Superfortresses 'Bomb' City When Hose Falls

All electric power in Artesia was knocked out and telephone service to the east was disrupted at 11:20 o'clock Wednesday morning when a 250-foot refueling hose dropped from one of two B-29 Superfortresses flying over the city and landed between electric and telephone poles on the northeast corner of the Artesia Alfalfa Growers Association property on East Main Street.

The loss from the shutdown to the two refineries was not immediately determined, but it is understood the figure will reach several thousand dollars.

Wherever you go, they're talking DYNAFLOW

FROM Atlantic to Pacific, it's simply terrific.

Not in a generation — maybe not in two — has any single improvement in automobiles caused the talk or met the instant approval that has greeted this new drive.

You see the reason in your first five minutes behind a Dynaflo® wheel.

You sense that this is not merely an improvement on old ways, but a whole new system of transferring power from your engine to the rear wheels.

For the first time, oil does everything — replaces the friction clutch, eliminates the usual forward gears, even actuates the mechanism by which you change from Driving range to emergency Low and Reverse.

You feel the result in new smoothness that's like riding a mighty tide of flowing oil.

You move from standstill to road speed in one smooth unbroken sweep of power, quick and effortless in getaway and instantly responsive at speed.

You stop by pressing the footbrake — go again by feeding gas. Once you've set the selector lever, you need not touch it again in normal driving until you're ready to park or back up.

Outside engineers look at Dynaflo and say, "Now you've got something!"

You'll say so too — once you handle a Buick ROADMASTER with this new driving magic.

Try it, first chance you get — and we think you'll want to see your Buick dealer at once to get an order in — with or without a car to trade.

ovel Suspense icture Is New igh In Thrills

Suspense, taut and terrific, will lead the audience at the Landsun theater, when "The Big Clock" shows its screen bow here. With co-stars Ray Milland and Charles Laughton combining to thrill and menace in the season's most unusual drama, "The Big Clock" ticks away breathtaking entertainment. Adapted from Kenneth Fearing's best-seller by mystery writer Jonathan Latimer, the Paramount production boasts a new technique in the creation of edge-of-the-seat film fare. Unlike the average mystery movie which calls for the audience to guess "whodunit," "The Big Clock" poses the exciting riddle of how an innocent man gets out of a net he tightens about himself.

Milland is seen as George Stroud, editor of "Crimeways" magazine, whose genius for tracking down criminals puts him in the strange position of being hunter and hunted. Ordered by his tyrannical boss, Earl Janoth (Laughton), to find the man seen leaving the apartment of Janoth's murdered girl friend shortly before her death, Stroud finds himself in the terrifying spot of seeking himself, Janoth, who committed the murder, hopes to pin the crime on the man whose shadow he saw leaving the girl's house as he entered it; he doesn't know the man is Stroud. Suspense mounts almost unbearably as each clue Stroud digs up tightens the net about himself. He is finally trapped in the huge Janoth Building, not only with the police after him, but with Janoth's gunman on his heels. If ever a man has to think fast and well, it is Stroud. What he does is something you will want to see for yourself. There is no doubt that you will agree "The Big Clock" is one of the most exciting pictures you ever saw.

In support are Maureen O'Sullivan, George Macready, Rita Johnson, Elsa Lanchester and Harold Vermilyea.

Specialty Riding Act To Perform V-J Week End

Marvin Ramsey and his "Flying Chieftans" of Tulsa will be seen in a specialty act at the rodeo performances in the three-day V-J Day celebration to be staged here by the United Veterans Club of Artesia Friday through Sunday, August 13-15. They are seen here in a spectacular Roman jump over a four-foot hurdle.

Ramsey will put his performing horses through a series of maneuvers before making the jump. He has been a feature performer at many outstanding rodeos throughout the United States the last few years.

Besides being a trick rider, Ramsey is a left-handed trick and fancy roper, and will be seen at the rodeo in a roping act.

compose and rose to the surface. The eradication was done under the auspices of the State Department of Game and Fish, with Joe Hendricks, biologist, in charge. Deputy Game Warden L. W. Simmons of Artesia and Marion Embrey of Roswell assisted him, while members of the North Eddy County chapter of the Game Protective Association manned boats and helped otherwise as the thousands of fish came to the surface. It has been indicated the restocking of Clark's Lake, with no rough fish to hamper the growth and development of bass and bluegill, should make for splendid fishing when the new stock, carefully figured as to numbers, grows to legal size. Restocking with bass fingerlings was done only after the lake's water had been tested to make sure the chemical had been used up.

Officers from that base were in Artesia Wednesday afternoon conferring with managers and executives of the utilities companies and refineries and city officials. No immediate statement was made.

as bulbar. The spinal type affects the muscles and bulbar the nervous system. Dr. Bennett says deaths from polio almost always come out of bulbar cases.

Actually, he says, every polio patient is infected from both types but with one more than the other. It is the second or danger stage of symptoms that the difference between the two types shows up.

In spinal polio, aching and paining muscles—maybe in an arm or maybe a leg—will follow usually a day or so after the first stage of common symptoms. Then comes stiffness and in a day or so the dreaded weakness.

Sometimes, Dr. Bennett says, the stiffness may come without the preliminary headache and fever. If parents notice the child favoring a certain group of muscles, they should find out if the muscles hurt or if they're just weak. If the child complains of soreness, parents should find out if the child can explain how they got sore. If he can't or if he says they're just weak, he should be brought to medical attention immediately.

The bonfire and trial run were planned for the firemen, to give them practice during their weekly Monday evening meeting session, as well as to give police officers a practice session.

The alarm was reported from the new Emery Carper residence in Alta Vista, which is under construction, but the bonfire was on a vacant lot some feet to the west of there.

Regional meetings will be held at a later date to instruct board officials and employ several officials in details of organization.

At the present, six officers and eight enlisted men of the Mexico National Guard, Adjutant General and Selective Service are in training at Santa Fe and are assisting Charlton in organization of the state staff.

A short rest period is planned at 8 o'clock, during which a demonstration will be given, with all boys eligible to enter. The boy will be required to do a hand-and-a-half flip, and one selected to do a hand-and-a-half flip.

The final event will be a yard relay, with each troop entering a team of four Boy Scouts.

After the relay there will be a watermelon scramble by boys of all troops. The public is invited to attend the carnival, for which there will be no admission charge.

"Spring Cleaning" —and No Complaints!

Housewives in our town keep mighty tidy homes throughout the year, but they still go in for Spring Cleaning—just to make sure there isn't a speck of dust here or a finger smudge there.

I was complaining to Andy in his Garden Tavern, where I'd taken refuge from the misadventures who'd turned everything in our house upside down. Andy only smiled and said: "Well, we've got spring cleaning twelve months of the year!"

Andy was referring to the Breweries program of Self Regulation—which inspects all taverns regularly to see that they're clean and law-abiding. Keeps tavern-keepers on their toes—keeping their places clean, and orderly, and self-respecting.

But from where I sit, people who enjoy a moderate, wholesome beverage like beer are people who appreciate clean, orderly surroundings. And Andy's year-round "spring cleaning" pays off in the gratitude of his customers.

USDA Bulletin
Helps Gardeners
Control Insects

Emphasizing that "bountiful fields from home gardens during these postwar years of food shortages and high prices are important," the U.S. Department of Agriculture has recently published a new information leaflet, "Save Food by Killing Garden Insects."

The leaflet suggests a simple three-point program of insect control for the home gardener: Apply rotenone once each week; apply it carefully and thoroughly; use other control measures for insects that rotenone doesn't kill.

The leaflet says rotenone may be used as a dust or spray. Preparations for dusting should have an active ingredient content of 0.75 per cent or better. The powdered product for use in a spray mixture should contain four or five per cent rotenone.

It is pointed out that rotenone can be used with safety on all gar-

Fellowship

ALFRED E. TRIVIZ

Alfred E. Triviz, assistant county agent leader of the New Mexico Extension Service, has been awarded a fellowship in agricultural extension work for a year's graduate study at the School of Public Administration of Harvard University. The fellowship is one of several awarded to extension workers through funds provided by the Carnegie Corporation.

Triviz has been with the state extension service 12 years, serving as economist, farm labor supervisor, and assistant county agent leader.

He will leave for Cambridge, Mass., about Sept. 20. While at Harvard, Triviz will be on leave from his position at New Mexico A. & M. College.

den crops and that, in amounts sufficient to kill insects, it is not poisonous to humans, birds, and animals. It will control many of the common insects such as caterpillars and the leaf-chewing beetles, including Mexican bean beetles, bean leaf beetles, Japanese beetles, and flea beetles on tomatoes, radishes, carrots, beets, and plants grown for greens.

Rotenone will also control caterpillars on cabbage, broccoli, cauliflower, and lettuce; aphids on turnips, striped and spotted cucumber beetles on melons, and squash, European corn borer on sweet corn, as well as melonworms and pickle worms on squash, cantaloupes, and cucumbers, the leaflet says.

For leafhoppers, some aphids, and bugs which are not killed by rotenone, the gardener is advised what insecticides to use and how to use them.

The leaflet was issued by the Office for Food and Feed Conservation in co-operation with the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine. Copies may be obtained from county agents or by writing to the Extension Service at State College.

State Income
From Pinon Nuts
Could Increase

New Mexico could increase her income from pinon nuts, suggests C. W. Botkin and L. B. Shires, chemists with the New Mexico Agricultural Experiment Station. In a new bulletin, "The Composition and Value of Pinon Nuts," the chemists report that the harvests of pinon nuts in the state could be increased if the demand were larger.

As more knowledge of the pinon nut might help expand the market, the chemists analyzed many samples to determine the composition of pinon nuts grown under various conditions. They found that growing conditions had little effect on the composition of the nut.

In the bulletin, which is a report of their study, they show that pinon nuts are rich in food value, compared with other commercial nuts. The nuts have a higher percentage of kernal than any other nut except the peanut, which botanically speaking is not a nut. The pinon contains more protein than pecans, and about the same as English walnuts or Brazil nuts. It has an average amount of oil and contains a higher percentage of carbohydrates.

They found that the nuts can be stored for as long as three years in New Mexico climate without becoming rancid. Because of this unusual keeping quality more nuts could be harvested in years of bumper crops and stored for sale in the lean years, the chemists say. Pinon forests cover large areas in New Mexico.

New Mexicans who are interested in the results of the pinon nut study may obtain a copy of the bulletin by requesting it from the Bulletin Room, Extension Service, State College.

Conservation Program Is Problem Of All

Conservation of soil and water resources is vital to everyone—townspeople as well as farmers—says Roy Forehand, chairman of the Eddy County Agricultural Conservation Committee. Speaking as a farmer, he points out that the health and welfare of this and succeeding generations depend upon how productive "we keep our land and the use we make of water that falls on the land."

Every part of the Agricultural Conservation Program and everything done under it, he explains, is aimed at protecting the nation's soil and water resources and is in the national interest. Every practice which farmers carry out with the co-operative assistance of the program is a means of assuring a continued food and fiber supply. From the standpoint of maintaining the food supply, the people who live in cities and towns are the beneficiaries of the Agricultural Conservation Program. In addition to assuring production, food from properly conserved soil contains more of essential minerals. The program, the chairman points out, is essentially a national insurance policy against food shortage and reduced quality.

Conservation farming also means more stability in agriculture and in the trades that depend on agriculture. Everyone benefits from the conservation practices carried out under the program, the chairman points out.

For the current year, $150,000,000 has been appropriated by Congress to carry on the program. This means, says the chairman, an average of about $1 per person to carry on this essential work. This is the cost of the food insurance policy. With what the farmer contributes, the nation receives at least $300,000,000 worth of conservation for the $150,000,000 appropriated.

Furacin Is Effective In Coccidiosis Control

Animal health, already in debt to human medicine for some effective aid from the same source. The thing for which acknowledgement is due is a drug called furacin.

Natural source of this drug is oat hulls, corn cobs, bran and similar farm wastes. It is one of the furfural series of chemicals, some of which are used in trades and industry.

In the very first trial with coccidiosis of chickens, furacin demonstrated that it was equal to the well-known sulfa drugs in stopping losses. Further research proved that the drug is generally less toxic to chickens than the sulfa drugs, and that the growth of treated chickens is not retarded as much as in the case of those which have been treated with sulfa.

This chemical is as yet available only in small quantities, and still is high in price. Even so, the amount required to be effective against coccidiosis is so small that the cost of treatment is less than with the sulfa drugs. Before long, products containing this new chemical will be available to poultry raisers on a less limited scale.

State champions — two individual demonstrators — will each receive a $25 cash award. The winners must have completed at least three years of 4-H Club work, including the current year.

Last year's individual winners in New Mexico were Evelyn McKay of Clayton and Eleanor Hay of Elida.

County extension agents will furnish complete information regarding the demonstrations.

L. S. Kurtz, above, state 4-H Club leader of the New Mexico Extension Service, has been granted a year's leave of absence for graduate study at Ohio State University, where he will specialize in rural sociology.

All-Time Champion

2,4-D Formulas Classed In Three Major Forms

Since 2,4-D itself is insoluble in water, it is made soluble by treating it with other chemicals. This results in the manufacture of many formulations, all of which can be classified as ester, amine or sodium salt sprays.

Ester, amine and sodium salt dusts also are manufactured. The ester and the amine sprays are produced in liquid form, the sodium salt spray is a powder and the others as dusts.

Zinc Coating Provides Protection From Rust

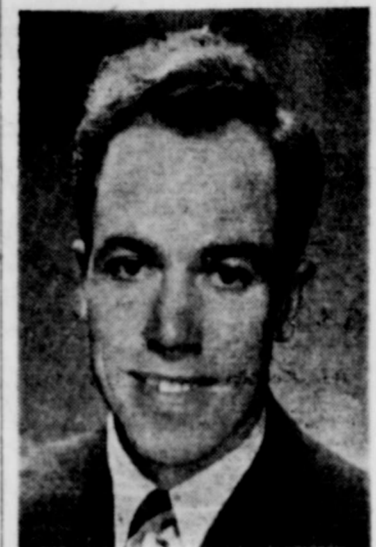

Ten year tests at Indiana indicate that wire having less than a half ounce of zinc coating for each square foot of wire surface had 100 per cent of the surface rusted during the period. Samples having more than one ounce of zinc coating showed no rusting. Stainless steel and copper clad samples showed no rusting. Lead clad samples showed a third of the area discolored.

Soil Conservation Supervisors To Be Named Aug. 14

Three supervisors are to be elected Saturday, Aug. 14, to serve on the Central Valley Soil Conservation District board.

Nominating petitions have been regularly filed for R. G. (Russ) Gooden, southeast of Atoka; Herman (Bozo) Green, southeast of Artesia; Ray Zumwalt, northwest of Artesia, and Paul Terry, Atoka community.

Extension Names New Staff Member

Robert D. Rasmussen, above, has recently been appointed associate animal husbandman with the New Mexico Extension Service. He replaces Joe V. Whitman, who is now conducting the field work for the wool marketing and ram certification projects which are part of the Extension Service's program under the Research and Marketing Act.

A graduate of Iowa State College in 1945, Rasmussen received his master's degree in animal husbandry from Washington State College in June. During his seven years of 4-H work in Iowa, he showed the state's grand champion beef calf for three consecutive years.

As a member of the state extension staff, Rasmussen will devote most of his time to beef cattle improvement and 4-H beef cattle project.

Revenue Bureau Has Biggest Cash Balance Ever

The Bureau of Revenue during the fiscal year which ended June 30, collected $34,439,092.90 in various excise taxes at a cost of $1,024,856, which left a cash balance in the bureau's administrative funds of $806,174, the largest balance ever shown by this agency, Gov. Thomas J. Mabry announced.

The school tax, which contributed $13,428,588 to the total collections, operated at a cost of only $272,137, or 2.02 per cent, the governor said, although the law allows 5 per cent for operational expenses. The governor pointed out that the large cash balance was achieved at a time when it was necessary to make cost of living salary increases and when prices of all supplies and materials were on the upswing.

Most departments of the Bureau of Revenue operate on a fixed percentage of income, ranging from 3 per cent for the gasoline tax and the severance tax, to 10 per cent for the compensating and income taxes. It was from these administrative funds that the cash balance was accumulated.

The major portion of this balance, or $784,732, was transferred to the state general fund. Of the remainder, $20,575 representing the balance in the administrative funds of the luxury tax, went to the Department of Public Welfare, and $866,000, the savings in the motor transportation division, went to the state road fund, as provided by law, the governor said.

The school tax department, which operates on 5 per cent of its income, registered the largest saving, $396,055.

"The Bureau of Revenue, under the able direction of Victor Salazar, has made a commendable record," Governor Mabry said.

The savings returned to the general fund for the fiscal year just closed compare with $693,649 returned during the fiscal year which ended in 1947. For the two previous fiscal years, before this administration took office, there was returned to the general fund from this source $389,706 and $549,063 respectively.

YOU SAVE MORE when every item you buy is priced low...

You can't judge a book by its cover. Neither should you judge food savings by week-end specials alone. Thrifty shoppers know that the way to real savings is to shop at a store where every price is low—all the time. It's the total that counts. And... the total is less when every price is low. Compare the prices listed here! We believe you'll agree that you save more on your total food bill by shopping regularly at Safeway.
