HELPING TO BUILD A GREATER ARTESIA

ARTESIA, NEW MEXICO, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1946

NUMBER 40

Firemen Will Sponsor Purchase of Iron Lung

Members of the Artesia Fire department have agreed tentatively on a portable iron lung, which packs compactly and is complete with three chest sizes. It costs $1100 and weighs only 84 pounds, he said.

The value to the community of the resuscitator, purchased several years ago, was pointed out by firemen. It has been used a number of times since its purchase, and the saving of four lives, possibly more, have been attributed to it. The first was only three weeks after it was received here.

It was pointed out that the type or iron lung the department plans to purchase, being portable, could be used not only over long periods locally, but in keeping a patient alive while being transported from Artesia to some specialist in a hospital many miles distant.

150 Year Record

THE COMMENT has been very general the last few weeks as to just what America's attitude should be toward Russia.

There are those, who have advocated a "Get tough attitude." And then those on the other side advocating a more friendly attitude and they want to know just what a "get tough attitude" might be.

We find that both groups are pleading and urging that America's foreign policy be announced, established and explained.

They contend that we do not have a foreign policy. They even point out that the late Franklin D. Roosevelt kept the people informed as to the foreign policy, and the present administration hasn't bothered to inform the people. All of which has led, presumably, to the belief that the nation does not have such a policy.

Whether either faction or either philosophy actually represents the American people is rather doubtful, and yet it will be these leaders, who are now speaking, who will determine this policy rather than the people of the nation.

There is no doubt in our mind, as we have stated before, that America does not want another war.

But we are likewise sure they are a little tired of being imposed upon. They are tired of being told what they can and can't do and are weary of fighting wars to restore democracy to all the nations of the world, if they want it, and then being denied the right of advocating the very thing for which they went to war.

We are being told we don't understand Russia. We are being told that Russia has a right to be concerned about the countries which border on Russia. We are reminded we have the Monroe Doctrine. That we take an interest in our neighbors and are active in what goes on in these countries.

All of these may be true and yet the parallel isn't fair.

No one has helped us to restore democracies in these countries; the others have not engaged in a war to defend or protect the peoples of these nations. They have won and hold the place they occupy today because of the Good Neighbor policy of America.

And we went to war for Russia, France, and the other Allies and fought to help save them and to save the other countries of Europe from the dictators, Hitler and Mussolini.

We are reminded that we have made mistakes; that we have done things, which are wrong; we have advocated one thing and done others.

All of that is probably true. Yet the fact does remain that over the past 150 years we have kept faith. We have purchased territory with American dollars and not seized it. We helped Cuba gain her independence; we have granted the Philippines their independence. We have contributed to the suffering world in food, clothing, money, medical care, machinery and equipment, and been a big brother.

Regardless of our mistakes, we believe that our 150 years of service and as a democracy speaks for itself in this world.

And in view of this we believe we can be taken on faith. Certainly Russia has only 20 years to back up her pronouncements. She is only 20 years away from a revolution. She might have another. And other governments of the world, with the exception of the British, have changed many times in the past 150 years.

But America has stood as a democracy and as a liberal, generous nation, which has sought to bring peace in the world and to give all religious freedom and our way of life, if they want it.

That, we feel, speaks for itself. Why shouldn't we be able to proclaim to the world what we want, what we expect, and what we demand when we have fought and died for it?

Why should a dictator, who has held his position for only 20 years through force, dictate to America or refuse to let the very ideals and principles for which World War II was fought, be carried out?

We see no reason for handling Russia, or any other nation, with kid gloves. We believe America has won the right, through 150 years of just dealings with other nations, despite the mistakes we may have made, to be trusted and taken on faith.

We can't keep from feeling it is time for America to speak out for those things for which the last World War was fought.

And while discussing this, we believe it is time for the people of America to speak out for a restoration of their liberties, freedoms and those ideals which we claim as ours for American citizens.

Yes, time to restore peace in a war-torn world, and time to restore democracy in a democratic nation.—O.E.P.

Only Silence

THUS FAR ONLY SILENCE or almost silence has greeted the demands of the voters and citizens in Southeastern New Mexico that a pledge be given that Highway No. 83 will be completed.

We say almost silence because there has only been a little comment. In sum and substance that comment was "The road will be built if funds are available."

There has been no explanation made of that. No one can be sure whether it means if funds are available the road will be built or whether it means if the funds are available after certain other roads are built then this highway will be built.

We are told it isn't fair to ask for the promise the highway will be built. We are told there are many counties in the state and roads must be constructed in all of them.

That perhaps is true. But our argument is simply this—many of those counties have received more than their share of the funds in the past. And we are a little anxious to see Eddy County and the other counties through which Highway No. 83 passes receive their share—yes, a little more than their share of the funds in the next two years to make up for what they haven't received in the past.

Eddy County is the second richest county in the state, judging from its assessed valuation. Do you think it has been treated as the second richest county in New Mexico in the past?

Now is the time to demand the construction of this highway and after all the people have a right to demand the kind of government they want and what they want their government to do. The government belongs to the people and not the politicians and the office holders.

If you want Highway No. 83 completed in the years just ahead, now is the time to make your demands known. When sufficient people demand this highway, which will aid and help all Southeastern New Mexico, instead of a few local politicians to get or hold jobs, then that pledge will not only be given but it will be kept.—O.E.P.

Newspaper Week

OCTOBER 1 THROUGH OCTOBER 8 has been designated as National Newspaper week—a week when a little thought and attention is given to the home town newspapers of the nation.

During this period special programs are held; special emphasis is placed on the newspapers and some thought is given to the service, which the newspapers of the nation render to the communities where they are published.

In Artesia no special program has been planned and no special observance of the occasion has been arranged. However, we did want to take this opportunity to call attention of our readers to the fact this is National Newspaper week. And to the fact that over the nation appreciation is being voiced to the newspapers for their community work and their community activities.

It is the newspapers, of course, which give freely of their space and of their time to community work and to those movements and projects, which they feel are more than worthwhile. Frequently in towns and cities where Chamber of Commerce leaders are not active, the paper carries on this work.

There is a tendency for the busy newspaper people to try and confine their contributions to community activities to the publicity and space they give in their editorial columns because of their lack of time but they continue not only to give freely of these but of their time and money as well.

Newspapers may fall short of their goals and objectives; they may oppose some of those, who feel they shouldn't be opposed; and they may incur the wrath of the politicians and the office holders but they probably give more of their stock in trade, of their time and of their money to community building than any other institution in the communities of America.—O.E.P.

Game Hogs Are at It

THE GAME HOGS ARE AT IT AGAIN, the fellows who make it hard on the true sportsmen. They bring about a shortage of upland birds, and lead to the posting of farmers' places.

It has been reported that a number of dove hunters have been sneaking up on their game, when anyone who has ever hunted doves knows sitting shots are rare and that the chances are the fellow who sneaks along is shooting quail and pheasant.

The average farmer who feeds quail and pheasant wants them protected and lives up to the game laws, permitting them to be hunted only during the legal open seasons. He resents having so-called dove hunters scattering the quail, shooting them weeks before the season opens, and killing pheasant, regardless of sex.

Most farmers who post their places are sportsmen and enjoy hunting. They do not wish to deprive the other hunters from hunting on their places. But when they see the game hogs breaking all the rules, they use the only means of protecting game on their property: They post it.

Hunting laws are made and enforced for the conservation of game, whether it is upland or migratory, and only through the rigid enforcement of the laws and regulations can a continuation of hunting year after year be expected. When a farmer posts his property he is assisting the law enforcement officers to the extent that hunting is not permitted on his place. Of course, a hunter seeing a place posted is likely merely to mutter under his breath what he thinks of anyone so "unreasonable" and drives on to another place. And if he is a game hog, when he gets to the next place he is likely to shoot upland game out of season, tempting the owner to join his neighbor in the posting of his farm.—A.L.B.

Up and Down Main Street

FINE PRACTICE UP AND DOWN MAIN SHOULD REMEMBER

Recently in discussing Christmas greetings and Christmas cards with a prominent citizen of Artesia he told us he had never sent out any printed Christmas cards during his lifetime. He used to, he stated, when he had more time and more help than he has had in recent years, sit down and write letters. He not only wrote a Christmas letter to his close personal friends but he also took time out and wrote letters to those business concerns, which he felt had rendered real service and to those individuals, who had contributed something to Artesia during the year. Those letters were deeply appreciated. There is no question about that. Most of us enjoy reading a Christmas letter from a personal friend. But when that letter includes some kind remarks and appreciation for what ever humble efforts we have put forth—well, it makes it all the finer. That was a fine custom this individual followed. It is a custom, which we need to follow today. Because, despite the fact that we are always inclined to believe that everyone does something because they want something, we are mistaken. There are many fine contributions made in this community and every other community by unselfish individuals, who want to aid their community. They feel the community has been good to them and they learned long ago that if we expect to take something out of them we have to put something back. Artesia has many fine civic and community workers. In many instances these individuals haven't a thing in the world to gain. They are not looking for any rewards or any expressions of appreciation. They are not seeking anything. They are merely enjoying doing this kind of work and are happy to extend a helping hand to others. They do what they are doing not for profit or because of selfishness but because they are glad to give of their time, their ability and their energy and frequently their money to others.

of the Civil Affairs Division announced. Included in the published list are U. D. Walker, Richard Hnulik, John Wilson May, and Carl C. Foster, Artesia; Ralph Crockett Lewis; Hope; Ferron E. Cummins, Lake Arthur, and Luther Ernest Ragsdale, Pinon. Both the Veterans Administration and the attorney general's office will cooperate with the Army in taking the statements of the former POW's. Branch and regional offices of the VA and all federal district attorneys have been provided with lists of men who have been requested to give depositions, and have been briefed also in the procedure for taking evidentiary statements. The War Crimes Branch of the Civil Affairs Division, War Department, will act as the coordinating agency for the project. Eight officers from the legal section of general headquarters, Supreme Commander for the Allied Powers, Tokyo, have returned to the United States to supervise the over-all plan. These officers will set up headquarters in the six Army areas. Statements will be forwarded from the areas to the War Crimes Branch in Washington, where they will be collected and then sent to Tokyo. Letters have been sent to each former prisoner from whom a deposition is desired, urging him to visit either a federal district attorney's office or a Veterans Administration office. Originally an attempt was made to contact every former prisoner immediately upon his release from confinement and have him fill out a questionnaire, the answers to which would reflect his personal knowledge of war crimes, and its potential value as trial evidence. It was hoped that this would provide an adequate basis for the presentation of war crimes evidence. If a questionnaire indicated that the POW had information which would be of value, he was questioned further by trained investigators and his testimony reduced to writing. However, as the trials progressed, it became increasingly apparent that the statements available for use represented only a small percentage of the total number of Americans who were held prisoner by the Japanese and, further, that particular points needing coverage often were not included in statements that were possessed by the prosecuting teams. The present plan was devised to avoid the necessity of having the prosecuting teams request statements or additional information from prisoners as each individual case arose and, also, to complete the record of the war crimes trials in Japan for historical purposes.

(Crowded Out Last Week)

Local Boys Among 2661 Former Jap Prisoners Asked for Depositions

A nation-wide campaign to contact 2661 former American prisoners of the Japanese—discharged Army and Navy personnel and civilians—has been initiated by the Army in a concerted effort to obtain depositions concerning war crimes and atrocities for use as evidence in the war crimes trials at Tokyo, the War Crimes Branch

That was Up and Down Main this week.

A community, which was filled with individuals, who wanted to help others and help their community could be the finest city or town possible. Everything, which needs to be done, would be done and greed and selfishness would be gone. Far too often, however, we find that greed and selfishness determines what we do and we often judge things before we act by what it means to us personally. And because of our own greed and selfishness we overlook and forget the many fine things that are done by those individuals, who want to serve. We not only forget them, fail to recognize them or voice our appreciation to them, but we usually are a little skeptical of them. It is always the man or the woman, who does these things because they want to do them and because they feel they should be done, rather than for selfish reasons, who does the best job. It is the unselfish workers in the community, who provide the leadership and the workers in all of the worthwhile undertakings here. It is these unselfish workers, who help to give to Artesia the reputation, which it has today. It is these unselfish workers, who make the churches possible and give us the Girl Scouts, the Boy Scouts, the Red Cross and every other worthy movement here. It is no more their job to provide the leadership and to do the work than it is ours. They are carrying on because they feel this is a community job, which needs to be done and they are willing to help do it. But it would encourage them and would perhaps make them feel their efforts are appreciated if we would follow the custom and practice of the Artesia citizen, who used to voice his thanks in the letters at Christmas time. They have won and earned a word of praise from us. They would know we realize the effort and sacrifice they are making for us and would probably strive all the harder to do even a little more. A pat on the back and a "thank you" for the job well done doesn't cost anything and requires little effort but it goes a long way in helping to increase civic and community work.

It's Time For A Change ~ ~ ~

This is Number 1 of a series of political advertisements to be presented by the Republican Party of New Mexico in an honest effort to convince the people of this state of the great and pressing need for A CHANGE in our state and national administrations.

No effort will be made to convert good Democrats into Republicans. We feel this year that the first consideration of all must be the welfare of our country, and that the record of those now in office, as well as the record of those running for office this year on the Democratic ticket is such as to convince any thinking person that the only chance there is to make a change, is to elect the minority party candidates.

We must do away with the cancerous growth of bureaucracy, obtain honest representation in both Santa Fe and Washington, and restore the government to the hands of the people.

To accomplish this, good citizens—Democrats and Republicans alike—must unite to throw the present machine and its candidates out of power.

Newcastle Fowl Disease Found In New Mexico

Newcastle disease, a poultry infection now in this country, has been definitely diagnosed recently among New Mexico fowl. The disease—so called because of its occurrence in Newcastle, England, about 20 years ago—is caused by a filtrable virus which affects the respiratory and nervous systems of chickens, turkeys, ducks, geese, and other fowl.

Birds of all ages are susceptible, although the mortality rate is highest in young chickens. In young birds the symptoms are identical to those of bronchitis. In addition nervous symptoms soon develop. The nervous symptoms include twisting of the head and neck, backing up, holding the head over the back or between the legs, and partial or complete paralysis of one or both legs.

Any excitement intensifies the nervous symptoms. Generally the symptoms either subside rapidly or the chick dies in a few days. Mortality has been reported from 10 to as high as 60 per cent. In older or adult birds, the disease usually begins with the respiratory symptoms like bronchitis. In laying flocks, a characteristic symptom is an abrupt and almost complete interruption of egg production. Soft-shelled or abnormal eggs are often found on the hen-house floor. The loss of egg production may persist from four to eight weeks. The birds may go into a moult. Paralysis is less frequent among adult fowl, and generally the mortality is much lower than in chicks.

Because the symptoms of Newcastle disease may be confused with other diseases, a definite diagnosis is difficult except through laboratory methods.

The economic losses in this country so far, with but few exceptions, have not been alarming. Nevertheless, the disease is here and is already a serious problem. Extensive research and study are needed before adequate recommendations for its control can be made. Meanwhile, everything must be done to prevent its spread.

As in most diseases, prevention is all important. Some of the precautions recommended are these: Feed bags should be re-used only after sterilization. Keep unnecessary visitors away from the flock. In moving birds to market, use clean crates. Poultry buyers and their crates should be kept away from the flock. Refrain from bringing birds from other flocks to the place.

United States, Mexico Making Cattle Survey

Cattle raisers of the United States and Mexico have a joint interest in veterinary survey being conducted by the two countries, the purpose of which is to determine whether the importation of cattle from Brazil, where foot-and-mouth disease exists, may have caused the introduction of the disease into Mexico, with resulting danger to the livestock industry to the United States.

The danger is regarded as important as normally about half a million Mexican cattle are imported into the U. S. each year.

Because of costly experience with past invasions of foot-and-mouth disease and the present possibility of its existence in Mexico, the U. S. established on June 5 a border quarantine that halted the customary importations of Mexican cattle.

The present survey is the result of recommendations by the Mexican-United States Agricultural Commission, composed of members of the Departments of Agriculture of the two countries. If the findings of the survey group prove negative, the import restrictions will be lifted.

Flying Farmers To Organize at Cruces Oct. 13

An organizational meeting of the New Mexico Flying Farmers will take place on the campus of New Mexico A. & M. College Oct. 13, Dallas Coffin, editor of the New Mexico Ag Journal, announced in Las Cruces. Members of the flying farmer association in Texas and Oklahoma have been invited to attend the meeting at State College, Coffin said.

Coffin said that New Mexico is one of the few states without a flying farmers organization to promote the use of airplane agriculture. He expects more than 100 farmers and ranchers to join.

The Flying Farmers' meeting will be the beginning of four days of farmers' and ranchers' conferences at A. & M. College. Annual "Ranch Day" at the college will be held Oct. 14, when visitors will tour the college ranch and Jornada Experimental Range of the U. S. Forest Service. The farmers will have their day Oct. 15, and members of the New Mexico Crop Improvement Association will meet Oct. 16.

PRACTICAL FARM BUILDINGS

Vegetable Storage Cellar

By W. J. Dryden, WNU Farm Editor.

A satisfactory storage room for vegetables can be built of concrete and set deep in the ground near the home basement wall. The temperature of the soil below four feet in the ground is always cool and the soil moist, suitable for vegetable storage.

The forms should be well-built if a good concrete construction job is low they may freeze. Properly constructed cellar, such as the Texas type shown, will guard against these dangers.

Moisture and ventilation will go hand in hand. Too much dryness will cause the vegetables to dry out and shrivel; too much moisture will cause spoilage by organism growth. Ventilation is not only a to be expected. Cost of forms is expensive, but it is often possible to rent them. The exact style may have to be modified somewhat in order to take advantage of available forms.

The floor plan is offered as suggestion for arrangement of the stairway. Protection must be provided to prevent water washing down the means of regulating temperature and humidity, but it is also important in removing gaseous products that are injurious.

Ventilation is provided by inlet and outlet flues. Flues should be large enough to move air rapidly when needed. A control slide is necessary to regulate flow of air. Vegetables like carrots, beets stairs and draining off such water that falls in.

In excavating, it is essential that the walls be even and straight up and down. The excavated hole should be about two feet longer and two feet wider than the finished cellar to allow working room with the forms. The floor must be level and rutage, and potatoes generate heat for 7 to 10 days after being placed in storage, so ample ventilation is necessary during this period. Following this period the ventilation should be very slow. Other kinds of vegetables require ample air circulation at all times. When a cellar is provided under best results will be secured if a concrete floor is laid. A raised timber floor may prove satisfactory.

Temperature, moisture and ventilation are important factors to watch. When the temperature is too high, flavors decompose; when too low, it is often economical to convert a section of it for the storing of vegetables. Provision must be made, however, to keep out heat of furnace and to provide a good supply of air and to guard against rats and mice.

Cotton Quotes

"There remains to be filled a tremendous wartime-created vacuum in supplies of cotton goods all along the line."—New York Times.

"Mechanical cotton pickers, mechanical choppers, flame cultivators and improved planting machines are already proving practical on farms in Georgia."—E. C. Westbrook, Georgia extension cotton specialist.

"Cotton has often been condemned and blamed for the various ills with which agriculture in the South is afflicted. The trouble was not with cotton but with its excessive use in a one-crop system rather than as a crop in a well-balanced system of diversified agriculture."—Dr. H. B. Brown, Louisiana Experiment Station.

"Earlier harvest of cotton means: Saving more of the crop, higher grade of lint and seed, and earlier destruction of old cotton stalks for insect control and planting winter cover crops."—Oklahoma Experiment Station.

"Over half the farm people of America live in the Southern States and until we awake to the need and value of scientific research, and are willing to support it liberally, the South will continue to lag in income and opportunity."—The Southern Planter.

"Income from cottonseed is our means of livelihood while harvesting our crop... the main source of subsistence and operation expenses for all our farmers through harvest season, whether tenant, sharecropper or landowner."—W. T. Jones, president, St. Francis (Ark.) County Farm Bureau.

All Conservation Structures Need To Be Maintained

"The farmer who never tightens a bolt or makes any repairs on his equipment soon finds he has a lot of junk on his hands; likewise, the farmer who does not maintain soil and water conservation structures is taking a chance on their becoming worthless." County Agent Dallas Rierison said.

The establishment of erosion control and water conservation practices is only a part of a conservation program on the farm, Rierison explained. To be most effective, he added, the program must also provide for proper use and treatment of the land and the maintenance of structures.

A terrace system on the farm, for example will do the job only so long as the terraces are kept up, Rierison said. If proper height is not maintained, they are likely to break with the first heavy rain. If this happens, too much water is concentrated at one place and erosion may be even worse than if the terraces had never been built. The proper height of terraces can be maintained by backfurling toward the ridge and by farming on the contour.

Breaks in terraces and in dams or dykes used for diverting water should be repaired at the first opportunity, according to Rierison. He also suggested that this is a good time for farmers to take stock of the condition of erosion control and water conservation structures and to make plans for repair or alteration.

Cull Pullets as Well as Older Birds Advised

It's just as important to cull the pullets as it is to cull the older birds, County Agent Dallas Rierison said.

"Why keep birds that will never pay their way?" he asked. "Take them out of the flock and save high-priced feed. By eliminating such non-producers, you allow more room and feed for the rest. Fewer birds, well fed and amply housed, will prove more profitable."

As pullets should be selected for vigor and early maturity, deformed, thin, lame, and unthrifty chickens should be culled, Rierison said. He suggested that Poultry raisers move pullets that have irregular eye pupils and that are poorly pigmented.

Rate of maturity is the reliable guide in selecting pullets to keep, he said. The pullets to keep are the best developed physically, the best of health, with the best combs.

"Good poultrymen usually out 10 to 20 per cent of the flock," Rierison said. "The culling has been done previously, how well bred they are and how good a job has been done in growing them out."

Hi Beacon Again Receives Quill and Scroll First Place

Quill and Scroll, international honorary society for high school journalists, has awarded an international first-place award for 1945-46 to The Artesia Hi Beacon, bimonthly newspaper published by the journalism class of Artesia High School under the leadership and sponsorship of Mrs. Margaret Bildstone.
Out of nine years The Beacon has been published, the award for 1945-46 was the seventh time the paper has earned the international first-place award.
In receiving an international first-place award, a school newspaper must earn a total of 800 points out of a possible 1000, and the score sheet for The Beacon shows a score of 837.
A summary of the comments of the judges, contained in a score sheet, which was sent to Mrs. Bildstone, reads: "A lively paper. The Beacon is particularly active in presenting the news that's happening or will happen in the high school. The stories are written in an interesting style and there are many entertainment features from which the reader may choose."

As to the quality of writing, the score sheet comment says: "A goodly number of light features, with a sprinkling of well-done essays and short fiction. The gossip stuff is decidedly not of educational or journalistic value. There are enough funny things going on without digging up puppy love affairs. Sure, students like to read it about others. But how about themselves?"
In the main the comments of the judges compliment the efforts of the journalistic students and Mrs. Bildstone.

Plans for the annual flower show sponsored by the Artesia Garden Club are rounding out nicely and it is expected there will be many outstanding displays, when the show opens at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, Oct. 5, in the I. O. O. F. Hall.

The show, which will be free to the public, will remain open until 8 o'clock in the evening.

As in past years, exhibits will be arranged in the morning according to various classes and sub-classes. All judging is to be completed before the door is opened to the public and each exhibit will be labeled with the person who brought it. Those which place will be so designated.

Members of the Garden Club pointed out that it requires co-operation to make a flower show a success and invited everyone in the Artesia community to enter his flowers, either singles or bouquets.

It was stressed that many persons in Artesia have beautiful flower gardens and flowers, which they should share with others who love flowers.

Nurses Entertain Girl Scouts on Tuesday Evening

The Nurses' Club of Artesia entertained members of Girl Scout Troop No. 3 Tuesday evening with a dinner at the home of Mrs. B. A. DeMars, leader. Senior girls who attended were Mary Jo Jacobs, Mary Dixon, Teddy Jane Archer, Marcia Whelan, Lu Ella Whelan, Mary Catherine Martin, Maxine Callahan, Louise DeMars, June Ann Gissler, and Shirley Sue Feather. Hostesses were Mmes. Jo Nunn, Dale Thomas, Edgar Williamson, G. C. Kinder, Mark Corbin, and Raymond Bartlett, and Miss Joan Nunn.

Troop No. 3 elected officers at the first meeting of the fall season and are as follows: Maxine Callahan, retained as president; Shirley Sue Feather, secretary, and Mary Dixon, treasurer.

A hike scheduled for this afternoon will be the first leg of the theme, "Out-of-Doors," which the girls have chosen for their program this year. They were Wing Scouts last year and will receive their silver wings in the near future. Three of the girls have been active in their first programs, hospital aid work, ever since it was begun. They are Mary Jo Jacobs, June Ann Gissler, and Teddy Jane Archer. They plan to continue their careers in the medical field.

The troop is planning a trip to the mountains the latter part of October.

Lakewood Extension Women Have Exhibits At New Mexico Fair

Mrs. H. M. Moutray, president of the Lakewood Extension Club, asked the members to make ready their handiwork and home-canned food specimens in preparation for the state fair, now in progress, at a meeting in the home of Mrs. R. L. House Thursday, Sept. 19.

A drawing was held at the gathering for the members who did not have "Sunshine Friends." Miss Doris Mardis, county home demonstration agent, gave some helpful tips on usage of pockets in trimmings and in patchings.

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess to members, Mmes. H. M. Moutray, Jim B. Moutray, Forrest Lee, A. L. Neatherlin, H. G. Angell, Roy Angell, Tom Price, M. A. Sinclair, and R. T. Schenck, and Miss Mardis, and a guest, Mrs. C. B. Betenbrow.

Mrs. Nancy Eipper entertained the Susannah Wesley Class of the First Methodist Church last Thursday with a delightful breakfast. This was the first meeting of the group since their disbandment for the summer.

A Southern antique theme prevailed, with breakfast being served on tables covered with colorful cloths depicting cotton picking scenes. A large bowl of fluffy white cotton made an unusual centerpiece. Additional bouquets were made up of dahlias and other fall flowers in handsome array.

After the delicious breakfast, a business session was opened with an impressive devotion service taken from the fifth chapter of Hosea. This was conducted by Mrs. Ed Stone.

Officers were elected with the following results: Mrs. George Dungan, president; Mrs. Ed Stone, vice president, secretary and treasurer; Mrs. S. O. Matteson, devotionals; Mrs. Mary McDonald, flower committee; Mrs. E. B. Bullock and Mrs. George Frisch, teachers, and Mrs. J. W. Sharp, assistant teacher.

Others present were Mmes. C. W. Williams, Carrie Hinrichsen, Florence Hastings, H. A. Stroup, and Will Benson, and a visitor, Mrs. Emma Collins.

Mmes. Mapes and Corbin Hostesses To Story League

Mrs. M. A. Mapes and Mrs. Andy Corbin were hostesses to the Artesia Story League members Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Corbin.

After the business meeting, Mrs. Phillip Krantz, leader, introduced Mrs. Howard Miller, who, in keeping with the theme for the day, "American Folklore and Folk Tales," told J. Frank Dobie's "White Steed of the Prairies," which was taken from his book, "Tales of the Mustang."

Mrs. Alan Thompson presented a study, "Selection of Material." Mrs. Thompson discussed old favorites that are not now recommended and told why. New stories and several catalogs for obtaining materials also were viewed.

The tea hour was taken up with a round-table discussion, as the hostess served a salad plate.

The next meeting will be Nov. 5 at the home of Mrs. Alan Thompson, with Mrs. Sam Stewart as cohostess. The study will be "Radio Voice," with Mr. and Mrs. Delbridge presenting the lesson.

Sinfonietta to Open Concert Series at Carlsbad on Oct. 6

For the information of Artesians who hold tickets, the Carlsbad Community Concert Association will present the first of the concert series Sunday afternoon, Oct. 6, in the Carlsbad High School auditorium, it was announced here by H. C. Kerr, president.

The concert will feature the St. Louis Sinfonietta, under the conductorship of Paul Schreiber. The Sinfonietta is an ensemble of artists, men who have dedicated their lives to interpreting the master works of music. It might well be compared with a miniature painting, for just as a small replica of a painting conveys all the color and design of the major canvas, Kerr said, so the St. Louis Sinfonietta conveys all of the tonal effects of a full-sized symphony orchestra.

COLONEL AND MRS. LINELL MARRIED 63 YEARS

They believe they are the oldest married couple in the Artesia community. Colonel and Mrs. Linell likewise are among the old-timers who have lived here longest.

Mary Brainard Circle Is Entertained at Bowen Home Thursday

The Mary Brainard Circle of the First Methodist Church was entertained last Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Loren Bowen, with Mrs. Reed Dowell as cohostess.

Mrs. J. A. Mathis, Jr., opened the program with a stirring devotion program. After this, Mrs. William C. Thompson, Jr., gave an interesting talk. Her address was taken from an article, "The Most Interesting Woman in Germany," by Patricia Lockridge, and "Hunger—Terror of Peace," by Cardinal Spellman.

Cake and coffee were served to the following members and guests: Mmes. C. P. Bunch, Lawrence Cull; J. A. Mathis, Jr., Duane Sams, Tom Franklin, William C. Thompson, Jr., J. D. Roberts, O. R. Gable, Jr., Howard Stroup, Doyle Hankins, and Ted Maschek.

Junior Woman's Club Looks to Full Year Under Mrs. Aston's Leadership

The Artesia Junior Woman's Club started its year under the leadership of Mrs. Chuck Aston with a membership tea the second week in September. Their first meeting was in the third week of the month with Mrs. Stanley Blocker, president of the Senior Woman's Club, and Mrs. S. P. Yates in charge of the program. The meetings will henceforth be held in the evening, at 8 o'clock on the third Wednesday of the month. This change has been made to encourage the membership of working women and young mothers of the community.

Mrs. Aston has requested that all women interested in joining the activities of the club be extended a cordial invitation to join at their earliest opportunity. The club has many things, both civic and entertaining, on its program for the coming year and Mrs. Aston is anxious for the new members to help in carrying out these interests.

NURSES' ASSOCIATION WILL MEET TUESDAY

The Nurses' Association of District No. 7, will meet at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening, October 8, in the Woman's Club. This is to be a regular monthly meeting.

A local staff doctor will be the speaker for the occasion. The presence of all members is anticipated.

Roswell Boosters Visit Artesia to Advertise Fair

Two busloads of Roswell business and professional men swarmed on Artesia shortly after 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon for an hour, boosting the Eastern New Mexico State Fair, which will be at Roswell Wednesday through Saturday of next week, Oct. 9-12.

The boosters from Roswell were completing their third and final swing through Southeast New Mexico to advertise the fair. They had previously stopped at Tatum, Lovington, Hobbs, and Carlsbad Wednesday.

The two buses were escorted into Artesia by G. Kelley Stout in the police car and were parked on Main Street between Third and Roselawn, while citizens of Artesia were informed by loud speaker of the events of the four-day fair, which will include a rodeo each day and a dance each evening.

The announcer invited the old-timers of the Artesia community to attend especially next Thursday, Oct. 10, for the old-timers' parade and celebration. Everyone who has lived in New Mexico 30 years or more was asked to participate.

Entertainment during the one-hour stop here was furnished by Lou Fink's Hillbilly Band, a seven-piece string outfit, which played between announcements.

Fame of Artesia's Ancient Frog Is Spread Over U.S.

Artesia's two-million-year-old frog, Quaternary, is growing more famous day by day, with news stories about him appearing the nation over, scientists in many sections giving their opinions as to the possibility or impossibility of such long suspended animation, and letters from many states being received here in regard to the enigma.

At present Quaternary is expected home any day from Loveland, Colo., where he was sent last week for the "Cornish Stone Age Fair" at the Pioneer Museum, at the request of Ira Harshbarger, curator.

Of course, Quaternary knew nothing about the trip, for he died the second night after being freed from his caliche bed, in which it was estimated he had been a prisoner in suspended animation up to two million years. He made the trip to Loveland by airmail, preserved in alcohol.

That scientists all do not "poo-poo" at the idea of suspended animation over many thousands of years is shown in a letter to Aston from Clyde T. Reed of the Department of Biology, University of Tampa, Fla., who wrote, in part: "I should be very glad to learn the details of this incident, what disposition was made of the animals (a member of the lizard family also was discovered in the caliche bed, but was killed and lost), who identified them, and other information which might lead to a plausible interpretation of your find."

Charles N. Albracht of Kalamazoo, Mich., wrote Aston that the story of Quaternary recalled to his mind an experience of his early youth. He wrote:

"Dad and I were building a cistern of poured concrete. We obtained the gravel from a hillside back in the farm woodlot. Occasionally a piece of sand, or hardpan, as we called it, would be shoveled up. Among these pieces was one too large to fit in the form, so I broke it open with my shovel. Inside this ball-shaped stone, filled in like a mould in a foundry, was a frog. I thought it was dead, but I set it aside in the sun, and in about 10 minutes it started to blink its eyes and in another 10 or so minutes it hopped away."

But a more recent similar incident came in a letter from Bonnie Manley of Marsland, Neb., who wrote Aston:

"We have discovered a lizard and a frog living together in a bed of rock eight feet below the crust of the earth. My husband killed the lizard and threw it away, but the frog is still alive and I have it here. We discovered a vein of sand in our field and were digging there when we discovered the two animals. We also took fossils, bones, etc., from the same stratum. I thought it coincidental that such discoveries could have been made so near the same time."

And in the meantime, Quaternary is expected home from Loveland, Colo., where he was sent last week for the "Cornish Stone Age Fair" at the Pioneer Museum, at the request of Ira Harshbarger, curator.

Church Women to Sponsor 'Kiddie Kits' on Nov. 1

"World Community Day" will be observed this year on Nov. 1 by the United Council of Church Women with an undertaking to send 500,000 "Kiddie Kits," bundles of clothing, to children 1 to 4 years old, it was announced here by Mrs. J. H. Walker, state president of the organization, and Mrs. Rex Wheatley, president of the Artesia council.

The campaign, in which the women of the various churches will assemble the "Kiddie Kits," will be concluded with special services Nov. 1 at the First Methodist Church of Artesia, at which Dr. W. S. Dando, Presbyterian pastor at Carlsbad, will be the speaker. The services will be after a luncheon at the church.

Mrs. Walker and Mrs. Wheatley urged that women of the Artesia churches start work promptly assembling "Kiddie Kits," which are to contain three pairs of pull-on pants or panties, or 12 diapers, three each sets of underwear, sets of nightclothes, pairs of socks, towels, and washcloths, two each sweaters and suits or dresses (or the material), and one each pair of mittens, cap or bonnet, pair of house slippers with soft soles only, soft tuck-in toy, bright scarf, and blanket.

It was explained that "World Community Day" was started four years ago to encourage Protestant women to work together for a more Christian world order. This year the United Council of Church Women is directing its energies in observation of the day to the assistance of babies on the prediction that clothing shortage will reach its peak during the coming winter.

Many persons have a misconception of Christianity through the mere reading of the text of the Bible, through which alone one cannot discover all of the truths, it was brought out Tuesday noon at the weekly luncheon of the Artesia Rotary Club by Rev. Paul L. Brown, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church.

GOP Makes Bid for Vets Votes As Democrats Kick 'Em Off Ticket

A determined drive is being made by the Republican candidates during the present campaign to line up strong veteran support of the ticket for the November election. Republican speakers have pointed out that no one of the seven veterans on the Republican ticket are opposed by veterans on the Democratic ticket, and that while only two of the GOP veteran candidates have ever held public office before, all seven of their opponents are payrollers of long standing, some having been in public office since 1924, and at least one since 1912.

There were 14 World War II veterans who were candidates for nominations in the Democratic primary. Every single one of them were defeated by the Chavez-Mary political machine in favor of NON-VETERANS who were politically loyal to the machine.

With 43,000 veteran votes in the state, it appeared a likely possibility that a large majority of this group would be swung to support of the Republican ticket by the GOP drive.

Organization Quiescent While the Democrats attempted to set up a state-wide veterans organization a few weeks back, it is now understood that the effort has been quietly dropped because of lack of success in initial efforts. It was difficult to find veterans of any standing who wished to publicly place themselves at the head of county committees supporting non-veterans against veterans for office.

Two years ago the governor's race in New Mexico, in which Jack Dempsey defeated Carroll Gunderson, a World War I veteran, was decided by a mere 5400 votes. With a definite Republican trend among all the people apparent, and with the apparent preference of the 43,000 returning veterans for veteran candidates, the Democrats seem to have something concrete to worry about.

BARBECUE AND RALLY Don't let anything keep you away from the barbecue and rally we are tossing Saturday noon, Oct. 5, at Morris Field, for all SEVEN VETERANS on the Republican ticket. Hurley is the man the late President Roosevelt selected to run the Jap blockade and get to our boys in the Philippines. He ran it three times, being severely wounded on one trip. Let's show our appreciation by being present to honor Hurley, Safford and the other five veterans.

Capt. Pate Aboard Bride Ship When It Hits Mine

Capt. Rufus Pate of the Army Medical Corps, son of Mrs. G. R. Pate of Artesia, was aboard the Army transport E. B. Alexander when it struck a mine about 50 miles out of port on the way to England at midnight Sept. 6, and has written an interesting letter to his mother about the experience.

Captain Pate said he was about to take a shower and go to bed, when there was a terrific bang, the ship gave a lurch, the lights went out, and water and steam was heard escaping. He and his cabinmate, Lieutenant Crocker, without flashlights, located their life jackets and ran out, to discover that both engines and generators were out.

When the order came several minutes later for everyone to go to his lifboat station, the two medical officers procured flashlights by Wacs and nurses to make sure all were out.

Captain Pate said that when the skipper learned water was flowing into the engine room faster than it could be pumped out, he ordered all the women into lifeboats, to be transferred to another ship, which was standing by. The sea was calm, he said, and there was little danger in launching the boats.

The ship, which was being used to bring war brides to America, had none aboard, but Captain Pate was making his fifth trip over aboard her for brides and children. He previously made three trips on the Pacific.

The medical officer wrote his mother that the Wacs and nurses were safely transferred to the George Washington, about 400 yards away. At that time the engineers were wading in water half ankle deep, but two hours later they were gaining on the water and had it back down to the deck plates.

Aside from several broken hands and bruises, there were no injuries. Some of the stewards became hysterical, the captain said, but the girls behaved admirably and were calm. Captain Pate said he had a little cut over his right eye from a broken light bulb.

He wrote that two tugboats from Bremerhaven, Germany, arrived about 5 o'clock in the morning and that about 8 or 9 o'clock several others arrived, and they had the crippled transport in port by 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

When he wrote, Captain Pate said the ship then was in drydock and that it would be two months or more before it could be brought back to the United States with a skeleton crew. He hoped to be home by Thanksgiving, he said.

Wednesday service, 7:30 p. m.
"Unreality" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, Oct. 6, 1946.
The Golden Text is: "All that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world."—(1 John 2:16.)

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "And Jesus answered him, The first of all the commandments is, Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God is one Lord."—(Mark 12:29.)

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science text book: "There is but one primal cause. Therefore there can be no effect from any other cause, and there can be no reality in aught which does not proceed from this great and only cause."

"No government is respectable which is not just— Without unspotted purity of public faith, without sacred public principle, fidelity and honor, no mere forms of government, no machinery of laws can give dignity to political society.—Daniel Webster.

Mr. and Mrs. Citizen:

Our government is what we make it. Our public officials are responsive to our opinions only as they are expressed by the masses. They too, are human, and when we become apathetic as to the manner in which they discharge their duties, it is inevitable that they should fall into the error of overlooking the proper relationship between office holder and the people.

There are certain basic or fundamental principles which must be preserved if our form of government is to survive. Some of those principles are set down in black and white in the Bill of Rights; others have become accepted through common custom and long usage.

There is no law which specifically defines many of the most precious of our rights and privileges as a free people, and only the constant vigilance of an informed citizenry and the weight of public opinion can preserve those rights and privileges.

It is on election day that the individual citizen comes into his own and has the opportunity to fulfill his obligations and his duty as a citizen. The citizen who does not intelligently cast his ballot for the candidates who will make the best public officials, throws away a priceless heritage.

Score of 289 Pins Brings $50 To A. T. Talley

A prize of $50 was awarded to A. T. Talley Saturday night when he rang up a score of 289 at Petty's Bowling lanes. This is not only the first score to surpass the 285-pin prize mark, but it is the high score for the alley so far. A perfect score of 300 will bring a $75 prize.

At a meeting held Monday night, six five-man bowling teams were organized and will start league competition at 7 o'clock next Monday night. Several players are still needed and anyone who is interested is urged to contact K. M. Petty at the bowling alley.

The teams selected have not yet been named, but team captains have been appointed and play Monday night will be between teams headed by Bill Skillern and Ralph Pitt, and Bill Settles and Gene Thomas, and on Tuesday night, Chuck Ransbarger and Ed Gillespie.

A meeting of women interested in bowling in leagues will be held at the bowling alley at 7 o'clock Friday night, Oct. 4.

Harvey Declares God Is Greatest Of Advertisers

A talk on "Advertising" Tuesday noon at the Sept. 24 lunch of the Artesia Rotary Club by Rev. Joseph H. Harvey was climaxed by the assertion that God is the Greatest Advertiser, that His advertising may be recognized in the wonder of the radio, in the thunder, in His special letters found in the Bible, in the sun as it illuminates His "signboard," in the lightning, in His skywriting in the clouds.

"The Heavens declare the glory of God, and He is seen in all Nature," said Rev. Harvey, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

The speaker devoted the greater part of his speech to the various forms of modern advertising, numbering a dozen or more, all of which, he said, are devised to attract the eye or the ear.

From a discourse sprinkled with humor, Rev. Harvey switched to the serious declaration that God is the greatest of advertisers. His only competitor is the Devil, the speaker declared, and he wants people to have things they should not have and he is a liar. But the Devil tends to his own business, Rev. Harvey added.

But the Greatest Advertiser is the only one who has goods in plenty and gives everything which is necessary for body, soul, and spirit. "God produces all we need in life, it is all truthfully advertised, and He gives us long-term credit," Rev. Harvey said, adding, "He has millions of customers, but few thank Him."

Rotary Moves in for Wildcat On Pearson Cottonwood Farm

Eddy County oil operators noted with interest this week the moving in of a rotary rig on to the Pearson Brothers property eight miles north of Artesia in the Cottonwood community, for the drilling of a rank wildcat in an area, which many geologists have contended for years shows great promise.

During the week two other locations were staked in Eddy County, while operators completed seven producing wells, the greatest number in several months for a one-week period.

Plans Started For Furnishing Legion Building

A committee was appointed Tuesday evening at the monthly meeting of the American Legion to make plans to furnish the new building, on which good progress was reported.

Creighton Gilchrist, vice commander, presiding in the absence of Dr. L. F. Hamilton, commander, named William Keys, chairman, and M. E. Baish, Allen Mills, and J. A. Fairey to start plans for the furnishing of the building, which it is hoped will be far enough along for a Christmas party.

Ray Bartlett, a member of the building committee, reported the walls have been erected and that the steel for the construction is here and the hardwood flooring has been purchased.

As the next regular meeting date of the American Legion falls on the general election date, Tuesday, Nov. 5, it was decided to change the date, to be announced later by Commander Hamilton.

The reopening of the Coffee Shop made it possible for the Chamber of Commerce to hold its monthly luncheon, which will be next Thursday noon.

Questioning of-

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE ONE) the parents should make certain he is there and not running around getting into mischief, the chief said. And if he brings home something of value, it should be ascertained where he acquired it and in what manner.

Judge Josey said that if the actions of the boys are not directed in proper channels and they are permitted to enter into minor crimes and mischief, it is a process by which they will become criminals.

The judge strongly urged that all parents, not only those of the six boys involved, make it their business to know in what direction their energies are being expended.

Several Injured-

In the car with Rowley were W. E. Kerr, Ray Ferguson, and Louie Burch, returning from a Masonic meeting in Carlsbad. In the impact Burch's teeth were driven through his lower lip and he was otherwise bruised and cut. The others were badly shaken up and bruised.

Of the occupants of the Naylor car, only Mrs. Naylor was injured. She sustained a cut on her knee. The third occupant of the car was Sy Bunting.

All four of the cars involved in the two accidents were badly damaged.

Lions and 20-30 Addressed by Liquor Manager

Members of the Artesia Lions and 20-30 Clubs were admonished at their respective meetings Wednesday of last week to be sane and temperate in the use of liquor, if they use it at all, by Joe Rosenthal, state manager of a distilling corporation.

Rosenthal said that more than a third of the American population uses alcoholic beverages in some form, the per capita consumption of whiskey has decreased 30 per cent since 1917.

He told the Lions and 20-30 members the liquor industry is the nation's No. 1 taxpayer. Aside from the income tax, it has been the largest source of revenue for the U. S. Treasury, he declared, paying in since repeal 13 billion dollars in taxes.

For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1944, $1,900,000,000 was paid by distillers. This sum was sufficient to have built 19,000 grammar schools at $100,000 each; or 12 national four-lane, concrete highways stretching from Maine to California at $40,000 a mile; or 54 new Golden Gate bridges at $35,000,000 each; or 12 Boulder Dams at $150,000,000 each; or 31 George Washington Bridges at $60,000,000 each; or 1900 airports at $1,000,000 each.

Rosenthal concluded his remarks at each meeting: "Don't drink if you are going to drive; don't drive if you are going to drink. If whiskey doesn't agree with you, don't use it."
