ronald Dublin, Rotary Club, third. Watermelon scramble, a team of two scouts from each troop: Bobby Morgan and Alton Unangst, Loco Hills, first; Junior Russell and Ronald Dublin, Rotary Club, second. Each troop got a watermelon.

Fifty-yard free style, each troop entering as many scouts as desired: Junior Russell, Rotary Club, first; Clarence Conner, Rotary Club, second.

Low Diving, each troop entering as many scouts as desired: Junior Russell, Rotary Club, first; Ronald Dublin, Rotary Club, second; Stanley Saiken, Rotary Club, third.

High diving: Junior Russell, Rotary Club, first; Ronald Dublin, Rotary Club, second; Stanley Saiken, Rotary Club, third.

Boys who passed swimming included Clarence Conner, Ronald Dublin, and Stanley Saiken from the Rotary Club.

Death Comes

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE) the Methodist Church at 11 o'clock Friday morning. Burial will be in Clyde Cemetery by the graves of Mrs. Johnson's parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Marshall, who were charter members of the church at which services are to be held.

Mrs. Johnson is survived by her daughter, Mrs. Martin; her grand-son, Marshall Martin, and two sisters and a brother, Mrs. Leona Gott, Roswell; Mrs. W. J. Gray, Cross Plains, Tex., and T. E. Marshall, Shreveport, La.

As Hiley Marshall, Mrs. Johnson was born Oct. 25, 1884, at Clyde, Tex., where she was reared. She grew up there with George A. Johnson, whom she married in October, 1902. To whom was born the one daughter, Mrs. Martin.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson lived all of their married life at Clyde and Abilene, Tex. Mr. Johnson died April 4, 1927. Mrs. Johnson came to Artesia in February, 1929, and for a number of years was assistant in the office of Dr. C. L. Womack. When he moved to Carlsbad, she became office assistant for Drs. J. J. Clarke, Jr., and C. R. Clarke, for whom she worked until 1940, when she quit because of ill health. However, for a while she kept books for Mr. Martin, her son-in-law, while he conducted a dairy. She lived with Mr. and Mrs. Martin at their farm residence southeast of Artesia.

Mrs. Johnson was a member of the Methodist Church, Order of the Eastern Star, and P. E. O.

Country Club

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE) well. And it was generally agreed that $35,000 to $40,000 will be required, which would mean close to 200 members at $200 each.

Tentative plans call for a golf course architect to submit three sets of plans for a nine-hole course and for him to supervise its building. It would have grass greens and fairways, trees, and a sprinkling system.

Mayor Carper said that at the club site, which is northwest of Artesia, it should be possible to get sufficient water at a depth of about 250 feet.

Some of the men present Friday evening subscribed for more than one share, with the understanding that the extras might be sold later to acceptable prospective members and that in the meantime only one share for each member would be subject to dues assessments. Others, financially able to take more than one membership, were invited to help finance the project by purchasing two or more shares.

All checks given at this time are not being deposited, but are being held by L. B. Feather, vice president of the First National Bank, who is serving as temporary treasurer.

Everyone interested in the formation of an association is invited to signify his intentions—accompanied by a check for $100—and to attend the organization meeting next week.

Lieutenant Kane is survived by his parents, Bernard P. Kane of Artesia and Mrs. Gladys Kane of Los Angeles, Calif., and a sister, Mrs. Cyril Chappellett of Los Angeles.

He was working for Lockheed on the West Coast and had his private pilot's license before entering the Army Air Force. He was an air cadet at Santa Ana, Calif., and completed his training at Harding Field, La., where he received his commission and wings.

Lieutenant Kane was sent to the South Pacific in 1943.

He was a graduate of the University of California, Los Angeles. Club troop, and Dwane Tucker, Ronald Rogers, and Jay Goodrich, Loco Hills; Alton Unangst, from the same troop, met the requirements for swimming in the athletic merit badge try.

Truett Urges

Local merchants and business firms, in using mailing lists, advertising lists, or in mailing out statements, are being urged to secure the correct addresses and to include these on the mail they send out. In an effort to make this easier, postoffice clerks are now contacting local business and professional firms urging them to obtain correct addresses of their customers and clients.

To simplify this matter and make it easier a number of cards to contain this information are now being prepared and they are to be sold to the merchants to be used in securing these addresses and in preparing their own mailing lists.

Fine cooperation is being given in the work with one or two exceptions and indications are that in the near future better mail delivery service will be possible because mail contains the complete and correct addresses.

Lewis pointed out that persons working in New Mexico are required to display New Mexico license plates on their cars. Otherwise they are subject to a penalty.

Plates for a fraction of the year are now available, Lewis said.

The route is expected not only to reduce the distance from Central, Texas, to the west coast approximately 150 miles but to provide both a cooler and a more scenic route than is available now.

City Will

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE) it released. Mayor Carper said it is probable the city, which owns the airport, will call for a joint inspection by the Army and CAA before relinquishment is made by the Army.

Church recommended to Mayor Carper and City Manager P. V. Morris that the area east of the south leg of the taxi strip on the east side of the field, south and east of the Army's fire control tower building, be designated as the hangar space.

He suggested that the city reserve ample space adjacent to the fire control building for municipal hangars which might be built in the future. South of that area would be commercial and private hangars.

Church said the field being a class No. 5 airport, the largest and highest designation, hangars must be at least 200 feet back from the taxi strips and he suggested that the frontage line be about 100 feet back from the present day markers.

The CAA engineer said he will send a tentative plan for the city to follow in laying out the building program at the airport. Church likewise recommended that the city build a road on the property east of the hangar area.

The messages to relatives of all three read alike, except as to names, and said: "The secretary of war desires to inform you that your son (brother), appears on the list of personnel at Camp Hoten, Mukden, Manchuria, dated Aug. 26, received from the American commander. As further information is Adjutant General."

Sergeant Buckner and Privates Castleberry and Ireton all enlisted in the New Mexico National guard early in 1941 for a year of voluntary training, after the Selective Service Act had gone into effect.

When the National Guard was federalized, the Carlsbad company to which they belonged became a part of the 200th, which sailed in September, 1941, for the Philippines. It was there the three boys and their comrades made the historical and dramatic withdrawal to Bataan, some of them then to Corregidor, before their capture.

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE) thing. Frank L. Wilson of Wilson & Anderson said, "Yes, I want to get back to old time. I think it was a crazy idea all the way along. It would have suited me fine if we hadn't changed to daylight saving time and I wouldn't have to get up before daylight. Then too it makes it hard on the school kids, who have to ride buses to get up before daylight."

Bert Muncy, Jr., butane gas distributor, stated, "I am highly in favor of going back to where we were. I don't like to get up in the middle of the night and will be happy when we are back on our regular time schedule." Mayor Emery Carper said, "I think the only sensible thing to do is to back to regular time. We have just been kidding ourselves about this extra hour. I was in Washington back in February of 1942, when it started and people went to work before daylight under the daylight saving time plan."

Stanley Jones, oil producer, said, "I am anxious to get back to regular time. I feel it is for the best." D. I. Clowe, manager of Kemp Lumber Company, stated, "I am for changing back to old time. I am kinda old-fashioned and like the old things best."

H. R. Paton, oil drilling contractor and producer declared, "I want time changed back to regular sun time. It just seems better and is better, I think." Leslie Martin, farmer, stated, "I will be most happy when we go back to the old time. It will make it far easier when workmen report to get into the fields and get busy without waiting for daylight. I certainly am anxious to see us change back to old time and the quicker the better."

Each Is Allowed

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE) was hoped at that time that the additional canning sugar to be granted would be some 10 pounds, it was found necessary to hold this amount down to seven pounds per person.

All who made applications for canning sugar and who only received five pounds per person for the family, will be granted the additional seven pounds per person, it was stated. Those who applied early for canning sugar and received some 15 pounds per person, of course, will not receive additional sugar now.

The granting of the additional seven pounds of canning sugar brings the total for all to 12 pounds per person this year for canning.

Those who have not made applications for canning sugar and have not received any canning sugar up to the present time, can submit their applications and when the present distribution is completed they will be given sugar if it is available.
