Advocate Believes

THE ARTESIA ADVOCATE believes the public affairs of this community are the affairs of the public.

The Advocate believes that the collecting and disbursing of public funds collected from the public either through taxation or through any other means when the public contributes—is of vital interest to the public and all the facts and data concerning these acts should be given to the public.

The Advocate believes that all buildings erected and constructed with public funds for the purpose of providing needed facilities for the taxpayers and the public should be just that.

The Advocate does not believe that any public building or public institution erected with taxpayer money should be appropriated for private use, personal use or for the use of a few or limited number.

The Late President Franklin Delano Roosevelt often quoted the phrase "the greatest good for the greatest number." We feel that this truth applies to any and all public expenditures.

The Advocate feels that this policy should be followed in Artesia, in Eddy County, in the state of New Mexico and in the nation.

The Advocate believes that all business transacted in the name of the public and the taxpayers should be made public and a full and complete accounting of these acts and transactions should be given.

The Advocate feels that an individual elected to a public office has accepted a public trust and should treat it as such.

Public drives, campaigns, collection of funds for all needs, purposes and causes is of vital interest to all who donate and contribute and a full accounting of these should be given to the citizens.

The Advocate believes that the laws were adopted and passed to be enforced and observed by all with no discrimination, no exceptions and no chosen few.

And The Advocate is a disciple of that American principle and ideal that all accused, indicted or charged are still innocent until they are proven guilty.

The average citizen in the opinion of the Advocate believes in these same principles and ideals. And after all the taxpayers are the ones, who pay the bills for the operation and maintenance of our governmental affairs.

They are due the accounting, which The Advocate feels should be given.—O.E.P.

We Thank You

ON THE WHOLE the Advocate is receiving co-operation in obtaining advertisements at an early hour and prior to the deadline.

This is a great aid and help and permits the starting of the work on the Advocate at an earlier hour.

Few, of course, not familiar with the 'workings' appreciate the problem of getting out the large Advocate with limited help and limited equipment for this size paper. Few appreciate, perhaps, that only four pages of the paper can be printed at one time. Or that the average length of man hours required to print and fold the Advocate, a 12-page issue, is about 16. With what is known as a flat bed, web perfecting press this same press and folding work can be done in approximately two hours and the paper can be 16 pages in size. This can be done because 16 pages can be printed at a time and when the paper comes out of the press it is folded. And printing is only one part of the job of getting out a newspaper.

But being able to only print four pages at a time—it requires an early start and much more time to print the paper.

So every effort is being made now to print the first four pages of The Advocate on Monday; the second four pages Wednesday; the last run or last two runs late Wednesday and on Thursday morning.

But in order to print the first four pages on Monday we must have sufficient advertisements and sufficient news to make-up and publish the first four pages. These must be on hand on Friday and Saturday and not later than Monday.

That is why we are always clamoring for advertising and news as early as possible. We appreciate merchants and business people anticipating their advertising ahead of time and co-operating with us in helping us to start work on The Advocate early in the week. It all helps us to get the Advocate out on time.—O.E.P.

The Southwest

FOR YEARS the arguments have been advanced that sooner or later the movement of the population in the nation would be to the southwest.

The last frontier, so to speak, is ready for development; for growth; and for expansion.

There is room in New Mexico and other southwest states for millions of people.

And many of the people of this nation are ready to move—move out to the great southwest where there is more room; ideal climate; pleasant weather the year around.

They are ready to move into new fields where development, growth and expansion are still possible.

The inquiries received in Artesia from people who seek a new location, indicate that this movement is coming. The similar letters are probably being received elsewhere in New Mexico and the southwest. Letters from those seeking new homes.

And we in New Mexico are ready for these new residents; ready for this growth and expansion and ready to make the most of our opportunities.

Within the state now there is being created the New Mexico Development Foundation—an organization for the promotion of the state.

The Foundation is being established for the purpose of promoting investigations and all possibilities for the acquiring or bringing to the state new industries. Certainly the field is wide open.

They are inviting memberships; inviting interest; inviting all interested in working with them to join in this movement and to indicate our willingness as citizens of the state to work in this movement. Those interested should write The New Mexico Development Foundation at 318 1-2 Gold Avenue, Albuquerque.

It is up to us in Artesia to sell Artesia for those seeking new homes; new places to live; and new places for industry.

It is likewise our job to sell New Mexico and to join in the developing of the great natural resources of our great state.—O.E.P.

Where's Your Pride

SOME PEOPLE are extremely discourteous and and at the same time show a lack of public pride.

Those are the people who glance at unwanted mail and throw it on the floor of the postoffice.

There have been a number of instances lately, when the floor in the postoffice was literally covered with mail matter all of the same kind.

The same maintains in regard to Treasury Department pamphlets designed to encourage the purchase of War Bonds. Recently one such was placed in every postoffice box. An hour later dozens of them were scattered on the floor.

On another occasion recently, one of the churches chose to inform the public of a revival meeting by means of printed postals. It was not long until the floor was cluttered up with them.

It makes no difference whether a person is interested in the printed matter, or in that or any other particular church, but there is a matter of courtesy to the church which has spent money in its efforts to spread the Gospel. And it makes no difference whether you are interested in buying War Bonds or not, the public could at least have the courtesy to carry the pamphlets out of the postoffice, to be disposed of along with other mail when at home, at the store, or at the office.

Even if not a case of courtesy, there should be the one of public pride—pride in one's post-office lobby, pride in all public places, pride in one's city.

It's just thoughtlessness, we realize, but isn't it about time to stop to think a little about such things?—A.L.B.

Really Serious

FOR MONTHS we have been shrugging our shoulders about the housing situation when someone inquired as to where they can find a small apartment, light housekeeping rooms or a rent house.

We usually comment "it is a tough proposition. They are scarce and hard to find."

That, of course, is true. They are scarce and hard to find.

But the housing situation in this community is our problem as a community if we want to grow; to expand and to increase in population and size.

The only way we can have more people here as residents of our city is to have places for those people to live. If we can't build or provide them we could at least co-operate in having listed and available what ever can be found or had.

That is a service we could and should render to the newcomers. And there are plenty of newcomers. There is from one to a half dozen families each week looking for a place to live.

We want them as residents. We need them as citizens. But the only way we can have them is to encourage, foster and help provide as a community more places for them to live.

And until we do that we should list in a public place and have full information on all places available.

This is a service we could render and should render. It is the least we can do, until we do better. Let's give it some serious thought and see if we can't do something constructive about it.—O. E. P.

Sooner or later, a man if he is wise, discovers that business life is a mixture of good days and bad, victory and defeat, give and take.

The real reason that many communities have never received the public improvements they should receive as an important part of a common wealth is because some few individuals are receiving political patronage and profiting at public expense.

Although we have always preached that the setting of the right example is a fine policy life seemingly continues to be merely a series of that now famous phrase "your actions speak so loud, I cannot hear what you are saying."

Up and Down Main Street

HOUSES NEEDED UP AND DOWN MAIN OUR PROBLEM

This housing situation here really troubles us. We have been troubled about it from the first day we arrived. The farther along we go the more troubled we become—more troubled because our knowledge we are not doing anything about it. We are not even trying to do anything about it. We know it is easy to say "There is nothing that can be done." We know there is considerable truth in that statement. Yet we also know that we all want Artesia to grow. And we know and you know that for a city to grow you must have places for people to live. We don't have them and we haven't any inclinations we are going to have them. We have known of cities, which thought they had a housing situation. We recently heard of one where it said the post war building plans call for 1000 houses and new homes. We happen to know if they had that many they couldn't use them. They haven't need for homes for 4,000 people and that is exactly what 1000 homes would provide basing our estimate on the fact that Uncle Sam says the average family consists of four plus. But in Artesia it is different. It is different first because there is a real house shortage, has been for four years. There is a house shortage—because a city of 4000 has doubled in population in the past five years. And when it is said here there are not apartments, no light housekeeping rooms and no rent houses—well that is exactly true. Not only is this true but we expect most of us would actually be surprised if we made a careful check and found out exactly how many folks are living in trailer houses here.

And everyone of them is eager and anxious to have a house in which to live. Some might be able to build a home but they are not sure how long they can live here. Others couldn't build a home because they couldn't finance it but they could pay a reasonable rent, if a house were available.

"Ben" Muncy declaring the date for the Legion celebration has been changed again—A big day is being planned—Royce Smith busy at his barber shop—Mrs. Taylor Cole trying to figure out how to fix her hectograph for printing menus—F. C. Hart returning to the Hart Motor company—Mark A. Corbin busy at the store and relating how they got him out of bed at 5 o'clock in the morning to get a deer license three days before the season opened—D. J. Carson trying to comply with a request of his son, who is away in college—Jules Chandler busk at King's Jewelry store—Brady Booker headed down the street on a lot selling campaign—Walter Nugent taking on a new job although he has a big one to be finished—P. V. Morris playing the role of a real friend early in the morning—Deer hunters slowly returning, some with deer and others with only a long face on a long story—Rev. C. A. Clark back with a big smile and reporting Mrs. Clark is making satisfactory progress—Dale Fishbeck driving toward the New Mexico Asphalt Refinery fine idea for a band festival—Ideal weather continuing to prevail here—Many fine compliments concerning the widening of fourth street and the interest in further improvements in Artesia—E. C. Thomas busy checking some deliveries—Jack Spratt going toward the Santa Fe Depot—Fred Perry returning to the Artesia Hotel—Thelma Miller busy at the new Club Cafe—John Vandagriff down early and declaring everyone should enjoy the fine sunshine—Jack Hastie visiting with friends—E. C. Hannah still smiling as he enjoys seeing some of his old friends—That was up and Down Main this week.

But this is not new or news to you. You know it perhaps better than we do. We said we hadn't even attempted to do anything about it. We haven't even established a place where information is available or apartments, rent houses or light housekeeping rooms if and when any are available. We haven't established any place to give out information on these. Yet it is needed. Needed because the real estate men haven't any listings on rent houses and can't get them. So, we say, again we haven't even tried to do anything about it. Approximately 60 units were built here. All were sold. None were rented. There is an allotment of 20 more approved but no one to build or finance them. But the future growth of Artesia is at stake. We have to have houses. Recently a local business man, who owns four or five rent houses now, declared we

New Mexico Development Foundation Is Attracting Statewide Attention

Considerable interest is being displayed locally and over the state in the New Mexico Development Foundation, a new organization being formed for the purpose of promoting the state.

The movement has been launched by a group of New Mexico business people with others joining in the program. The organization has adopted a slogan of, "Hats off to the past; coats off to the future." Two goals or objectives have been set up and these are, "Keep here and bring to New Mexico a superior people," and "Provide a good living for superior people."

The foundation, of course, has many goals and objectives in this particular field. They expect to investigate all possibilities for bringing new businesses and new industries to the state.

Among the things, which they hope and believe can be developed in the state are packing plants, porcelain and china, cement, plaster, wall board, cheese, creameries, tanneries, weaving, knitting, luggage, lubricating oils, soap, jewelry and curios, plastics, refrigeration, candy, magnesium, roofing, sports goods, toys, truck and trailer bodies, storage batteries, tools, brooms, dehydration, brewing, wrought iron, powdered iron, glass, shoes, leather goods, tanning, peanut products, turkey processing, fertilizers, synthetic rubber, dye stuffs, paste and glues, clay, cedar oils, electrical goods, canneries, sugar refining, baskets, floor coverings.

Work clothes, air conditioning, wind machinery, oil well machinery, pipe and tank works, wood processing, pulp and paper, furniture, insulation, pumice, talcum, tobacco, grape products, and copper processing.

The foundation cites what has been done and accomplished in other states by their programs. They point out that Los Angeles at one time had few people and no industrial plants, yet today it is one of the largest cities in the nation with more than 5000 industries.

Among the leading business men in the state working toward the formation of the foundation are Robert P. Porter, Las Cruces; Louis McKee, Albuquerque; M. R. Presridge, Alamogordo; Harold Murphy of Clovis; Rolla Hinkle, Roswell; Arthur Jones, Portales; Herman Moncus, Tucumcari.

Those interested are invited to write to the New Mexico Foundation, 318 1-3 West Gold Avenue, Albuquerque.

He was accused of knocking out two of his wife's teeth in a quarrel at their Wilton Park, Md., home after a beer party. Twenty witnesses, including the foreman of the jury which convicted Busching, saw the lashing.

Oil Industry Low Accident Rate Is Set

The lowest motor vehicle accident rate in the oil industry in the 13 years records have been compiled was set in 1944, despite wartime operating conditions, the Department of Accident Prevention of the American Petroleum Institute reported.

Accidents per 100 vehicles decreased from 15.5 in 1943 to 14.1 in 1944. Accidents per 100,000 vehicle miles decreased from 1.14 in 1943 to 1.01 last year.
Reports were received from 170 oil companies operating 53,198 motor vehicles. Detailed reports were received concerning the operation of 48,057 vehicles which traveled a total of 652,515,522 miles during the year. On that basis, each vehicle operated had an average of one accident for 99,347 miles of travel.

One commendable feature of this outstanding record is the fact that, with a record number of trucks in operation, the accident rate for trucks was lowest in history.

"Those responsible for the operation and maintenance of automotive equipment in oil companies are deserving of commendation for the several records achieved," the department pointed out.

"These records, made under difficult wartime conditions, constitute a challenge to those who seek lower accident frequencies in the future."

A new use for carrier pigeons is described by State Rep. R. C. Walker of Montgomery, Ala. Walker, addressing a legislative committee, said a flying instructor at the Clanton, Ala., airport frequently puts a pigeon in a trainer plane with a student. Then if the pilot can't find his way back to the airport, he releases the pigeon and follows the bird in. That's what the legislator said.

A Thought to Give Consideration Between Now and Thanksgiving Day

(A year ago Mable Tuggle wrote the following Thanksgiving editorial in The Commercial Appeal of Danville. Even though the wars are now ended, it might be well to read and consider it between now and Thanksgiving Day, 1945.)

Today is Thanksgiving day, a peculiarly American day and for it we in America give a special sort of thanks. It is because I am an American that I have Thanksgiving Day because I am an American.

I greet this day with a humble and appreciative heart. I am an American... Today is Thanksgiving. That first handful of pioneers inaugurating this day three centuries ago gave thanks for food and shelter and prosperity of a kind. They could not have foreseen that the greatest blessing man could give thanks for 300 years later was that of being an American.

Today is Thanksgiving... I am an American... When I go to bed tonight I shall lie down knowing that I can rest until tomorrow... There is not the ever present danger that I shall hear the crash of bombs in the street below nor the warning roar of incendiary fires. I shall not sit upright in the middle of the night with terror clutching my throat and my ears ringing with bells of violent death... Today is Thanksgiving... I am an American...

When I awake tomorrow it will be to a fresh start in a new day. A new day that will bring me a cup of coffee and butter for my toast... the milk fresh to my doorstep, the morning mail to my box, a bus to take me to work, and a job to do.

The street will be sunny and clean, humming the vibrant theme of the busy morning traffic like a high tension wire in the wind. There will be no smouldering debris of fallen houses or smoking churches for me to pick my way around... no babies crying for a mother dead in an air raid's havoc... The voices of children I hear will be the laughing words of children going to school or play. I am an American... Today is Thanksgiving.

Tonight I shall not lie awake in a frenzy or terror recalling an idle word I spoke at a friendly gathering today. There will come no heavy tread to my home in the dark of the night, no threats to terrorize my family, no voices to accuse me and drag me bewildered and protesting to jail. I am an American... Today is Thanksgiving... Tomorrow when I go to work I shall not shudder at the sound of a plane over my head, or dart gopher-like into the nearest hole. For the odds are that it will be only a practice plane.

Today I do not eat turkey, I shall have chicken, or pork, or beef or bacon or beans. I will not wish I might have the privilege of scraps from other people's tables. Today is Thanksgiving... I am an American.

Today I shall have a newspaper with facts that no one is afraid to print... I my turn my radio dial to any station I want with no fear that my neighbor will turn out to be a spy and inform the police.

I shall have the right to see and hear and talk with the people who govern my country. I shall have the privilege of voicing my disapproval if I wish, and if I am of the minority I shall still have the right to fight for what I want and the opportunity of being heard.

And I shall go to church today. To a little white-steeped country church, set back in a grove of red oaks older than the oldest inhabitant in our town.

They have been standing, as the church has, for over a hundred years, welcoming generations of my people and my neighbors who come to worship their God in a land of freedom.

As I sit in that church today I will know fully, deeply, reverently what I mean when I say—I am an American... Today is Thanksgiving Day.

A Pledge for all of us

I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America

(And I'll back up that pledge with Victory Bonds — plenty of them!)

And to the Republic for which it stands

(My country — the land that yields my crops, that gives a living to me and mine. I'll put my dollars to work for her.)

One nation indivisible

(I'll keep it one nation — prosperous and happy.)

With liberty and justice for all

(And a good living for all — the living that my backlog of Bonds will make secure in the years to come . . . for me, for my community, for the boys who will be coming back from fighting in their country's service.)

Ruben Hernandez, 11-year-old Artesia Spanish-American boy, has been admitted to Boys Town, Neb., through the efforts of the Artesia Woman's Club, which sponsored his case, and he is to leave in a few days for the famous Father Flanigan, according to Mrs. E. J. Foster, president of the local club.

Father Flanigan wrote the Woman's club that the records, including school grades and background material regarding Ruben, which had been sent him, were the most comprehensive he ever had received since the founding of Boys Town.

The case of Ruben, whose mother is dead and whose father and stepmother have gone to California, was brought to the attention of the Woman's Club by the Rev. Fr. Stephen Bono, assistant pastor of Our Lady of Grace Catholic Church.

He prevailed upon the Woman's Club to sponsor his case and Mrs. Clyde Parrish was appointed as chairman of a special committee, which investigated and compiled the proper records to submit.

It Happens in Best Regulated Of Newspapers When the death of President McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt succeeded to the high office, a New York editor desired to contrast the event with a recent event in Europe. But the compositor, coming to the word "oath" in the manuscript, struck a wrong key and the sentence appeared: "For sheer democratic dignity, nothing could exceed the moment when, surrounded by the cabinet, Mr. Roosevelt took the simple bath as President of the United States." Typesetters also omit letters. A Des Moines newspaper once reported to Mr. Witter Bynner, the poet, that he had been "the pot of the evening." Mr. Bynner took it graciously, remarking: "They probably thought it was a recital of chamber music." Then there is the almost classical story about Bert Harte when he was a very young editor. He wrote the obituary notice of a most respectable lady, closing with: "above all ladies of this town, she was distinguished for her charity." This came back from the press-room: "distinguished for her chastity." Instead of making the correction, he merely put a mark of query on the margin of the proof.

Brown Declares Mankind Can Have Peace

"If mankind intelligently wants peace, we can have it," declared the Rev. Paul L. Brown, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Artesia Rotary Club Tuesday noon, when he spoke on international relations.

He referred especially to Russia in the present family of nations, which country, he said, is misunderstood and against which there is growing an antagonistic feeling.

Things are lining up badly against Russia today, the Rev. Brown said, but people should stop to think that Russia has advanced more rapidly than any other nation and has liberalized greatly since 1916, not having had a meeting of the Internationale since 1935, having removed the anti-church movement, having fostered education, and having made great advancement in science.

The speaker declared one must not think of Russia as she once was, that she is entirely changed, and that the Russia of today is not the Russia of tomorrow.

In the meanwhile, although here is a thought in America, "Look what Russia could do to us," one should add, "But look what we could do to Russia," the Rev. Mr. Brown said. Russia fears the United States, just as this nation fears Russia, he added.

The guest speaker brought out that the fatalist should have no complaint if and when war might come again. But a person should take an interest in international affairs and nations should work together. "I don't believe we can progress in international affairs if we take a negative attitude," he said.

This nation has an obligation in international matters and must do something constructive, with the hope that someday there may come an end to wars, the Rev. Mr. Brown said. "We must try to discover the facts, then have statesmen lead us. If mankind intelligently wants peace, we can have it."

B. N. Muncy, Jr., Rotary president, announced that Oren W. Strong of Albuquerque, district governor of Rotary International, will make his official call on the Artesia Rotary Club Tuesday of next week, Nov. 13, at the regular luncheon at the First Christian Church. Governor Strong will meet on Monday evening at the city hall with chairmen of the various Rotary committees and any other Rotarians wishing to attend.

North American,

our continent, with the exception of corn, beans, and potatoes. The plant, believed by some to have been discovered by the Europeans during Columbus' first voyage, is according to others, indigenous to Brazil, the German naturalist Maregrav having described it scientifically three centuries ago after visiting Brazil. It is not known exactly when and how the cultivation of cassava spread to tropical Latin America and from there to the East Indies and Africa, but today the plant is grown in practically every region of the world within the limits of 30 degrees latitude north and south of the Equator. It is known in Latin America by the names of mandioca (Brazil), yuca (Caribbean countries), and a variety of other appellations, and is sometimes referred to as the tapioca plant or the sweet potato tree.

The cassava is a bushy shrub with broad, shining hand-shaped leaves. Its root development is remarkable, the roots being very thick and fleshy and filled with a milky juice, a sort of latex comparable to that contained in the rubber plant and the poinsettia, which are of the same family. The long, slender stems, which rise five to nine feet above the ground, are in contrast with the large, swollen tubers, of which a piece three feet long often weighs as much as 30 pounds. Enormous crops of this plant are produced with little or no attention, the planting of small pieces of the stem being all that is required for its preparation. There are two general classes of cassava, the bitter (Manihot utilisima) and the sweet (M. Aipi) and it is from the former that the tapioca of commerce is obtained. The roots are cleaned and reduced to a pulp by cutting and grinding, and the starch particles removed by repeated washings. This starchy mass is dried on hot iron plates, the starch grains forming into the small irregular grains known as pearl tapioca. The sap of the bitter cassava root contains a poison (prussic acid) and the root is therefore highly poisonous until exposure to heat dissipates it, while on the other hand the sweet cassava is perfectly innocuous and employed as a table vegetable. This essentially tropical or at most sub-tropical product can only be grown, however, in regions which have a consistently warm climate, even the altitude affecting it, inasmuch as the temperature drops with the elevation.

One of the most nutritious foods known, cassava is eaten by all classes of society, in some parts of the Central or South America as often as once or twice a day. To millions of people in tropical countries this root is as common in their diet as are potatoes to people of the United States and European countries. If eaten whole, fresh roots are used, peeled and usually cooked or baked. Another and perhaps more widely followed practice is to peel the roots, then grate them into meal, and cook by steaming. In cooking, care is taken to allow the steam to escape, as with it any poisonous gas from the roots will also pass. Various dishes are prepared by natives of the different tropical countries, one of the most popular being a sort of large dry pancake eaten as bread. In tapioca form cassava is known throughout the world as a light, pleasant, and digestible product very much used for desserts and as a thickener for soups.

In addition to its uses as food, the cassava is the source of a number of important industrial products among which are laundry starch, paper making, glues and dextrines, furniture veneer, and textiles. The U. S. Bureau of Engraving and Printing uses tapioca dextrin exclusively for the adhesive on postage stamps and envelopes, consumption amounting to between 700,000 and 1,000,000 pounds per year. In the prewar period, most of the export production of cassava came from the East Indies, but the war has naturally cut off the supply from that part of the world. In spite of the fact that cassava and its derivations have a tremendous importance in the daily diet of millions of Latin Americans and that it is indigenous to the Western Hemisphere, this plant has with few exceptions only been exploited there for local consumption. Brazil, Cuba, and the Dominican Republic, however, are exporters of the product on a small scale, and a law has been promulgated in several countries, providing that bread and similar food stuffs made in the country should contain a certain percentage of cassava flour. Lately an interest in the production of cassava has been shown by a number of Latin American countries of the tropical and sub-tropical zone, and everything leads to believe that this will be in the future one of the important export products of the Americas.

Miss Thelma Miller Opens Club Cafe At 208 West Main

The Club Cafe new restaurant being completed by Miss Thelma Miller, opened for business Tuesday and will have a formal opening next week.

Because of the uncertainty of the arrival of some materials, it was impossible this week to set a definite formal date, Miss Miller said.

She has had the building at 208 West Main remodeled, until it now is one of the most modern in the city, and it is being modernly decorated and equipped and will be one of the finer restaurants in this section.

Henry King, who has been operating King's Cafe, is closing that place and will be the chef at the Club Cafe.

Purchase of Victory Bond Admission To Air Show at RAAF on Dec. 9

An air invasion show for all Southeastern New Mexico will be presented at the Roswell Army Air Field on Sunday, Dec. 9, with all holders of receipts for War Bond purchases during the Victory Loan drive eligible to attend. It has been announced here by L. B. Feather, North Eddy County War Finance Committee chairman.

This will be the only air invasion show to be presented in New Mexico and is expected to be probably the last presented, it was stated by R. R. Hinkle of Roswell, district War Finance Committee chairman, in a letter to Chairman Feather.

The show is expected to get underway with plans for taking the field about 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, Dec. 9, with paratroopers, gliders, and the largest transports in use, which will be loaded with tanks, jeeps, and all equipment used during war in taking a base of this kind.

To gain admittance to this show, the person will have to show a receipt from the issuing agent or the county chairman that he has purchased a bond and this receipt will also entitle the individual holder to enter and inspect all equipment in the show area. Each receipt held, it was explained, is a pass through the gliders, transport planes and possibly some fighters and B-29's.

Those from all of Southeastern New Mexico, of course, are invited to go to Roswell on Sunday, Dec. 9, to enjoy the show.

The purchase of bonds, which will amount to an admission, can be made at the First National Bank booth here in the lobby of the bank.

It is hoped, of course, the air invasion show will help stimulate interest in bond sales here. The sale at the present time, it was stated is lagging.

How to Behave In Popular Airline Travel

Airline travel is becoming so widespread and so many people, especially women, are being initiated as air passengers that tips on how to behave in the air are finding their way into the etiquette books. The Air Transport Association of America gives in a nutshell some of the customs followed by experienced air travelers:

Report at your airline's counter at the airport, preferably 20 minutes before departure time, regardless of whether you have previously picked up your ticket.

Check your luggage and forget about it until you are in the terminal building at your destination. Remember to wear clothes which will be suitable for the weather likely to prevail at the distant place to which you will be so quickly flown.

Pick any seat in the plane and if you wish to leave it briefly at an intermediate stop, ask the hostess to mark it "occupied."

Fasten your seat belt when directed by the illuminated sign up forward, for there is nothing sissy about doing so.

Don't smoke when the sign says, "no," and do not smoke cigars at all.

Feel perfectly free to strike up conversations with strangers, for among airline passengers no introductions are necessary.

It is perfectly proper to chew gum, in fact, desirable for its beneficial effect in relieving ear pressure during change of altitude.

Do not give tips. Complimentary meals and all the service are part of the ride.

John Mathis I, II, III —Count 'Em—Go on Deer Hunt Together

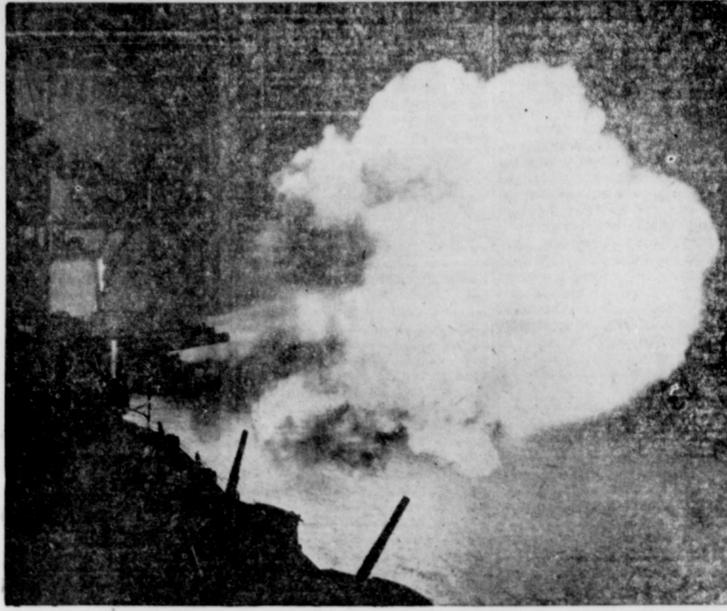

John A. Mathis, "the First, Second and Third," went deer hunting together this year.

Licenses for the annual deer hunt were purchased here Wednesday morning by Mr. Mathis, representative of the Union Life Insurance Company, for himself, his son, John A. Mathis Jr., and for his grandson, 12-year-old John A. Mathis III.

This was their first time for three of them to hunt deer together.

U. S. S. New Mexico Helps Bring Japs to Knees

Official U. S. Navy Photograph. Terrible blasts like this one from the 14-inch rifles of the battleship USS New Mexico helped rip the Japs to shreds and bring about their surrender. One of the Navy's older battle wagons, whose keel was laid in 1914, she tasted battle for the first time in the Aieutians campaign, won considerable acclaim in later engagements.

Even Pioneers Found the Old West Difficult

In the days when "the towns of Santa Fe, containing 4000 inhabitants, Albuquerque, 6000, and Taos, 9000, comprised almost half of the population" of "this stripe of country," a pioneer New Mexican was collecting the books and magazines of the 19th century and annotating them for coming generations.

Now his collection, 1087 volumes of books and bound periodicals, has been given to the library of the University of New Mexico for cataloging and preservation, says an announcement from Librarian Arthur M. McAnally.

They are the gift of Herbert F. Reynolds of Beverly Hills, Calif., formerly New Mexico district court judge and member of the State Supreme Court.

Particularly valuable, said McAnally, are rare bound volumes of American magazines published in the 1820's and the 1830's. It was an author of some of the books in the collection who wrote 100 years ago that "this stripe of country" was so thinly peopled that "the scarcity of wood and water form obstacles to settling, which even American perseverance will scarcely surmount." And in an anti-Van Buren magazine, one of the Reynolds family wrote: "This book proves the baseness and depravity of the 'loco loco' Van Buren party."

Included in the collection are 310 bound volumes of magazines, covering 3000 separate copies and such publications as Harper's, Scribner's, Century, Horace Greeley's New Yorker Magazine, Cincinnati Mirror, The Hickory Club, the Penny Magazine, Family Magazine, and two edited by Charles Dickens, called Household Words and All the Year Round.

There are 112 volumes of the Family Library of the 1840's, 26 volumes of the Boys and Girls Library of the 1850's, 85 volumes of Stevenson, Stockton, Kipling and other writers of the turn of the century; 100 children's books, 12 atlases, 14 volumes of the Civil War, and 40 volumes on early American history.

There are eight original pamphlets of the hot days of the French Revolution, including some by Paine and Burke.

One book of poems in the collection reflects an early attitude toward the West in this passage: "Not many years ago, it will be recollected that emigration to Texas was the common resource of adventurers, rowdies, insolvent gamblers, and disappointed lovers. We congratulate that growing state, that the tide of this peculiar emigration is now diverted to California."

and somewhat larger than a horse-fly. The maggotly does his dirty work during the warm days of late spring, summer, and early fall, depositing tiny maggots in the nostrils of sheep. The maggots migrate from the nasal passages to the frontal sinuses, where they develop to mature grubs.

According to Ivan Watson, extension animal husbandman of New Mexico A. & M. College, the recommended treatment is based on destroying the maggots in the nasal passages of sheep during the late fall and early winter months before they migrate to the frontal sinuses. Watson recommends irrigating the nostrils with a 3 per cent solution of lysol or a 3 per cent solution of saponified cresol after the first freeze in the fall

 "Mortals and Immortals" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, November 18, 1945.

The Golden Text is: "Flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God; neither doth corruption inherit incorruption. . . . For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality." (1 Corinthians 15:50, 53.)

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the bible: "Lord, what is man that thou takest knowledge of him! Man is like to vanity: his days are as a shadow that passeth away." (Psalm 144:3, 4).

The Lesson Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science text book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Mortal man is the antipode of immortal man in origin, in existence, and in his relation to God."

Visitors always welcome.

"Will a SQUARE PEG Go in a ROUND HOLE?"

OF COURSE a square peg won't go in a round hole unless the hole is larger than the peg! You wouldn't even try doing this because you know it cannot be done. That is about as easily done sometimes as finding adequate storage space for fuel that has to be bought in bulk. It's naturally more economical and less trouble to buy bulk fuel by the season or year but where to put it?—that's the problem!

But with Natural Gas there is no problem of storage space because you don't have to store your supply of Natural Gas. Natural Gas is kept in storage just where Nature placed it—deep down hundreds of feet below the earth. Your own private supply of Natural Gas is in this subterranean storehouse and you use it as you need it. You don't have to order Natural Gas in advance; you don't have to pay delivery costs; you don't have the problem of storage space.

Program arrangements for the meeting are in charge of Chairman Smith and Executive Moore.

Heads District

R. C. Gunstream of Clovis, pictured above, is the superintendent of the New Mexico district of the Church of the Nazarene, the mid-year conference of which will be in Artesia next week. He is well known in Artesia. Years ago he was an active pastor in this district which has made marked gains under his leadership as superintendent.

Hunters Find Buck Deer to Be Quite Scarce

While deer hunters in general have found bucks scarce in Southeast New Mexico this year, a number of good-sized deer have been brought in, while others are coming to the city or going through practically every hour.

Many hunters believe that before the rains of a month or so ago, the majority of deer moved farther north and have not returned here since the tanks have become full and the gamma grass is growing. It was noted there are few pinon nuts this year, a source of food for deer.

The Advocate is keeping a list of kills reported and will publish them next week, along with the probable winners of prizes at the Westerner and the L. P. Stevens Store, although that cannot be told definitely, as the season will close on Wednesday, the day this newspaper will print next week.

plan for further construction on the Carper Annex including an extension to the building and the addition of two more stories to the present building now occupied by the Southwestern Public Service company.

The Ross Bakery now has construction work underway on their new building, which is to be located on the southwest corner of Main and Fifth street. Besides housing the bakery it is understood there will be room in the building for one firm for a business.

The Southern Union Gas company sooner or later expects to erect their own office building on the lot just west of the Ross Bakery building.

The new Theatre is to be erected here just east of the Artesia City hall and hopes are expressed construction can get underway next spring.

It is understood although no announcement has been made as yet, that several business dwellings will be started here soon with many remodeling jobs in order in the business district.

The Legion hopes and expects to start construction of their $50,000 home if and when the remaining funds needed are raised.

It is also hoped and expected when the organization of the Country club here is completed that a club house can be erected on the property, which is located west of Artesia across from the Municipal Airport.

Besides these projects the erection of new homes continues here. Many more will be started when materials and labor are available. It is also understood one or two large apartment houses will be built here.

Funds for the erection of new well as remodeling work are now available through the First National Bank under the FHA plan or they will be available here soon through Artesia's own building and loan association, which is about ready to announce for service here.

The fact that local lending agencies are now prepared to accommodate Artesia citizens makes it far easier to secure funds for building programs.

Advocate Coming Out Day Early For Thanksgiving

The issue of the Artesia Advocate for Thursday, Nov. 22, will be published and placed in the mail on Wednesday, Nov. 21, it was announced here. This, of course, is one day earlier than usual and this arrangement is being followed in order that The Advocate office can be closed all day Thanksgiving Day in order that the employees may have the full day off.

The same fine cooperation, which has always been given by correspondents and advertisers in the past, is being urged again for this year.

Those desiring to have news items or advertisements in The Advocate are requested to have these in as early as possible and in at least one day earlier as the paper will be published on Wednesday, Nov. 21, next week, instead of on Thursday.

Fourth Street Widening Project Is Quarter Done

The completion of one fourth of one of Artesia's most needed projects has been announced here. This is the widening and the curbing on the west side of Fourth street between Main street and Quay.

This work started a few days ago has now been completed and concrete has been run from in front of the New Carper Annex along the East Side of the Artesia Laundry building to Main street.

Ralph Petty, owner of the Artesia Pharmacy, has announced he plans to have a half-block on Fourth Street between Main and Texas widened and paved. The north half of this block, which is located on the west side, has already been widened. This is also true about the east half of this block. However, concrete needs to be run along side the Artesia Postoffice and the half block north of this both located on the East side of Fourth street.

There will remain then only the half block on the East side of Fourth street from Main to the alley to complete this project of widening of Fourth street. The half block in front of the Carper building was widened and the paving run at the time the building was constructed.

With considerable business now transacted on Fourth street the widening of the street will provide not only more parking space but more room for driving.

The city has been interested in efforts to widen this street for many months and it is hoped and expected that the near future will see this project completed.

Rotary Governor—

are and will be many who must have assistance in finding and adjusting themselves to life.

In one group there are those who never had high-paying jobs before the war, received high pay during their service, who will demand jobs at wages more than they are fitted to earn, Governor Strong said.

And there are others, those who are nervous and at loose ends, who cannot settle down. It is up to the people at home to find out what they can do for such veterans, in order to help them readjust themselves, the speaker said.

Governor Strong pointed out that all should try to get it across to the general public what is signified by the discharge button or shirt patch—the golden eagle with wings outstretched through and beyond a surrounding circle—and to give a helping hand to the men who wear them.

Many returned veterans are the victims of confidence games, which beat the American public out of seven billion dollars a year, Governor Strong said. And he stressed that all assistance should be given to protect the former GI's from such skin games, which are milking the boys.

These things, practiced by Rotarians, Governor Strong said, are like a pebble dropped on water; the waves go out and on and on, until they strike the farthest shore and spend themselves.

On Tuesday morning, prior to his official call at the regular Artesia Rotary Club meeting, Governor Strong had a conference with committee chairmen, talking over with them plans for the activities of the local group.

Visiting Rotarians included Claude Simpson, B. B. Wilson, Reed Mulkey, and H. S. Williams of Roswell, and Strother Moore of Carlsbad.

Third of Lots in Alta Vista Addition Just Opened in Artesia, Are Sold

Interesting Talk Given at Tech Society Meet

The next regular meeting of the Technical Society of Artesia is scheduled to be held on the roof garden of the Artesia hotel on Wednesday night, December 5.

More than 40 were in attendance at the meeting held on Wednesday night, November 7 when A. E. Shilcutt, representing the Lane Wells Company, spoke on "Radioactive Well Logging."

His address, according to those present, proved to be another of very interesting speakers the club has been privileged to hear during recent months. Mr. Shilcutt gave what was called a very interesting review of the development and application of well logging by means of measuring the emanations of the formations, explaining the measurements and recording of both "Gamma rays and Neutron reflections. As explained various formations vary in degree of activity from shales, the most active, to sands dolomite lime and anhydrite, the least active.

Gamma rays distinguish between the formations and neutron reflections indicate presence of oil, water or gas.

The speaker in an unbiased manner, gave the limitations of this process as well as its good points delighting the large audience of men from various cities. Represented were Artesia, Carlsbad, Hobbs, Roswell, Midland, Odessa and Fort Worth, Tex.

The club invites the public to be present for the addresses or lectures given. At the October meeting a speaker gave a discussion on the atomic bomb.

Artesia Chamber Plans Meet for Local Discussions

With a large number of civic matters scheduled to be discussed here by the Artesia Chamber of Commerce, plans are now being made for the holding of a luncheon with only community matters to come before the organization.

For the past six months all attention at the Chamber of Commerce meetings has been given to the super-highway project. All the time for discussions has centered on this project. Leaders feel this project is more than worthy and that the activities now underway were full justified to devote so much time and attention.

However, it is now felt that the project is well started and with an accumulation of civic matters, which have received little if any attention in this period, President Ralph Petty is hopeful that they can be discussed and decisions reached regarding them.

One of the outstanding projects, of course, is the housing situation. The need for rent houses, more homes, apartments or even light house keeping rooms is just as great now as six months or even two or three years ago. Chamber of Commerce members have pointed out that some action must be taken on these if Artesia is to continue and grow.

Approval for the erection of 20 home units not to exceed a cost of $7,500 each has been given but this must be promoted, worked into a project or someone must carry it out in order for Artesia to have the homes.

It is hoped here that not only these 20 homes can be erected but others can be constructed.

Many inquiries also are being received here at the chamber of commerce concerning new businesses, which are seeking locations. There are no store buildings, of course, available. Civic leaders, however, are extremely anxious to obtain ample stores with stocks of merchandise here to meet every demand of the public and to eliminate the necessity of shopping outside the city.

There also is a desire on the part of several here to hear a report on the state organization, the New Mexico Development Foundation, which has as its purpose the investigating of possibilities and bringing of new industries to New Mexico. This is a state wide organization now active and seeking the support of all interested citizens.

It is also possible that the Chamber of Commerce may desire to make a number of recommendations regarding the growth of the city as well as recommend various projects to be carried out here that will mean improvement for the city.

Full announcement concerning the proposed meeting will be made in the near future.

Some 39 lots in the new Alta Vista addition, which is being developed and opened here by the Carper Drilling company, have already been sold, it has been announced by Grady Booker, secretary of the company. There is a total of 111 lots to be sold in the new addition and this leaves some 72 lots still available.

These 39 lots have been sold to some 29 people with some of these individuals purchasing two or three lots. The majority of the purchasers, however, only bought one lot for their new home.

The lots vary in size but all have some 75 foot front or more with depth in some instances running as much as 212 feet.

The work of laying the curbing, gutters and sidewalks also is progressing rapidly with approximately two-thirds of this work now completed. Contractors estimate this will all be completed as well as the paving work by the end of January.

Just when the construction of the first home in the new addition will get underway is not known but it is expected within the near future.

The residential addition to the city has been described as one of the most unique in the state and it has created considerable comment. The fact that the sidewalks are being run so they join the curbing just next to the gutter also is considered new in design and unusual.

The addition or sub-division is located to the south of the city and adjoins the city. It is just west of the Hightower addition, which was opened here only a short while ago and where one of the new additions was made to the city and many new homes were constructed when the city was given approval for the construction of several new homes.

Purchasers of lots in the addition include Clyde Guy, D. Gilmore, Glenn Baker, Kelley Stout, Emery Carper, Rex Holmes, R. O. Anderson, Marshall Rowley, Howard Whitson, S. Sutton, George Ely, F. O. Ashton, Mr. Turner, Clarence Key, R. Holmes, Barney Cockburn, Joe Lackey, H. G. Watson, Jules Chandler, Joe Bill Ballard, H. R. Patton, John Briscoe, Dr. C. P. Bunch, Clarence Fischbeck, A. P. Mahone, C. D. Hopkins, Herbert Mathis, LeRoy Cranford, and Juanita Denton.

The sub-division is restricted with certain building requirements and will prove to be Artesia's few restricted residential sections when completed.

Plats and sketches of the sub-division are on display at the Carper drilling company and those interested in checking the sites or the lots are invited to call at the office. The streets in the new addition also are in good condition at this time and many have taken advantage of this and have been out to look over the building sites.

The financial committee consisting of the pastor and Mrs. Paton and Mrs. Jess Shildneck, has been receiving good response, assuring that the church building will be dedicated during the convention. The Rev. Mr. Jones expressed thanks and appreciation to all who have made this possible.

Artesia Schools Are 'Big Business' Cole Declares

"Big business" was the way Fred Cole characterized the Artesia schools, in a talk at the weekly meeting of the Artesia Lions Club Wednesday noon at the First Baptist Church.

More than $214,000 is spent annually in the maintenance and operation of the Artesia school system, he said.

Cole drew upon his 17 years of experience as a school teacher and a member of the Artesia School Board in presenting to the Lions data and comments on the Artesia system, in observance of "National Education Week."

The Artesia school plant, land, buildings, and equipment have a physical valuation of $503,641, Cole said, adding that there is now an enrollment of 1983 and there are 58 teachers, five bus drivers, and five janitors.

In commenting on his experience as a teacher, Cole said one of the discouraging things about teaching is parents. Lack of interest in the schools is frequently shown by them, he said, except when they wish to voice complaints. And investigation of complaints many times shows that correction of wrongs could be made by the parents.

Cole added that there are poor teachers, as well as poor workers in other lines of endeavor, and that teachers err too, but that many times teachers' errors could have been averted through closer acquaintance with parents.

Observation of "National Education Week" is not meeting with the response hoped for by the schools, Cole said, adding that Artesia High School has ushers available to show visitors through the school. He urged parents to encourage their children by visiting them in their school classes this week.

Odd Fellows Will Initiate Six Here Wednesday, Nov. 21

The Odd Fellows Lodge of Artesia is planning one of its largest meetings here in many months for Wednesday night, Nov. 21. A class of six new members is to be initiated at this time.

The degree staff of the Roswell lodge is coming down to conduct the initiation and to confer the first degree.

There is to be a big supper in connection with the initiation ceremonies and all members are urged to plan to be present while all visiting brothers are extended an invitation to be present.

The meeting is slated to get underway at 7:30 Wednesday night, Nov. 21.
