Super-Rodeo Production Booked By Artesia Veterans

Don Bush, publicity chairman of the United Veterans rodeo, today released a story outlining the show to be staged here Sept. 13-15. Chairman Bush said the rodeo would be produced by Wild Bill Elliott, motion picture actor, and Tommy Steiner and he said the contractors would bring to Artesia the "most sensational rodeo in its history."

Elliott will make personal appearances at each performance of the rodeo and will invite the kiddies of the audience to join him in the area, where they will assist in putting Thunder, "Wild Bill's" famous movie stunt horse through its routine of many tricks.

Since last year, when Wild Bill started inviting children into the arena to work with himself and Thunder, this part of the rodeo program has attracted attention from all over the Southwest.

The famous movie star and his horse provide more thrills for the kiddies during the 15 or 20 minutes this part of the show takes than all the rest of the show taken together.

Those of the kiddies who are invited to ride around with several rounds take turns leading him around and will never forget this thrill of a lifetime. Wild Bill sincerely enjoys his close association with the children. Never one to let the enthusiasm with which the young fans greet him, Wild Bill is truly grateful for their friendship and admiration.

The Wild Bill Elliott-Steiner team promises to be the greatest southwestern rodeo world has ever seen. The new partners have proved neither expense nor trouble in gathering the wildest, smartest, tightest strings of horses and chaps bulls ever seen at one rodeo. More than $30,000 was spent accumulating the 60 fighting chaps bulls alone, according to statement by Wild Bill.

These bulls have been procured from almost every state in the West, and from as far off as California and Oregon. The strings of several well-known small producers were culled for some of their outstanding animals, while others were tried out, then purchased if they showed outstanding ability to fight and fight.

The broncs in both the bareback and saddle strings are probably the most bunch of outlaws the West has ever seen in a single group. Some of the horses have reputations known to every first-class cowboy contestant in rodeo and these are the horses that draw the leggame riders.

Tommy Steiner, himself a capable contestant in big-time rodeo before entering the producing end of the game, has had the experience and knowledge that assures the success of every Elliott-Steiner produced rodeo.

Rodeo Ambassador
His ability and reputation for honesty and fairness means much to the success of this show, for the rodeo hands know they can depend on him for fair play in every phase of the show.

No rodeo is really successful without a capable announcer at the microphone, to keep the audience well-informed of everything that is going on. The Elliott-Steiner produced show here will feature Tom Hadley, that well-known young cowboy hailed as "Rodeo's Ambassador of Good Will." Tom, himself a former rodeo contestant of considerable skill and reputation, is thoroughly familiar with every phase of each event that takes place in the area and his pleasant voice and humorous patter help make every minute of the performance intensely enjoyable to men, women and children alike.

Pair of Clowns
Neither would a rodeo be complete without the mirth-provoking antics of the rodeo clowns between and during the contests of skill. Carl Sattafield, one of the most famous of all rodeo clowns, from Cheyenne, Wyo., and Cecil Ellis, another top performer, will not only keep you laughing throughout the show, but will thrill you to the core with their daring bull-fighting during the final and most dangerous event of the program.

These cowboys in baggy breeches and greasypaint are the real heroes of the rodeo, for it is their quick thinking, fast footwork and seeming lack of any fear that often saves a thrown bullrider from serious injury and possible death. Wild Bill Elliott said:

"There is no man in any profession anywhere that needs the split-second timing and the utter lack of nerves that these rodeo clowns need. After every performance, I find myself admiring these boys more and I feel there should be some worthwhile recognition accorded them for the part they play in preventing injury and death in America's most dangerous sport."

The United Veterans rodeo will be the most colorful and the most spectacular ever to be seen in the Southwest. Elliott and Steiner have equipped their troupe with the most elaborate and colorful costumes and trappings obtainable.

The matching shirts, chaps and horse trappings have all been custom made for this big show and will provide a spectacle never to be forgotten here.

Beautiful fringed flags of each of the 48 states will present a striking appearance as they are carried around the arena by cowboys and cowgirls riding handsome Palominos, white horses, Palomino paints and other flashy stocking-legged and blaze-faced horses.

A pair of perfectly matched white horses will carry the bearers of the national and state emblems as the flag-bearers present a pageant of states at breakneck speed around the arena.

A cutting horse contest, held under the rules of the National Cutting Horse Association, of which Wild Bill himself will participate, riding his reserve world's champion cutting horse, Red Boy. Red Boy and Wild Bill have become familiar sights at all the major cutting horse contests since Bill acquired his well-trained cutting horse last year and this pair have given a mighty good account of themselves.

City Library Expected to Reopen July 1

Artesia will say howdy to a revamped municipal library come July 1.

Tentative plans have been mapped for an open house to be held when the institution reopens as a free public library.

The place has been closed since May 1 for redecorating, rearranging, installation of shelving, and cataloging.

New Mexico Library Extension Service, upon request of the library board and city officials, is helping in the reorganization of the library. The municipal council has increased the budget for the library this year. Through its improvement program the library will be qualified to apply for state money to match the amount of the raise in the city's appropriation for the library.

With adequate cataloging and effective business records the board believes the library can give better service to Artesia and to other Eddy County localities.

Room For Children
Remodeling of the library includes plans for a separate children's reading room. Special shelving will be ordered. Artesia Story League has voted to spend a portion of the league's Lois Siegenthaler Memorial Fund for a children's reading table.

Money provided by the Artesia Junior Women's Club, also in memory of Mrs. Siegenthaler, and the Michael Martin Ferguson Memorial Fund will be used to pay for new books ordered for children.

For Reading Program
Artesia chapter of the American Association of University Women has requested 200 children's books for its summer reading program that will be directed by Mrs. A. R. Halsoran and Mrs. V. P. Sheldon.

The books have been ordered from the state library extension service and are loaned for a three month period.

Appreciation Voiced
At a meeting Monday night the board thanked Charles Emmons for his work in rearrangement of main room shelving preparatory to redecorating, and Mrs. L. F. Hamilton, Mrs. Burl Sears, and Mrs. Barney Cockburn, for their work in cataloging.

Other persons wishing to donate their service on cataloging are asked to contact Mrs. Landis Feather, board vice president.

Mrs. S. P. Yates is president of Artesia Library Board and Mrs. Fred Jacobs, secretary.

Chairmen of committees working on library reorganization: Mrs. Neil Booker and Mrs. Merle Story, redecorating; Mrs. Ralph Rogers, furniture; Mrs. Curtis Bolton, publicity; Mrs. Harold Kersey, children's books.

King, California National guard, was driving the military tractor when the collision occurred. (International Soundphoto)

Americans Must Be Willing To Defend Nation, Bush Says

Artesian's Deed Wins Silver Star

One of the reasons there is an Artesia, why there is peace, happiness, and the dignity of man in Artesia, is because of men like First Lt. Daniel P. Sullivan of the 24th Infantry Division, U.S. Army in Korea.

Lieutenant Sullivan, whom army public information lists as a resident of Artesia, has been awarded the Silver Star, one of the highest honors awarded the combat soldier.

The officer, says the army story, "distinguished himself on the field of combat when he successfully led 200 men through enemy lines to return to friendly positions."

Kiwanis to Stage Benefit Tuesday

Entertainment as Western as a lariat, is on tap for Artesians when the Artesia Kiwanis Club stages its Kid's Day benefit at 6 p. m., Tuesday, June 5, in the parish hall of the First Presbyterian Church.

Artesia Cadet In Graduating Class at NMMI

Cadet Charles Ralph Henson, son of Mrs. Helen Henson, 705 West Texas, will receive his high school diploma at New Mexico Military Institute, Roswell, on Tuesday, June 5.

He has been enrolled in the institute for one year and is a fifth classman, the rating equivalent to a high school senior.

Enrollment at the institute is limited to 600 cadets. Of this number, 189 are from New Mexico. Thirty-five states and foreign countries represent the geographic distribution of this year's enrollment, says Major F. E. Hunt, public relations officer.

The institute maintains a four-year degree granting college and a preparatory division consisting of the last three years of high school.

It has been designated by the Department of the Army since 1909 as one of the distinguished or "honorary" military schools of the United States.

New Mexico Military Institute has a senior unit in the armored cavalry branch of the Reserve Officers Training Corps and cadets who complete this R.O.T.C. course and meet the government requirements are entitled to commissions as second lieutenants in the Officers Reserve Corps.

V-Men Safety Corps to Aid In Halting Reckless Driving

Aroused by the mounting toll of traffic deaths, making New Mexico near the top in number of fatalities and with Eddy County and Artesia heavy contributors to that total, school, law enforcement officers, attorneys, and other officials of Artesia, Carlsbad, and Roswell have dug in to cut down the tragic waste of life.

Out of a safety convalescence held here has come the revival of a safety committee, preliminary work in organizing a V-men group to aid police in stopping reckless driving and other practices leading to traffic deaths, and two recommendations to be made to the legislature.

One of these is to ask that Artesia be assigned an assistant district attorney says, Principal Travis Stovall of Artesia High School, and prime mover of the conference, "we feel there is ample work to be done and ample need of such an official in North Eddy county."

The other was that the legislature be asked to clarify its definition of juveniles in regard to traffic law enforcement and to define responsibility of the parents of juveniles.

Corps of Observers
Earl D. Westfall, Artesia chief of police, said his V-men would be ready for work this week. The plan is similar to those in effect in Roswell and Carlsbad.

He said he would have between 25 and 50 V-men. The plan works this way:

Unknown to anyone except himself the V-men note speeding, reckless driving, and other traffic violations, on a postal card, signs it with his V-man number, and mails it to the chief.

The card contains the license number of the vehicle whose driver is violating a law.

Then the police department sends a courteous letter to the offender. If the department gets two more reports of like nature on the same offender then a patrol car is assigned to make a check up on that individual.

Chief Westfall, present at the safety conference held at 7:30 o'clock Monday night in the high school auditorium, was the main speaker at the Rotary club luncheon at noon the next day in Mason Temple.

The program also included the showing of a safety film by Thad Cox.

John Kennedy, Santa Fe, traffic and safety division, highway department—told the assembly how an organization of safety councils cut traffic death rate in Colorado 40 per cent in one year.

He said he would like to see New Mexico have the same setup with a state safety council to assist.

A. B. Muncy, Artesia, New Mexico Police—told of the need of more state police who could aid in checking traffic violations.

Chief Westfall, Artesia—presented plan of a juvenile court, a plan that has the backing of Dick Roberts. (Continued on Page Six)

Although all entries were crowding the winners, the time element was used to break a four-way tie. Judges decision is final, it was announced.

Country Club Chatter

By Jack Fauntleroy

I was unable to attend the tacky party last Saturday night, much to my regret, but I have been checking up on the goings-on.

As you know, the party was in competition with a double-headed ball game, a big to-do up Hope way, and various other activities in and around Artesia, so the crowd wasn't a large one, but certainly was a gay one.

Mary Sadler won the prize as the tackiest woman in her costume composed of a previously discarded maternity dress, with makeup to match. Her feet were undraped and unadorned, with the exception of a few minutes, during which time she tried to wear Chuck Rundles huaraches.

This didn't last long as the shoes were too tight.

Her prize was a lovely pair of unmentionables, size 50, which was mighty appropriate, considering the size of the maternity dress.

Jim and Mary Jean Panzer won the tackiest couple prize; a lovely pink plastic pottie, sometimes referred to as a thunder mug. The prize came in handy as a punch bowl, and was generously donated for that purpose by the winners.

Jim was dressed in a roll-brim hat, which rested comfortably on both ears, and wore a ragged pair of knee britches. Mary Jean's tight skirt, peasant blouse, and fancy heeled "huzzy" shoes with high ribbon laces, along with about four pounds of makeup, cinched the couple prize.

John Cochran carried off the tackiest man prize; a size 50 out-going flannel night shirt, complete with slit sides. You know John is a big boy already, but when he grows into the costume he wore, he's going to be a man.

It was a size 18-inch collar shirt, and pants to match, with a 47-inch waist. Only by a good stout pair of galluses were shirt and pants held together.

He also wore one of the prettiest pair of sleeve holders seen in this area in a long time. (For the benefit of the younger generation, sleeve holders are nothing but "arm garters" used to hold long sleeves out of the soup. Better dressed men will not be seen without them.)

Loose, Tinson Judges

Jack Tinson and Jerry Losee were judges for the contest, and had a difficult time deciding between the winners and several other costumes. Tout Caudle was resplendent in beret and pajama top, while Katherine Caudle was all feathers and flowers.

Harriett Cochran accompanied her undersized husband, wearing an eyelet embroidered dress, with exposed garter, and without one front tooth. Bob Bourland wound

Ladies Golf Association Meets Tuesday

The Ladies Golf Association of the country club met at noon Tuesday this month due to Wednesday being a holiday. Hostesses were Mrs. Bill Keys and Mrs. Clyde Guy.

The members voted that hostesses be appointed to help Paul Nissen, club manager, plan the menus for monthly luncheons. Golf balls were won by Mrs. Charles Murphy low on six blind holes and Mrs. Nora B. Clayton and Mrs. Jerry Marshall low putt on five blind holes.

up the evening, a striking figure in the night shirt purloined from the prize winning Mr. C.

Everybody seemed to have had a wonderful time, and those whom I have talked to are asking for a repeat performance in the near future. The activities committee is to be congratulated on their interest and their refreshing ideas. This committee is due to meet soon, and cards will be mailed the first part of June, covering the various activities for that month.

Swim Committee

The only thing that I can report on the swimming pool committee at this time, is that they are working diligently, and that just as soon as they have their next meeting, which will be this week, I will bring you up to date.

I had the opportunity to take a good friend of mine to the club the other night for dinner. He lives in Denver and has access to the Denver Country Club, the most elaborate club in Denver, and several other clubs.

He and his wife had nothing but praise for the food and the congenial atmosphere that they found in our club. He was amazed that in a town of this size could support the nice club that we have, and said that he didn't know of any place in Denver that could serve food that he would enjoy as much as he enjoyed that dinner.

This isn't the only nice compliment that I have heard along this line, and one of these fine days, I'm going to fill this space with a few of the reasons why we should be proud, and why all of Artesia and the surrounding communities should be proud of the facilities of the Country Club.

Bob Bourland and Bill Bullock are going to be team captains for some competitive golf matches that will start in June. There will be prizes for the winning team, and a team trophy. I will have more particulars concerning this team play next week, and I will also try to have the dates for the annual country club tournament.

America's Steel Supply Adequate, Says Walt Tower

Artesia has no steel mills but steel is as vital to Artesia economy as it is to any other part of the country. There was encouragement for steel users in the annual address by Walter S. Tower, president of the American Iron and Steel Institute, before the fifty-ninth general meeting of the institute in New York.

President Tower says that 90 per cent of the record breaking steel output in prospect for the third quarter of this year will be "used normally regarded as part of this country's civilian economy."

In other words, he doesn't think the armed forces are going to grab all the steel supply. The United States, which has half of the world's steel for potential military forces, plus a civilian supply not much less than the shortage so used in any year prior to 1950, he said.

Currently, steel is being poured at the rate of more than 107 million tons for 1951, and new steelmaking capacity is being added on a scale never equaled before.

The greatest concern at this time ought to bear upon the danger of prolonged bureaucratic controls, rather than the amount of steel left in the free market, he said.

Right now, the best estimate of direct military use of steel during the third quarter of 1951 is about 700,000 tons of finished rolled products per month," said Mr. Tower. "That is less than one eighth of prospective supply."

While we meet here this morning, less than two hours enough steel will be made to build a big battleship or a hundred diesel locomotives. It is a record of performance which approaches the unbelievable."

Large figures being circulated in the total defense steel requirements and statements about the "shrinking availability of steel" are deceptive, said Mr. Tower. The economy is being strengthened by the steel going into freight cars, and gas facilities, farm equipment and other common uses under government sponsored programs—but all are normally large consumers of steel.

This year the output of consumer durable goods will compare favorably with that of any previous year except 1950, said Mr. Tower. Furthermore, the United States has the richest stock of capital goods and consumer durables, like automobiles and household appliances, ever in the hands of any single—a reservoir which has many more years of usefulness, he said.

Threat To Liberty "If there is any real ground for present concern, it is not how much steel may be left in the free market, but it is the grave question of what may be done to us by prolonged bureaucratic controls, imposed in the name of an emergency for which no ending is visible," he said.

"Whenever the hand of government rests very long, bureaucracy begins to flourish. Bureaucracy, once rooted, rarely withers and never dies. It may be cut back; it may be transplanted. But its will survive goes on forever." Controls must not be allowed to exist beyond the time of immediate need, said Tower. "Otherwise," he said, "there is an easy way for government to hold a permanent share in the product of this industry, and there are men who still want government empowered to build and operate steel plants. Call it nationalization, or by any

Gasoline Thirsty America Used 40 Billion Gallons During 1950

Oil wells of Eddy County had a share in filling Americans' tremendous appetite for gasoline in 1950, 40,613,400,000 gallons, an all-time high, as reported by the American Petroleum Institute in its annual survey of gasoline consumption.

The demand in 1950 was more than three billion gallons higher than the 37,515,278,000 gallons consumed in 1949.

The new record consumption of motor fuel with a sharp rise in automobile registration of 10.7 per cent in 1950 to a total of 40,313,715, according to the Bureau of Public Roads. Truck registrations rose 7.2 per cent to 8,004,448 and bus registrations 7.1 per cent to 223,652.

California Uses Most The top three gasoline consuming states retained their 1949 positions. California was first with 3,854,591,000 gallons, Texas next with 2,953,511,000 gallons and New York third with 2,647,931,000 gallons. Illinois, Ohio, and Pennsylvania also were in the two billion barrel class.

The peak month for gasoline consumption was August, when 3,863,148,000 gallons of fuels were bought. June and July ranked second and third respectively.

Gasoline production in the United States passed the billion barrel point for the first time in 1950, totaling 1,024,448,000 barrels or 43,026,816,000 gallons and accounting for 43 per cent of all petroleum products refined last year.

The gasoline consumption report was compiled by the API's Department of Statistics from data supplied by departments of various state governments. Generally the figures are based on returns made in accordance with gasoline tax or inspection laws in each state and include all gasoline whether sold for taxable or tax-exempt purposes.

other name, the effect is the same. It is the nature of government to be less efficient than private enterprise in any field. Any loss of efficiency in steelmaking means less satisfactory living, less economic strength, less military might for the nation.

"With the industry as it stands today and as it can continue under able private hands, there can not be any question about the future of this country so far as steel supply is concerned."

Submarine Film Co-Stars Wayne And Pat Neal

The great undersea war which raged in the Pacific, bitter encounters between American submarines and enemy surface craft are portrayed in Warner Bros.' submarine epic, "Operation Pacific," which begins its local engagement at the Ocotillo Theatre on Sunday.

Co-starring John Wayne and Patricia Neal, "Operation Pacific" marks Wayne's first film under his new Warner Bros. contract and provides the stalwart actor with the kind of action role he does best. For Miss Neal, the film serves as a change of pace from her "bad girl" role in "The Breaking Point." She is seen as a Navy nurse in love with a submarine commander whose devotion to submarines nearly puts his love for Pat up on a reef.

The screen drama takes the spectator right into the compact interior of the deadly "pig-boats" and shows how the courageous, highly-trained crews go about their dangerous business, manning sub attacks with their torpedoes, landing contact parties and supplies for underground forces evacuating refugees and personnel from enemy territory, reconnoitering and photographing landing beaches preparatory to invasion. Previewers acclaimed "Operation Pacific" one of the finest tributes to our submarine service ever filmed.

In addition, the studio spared no effort in its attempt to make the sea saga as authentic as possible by signing as technical adviser, Vice Admiral Charles Lookwood, U. S. Navy, Ret., who was commander of all submarines in the Pacific during World War II. Ward Bond and Scott Forbes head the supporting cast of "Operation Pacific," which also includes William Campbell, Philip Carey and Katherine Givney.

George Wagner directed the film for Warner Bros. The English equivalent of "dime novel" is "penny dreadful."

Oil Association Hits at Freeze on Petrol Price

face of steady increases in other prices and costs.

"The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics reports that wholesale pricing of the Korean War. Farm products prices are up 22 per cent, foods 16 per cent, textiles 35 per cent, metals 10 per cent, building materials 13 per cent, chemicals 26 per cent. In contrast, the price of crude petroleum has increased less than one percent.

"The facts show that price control authorities are following a course that threatens to repeat the discriminatory and unsound actions as to oil prices taken during World War II."

The report, addressed to J. Ed Warren, president, and signed by Russell B. Brown, general counsel, deals with crude oil price regulation, extension of agreements act, natural gas legislation, and concludes with salient comment on United States participation in Middle East affairs:

Says the report: "A few days ago a press report stated that the United States has warned Iran not to be in too much of a hurry to nationalize its oil resources. The position of Ambassador Henry Grady."

"Yesterday, a Washington headline 'We Back Britain on Iranian Oil' further indicates that our government is taking an active part in this Middle East controversy. There are no American oil companies operating in Iran."

Price Control Reaction Here's the way Counsel Brown reports on price control as affecting the oil industry: "In regard to price controls, a matter which probably will be of concern to the industry for some time, the Directors of the Association further indicates that our views in the adoption of the following resolution: "Government statistics show that oil prices are being frozen in the Money for expansion must be secured from investors; and, rates must be adequate to provide a fair return.

Detailing some of these arguments, the company claims that its earnings at present are less than four per cent on the value of properties in the state; major materials have advanced in cost, such as rubber up 250 per cent.

The construction program, says the company, calls for spending five and one half million dollars this year.
It is also stated that while New Mexico's population growth has shown a 28 per cent increase from 1940 to 1950, telephone growth during that period has been 207 per cent, the fastest growth of any state in the nation, and that employees have increased from 453 to 1628.

There are 2874 telephones now in use in Arteria. Rates are, business, straight line, $7.25 a month, two-party, $5.50; residence, one-party, $3.75; two-party, $3; four-party, $2.50.

History of Day
Memorial Day was first observed May 30, 1869 just after the close of the Civil War.

Since then it has become a legal holiday in almost every state of the Union.

The day is devoted to memories of heroes who gave their lives for their country. Graves are decorated, services and speaking arranged, and pilgrimages to the graves are arranged in many cities.

Memorial Day, often called Decoration Day, is observed in the District of Columbia, Alaska, Canal Zone, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands in addition to most states.

The following exceptions are noted: Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, West Virginia (in Florida Memorial Day for veterans of all wars; in Virginia, Confederate Memorial Day; in North Carolina, holiday only for state and national banks.

Appreciation Lost?

OUR APPRECIATION and thanks to people, concerns, groups, officials and organizations for a fine job well done or for something they have done for us, used to be voiced not once but perhaps many times.

There was a time we were grateful and voiced our sincere thanks. We were sincere in this.

But we often wonder today if sooner or later we aren't going to list our failure to express our appreciation as one of the lost arts.

We want to take most things for granted. We refuse to voice our thanks to those to whom we owe thanks and merely feel they are only doing what they are supposed to do.

Yet it is surprising and amazing just how often a few words of thanks will result in even better co-operation in the future. It will result in us having the kind of aid and help and assistance we want.

There was a day when we thanked our teachers for something they had done for our students in school, but we have forgotten that. There was a day and a time when we voiced our appreciation to our school administrators and we told them what a good job we thought they were doing but as a rule today we are always complaining and handing our criticism instead of a little praise.

It isn't out of line now and the not to thank some merchant, some business man, some citizen or even some public official for a job well done.

All of us like a little credit and a little praise. We may contend we don't, but we do.

And there are a lot of things which haven't been done today that perhaps could and would be done if we would just voice our thanks to those who are doing a good job. If they help the community, they are helping us because we reside in the community.

There are those, of course, who do voice their thanks to others. They never forget and they never miss an opportunity when they feel that appreciation should be voiced.

They deserve a great deal of credit for helping to keep the expressing of our appreciation alive in this old world which appears at times to be extremely ungrateful for all of the many good things which are done by many good individuals.

It wouldn't hurt for most of us to spend a little time developing the habit of voicing our thanks to others.—O.E.P.

Make the Most of It

WE HAVE OFTEN WONDERED just what those who have for the past two or three years voiced the opinion that Artesia should have a daily newspaper have or expect the daily paper to do for them that the weekly or the twice-a-week paper can't do if they are used.

Newspapers, weekly, twice-a-week or dailies, we have often declared have a real advantage over many other advertising medium in that they can be read at the leisure of the reader and they are always at hand and available. You do not have to "turn on" anything; you do not have to copy anything; you do not have to listen; you do not have to hunt up a circular or some mail order advertising or ride out to see a sign—the newspaper is at hand and always is available.

And so those matters we desire to have published or printed, news items or advertising, can be printed in our paper and be sure of full coverage and full readership.

It is often argued that weekly or twice-a-week papers are read more carefully than daily papers. If you don't read today's paper—you read tomorrow's. But we read the weekly or twice-a-week because it is a few days between issues.

We have said many times that many communities which have small daily papers only need and want twice-a-week papers. The average small daily newspaper has one or two days a week when all the merchants want ads in the paper. The other days they are not too interested. Yet if a paper is published daily, it must have sufficient business each day to pay the cost and justify the publishing of that paper.

Check the average small daily in this state in cities of less than 10,000 to 12,000. They will have one or two issues filled with ads—the other three to four days they run comparatively light in so far as advertising is concerned.

Just why we are so concerned about a daily and what we expect it to do that a weekly or twice-a-week paper won't do—we have never been right sure. We do know the country weekly or the twice-a-week paper have the greater reader interest.

We sometimes fail to make the most of the paper we have and to use it for getting out our news items and articles, information or our advertising.

Let's make the most of it and see how well it can and will serve when we really use it.—O.E.P.

Missing Opportunities?

THERE ARE A GOOD MANY individuals in this old world of ours who have and who do miss the opportunities which are afforded them and they are usually among those always complaining they have never had a chance.

The world, of course, doesn't have much use for the individual who is always complaining. We have about become convinced that Shakespeare was right when he said many years ago "The fault is not in our stars but in ourselves, we are weaklings." That, we say, is true.

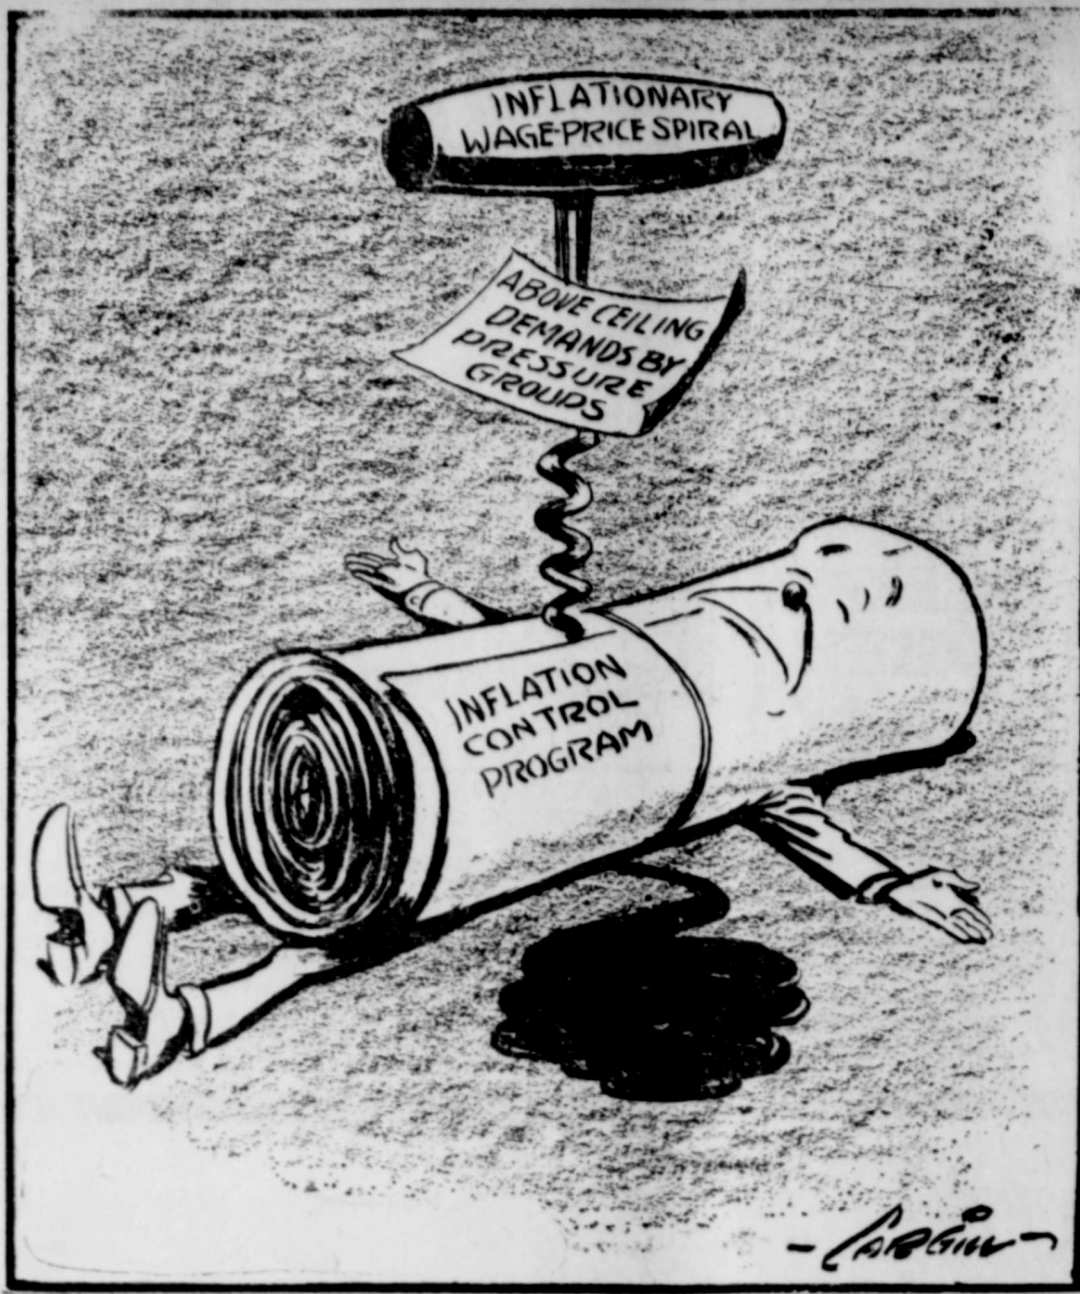

We have known a good many individuals in the past 20 to 25 years who complained considerable because they didn't believe they were getting their share of this world's goods. They spent time and energy complaining—time and energy which if it had been properly spent would have resulted in their obtaining the very thing they were complaining because they did not receive it.

We have always wondered why the person putting in their time and effort at a particular job didn't want to give their best to the job. But they don't. They seem to want to do as little as possible, loaf as much as possible, fail to produce and yet it is the only job they have. It is up to them as to whether they prove they are worth more and earn more, but they are usually so busy excusing themselves for not doing their best on the job they have and contend they are doing more than they are being paid to do, they haven't time to improve their work and in this way earn the reward they could and would receive.

There are those employees who do outstanding jobs. They are not afraid of giving and doing their best; not afraid to put in the time and as a result who climb up the ladder of success. They haven't any time to complain about how the world has mistreated them—they are too busy making the most of the opportunity they have.

Many need to learn to follow the example they are setting for us.

"THE CORKSCREW MURDER CASE"

What Other Editors Are Saying

BUREAUCRATS MUDDLE, INDIANS STARVE

Louis Bromfield, the nationally-known agriculturalist and writer, points out how United States bureaucrats muddle along while people starve.

Bromfield writes: "Several months ago the India government, aware that droughts and crop failures were certain to bring about a serious famine, approached this government with a proposal to buy 2,000,000 tons of wheat out of the surplus owned and stored by the government. The Indian government did not ask for a gift. It offered to buy the wheat, something it was well able to do against the value of vital materials imported from India to this country every year. India also holds vast war credits against Great Britain arising out of the recent war.

"The situation seemed perfectly simple and straightforward until, for obscure reasons, the administration preferred to follow its policy of giving away wholesale American wealth, money and resources throughout the world. The administration, and presumably the State Department, was determined to give away the wheat which India wanted to buy.

"This attitude at once threw the whole matter into politics with the result that an uproar of opposition arose in Congress from those members who feel, rightly, that American resources and money are not inexhaustible and that there is no reason why American taxpayers should support the rest of the world, especially when a foreign nation, for once actually offered to buy something. The total result is that the situation is in a deadlock and the bill to give the wheat to India is laid on the shelf in committee.

"Meanwhile men and women and children with famine-swollen bellies are dying in the streets in India and capital is being made by Communist elements everywhere, who use all this as evidence that the United States is a heartless capitalist country unwilling to help a starving people. To have delivered the wheat promptly in exchange for Indian raw materials badly needed in this country would have saved suffering and death and made good instead of bad feeling in India toward this country."

Various farm organizations and individuals have offered help to the starving people of India. Wheat and cattle have been offered, but Bromfield says that direct gifts "do not please that army of waffle-bottomed vulturine bureaucrats which haunts Washington wanting everything to be done by the federal government."

In the light of such reports, one is certainly tempted to ask what is going on.—Carlsbad Current-Argus.

A HEALTHY INDUSTRY

Oil has been one of the major factors in the growth of Artesia. Important of this rich industry is sometimes overlooked. Gov. Dan Thornton of Colorado, in the May issue of the Independent Petroleum Association of America monthly, has this to say about the "petroleum industry as a builder of cities and a protector of security":

The petroleum industry contributes mightily to convenience, to progress and to the development of the vast areas of the west. However, we cannot look at the petroleum industry from the state viewpoint without acknowledging the application of petroleum to the national economy. In this respect the industry and the state, as well as the nation must be alert to support all policies that will maintain the progressive nature of the petroleum industry. We plan on doing that very thing so far as the State of Colorado is concerned. It is planned to endorse all measures by the federal government that are designed to continue the progressive nature of petroleum. And I will state frankly, that we will be just as quick to condemn state or federal practices that would unduly hamper or restrict the normal operations of the petroleum industry in its effort to meet the needs of this state and nation.

We have always agreed with the old adage, "If a job is worth doing, it is worth doing well." Experience has taught us the individual who does just that usually wins whatever awards there are to be given out.

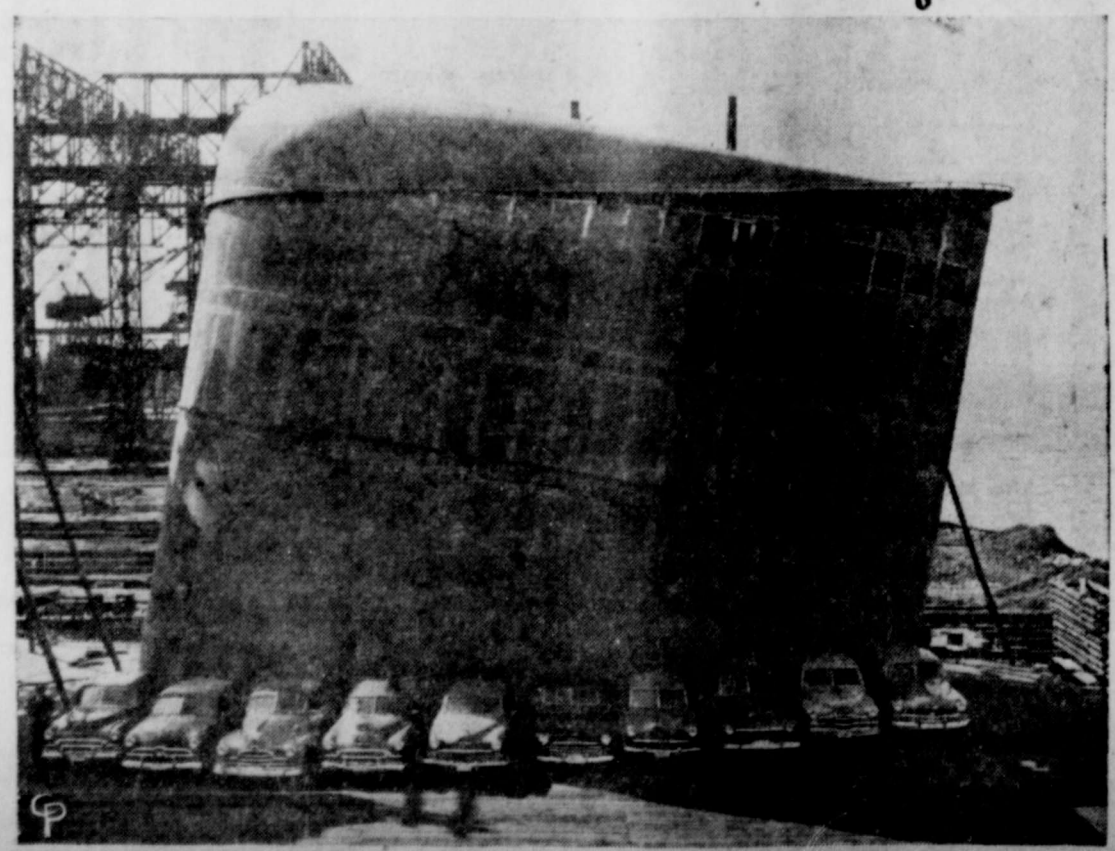

They are never among those complaining about how life has mistreated them.

And most of us only do about half as good a job as we can do. We neglect not only giving our talent and ability, but even the time which has been bought and paid for to do our daily tasks.—O.E.P.

New Mexico

By G. Ward Fenley

Not being able to understand women wouldn't be so bad if they didn't understand men.

Please don't get me wrong. That thought is not original. I stole it from the Woodmen of the World Magazine.

But, just between us men, women are funny.

One night last week, my wife began the supper-table conversation by wondering how much was the fine for overparking.

It finally came out. She had taken advantage of the price war that four Albuquerque drug stores are waging and had shopped one minute too long.

And, as she put it: "That old policeman just kept on writing out that little tag and not listening to a word of explanation."

To Save Two Cents

I think all women are incurable bargain hunters. They'll drive 14 blocks to save two cents at a sale.

Women are also worry warts. As related last week in the Los Alamos Herald, Mrs. Adams F. Schuch drove all the way to Wichita, Kans., wondering if she turned off the percolator.

A $2 call to Los Alamos policemen J. D. Downing and John Moore set her mind at ease that it was not only turned off but was unplugged, washed out, and sitting neatly in the sink with a plastic covering over it.

I got a nice letter this past week from Mary Wilmett, linotype operator on the De Baca County News. She was sympathizing with me in my recent tragic yogurt argument with Carlsbad's Jack Sitton.

She enclosed a cartoon where, as they trudged home after a visit, the woman was saying to her husband: "I know it was a dull evening, but I enjoyed it—don't forget, we bored them too!"

One woman in the state I'm not speaking to at the forthcoming State Press meeting in Santa Fe, June 14-15.

That's the Santa Fe News' Ann Clark. She appointed me as judge for a national women's feature writing contest.

Best job I know of to alienate friends and adversely influence people.

That GH Puzzler

Got another letter from John (Jwan) Kirkwood of KGGM. He wants to add two words to Wallace Barnes' unspellable list, personnel and parallel. About the remarks from Socorro about the pronunciations of "gh" in various words, Jawn sent along George Bernard Shaw's way of spelling fish: Gh as in enought, o as in women, and ti as in station.

Now for a few choice typos from last week's bumper crop: "The opening day for the new Windham Cafe saw numberless rups of coffee shoved over the counter"—Euncie Enterprises; "The clothing will be displayed on a protectively glad mannikin."—Santa Fe New Mexican; "The 1-year old Marine entered the Corps March 8"—Current Argus; "Mothers, how would you like to fill 23,360 diapers every week?"—Roswell Record; "Have all official papers notarized here, open toll 10 p. m."—Lovington Leader.

The Albuquerque Journal and Tribune made probably the cutest howlers of the week.

The Journal said, about three men who rented horses and failed to return them: "The three, included a man who wore a mustache and two girls, one of the short and blond." Two queries: how can you wear two girls? and was the mustache or girl short and blonde?

The Trib. omitted the small animal poisonings in Albuquerque, quoted Mrs. C. A. Ewell as saying: "There are lots of dogs and cats in the neighborhood who should be warned to watch out for the poisoners."

Southwestern

Pictures Two Artesia Men

Two Artesia men and one from Hagerman are pictured in the Shots Around Southwestern department of the May issue of The Southwestern, a magazine of Southwestern Public Service.

The three are June Wood, 1105 Yates; Joe Sessum, 506 East Chisum; and Amos Hampton of Hagerman.

Picture shows the trio replacing a pole near Dexter. "A car struck the pole after falling to make the curve in the background," reads the cut lines.

May issue also contains a story and pictures on the company's new Roswell building, 417 N. Richardson, opened April 14.

Reading matter in the Southwestern is in a new kind of type, Times-Roman. This is the fifth type style to be used by the publication since it started seven years ago, in Amarillo.

Design of Times Roman was originally made by Stanley Morrison for the London Times. "Intended largely as a face for use in periodicals it has won popularity as a highly legible and satisfactory type," says Editor Charles Annett.

MARCH OF EVENTS

U. S. May Not Support Nationalization Dispute Seen Nearing Showdown
Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Great Britain's oil dispute with Iran is rapidly nearing a showdown and whether the United States will actively support the British is a matter of question.

Since the United States became deeply involved in Korea, the has been some softening of the State department's determination defend oil-rich Iran, which borders on Russia's door-step.

One reason is the thought that Iran might become "another Korea." Also, the oil interests in Iran are primarily British, and Britain cannot afford to have gone all-out in the Far East.

The State department used to emphasize the American companies had a vital interest in Iranian oil, but now emphasizes that they have no direct interest.

Actually, the American companies buy and distribute large quantities of oil from the Anglo-Iranian Oil company (which Iran Premier Mossadegh seeks to nationalize), but do not hold any stock in that billion-dollar firm.

The administration has never made a firm decision on whether the United States would use military force to defend Iran if it were attacked or underwent internal revolution.

The official policy is that the United States desires to see a solution of the oil dispute that will be satisfactory to the Iranian people and assure delivery of oil to "usual customers"—not Russia. The policy can be strengthened on a quid pro quo basis of Britain coming through with more of what the United States wants.

ECONOMY DRIVE FALTERING—The much-discussed economy drive in Congress is limping along and shows no sign of producing anything like the $5 to $7 billion reductions demanded by its advocates.

So far, Congress has cut $335,500,000 from the President's budget for the 1952 fiscal year which begins July 1. In doing so, it has acted on almost $25 billion in funds.

The President asked for $94 billion in new money for the new year but more than $60 billion of this represents funds for the military which Congress will be loathe to cut.

That does not leave too much more to work with and Congress is finding that it is a good deal easier to talk about cutting expenditure $5 to $7 billion than actually doing it.

LONELY PRESIDENT—For the first time in years, President Truman will have to break his summertime habit of keeping in touch with his family every night by telephone.

Margaret Truman is off on a European tour and it is extremely doubtful that the family budget will run into nightly transatlantic phone calls. So the President and Mrs. Truman will have to rely on letters to keep them up to date on Margaret's activities.

In the past, Mrs. Truman spent the summer at the family's home in Independence, Mo., and the chief executive and his daughter talked nightly from Washington to the First Lady about the day's happenings.

A closely-knit family, all three Trumans will probably be a little unhappy at being out-of-touch for several months. As the President is bound to be pretty lonely at Blair House without either the First Lady or Margaret on hand to make it feel home-like.

WAGES—The newly created Wage Stabilization Board is going to have to approve a great many wage increases which pierce the ceiling limiting pay rises to 10 per cent after Jan. 15, 1950. It has before it more than 1,100 cases involving wage increases and new ones are coming in at the rate of 250 a week.

Approval of ceiling-puncturing raises is made necessary by the fact that Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston has already put in effect a six cents an hour wage increase for one million non-operating railroad workers which exceeded the ceiling by 2.5 cents an hour.

Other pay raises well over the ceiling have been negotiated by packinghouse workers, shipyard mechanics and several million others. Unless the board gives its approval strikes are bound to occur, type an important defense production.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

JOHN GOULD, author of And One to Grow On, and Farm Takes a Wife, and publisher and editor of the highly individualistic and colorful Lisbon Falls (Maine) Enterprise, recently set out to list everything in which he trafficked at his newspaper office. He led off, naturally, with all the books authored by himself and family, and then continued as follows:

"We also sell high grade printing both in black and in colors, and can usually get your job out for you in a reasonable time. We are ready to print blotters and cards to stick in door for political candidates, and guarantee delivery in time for effective primary campaigning. We can print the picture so it looks like you, or so you can put 'Honest-Able-Fearless' and it and not make people laugh. We have been printing political blotters on the same press since the days of the Greenback movement and have never yet got stuck for the bill. All political printing strictly in advance.

"We also sell subscriptions and advertising, both of which are considered good investments from the point of view of the most of your money. We don't know how anybody can get more out of money than buying an ad in our paper. One man advertised printed banana storage sheds with us once, and we were interested in knowing how he made out. He said he didn't sell any, but it was worth more than he paid just to have his name in the paper with scandal connected with it. Another man advertised goose eggs in August, just laying eggs. So, you can't miss."
