Coll Advises Use of CCC Cotton Deal

Eddy county cotton farmers can do a lot to insure orderly marketing of this year's big crop, and to protect their cotton income, by using the CCC price-support loan program, according to Britton Coll, chairman of the Eddy County PMA committee.

While the crop is big, it is all needed, and there is nothing in the situation which should justify low cotton prices over the marketing season, Coll points out. "Heavy marketings at harvest time naturally tend to pull prices down," said Coll. "Here's where the loan program comes in. If most farmers will put even part of their crop under the loan, holding it off the market for a while, they can help stabilize the market."

"Each farmer will have to make his own decision on whether to sell now or to use the loan, in the light of his local conditions, but he should consider the advantages of the loan carefully. The loan gives him cash now, and he will be in position to take advantage of any improvement in the market later in the year. He is assured the loan value in any case.

"More important, from the point of view of the whole crop, use of the loan by enough farmers will prevent market gluts and make it possible to 'feed' cotton onto the market as it is needed. "The operations of the loan program on the 1948 and 1949 crops were good illustrations of the value of using it.

"A big crop was needed this year, and it is still needed. It looks now as though 1951 production will take care of all domestic needs, provide for unlimited exports, and possibly allow for an increase in the carry-over reserve. This would be a sound development. The reserve should be higher than this year's two million bales.

"County PMA committees will have all necessary information on the loan program. I hope cotton farmers will talk the situation over with their local committeemen, and check carefully into the possibilities for using the loans to their advantage."

Seeds for Democracy Drive to Help Production of Food in Philippines

Newsreel cameras focus on George H. Greene, Jr., president, Committee for a Free Asia, as he piles vegetable seeds in the arms of Benigno A. Pidalaoan, Philippine Consul General at San Francisco. The committee, in its Seeds for Democracy drive, asks Americans to donate vegetable seeds in an effort to meet a critical food production inadequacy. Seeds should be sent to Seeds for Democracy, 596 Clay Street, San Francisco, Calif.

SAN FRANCISCO — A nation-wide drive for contributed vegetable seeds to help the people of the Philippine Republic overcome a critical inadequacy in food production has been launched by the Committee for a Free Asia, Inc.

George H. Greene, Jr., committee president, announced that Americans may help in the development of Filipino vegetable gardens by contributing any amount of nine kinds of seeds to SEEDS FOR DEMOCRACY, 596 Clay Street, San Francisco, Calif.

The committee, organized by leading U. S. citizens to assist in the defense of individual and national freedom throughout Asia, is affiliated with the Crusade for Freedom.

Its sponsorship of the SEEDS FOR DEMOCRACY drive is based on a successful experiment conducted last year by the Chicago Daily News.

The first token shipment of seeds to arrive in the campaign was presented this week to the Honorable Benigno A. Pidalaoan, Philippine Consul General at San Francisco in ceremonies at that city.

"This voluntary and spontaneous movement on the part of the American people," Pidalaoan told Greene, "will not only help substantially in our food production efforts but will give tangible evidence of continued American friendship for the Philippines."

Last year's experience, Greene explained, indicates the most useful and satisfactory seeds for the growing of vegetable gardens in all parts of the Philippines are: green string beans, Chinese cabbage, green pepper, mustard, collards, egg plant, kohlrabi and loose leaf lettuce.

"Seeds for vegetables," Greene declared, "may be sent to the 596 Clay Street address in San Francisco in any container which meets postal regulations for domestic mail.

"At that address the seeds will be sorted, packaged and trans-shipped to Manila where they will be received by Fernando Lopez, vice-president of the Republic of the Philippines and secretary of the department of agriculture and natural resources. His department will supervise distribution of the seeds."

The SEEDS FOR DEMOCRACY campaign is based on the proved experience that "a gift of a package of vegetable seeds to a Filipino farmer does more to help him fight communism than most formal economic aid and diplomatic razzle-dazzle."

Last year more than 660 U. S. garden clubs, seed houses, Boy Scout troops, student groups, church societies and other organizations and individuals contributed 162,693 packages of seeds and money for seeds.

Greene explained that, although many American vegetables grow well in the Philippines, such vegetables are not generally available there because most vegetables will not bear good seed in the tropics.

Relatively few vegetable seeds are imported to the Philippines, and most families cannot afford to buy those which are imported.

"This drive," Greene continued, "will help make the fast growing young Philippine Republic self sufficient in food and will give the Filipinos a practical method of resisting communist blandishments."

State Bureau Finds 1012 Jobs Within 14 Months

During the 14-month period since the beginning of hostilities in Korea, 1,012 non-agricultural workers, which local offices of the New Mexico Employment Service were unable to recruit within their own localities, have been found and placed in jobs through its clearance system. Employment Security Director M. F. Miera announced today.

The director said that the search for "key" defense workers often is a painstaking effort involving the full utilization by New Mexico of the State-Federal labor clearance system, through which local employment service offices help each other fill orders for workers.

"When 'key' workers cannot be found in the area served by a local office, in canvasses the New Mexico State Employment Service offices adjacent to it. If this fails to produce the workers, the order is extended to the entire State, then to Region XI of the Bureau of Employment Security which in addition to New Mexico includes Colorado, Wyoming and Utah.

If this proves unsuccessful, the order is sent to some 1,800 local employment service offices throughout the nation, plus Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

Director Miera said that the more orders for workers given to the Employment Service by employers, the more effective will become the nation's defense manpower mobilization program.

Although technical, professional, and skilled metal workers are generally scarce throughout the country, pools of other kinds of workers can be found and quickly be located through the employment service clearance system.

The skills existing in the available manpower pools will remain dormant unless the workers possessing them are told where they are needed. "The clearance system is the best known means of bringing these workers and jobs together," Miera said.

"The Eleventh Wage Stabilization Board unanimously passed a resolution that it will be Board policy to recognize equal pay for equal work regardless of sex.

The motion was made by M. Phyl Poulson, Salt Lake City, CIO Board Member, and President of the District 2 Council of the Oil Workers International Union for the Rocky Mountain States, and seconded by Edward C. King, Boulder, Public Board Member, and Dean of the Law School at the University of Colorado.

Collective Bargaining—The Wage Stabilization Board will do its best to help maintain collective bargaining and will restrict labor and industry in negotiated agreements as little as possible, according to Leo Kotin, chairman of the Thirteenth Regional Wage Stabilization Board, Seattle.

Speaking before the annual convention of the International Woodworkers of America, CIO, at the Cosmopolitan Hotel in Denver, Kotin said: "Organized labor must add a new consideration to its planning. Labor does not have complete freedom through negotiation or use of economic force in establishing wage rates. However, the Wage Board will impose as few restrictions as possible, and will approve as much of agreements between the parties as can be done within the law and the regulations."

Inflation Caution Given Labor Council

"Everyone recognizes the validity of the 'traffic safety slogan: Drive carefully, the life you save may be your own.' It is not idle phrase-making to say: 'Control inflation carefully, or the nation you lose may be your own.' The dizzy spiral of inflation and the runaway economy which must follow inevitably are just as deadly and dangerous as the drunken driver or the speeding car—except that the reckless river threatens one, two, half a dozen lives at most," Dr. Allen said.

"Make no mistake about it—the aggressor is but watching and waiting for inflation to trap us in its inexorable web before he pounces.

"American men are dying in Korea for the benefit of the rest of us. It is up to us to sacrifice our own immediate interests where they harm the total effort so that more may survive their offer of final sacrifice. The lives we save may be our own."

How does it feel to drive a Buick?

If you think perhaps we're hinting that it would be a good idea for you to try out a Buick—mister, you've never been so right.

It does a lot of things for you and to you that will be something new in your driving experience.

Take the way it feels beneath your hands on the wheel—eager and willing and anxious to please.

It spurts when you want to spurt—rolls with effortless momentum when you want to cruise.

When you take a curve, it snugs down to the road with sure-footed confidence.

After you make a turn, the front wheels instinctively seek a straight course. This car seems to guide itself.

When you come to a bumpy stretch, each separate wheel on its own coil spring steps you smoothly along on a level keel.

Then there's power that surges into action at a nudge of your toe—sends your speedometer needle soaring up to any speed the law allows, in a matter of seconds.

And there is also thrift—the gas-saving thrift that comes from a high-compression valve-in-head Fireball Engine found in no other car.

To top all this, there is Dynaflo Drive®—that feeds power in a steady, falterless flow—lets you ride relaxed in busy traffic or on a day-long cross-country drive.

We're willing to stand on the statement that no other car rides, performs or drives like a Buick.

But why take our word for it? Come in—take over one of these lively lovelies—and see for yourself.

Carlsbad Girl Opens Dancing School in Artesia

Connie's Dancing School is the latest Artesia business. It has been set up in the Veterans Memorial Building by Connie McLain, 709 South Tenth. Carlsbad Classes are held each Wednesday at 4 p. m. and each Saturday at 10 a. m. Miss McLain, who with her mother, Mrs. Warren McLain, visited the Advertisers on Wednesday afternoon, said it was the first dancing school for which an occupational license had ever been granted in Artesia. The school opened Oct. 6. Kinds of dancing taught are fox-trot and wing soft shoe, clover-leaf's hornpipe, and the folk dances of Spain, Ireland, the Netherlands, and Russia.

Miss McLain is a native New Mexican born in Albuquerque and is a graduate of Carlsbad High School.

NM Western Lists 55 in College's Graduate Section

Registration in the graduate division of New Mexico Western College, Silver City, has reached 55 students for the fall term. Dr. Arthur L. Bach, dean of the college and chairman of the graduate council, has announced.

Graduate work was established at the college in the summer of 1951, with the first master's degrees awarded this past spring. A total of ten students have completed their requirements for the master's degree.

At present New Mexico Western offers the master of science in education degree, since the primary aim of the college is to furnish teachers to the Southwest. Fields of study included are: education and psychology, art, language and literature, and social science.

Dr. Bach said that he was gratified to note the increase in graduate students from the active ranks of the teaching profession. There is now an opportunity, he said, for many teachers to secure their master's degree or additional graduate studies without interference with their regular duties.

He pointed out that night classes and the summer sessions at New Mexico Western are a convenient method of attendance for teachers and school administrators.

The college library has taken special recognition of the needs of the graduate students with the establishment of an exclusive graduate study room, and the inter-library book service. This service enables New Mexico Western to borrow, when necessary, from numerous other libraries, including the Library of Congress, for particular works required.

The college is fully accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools and by the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education, Dr. Bach said.

Two '42 Graduates Added to Faculty at Western College

Two graduates and two former faculty members of New Mexico Western College, Silver City, have returned to the campus as instructors. All are supplemental appointees to the commerce department for instruction in the U. S. Air Force training program, currently in progress at the college.

The graduates are: Mrs. Doris W. Russell and Mrs. Louise Desvaux, both of the class of '42, and residents of Silver City. They are engaged as instructors in business English and typing, respectively.

Returning faculty members are Mrs. Nelson Gray of Silver City, and Mrs. Helen Himes of Hurley. Mrs. Gray was formerly the librarian of New Mexico Western, and instructed in library science. She now teaches business English and filing.

Mrs. Himes was previously a member of the fine arts department, specializing in arts and

Blind Veteran Gets Degree, Writes Book and Manages Ranch

MONROE FOX

"My blindness hasn't really been a handicap," Monroe Fox, University of New Mexico high-ranking law student, said in an interview. "It has been the incentive behind my ambition to become a lawyer," he added.

Asking no favors, Fox, now 37, has made his way since he was blinded in 1945. He has worked as a newspaper man, written a book, taken a college degree and managed his own dude ranch.

Was Frogman—

During the last year of World War II, Fox was a member of Underwater Demolition Team 15, a group known as "The Frogmen."

After reconnaissance work off the shores of Luzon and Iwo Jima, Fox and his group were aboard the U.S.S. Blessman when it was struck by a torpedo or an aerial bomb. Half the team was wiped out and Fox was blinded.

When he was not flown back immediately to the states, Fox said he began to rehabilitate himself feeling that his blindness was going to be permanent.

Several operations in the Philadelphia Naval Hospital proved his suppositions true and Fox set about learning to use a cane, a typewriter, and the Braille system of reading.

Return To Chama—

Upon being discharged in August of 1945, he went to the Seeing Eye Inc., Morristown, N. J., and went through a period of training with his guide dog, "Missie."

A month later, Fox returned to Chama, N. M., where his wife Shirley and their six-year-old son "Skipper" had taken an option on a small dude ranch.

Finding the dude ranch business slow, he returned to his home town of Trinidad, Colo., where he started work as a sports reporter for the town's two newspapers.

Used Radio—

"I would cover the sports event by radio and record the play," he says, "and then would write up my story."

While in Trinidad, he went to night school and completed his book, "Blind Adventure," which he had started in the Philadelphia hospital. It was published by the J. P. Lippincott Publishing Company.

He then studied at Adams State College in Alamosa, Colo., where he took his bachelor of arts degree.

He regularly makes the Dean's honor roll in the UNM College of Law where he and his wife are now enrolled for the same courses.

"I love my chosen profession and I definitely do not want sympathy," he said.

Then he added: "I know when I get into court the opposing lawyer trying to win his case the same as I am will give me no quarter."

As proof that blindness is no handicap, he points to his five buddies who went through the rehabilitation with him. Two have finished law schools, two are now studying law and one is working toward his master's degree in sociology.

House Building Expected to Be At Normal Rate

Fears that home building in North Eddy County would be discouraged during the next few months by a shortage of mortgage money are rapidly disappearing, according to T. C. Stromberg, local lumber and building materials dealer and member of the Public Affairs Committee of the National Retail Lumber Dealers Association.

"Some parts of the country, including North Eddy County experienced difficulty in arranging mortgages until recently, but additional funds have become available as a result of payments made on outstanding mortgages and increased personal savings in the hands of lending institutions," Stromberg said.

"Actually, unless building products containing steel, copper, and aluminum become more scarce than appears likely now, home building should continue at an above-average rate during the next year."

Legislation recently passed by Congress permits smaller down payments on lower-priced houses, thus making it possible for more families to purchase a new home.

"Defense agencies in Washington say that, at the present time, they have no intention of discouraging construction of small and medium sized homes, although they are issuing very few permits for so-called luxury housing."

"Under existing regulations, anyone wishing to build a home requiring no more than 1,800 pounds of steel and 35 pounds of copper, or 1,450 pounds of steel and 160 pounds of copper, automatically qualifies for an allotment of critical materials and may start building without having to submit an application to Washington."

"This self-certification plan was adopted by the National Production Authority so that red tape would not delay construction of homes in the modest price range."

Judgment and Skill of School Bus Drivers Makes Their Job Paramount

Eight bus drivers are on hand every morning and afternoon to take Artesia's youngsters to and from school.

Artesia bus drivers are John Boans, H. O. Miller, William Bennett, Ernest Bonine, Mrs. Claude Mathews, R. M. Parham, Duane Sams, Mrs. D. D. Essex.

The importance of the bus driver to the school system is the subject of an article in the September issue of "Automobile Facts," which has just been received.

In many respects, his is one of the most responsible jobs in a public school system. Each school day, a bus load of 10 to 40 children are placed in his charge. Their well-being and safety rests on his judgment and skill as they ride from home to classrooms and back again.

Last year, some 43,800 schools in the country are more than 104,000 buses for student transportation. These vehicles carried an estimated 6,263,700 children each school day, covering round trip routes totaling more than 4½ million miles.

Compared with 1949, these figures demonstrate a continuing growth of bus use for pupil transportation. Buses in operation increased by 6,596,207,495 miles of one-way route were added and 543,314 more children were carried.

Users Decline—

The number of schools using buses, however, decreased by 1,443, indicating continued consolidation of rural schools. These consolidations made possible by bus transportation are providing farm children with modern educational facilities comparable to the best city schools.

Old fashioned one-room country school houses have been on the wane since 1916 when some 200,000 of them were dotted over the rural landscape. Today there are less than 70,000.

Although many cities and towns now provide free bus transportation for some students, 90 per cent of all school bus travel still is in the country.

Safer Buses—

A great deal of progress has been made by most states in establishing sound school bus safety laws. With 90 per cent of its bus production going to schools, the automotive industry at the same time is building school buses designed for maximum safety and reliability.

But, neither sound laws nor good buses can safeguard against the dangerous driver.

Finding good bus drivers has been a major problem for school officials.

The problem is to find good drivers who are willing to work for half the pay they might receive in other jobs. School bus driving is a part-time job for which schools cannot afford to pay full-time wages.

Tarheel Answer—

A solution to the problem, however, is being widely tried with good results.

In North Carolina, for example, 85 per cent of school bus drivers are high school students. So far, their accident record has been superior to that of the adult drivers. Leading students are selected and trained for weeks by representatives of the state department of motor vehicles.

Twenty-four states altogether are now using high school students as school bus drivers.

Bonuses Paid—

Elsewhere, in localities where conditions permit, college students are being employed.

This is being done, for example, in Riverside, California, where a private contractor owns and operates the school's transportation fleet of 26 new buses. The contractor hires college students for drivers after rigid written and road tests. To promote greater safety, he rewards good driving habits, road courtesy and bus discipline with weekly bonuses. An another safety measure, a supervisor rides each bus and all individual school loading zones are supervised by a school instructor.

Raymond J. Brancheau, athletic director at New Mexico Western college, Silver City, N. M., played football under the immortal Knute Rockne in 1931. He was voted "most valuable player" on the Notre Dame football team in 1933.

The Navy lost 11 of its 110 World War II aircraft carriers—an average loss of one carrier to every 85 months of combat operation.

Job Service Stresses Hire Of Local Labor

Artesia is reaching deep into the barrel to combat a labor shortage, making it more imperative than ever for employers to hire physically handicapped workers, Carl C. Foster, manager of the Artesia office of the New Mexico Employment Service, said today.

He emphasized that, even with a tight labor market, it is necessary to fully utilize the local manpower supply before calling for outside help. "In order to help relieve the critical labor situation here, it is important that employers examine the job qualifications of all physically handicapped persons registered at the office of the New Mexico State Employment Service," Mr. Foster emphasized.

"And it is just as important that handicapped persons who are prepared to work, register at the local employment office. Those not now prepared for an occupation may be surprised to learn what a rehabilitation course will do for them."

Foster said disabled workers represent one of four major sources of new workers in a tight market. Others are older workers, women, and youth.

"Physically handicapped persons represent a source of manpower which employers can count on with confidence," he added.

"Numerous surveys, as well as the experience of employers, have shown that these workers are eminently satisfactory when placed in jobs matching their skills and physical abilities."

"They not only are productive and efficient workers, but they have a good safety and absenteeism records."

I HATE TO THROW AWAY MEAT THAT COST SO MUCH BUT THE TAIL OF THIS STEAK IS JUST TOO TOUGH TO EAT.

IT CERTAINLY IS. MUST YOU BUY MEAT WITH SO MUCH WASTE ON IT?

when you buy SAFEWAY STEAK

trimmed before weighing

No tough meat "tail" on Safeway steak! No excess bone and fat. We trim away these waste parts (see diagram above) so that you get only the tender center portion that will broil just right.
