Material Only Item Lacking, Says Oil Chief

BOSTON, Oct. 26 — The only shortages which bother the oil industry are in the materials it needs for expansion, not in the products it has to sell, but it could not meet tremendously increasing civilian and military demands for its products without private initiative and the profit motive. This was the message of Dr. Robert E. Wilson of Chicago, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) when he addressed 1,000 business executives at the annual Boston Conference on Distribution at the Hotel Statler, Boston. Dr. Wilson's address, a feature of Oil Progress Week in New England, carried a warning that freedom of American business is in serious danger from a governmental interference which would be against the public interest. He said that unless the oil industry is free to manage its own business without undue interference from bureaucrats, oil's service to the people "will surely wither."

Going into considerable detail to substantiate his points Dr. Wilson gave the conference what he called "A case history on the advantages of a free economy in America." His topic was "Progress in Petroleum Distribution" and he said, "I don't know where you could find for your Conference on Distribution a better example of how a great, complicated system of production and distribution can function smoothly in the interest of all the people."

Long Trail—
In opening his remarks Dr. Wilson called attention to the facts that "From oil well to market is a long way in the petroleum industry. The average distance is in fact about 1,000 miles. It is a way on which we encounter the whole gamut of distribution problems. In meeting them we have developed a distribution system that is unique in many aspects."

To talk to you about progress in distribution, therefore, I must talk about the scope and progress of the petroleum industry. Then he took up each phase of the petroleum industry and commented on some of its problems.

On Production—
Discussing production he said: "We produced as much oil last year as we did in the first 50 years of the history of the oil industry. The energy requirements of this country, including fuel for heating homes, and so forth, have increased tremendously since 1918. Of that increase, oil and natural gas have supplied 95 per cent and water power has supplied 5 per cent, while coal has actually lost ground."

Transport—
Regarding transportation, Dr. Wilson remarked, "Probably no other industry uses more transportation in relation to its business, and most of it is highly specialized and industry-owned. When you stop to think of it, our industry has been largely responsible for developing all of the modern methods for large-scale handling of liquids, such as pipe lines, tank cars, tank trucks, barges, and tankers. Pipe lines are hauling about 12 per cent of the ton-miles of all freight hauled in the United States."

"These various means of transportation make it possible to deliver gasoline and other products everywhere in America at an average over-all transportation cost of about three cents a gallon. In other words, seven pounds of oil are transported a thousand miles by a series of integrated facilities at lower cost than a one-ounce letter over a shorter average distance. And yet our bureaucrats are insisting that we divorce transportation from refining and marketing!"

When he came to exploration and wildcatting (wells drilled a mile or more from production areas in an attempt to develop new sources of supply) Dr. Wilson pointed to the great financial hazards involved. After mentioning that 8,000 wildcat wells were drilled in the United States last year, he caustically remarked:

"Can you imagine the government engaging intelligently and efficiently in a wildcatting operation? Can you imagine the Secretary of the Interior explaining to a Senate committee why they drilled in the 80 per cent of places that proved dry? Or, what is more likely, trying to explain why all the Democratic county chairmen had their ranches drilled on and the Republicans didn't!"

Calling attention to the fact that it is much easier to buy gasoline today than it is to buy a postage stamp or a soda, because there are five times as many service stations as drug stores, Dr. Wilson cited facts to show that gasoline is still a bargain, in spite of excessive taxes; prices for oil products are determined by vigorous competition, and oil industry profits are fair—lower than most people think.

"There is one guarantee we must have if the progress of the people through petroleum is to continue," Dr. Wilson said in conclusion. "That one thing is freedom—freedom to explore where we will, freedom to conduct our research, freedom to seek capital and build plants and facilities, freedom to earn profits with which to finance expansion and maintain our credit."

It's portable and so the meal can be cooked the modern electric way. Then the entire unit can be unplugged and moved near the serving table... for ease of serving and for really hot, wholesome meals. What's more the roaster is fine for that outdoor picnic or outing meal. The meal can be cooked in advance at home and the roaster taken to the picnic spot... it's designed to keep meals hot for hours. # U.S. Petroleum Industry Boosts Nation's Courage

HOUSTON—The American petroleum industry has played no small part in bolstering the courage of the American people in these critical times, Frank M. Porter, president of the American Petroleum Institute has said.

Porter, addressing a gathering of more than 1,000 persons at an Oil Progress Week luncheon in Houston, declared:

"The times are grave. Crisis piles upon crisis and the daily newspaper is a symposium of horror. But the people of this country have kept their courage firm and their hope high. They have not wilted under the strain. They have stood up boldly—defiantly—able and ready to take whatever may befall.

"Many factors are responsible for this fine demonstration of national will power. Patriotism, idealism and the conviction that right makes might—these have fortified the American people in time of trial. Yet I am convinced that the very presence of our American petroleum industry has played no small part in bolstering the courage of our people."

The API executive said the American people know that their free petroleum industry has never failed them, and that it never will. He continued:

"They recall its record in World War I and II. They are immeasurably heartened by this record, for even the least informed about events realize that oil is decisive in modern war. Though he may not know what Tito said to Stalin, the man on the street can tell you that the victories of modern war are won on the oil fields of this nation—as those of the Nineteenth century were won on the playing fields of Eton.

"Our nation's tremendous petroleum reserves are a comfort to the American people. But other reserves do even more to inspire faith in our country's invincible strength. These are the reserves of enterprise, of creative energy, of daring, of technical skill—and of capacity to serve, which are the glorious inborn distinctions of our free, competitive, progressive American petroleum industry.

"There is nothing else like it anywhere in the world—and that is why there is no country anywhere in the world that can match America in the productive arts of peace or the sciences of war."

Spindletop Cited—

Porter paid tribute to the Spindletop gusher, which came in right after the turn of the century, and to Captain John Lucas, whose persistence and courage in the face of adversity made this great well possible. The API president added:

"...if Stalin is bothered by a roaring in his ears, his doctors could safely diagnose it as the disturbing echoes of the Spindletop gusher.

"For Spindletop gave to America—to the free nations of the world—a promise of abundant oil. It released a second gusher of creative energies which has never yet been capped—and, I trust, never will be. Spindletop propelled America from leisurely agrarianism to business supremacy in technological progress. Spindletop ushered in the machine age—and crowned America as the monarch of that age."

Great Achievement—

Porter said the modern petroleum industry is a "prodigy of accomplishment" whose services extend deeply into every area of modern life—the farm, the factory, the home, even the battlefield. This didn't come about, because oil men possessed a kind of Midas touch, he said.

It came about, he continued, because men like Captain Lucas refused to be discouraged, and because competition is so keen that "every oil man . . . responds to it like a race horse coming down the stretch in a photo finish." The oil industry has no use for a defeatist. Porter said, continuing:

"You recall how Captain Lucas rejected the experts who told him he couldn't find oil under Spindletop. Well, oil men of today are still closing their eyes to 'you can't do that' boys. And they are still doing things that can't be done.

"For example, oil is inflammable. It doesn't take an expert to know that. Everybody knows it. Yet petroleum scientists have developed a fire-proofing product from oil.

"Oil is an ugly, evil-smelling mineral. Yet it is used to make the shearest nylon hose.

Used in Plastics—

"Petroleum is a liquid or a gas. Yet it forms the substance of those handsomely-turned plastic utensils you see in the houseware stores.

"Oil is slimy to the touch—most women hate the feel of it. Yet it makes a superior soap for household use and forms the base of some cosmetics.

"A drop of oil has no brain, no discrimination. Yet, chemists have found a way to send oil into a field to kill weeds without harming valuable crops.

"Oil has so many peaceful uses. It is a practical, workaday product, a willing slave, a tractable servant. But it is also one of the deadliest weapons of modern warfare—the dread napalm so profoundly unloved by Chinese Communist soldiers in Korea."

Wildcaters Praised—

Porter hailed the work of the wildcaters and the drillers in making abundant supplies of petroleum available to the American people, despite the heavy odds against their success. He said:

"Natural resources are precious gifts to possess, but they are idle gifts unless you have the human resources to work them. After all, petroleum was in the ground millions of years before anyone thought of drilling an oil well.

It would be idle in the ground today if we didn't have enterprising Americans to go after it. Without our oil operators, the American people would get no more benefit from their petroleum resources than from such remote and un-touchable phenomena as the rings of Saturn."

Records against opponent basketball teams faced in 1950-51, show New Mexico Western College, Silver City, N. M., holding a 74 to 53 victory edge.

New Light Put On Egg Standard

"I just have a few hens. What must I do when I sell my eggs?" Many small poultry flock owners in New Mexico have been asking this question since the new state egg law went into effect last summer. According to Richard Marek, state egg inspector, the New Mexico Egg Law was created to standardize the quality of eggs sold to consumers—not to work a hardship on any producer.

Yet misinformation concerning the egg law has caused producers a great deal of bewilderment, Marek says. Many small flock owners would rather sell their hens than to try to sell a few dozen eggs under the law. But when the law is explained, Marek adds, nine out of every ten farmers raising poultry find that the law does not affect them.

Marek believes that the following explanations will help to clarify some of the confusion:

A producer selling directly to the consumer less than five cases (30 dozen per case) of eggs in any one week is exempt under the law. This means that the producer can sell his eggs directly to the consumer. If the producer sells over five cases of eggs a week, he will be required to grade, size, carton, and stamp the cartons. In other words, he must comply under the law.

Under the new egg law, a grocery store can still continue to buy from local producers. If a dealer or grocer buys less than 10 cases of eggs a week from producers, he is exempt under the provisions of the law—provided he buys all his eggs from producers.

If he buys any eggs from another dealer, he must comply with the law. When a dealer is operating under the law, he must comply with all the regulations. Some grocers have refused to buy local eggs because they don't want to candle and grade eggs.

Many grocery stores are now buying eggs in cartons from the producers who are doing their own grading and packing. This has proved to be a very satisfactory system for both the dealer and producer.

Producers having questions concerning the New Mexico Egg Grading Act can address their inquiries to the Inspection Department, State College, New Mexico.

The championships were captured by New Mexico Western College in 1950-51 athletic competition. The cage squad was a co-champion with Eastern New Mexico University. A tennis doubles team won the other championship.

Scoring totals for all games played in 1950-51 by the New Mexico Western College basketball team gave opponents 1,469 points to NMW's 1,692.

New Mexico Western College holds nine wins over Highlands University in football competition dating back to 1934. NMW has lost only one and tied three.

Canadian Oil Business Lauded

MONTREAL, Quebec, Oct. 24—Harry J. Kennedy, Houston, vice-president of the marketing section of the American Petroleum Institute and vice-president of Continental Oil Company, tonight paid tribute to Canadian industrial expansion which he said is moving at a pace unequalled in any other part of the free world and contributing immeasurably to the North American defense effort.

Kennedy, speaking to directors and the management group of Canadian Oil Companies, Ltd., following that organization's dedication of its new lubricating oil and grease manufacturing plant at Montreal, lauded Canada's recent growth in the petroleum sphere. Spectacular developments of crude oil reserves in the western provinces have created a great need for refining facilities, and the Dominion is forging ahead at this task, Kennedy said.

The plant dedicated today and recently completed at a cost of $2,000,000, is part of a $22,000,000 expansion program of Canadian Oil Companies, Ltd., highlighted by an $18,000,000 refinery now being built near Sarnia, Ont., and to be completed early next year.

Canada's rapidly expanding petroleum industry, linked with the development of its other industries, such as agriculture and mining, is bringing a new day for the Dominion, offering jobs and a promising future for the technically trained youth, which heretofore have been drained off heavily lucrative jobs elsewhere, Kennedy observed.

The Continental Oil Company representative pointed up the importance of Canadian oil production and refining to North American security in the event that Caribbean or Middle East crude oil further curtailed by an international situation.

Canadian industry's forward-looking spirit, such as manifested by Canadian Oil Companies, Ltd. in building up oil manufacturing facilities, will contribute to Dominion's new era of progress, provide happier and more prosperous lives for its people and help the scheme of mutual defense, which Canada and the United States are pledged, Kennedy concluded.

WOODSIDE PLUMBING AND HEATING

Ever stop to think Your First Car can be a Buick!

THIS being a land where it is every man's right to dream of getting ahead—and the pursuit of happiness is guaranteed by the Constitution—it happens that a great many people aspire to own a Buick.

But too often they start with a lesser car first—from a feeling that Buicks are something you have to build up to gradually, as your take-home pay improves. So—if you have any such notion—we'd like to set you straight, right here and now.

You don't have to hope and dream and wait. If you can afford a new car—the first car you buy can be the Buick SPECIAL pictured here.

Its price tag says so. Its low cost of operation says so too.

We know that it looks like a lot of money. That's what makes it such a buy.

We know that it has a long list of features found in costlier cars, and that it rides and handles like cars that sell for a great deal more.

But that simply means that—at its price —you're getting a very big money's worth.

All of which adds up to one conclusion: the smart thing to do is come in and give this neat and nimble new SPECIAL a thorough going-over.

Try out its power—the power of its high-compression, valve-in-head Fireball Engine.

Try out its ride and handling—and you'll discover it has the "big-car feel" that you'd expect from a Buick.

Try it out for size—for room—for comfort—for all the things that you've dreamed someday of having in a car—and you'll thank your stars that you found out the facts of life in time.

Equipment, accessories, trim and models are subject to change without notice. *Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on other series.

Of course you know your ABC's but do you know your D's and E's? Under present world conditions, D standing for Defense and E standing for Series E Defense Bonds are inseparable. By buying Defense Bonds regularly you help build the nation's economic strength that backs up our defense effort. At the same-time you are helping yourself. Every Series E Bond you own automatically goes on earning interest every year for 30 years from date of purchase instead of 10 years as before. This means that the bond you bought for $18.75 can return you not just $25 but as much as $33.33. A $37.50 bond pays $66.66. And so on.

Texan to Receive Golden Medal Of Oil Alliance

NEW YORK, Oct. 25—General Ernest O. Thompson, one of the nation's foremost petroleum conservation experts, was named today as the 1935 recipient of the American Petroleum Institute's "Gold Medal For Distinguished Achievement."

The API citation, which is presented annually to some outstanding American, is regarded as one of the nation's top industrial awards.

General Thompson will receive the Gold Medal in person in Chicago on Wednesday morning, Nov. 7, during the course of the Institute's 31st Annual Meeting. It will be presented to him at a general session by W. Alton Jones, president of Cities Service Company, and chairman of the Institute's board of directors.

The 59-year-old soldier, lawyer, petroleum expert and public official will respond with a major address, upon completion of the ceremony. Details of the inscription on the scroll which accompanies the Gold Medal will not be disclosed until it is read publicly to the great audience of oil men in the Stevens Hotel.

As the 1935 recipient of the Gold Medal, General Thompson will join the ranks of these outstanding Americans who received the award in past years; Walter C. Teagle, retired, former president of Standard Oil Company (New Jersey); J. Howard Pew, of Sun Oil Company; Dr. Charles F. Kettering, internationally-famed scientist; Dr. William M. Burton, creator of the Burton cracking process, and Henry Ford, the late motor magnate.

Compact Founder—

General Thompson is a member of the Texas Railroad Commission, and has been since 1932. The Commission is the regulatory body for the oil industry in Texas, and he has exercised a tremendous influence in the development of conservation policies to protect this nation's precious reserves of oil. He is also an author and founder of the Interstate Oil Compact Commission, and has played a leading role in perfecting technique to increase the amount of oil that could be extracted from nature's subterranean storehouses.

Born in Alford, Texas, on March 24, 1892, General Thompson has been a resident of Amarillo ever since his family moved to that city in 1900. He also maintains a home at Austin, where the offices of the Railroad Commission are located.

He has been a "citizen-soldier" all of his adult life, joining the Texas National Guard prior to World War I. After service overseas during World War I, he rejoined the Texas National Guard, and is still with it today—as Commanding General.

General Thompson was appointed personal representative of President Roosevelt for the World Petroleum Congress in Paris in 1937, and again this past summer he attended the Third World Petroleum Congress in Holland as one of the two official representatives of the U. S. government.

Thoroughly familiar with all phases of oil, particularly production, General Thompson has written frequently and authoritatively on his favorite subjects, conservation and waste prevention in relation to the production of oil and gas. He is known internationally, and is regarded highly by leading petroleum experts in this country.

Presentation of the Gold Medal will be one of the many highlights of the Institute's 31st annual meeting, which will be attended by more than 5,000 oil men from all sections of the United States. The meeting will be held in the Stevens Hotel and the Palmer House, Nov. 5-8, inclusive.

Among the many prominent persons scheduled to address it, in addition to General Thompson, are Secretary of the Interior Oscar L. Chapman, General of the Army and Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Omar N. Bradley, Governor Allan Shivers of Texas, Eugene Holman, president of Standard Oil Company (New Jersey), and Frank M. Porter, president of the Institute.

Plans Drafted For Combined Aggie Building

Specifications on a consolidated U. S. Department of Agriculture building should meet were submitted Wednesday by N. W. Stiver, administrative officer of the Eddy County PMA.

Stiver's floor plans call for a building 40 by 77 feet containing 3,080 feet of floor space.

Of the total space, 2,045 square feet would be required by the four offices involved in the consolidation, while the remaining 1,035 square feet would be occupied by such things as rest rooms, halls, janitor's room, reception and conference rooms.

There would be a total of 15 rooms counting store rooms, janitor's room and rest rooms. Four offices are involved in the consolidation project, instead of three announced previously. The U. S. Forest Service, which would use the facilities of a consolidated building part of the time had not figured in previous calculations, according to Stiver. Other offices involved as previously mentioned are the Soil Conservation Service, The Production and Marketing Administration, and the Farmers Home Administration. Floor space allocations for these four offices would be as follows: Soil Conservation Service, 800 square feet; Production and Marketing Administration, 540; Farmers Home Administration, 490; Forest Service, 300. Stivers reported that it had been proposed to build a building at Carlsbad which would meet the specifications set forth.

Here's What a Package From Taos Means to a Yugoslavian Family

BELGRADE—What happens in a Yugoslavian family when a CARE package arrives? To anyone living in America, the answer may sound innocuous. After all, a $10 CARE food package contains only the most common and simplest items—bacon, coffee, milk powder, chocolate, spaghetti, cocoa, flour, sugar, soap, Nourishing, but unexciting to an American.

In Yugoslavia, suffering from the results of drought and failure on top of widespread damages, all these things are a premium. To Mrs. Lenka Stojanovic and her government-clerk husband and their two sons, the arrival of a CARE package, sent by Mrs. Frank H. Kentnor, of New Mexico, came as the start of a week's excited and almost breathless expectations.

We received a letter from Mrs. Stojanovic, who is a relative of my mother, about a week ago, telling me that the CARE package was on its way. Mrs. Stojanovic told me that the CARE Mission Staff when she picked up her package at the warehouse in Belgrade.

The letter listed everything in the parcel, she continued. "My husband sat down and read the letter again and again and discussed the contents of the CARE package with all excited about the bacon, coffee and flour. My 12-year-old boy talked of nothing but the chocolate. My oldest, Dusan, 16, thought of sugar and cocoa also had their points. And my husband—he thought of nothing but the coffee."

For a week, the pending arrival of the CARE package was the only topic of conversation among them. It came the day on which the package brought the card from the CARE Mission notifying her to call for the package.

But none of the Stojanovics was home at the time. Neighbors told Mrs. Stojanovic later that the carrier had taken the card with him.

When Dusan came home from school, he would not wait another day. He went off to the post office and found out where the letter carrier for the parcel, leaving it to her son to write the family's thanks for the marvelous package to the far-off relative in New Mexico, U.S.A.

Whether Dusan will be able to explain, in basic English, that it would take his father about eight weeks to earn what a CARE package is worth in food-short Yugoslavia today is altogether another matter.

In addition to the Yugoslav standard food package at $10, CARE has other food and textile packages for Yugoslavia ranging in price from $4 for the ten-pound lard package, to $15.00 for the woolen suiting and findings package and $18.75 for a Holiday Turkey Package.

Americans who have no friends or relatives or other personal ties in Yugoslavia, may prefer to help in the CARE distribution of U. S. Government farm-surplus foods.

A single contribution of $5.35 guarantees the delivery of 300 pounds of powdered milk and egg powder, sufficient supplementary nourishment for 100 people for a month, to any community in any of the six federated republics of Yugoslavia.

Orders for any of CARE's food and textile packages or donations in any amount may be forwarded through any local CARE outlet or directly to CARE, 20 Broad Street, New York 5, N. Y.

In 1950, county extension agents in the U. S. averaged 62 broadcasts per county in the 2,298 counties reporting the use of radio last year.

Competition Big Factor in Oil, Official States

PHILADELPHIA, October 26—The oil companies are able to meet the public's constantly increasing demand only because they compete vigorously with each other, according to John L. Dupree, chairman of the oil industry information committee, in an address before a Poor Richard Club here.

Dupree said that the purpose of the industry's public relations program, which is conducted by the American Petroleum Institute, is to tell the story of oil and the competition and the agreements which it has made.

"I think it is important for the public to realize that the tangible benefits of our country's greatest resource, the fruits of its strength, are the primary source of its wealth," Dupree said.

"The source is to be found in the oil enterprise. It is the motive force to win new customers, to improve methods, operate efficiently that has built the strength to help the nation through the uncertain times that lie ahead."

A review of the oil industry information committee program created in 1946, Dupree said, shows that its advertising and public relations, as well as its field work with secondary schools, are trying to accomplish only to the oil business, he said, "but it seems to me an effort to protect the right of private property, private management, and to do what is possible to preserve the climate of freedom in which to operate this industry as a whole."

"The basic purpose is no different from that of any organization that attempts to regulate and strengthen the faith of the individual freedom. For freedoms of all of us are bound together in one piece. Freedom of speech and worship, all of which are sacred to us, cannot be separated and distinct from the economic freedom with which we in business are concerned."

"Freedom, indeed, is indivisible and the loss of economic freedom eventually must affect our freedoms. Similarly, no freedom of us, whatever may be the endeavor, can be regulated or controlled either by government or within itself without the feeling being felt throughout the fabric of society."

"Authorities say it is doubtful whether the turtle has changed in the last million years. Reason is the reason given by the shell."

Hagerman News

By Mrs. Edna Black

The District Conference of the Pecos Valley District was held at the Hagerman Methodist Church Wednesday afternoon and evening, and Thursday forenoon of last week.

Among the highlights of the conference was an outstanding sermon by the Rev. Martin Parker, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Odessa, Texas.

The closing number of the program was a wonderful address by Bishop W. Angie Smith of the Oklahoma area. The large audience sat spellbound while Bishop Smith who has traveled all over the world and understands conditions in many mission fields told of conditions there.

Over 150 visitors registered, the majority being from this conference. Others were Rev. and Mrs. Frank Curry from the Albuquerque conference, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Greathouse from the Clovis conference, Rev. and Mrs. McCleskey, Rev. and Mrs. Bryan Hall.

A delicious dinner was served Thursday to the guests and home folks which had been prepared by both circles of the W.S.C.S. and served by the Belle Bennett Circle.

Many lovely flowers were used in decorating. One of the outstanding bouquets was brought by Mrs. C. A. Clark of Artesia from her own gardens.

A violin trio by three little girls—Cindy and Lynn Welborn, and Betty Watford—was enthusiastically received. The choir also sang several specials which were appreciated very much.

District Superintendent Doctor Lindsey D. Trone, presided over the conference and reports from each minister in the conference was read.

Two boys from one of the Odessa churches were licensed to preach. They were Teddy Harris, who was present, and Richard Laman, who could not be here on account of being hospitalized from an injury sustained while playing football.

W. L. Heitman received a call early Tuesday morning that S. D. Morris of Laverne, Calif., had died. Mr. Morris was the father of Mrs. Fredrick Heitman of Lovington. As soon as possible after receiving the message, Mr. and Mrs. Fredrick Heitman and children left for California to attend the funeral services. Besides an invalid wife, Mr. Morris leaves one daughter, Mrs. Heitman, and four sons—William, Bert of El Paso, and Murl, Irl and Fred, and a host of friends.

The Hagerman Rainbow Assembly met on Monday evening for a regular meeting at the Masonic Hall. Miss Rita McAlister, worthy advisor, presided.

An invitation to attend a Friendship Assembly to be held at Elida, Nov. 4, was accepted. Plans were also made to hold an enchilada supper in the near future, the date to be announced later.

Initiation ceremonies were held for Peggy Jane Cumpsten, Gloria Menoud and JoDell Freeman. This very impressive ceremony was beautifully performed by the officers. Music by Wanda Sue Busby and Donna Rae Lively added to the effectiveness of the initiation.

The hall was decorated with red roses, Rita's chosen flower.

Following the meeting cookies and cocoa were served to a large number of Rainbow Girls, Eastern Stars and Masons.

Miss Rozella Sperling who is wed Harold E. Russell Friday evening at the parsonage of the Church of the Nazarene was honored with a lovely shower and coffee on Saturday morning, Oct. 20, at the home of Mrs. E. C. Smith on North Cambridge Avenue.

Miss Sperling was seated at a table on which were piled a large number of lovely and useful gifts. She was assisted in opening the gifts by Mrs. E. C. Smith.

Many lovely autumn flowers added a colorful touch to the rooms for the occasion.

The hostesses were Mrs. E. C. Smith, Mrs. Royce Lankford and Mrs. Howard Brown. About 65 had been invited to this pleasant affair.

J. E. McKinstry of El Paso and J. E. Senn of Artesia were Hagerman visitors Monday, J. E. coming here to visit his grandmother, Mrs. Tom McKinstry.

Junior Harmon has bought the Polka Dot Cafe from Mr. and Mrs. Hendricks who have been operating it for sometime after coming here from Artesia.

Soldier, Attorney, Oil Expert Winner of Golden Medal of API

Gen. Ernest Othmer Thompson—soldier, lawyer, petroleum expert, and public official—has exercised a tremendous influence on development of the vast program for conservation of this nation's precious oil resources.

First appointed to membership on the Texas Railroad Commission in 1932 when that regulatory body was struggling with problems caused by the opening of the rich East Texas Field, General Thompson was re-elected in 1948 to a six-year term which will continue through 1955.

During that period he has played a leading role in the development of the Interstate Oil Compact Commission and in the perfecting of techniques for obtaining far larger quantities of oil from the ground than was thought possible two decades ago.

General Thompson was born in Abord, Texas, March 24, 1892. He has been a resident of Amarillo ever since his family moved to that city in 1900. General and Mrs. Thompson, the former May Peterson, Metropolitan Opera prima donna whom he married in 1924, also maintain a home in the Texas capital city of Austin.

Doctor of Laws—
Educated in Amarillo public schools, Virginia Military Institute, Eastman Business College, and the University of Texas, he won his bachelor of laws degree from the University of Texas Law School in 1917.

The honorary degree of doctor of laws has been conferred upon him twice—by Texas Technological College in 1940 and by Texas Christian University in 1951.

General Thompson has been a citizen soldier all of his adult life. He joined the Texas National Guard prior to World War I, and attended the first officers' training school at Leon Springs. Commissioned a captain of infantry, he served with the 90th Division in France throughout the war and in the Army of Occupation in Germany.

Returning to the United States in command of the 146th Ohio Infantry Regiment, he re-entered the Texas National Guard immediately on its formation, and continued with it. Besides training two regiments in World War II, he also made a "Fuels and Lubricants Survey of the World" for Secretary of War Patterson. After the war had ended, he was commissioned a major-general, as Deputy Commander of the Texas National Guard. When he was made a lieutenant-general in 1949, he also became Commanding General of the Texas Guard, a position he holds today.

Mayor of Amarillo—
The legal phase of Thompson's career began at the close of World War I when he started practice in his home town, Amarillo. He was twice elected mayor of that city. In 1949 his friends and neighbors observed "Ernest O. Thompson Day" there. Thousands of persons from all parts of Texas participated.

In 1932 Thompson was selected by Governor Ross S. Sterling to fill a vacancy on the Texas Railroad Commission, the oil and gas regulatory and conservation agency of the state. The East Texas Field had just been brought into prolific production. The National Guard had been called out and martial law declared there in a desperate effort to establish orderly production. As a result, Thompson's military experience at once became invaluable both to the state and to an oil industry which was threatened with bankruptcy as petroleum poured out of the ground too fast to be processed, moved or marketed.

Suggested Conservation—
When the U. S. Supreme Court ruled against the use of martial law in the oil fields, Thompson appeared before a special session of the state legislature and proposed legislation for the conservation of petroleum resources.

This legislation, which says that production of oil in excess of market demand or transportation facilities is waste and shall be prohibited, was promptly passed.

So the day the Texas National Guard moved out, Thompson established proration headquarters for the Texas Railroad Commission in a tent vacated by the commanding general.

When efforts were made in the courts to show that proration was against the public interest, Thompson conducted a personal survey. It proved beyond a doubt that the proration of fields leads to far greater recovery than if the wells are allowed to run wide open, thus dissipating underground gas and water pressure.

When East Texas came in, geologists estimated that it would produce a total of about a billion barrels under existing production methods. With the conservation system instituted by the Texas Railroad Commission under Thompson's direction, the field already has produced 2,842,865,000 barrels. It also has shown an increase in well-bottom pressure due to a commission requirement that water produced with oil be returned to the producing horizon. As the result of such techniques, experts now believe that East Texas will produce 2,600,000,000 barrels of additional oil.

Dual Sovereignty—
A consistent and tenacious advocate of the dual sovereignty of federal and state governments under the United States Constitution, Thompson always has maintained that states have the exclusive right to use their police powers in protecting their own oil and gas resources.

His use of such police powers to stop railroad shipments of "hot oil" out of Texas was supported by a significantly executive order from President Franklin D. Roosevelt. A short time later Congress passed the Connally act which prohibits movement in interstate commerce of oil produced contrary to state law.

General Thompson was one of the authors and founders of the Interstate Oil Compact Commission which furnishes a forum where states can bring about uniformity and advancement in their conservation laws and practices. He has been commission chairman for three terms, and has seen the organization grow and prosper until it has a membership of 22 states and fully occupies that man's land between state and federal jurisdiction.

To World Congress—
In 1937 President Roosevelt appointed General Thompson as his personal representative to the World Petroleum Congress in Paris. This year he attended the third meeting of the Congress at The Hague as one of two official representatives of the United States government.

During almost two decades of the closest kind of identification with the petroleum industry General Thompson has written frequently and authoritatively on conservation and waste prevention in relation to the production of oil and gas. He is thoroughly familiar with production practices throughout the world, and has earned the highest regard of oil experts everywhere.

Combining the incisive mind of the citizen soldier, the acumen of the lawyer, the practical eye of the business executive, and the urge toward public service of the statesmen, General Thompson has made an invaluable contribution to the progress of America through his administration of oil and gas conservation in the state of Texas.

This has been consistently true both during those times when we have been leaders in seeking world peace and when we have been reluctant participants in defensive wars.

New Mexico Aggie Enrollment 1653

STATE COLLEGE, Oct. 26 — Final enrollment figures at New Mexico A. & M. College show 1,653 registered as compared with 1,597 students for the same period last year.

The school of arts and sciences leads with 635; the school of agriculture and home economics has 406; and the engineering school has 242.

White Sands with 196 leads in enrollment at the three instructional centers maintained by New Mexico A. & M. Carlsbad has 82 and Alamogordo has 72.

The graduate school has 103 students doing on-campus work. An additional 67 are enrolled for advanced study at White Sands and eight students are enrolled in graduate work at Alamogordo.

Last year there were only 99 students in the entire graduate program.

With 371 members, the freshman class tops all others in enrollment. Sophomores have 272 enrolled; juniors have 254 and seniors have 240.

United Nations Week has been set for October 21-27 this year, and United Nations Day will be observed October 24. On that date in 1946, a sufficient number of nations ratified the United Nations Charter to bring it into effect.

United Nations Day is observed on a world-wide basis.

EVEN the best of us get out of shape from time to time. But that truck of yours — if it's to be a steady source of profitable income — must be kept in hauling trim. That's our specialty.

If you turn your equipment over to our mechanics at regular intervals—we can keep your trucks in tiptop condition by catching the "little things" before they develop into major breakdowns.

And in so doing, you save money three ways.

First, you avoid 90% of the costly repairs experienced by less wise truck owners.

Second, you get more hours of profitable hauling with less time lost to "down time."

Third, you get more years of service from the equipment you now own.

Isn't it worth a try?

VA Paves Way For Korea Vet To Be Minister

A young, partly-blinded veteran of Korea, who knew ever since childhood that he wanted to be a minister, this month took the first steps toward his goal, thanks to a recent law extending vocational training to the many veterans disabled after the outbreak of the Korean conflict.

He is Bill Edd Welch, who has just entered Hendrix College in Conway, Arkansas, under the Vocational Rehabilitation Act. One of the nation's first half-dozen Korean veterans to train under the act, Welch intends to study for the Methodist ministry.

Welch was a junior in a Naylor, Mo., high school in 1949, when he decided to quit his studies and join the Army. While in uniform he received his diploma after taking his final year, by mail, with the U. S. Armed Forces Institute.

The young GI was assigned to the Far East in July, 1950, only a month after hostilities had started in Korea. Serving as a combat infantryman in Korea, he was injured in battle three times in two months. It was the third injury that caused his permanent disability—loss of sight in his left eye.

On Sept. 13, a hand grenade fragment injured his cheek and deafened him temporarily. A week later, he was released from the hospital and went right back into combat. That same day the concussion from a mortar shell explosion knocked him off a cliff. Shoulder and back injuries kept him in his hospital bed until date October.

Back in the front lines, he stayed in combat for a full month before his luck ran out. On Nov. 28, a machine gun bullet hit his face. His left eye was gone.

The Army returned him to the United States, where he was hospitalized, and he was discharged from service early this year. As soon as he left service, he applied at the Veterans Administration for vocational training under Public Law 894, a law that extended to Korean veterans the same type of training that's available to their older World War II fellow-veterans.

Before entering training, Welch went through advisement and guidance at the VA, so the agency could determine what type of training he's best suited for.

He offered no problem. For many years he had his heart set on becoming a minister, and here was his chance.

VA approved of his choice of an objective, and this month at Hendrix College he started on his way.

Korean veterans, to be eligible for vocational training at Government expense, must have been disabled on or after June 27, 1950, date of the outbreak of hostilities in Korea. The service-connected disability must be compensable, and the veteran must be in need of vocational training to overcome the handicap of his disability, VA said.

Before the last great war, we imported 20 per cent or less of our normal wool consumption — our own herds of 57 million sheep supplying the rest. But now we have been forced into the world market for as much as 80 per cent of our wool entering consumption channels.

What we know as "paper" money is actually 75 per cent cotton fiber.
