Behind the seven-hit pitching of Cuban rookie Fidel Alvarez, Artesia Drillers demolished the Amarillo Gold Sox 14-2 last night. Amarillo served notice it would use its classmen in tonight's contest.

Alvarez went all the way for Artesia. He was in trouble only in the third when the bases were loaded, but the Gold Sox failed to score. Amarillo used three rookie pitchers, giving up 14 hits to Artesia. Bob Wilfield, first on the mound, took the loss.

Big blows for Artesia were hit by Joe Bauman with a homer in the second with none on, and by Paul Halter in the third with two on. Bob Hobbs hit a roundtripper for Amarillo in the second with none on.

Josey Leaves Job As City Engineer Two Weeks Early

City Engineer John D. Josey, Jr., was notified Wednesday afternoon by a city council committee his employment by the city ended as of Wednesday, with a one-month paid vacation to begin Thursday.

Josey reported Thursday in an interview he had been informed of the decision in a letter from Mayor J. L. Briscoe.

Josey in a resignation submitted a week ago Wednesday, said his resignation would become effective May 1. In his resignation he requested a month's paid vacation to start May 1 as well as $500 for replacement of personal instruments used on the city job over the past five years.

Mayor J. L. Briscoe appointed a committee to study Josey's request for the $500.

Nothing was said in the council meeting about the committee changing the date of Josey's resignation, in effect firing him after he had resigned.

The committee, meeting on Tuesday, decided, the mayor wrote Josey, to award him $100 for repair of damage sustained by his instruments used during Josey's five years as city engineer.

The action to make Josey's resignation effective April 16 rather than May 1 was taken, the mayor wrote Josey, because to fulfill the request would mean the city could not hire a successor until June 1. "We can't have two men employed at once on your job," the letter stated.

Josey, retired as of Wednesday, spent Thursday as a private engineer, staking out a road for the city.

The engineer, who was hired May 1, 1948, said Thursday afternoon he has no concrete plans for the future now, but believes he will remain in the city in the foreseeable future. (Continued on Page Eight)

Library Adult Education Survey Gives Local Librarians Ideas

The U. S., and adult education services given. Mrs. Donald Knorr, librarian, said Artesia rated high in the last two brackets, since there are so few libraries in the Southwest and since, for its size, the Artesia library rates high in adult education services offered.

Mrs. Stevenson was non-committal and expressed no opinions about the library here during her interviews with Mrs. Knorr and Mrs. S. P. Yates, chairman of the public library board.

Survey of the library board for the Ford Foundation study is on a strictly statistical basis, Mrs. Knorr said, with no comments or observations to be given. When completed in about six months, the facts disclosed by the survey will be published. (Continued on Page Eight)

Chamber Sets Dollar Days, Store Holidays

Plans to hold a "real, city-wide" Dollar Day every two months in Artesia were voted Wednesday by the Chamber of Commerce retail trade committee, C. D. Hopkins, chairman, announced Thursday.

The Artesia Dollar Days will be held the first Thursday of every other month, Hopkins said.

The first has been scheduled for Thursday, June 4, according to Hopkins.

"Decision to hold these Artesia Dollar Days was agreed to by a representative group of Artesia businessmen, representing little stores and big stores, chain and independent stores," Hopkins pointed out.

Business Center— "Everyone is agreed that we must continually strive to build Artesia as a business center," Hopkins said. "Unity and cooperation will put over such business promotions as this Dollar Day, and everyone will benefit as the community becomes known as a shopping center."

In other business Thursday, the retail trade committee set forth recommended closing days for Artesia businesses for 1953.

They are Saturday, May 30, Declaration Day; Saturday, July 4, Fourth of July; Monday, Sept. 7, Labor Day; Wednesday, Nov. 11, Armistice Day; Thursday, Nov. 26, Thanksgiving; and Friday and Saturday, Dec. 25 and 26, Christmas.

Sixteen members of the retail trade committee met Wednesday to transact business they feel will boost Artesia as a shopping center.

Assisting Hopkins is Earl Cox as vice-chairman.

Artesia businessmen invited to join the retail trade committee are George Fowler, Julius Chandler, Orville Spahr, Ralph Petty, Dennis Short, Tom Brownlee, Jack Clem, Miss Ruth Bigler, W. W. Kennedy, A. C. Sadler, W. M. Linell, Homer Bourland, Bert Jones, F. C. Hart, Bob Siegel, Lowe Wickersham, Bill Keys, Norman Stuart, I. C. Keller, Fred Henderson, M. G. Schuize, R. W. Russell, John T. Sales School for Artesia Business Houses Announced

A sales and public relations school for employes of Artesia business houses will be held next Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday nights, according to C. D. Hopkins, chairman of the retail trade committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

The school is a three-night course of two hours per-session for employes in cooperating stores.

The course will be presented by Butterick Associates, Inc., of Lincoln, Neb.

Purpose of the course is to especially give salespeople in Artesia businesses tips on better sales methods, better public relations, and methods to increase business.

Cost of the course will be borne by businesses sending employes to attend the school.

Fifty-five topics pertaining to sales work will be brought out in the six-hour course, Hopkins said.

Businessmen will select employes to attend the sales clinic, Hopkins said, and many store managers are also expected to attend the course.

Promotion of the course for Artesia is one in a series of chamber efforts designed to better the city as a shopping center, Hopkins pointed out.

Stevens Resigns As Senior High Music Director

Resignation of Ben Stevens as band director and instrumental music instructor at Artesia Senior high school was announced Thursday morning by Tom J. Mayfield, superintendent of schools.

Stevens said Thursday he has no plans formed for employment after he leaves Artesia public schools.

His resignation is effective at the end of the school year.

No successor to Stevens has been chosen, Mayfield said.

Stevens, now teaching his second year in Artesia, came to the community in September 1951. In 1951-1952 he was instrumental music instructor for the entire Artesia school system. In 1952-1953 he became Senior high school band director and instrumental instructor.

For five years before coming to Artesia Stevens was with the Eddy county school system. In the first three years he taught at Loving, and in the last two at Atoka.

During his two-year tenure, in Artesia Stevens has been first vice-president of Artesia Mutual Concert association and first vice-president of the New Mexico Music Educators association.

He has directed the Artesia municipal band, sung in the Methodist church choir, and been a Sunday school teacher.

Stevens received his bachelor of arts degree from East-Central State college of Oklahoma. He later did (Continued on Page Eight)

Best Thought On Whatsit Is Balloon

What was it? Artesians throughout the day Tuesday spotted a silvery object which hovered in one spot in the sky.

Some were sure it was a flying saucer or a similar object. Others thought it might be a bright star, although admittedly it was rather low-flying.

Best thought was that it was a meteorological balloon. One Artesian clinched this argument to his satisfaction by reporting sighting through a telescope instruments hanging under the object.

Speeding Truck Misses Curve 19 Miles West

Highway 83's right angle turns between Hope and Artesia added two more victims to a long list Wednesday night when a speeding panel truck failed to make one of the curves, killing two men in the truck and injuring a third.

The dead are: Dale Edmund Hodkins, 33, believed to be a Fort Worth, Texas resident, driver of the truck.

Milford Harlan, 26, of Oak Grove, La., a passenger in Hodkins' truck.

Charles W. Joiner, 18, of Oak Grove and a passenger in the truck escaped with only minor injuries.

A coroner's jury in Artesia Thursday morning ruled the men had died accidentally in a motor vehicle crash.

Joiner gave this account of the accident: He and Harlan, bound from their home in Louisiana for Phoenix, Ariz., hitchhiked a ride with Hodkins near Fort Worth earlier in the week.

Take Short Route Coming through Artesia early Thursday morning, they decided on the shortcut across the Sacramento mountains to Las Cruces, where Hodkins intended to get on main routes again.

Joiner said Hodkins drove fast. All of a sudden, Joiner told the coroner's jury, the first curve in Highway 83, about 19 miles west of Artesia, was ahead of them. (Continued on Page Eight)

Board Committees Will Give Public Voice in Schools

Formation of committees, at least one of which will bring the schools closer to the public, was completed Monday night by the Artesia board of education, according to minutes of the meeting.

Board committees on curriculum, public relations, lay citizens' advisory committee, athletic council, and board of education policy were formed in Monday's meeting.

The lay citizens' advisory committee is intended to confer with board members and to express suggestions which the lay committee, representing parents and the public, feels will better the schools.

The athletic council is designed to advise school board members on athletic policies and proposals.

Its membership is to include members of the board of education and community representatives.

Both committees are still in the formative stage, and members have not yet been announced.

Both will be advisory in nature, since state law gives the board of education legal responsibility for all school matters.

Board members also voted to install paving on Hermosa drive in front of Hermosa school, discussed teacher contracts, and school re-organization matters.

Artesian Invents Windproof Lid

NEW GARBAGE can receptacle invented by Don Chapin of Artesia is absolutely flyproof and the lid is guaranteed not to blow off. A spun glass ring under the lid makes the flyproof seal.

New Can Cover Invented Here Guaranteed to Be Windproof

A garbage-trash can lid and holder guaranteed to be windproof and flyproof has been invented by Don Chapin of Artesia and patent applied for on the device.

Chapin, who has already custom-built four or five of the combination lids and holders for Artesia householders who've heard about them by word of mouth, designed it after several lids had been stolen or blown off his own receptacles.

Perhaps in time, he thinks, the manufacture of the devices may become a full-time occupation, maybe even requiring the help of several men in a miniature assembly plant.

Key feature of the holder is the lid, rigidly held in place by a pipe based in concrete.

Spun-Glass Seal—The lid itself is made of thick exterior plywood. On the bottom side of the lid is a spun-glass ring which makes it flytight. The spun glass easily gives when the can is pulled in or out of the holder, but springs into place to form the seal when the can is under it.

The lid is bolted to a hefty chunk of pipe, which is bent at a right angle and sunk in concrete in the ground.

The can itself rests on a wooden base. Flanges on top of the base guide the can when it is out back under the cover, positioning it exactly so the seal can take hold.

A patent on the device, already applied for, is now pending, Chapin reports.

Common Question—Those who see a picture of the device for the first time or one of the installations Chapin has already put in, have a common question.

"It looks so simple," they say, "that the average home handyman can make one cheaper than you can make and sell it to him."

There's where Chapin disagrees. His price tag now is $12.95 per unit, completely installed where the householder specifies.

"The average man can't go out and buy the materials, put them together and install the finished unit as cheaply as I can build them," he says.

Chapin thinks he has a big market for the device. Strong winds which blow off trash and garbage can covers throughout the Southwest, as well as rolling over the cans themselves, prevail throughout the Southwest. In addition, good sanitation in every progressive city specifies flytight lids.

Four Artesians to Play in All-Star Band With Rafael Mendez, Top Trumpeter

Rafael Mendez, the world's greatest trumpet player, will present a clinic and concert in Hobbs Saturday afternoon and evening, April 18.

Accompanying Mendez will be an 85-piece All-Star band composed of the outstanding high school musicians in Southeastern New Mexico and West Texas.

Sponsored by Hobbs high school, the event will be a highlight for all school handsmen in this area as Mendez is recognized as a truly great and highly versatile musician.

At present he plays trumpet for several of the larger Hollywood movie studio orchestras playing background music for the movie productions.

Many local music lovers have his long-playing record album which includes "Cardas," "Mendelsohn E Minor Concerto," "Zigeunerweisen," "The Bull Fighter's Song," and others.

The All-Star band will be under the direction of C. M. Stockey, chairman of the music school of Eastern New Mexico university.

Students from Artesia who have the honor of playing in the All-Star band are Don Kiddy, Nancy Long, Sam Laughlin and Charlotte Champion.

Several Artesians plan to travel to Hobbs Saturday and hear this gala musical event. Tickets may be purchased from Ben Stevens or Justin Bradbury, local school band directors.

St. Paul's Church Men Ready Plot For Building

Saturday afternoon, ten men of St. Paul's Episcopal church gathered to cut down trees facing Seventh street. Within four hours they had cut down and pulled up the roots of eight trees—a big job for a group of amateurs.

The men were Stanley Carper, Donald Chapin, Chili Currier, Jimmy Griffin, Jerry Losee, Milton Rohane, Jack Shaw, Tom Sivley, Neil Watson, and Bill Wright. As helpers three of the children came—Leland Griffin, Mike Currier, and Claire Carper.

Much advice was given by friends of the men who drove by the church all afternoon. Jack Shaw had brought a truck with a winch in from the field and this proved to be of great value in pulling up the roots. Frank Clowe loaned an electric saw to help with the project. Later in the afternoon, Tom Hefflin loaned the men another truck with a winch. The trees were pulled up, the trunks and branches removed, and the ground smoothed over for Sunday.

This project was the first step in preparing for the coming building program which St. Paul's church is planning for this year. The rest of the trees will be taken up by the end of the month.

Artesia Looks Like Well-Drilled Club in Downning Clovis 9-1 During Debut Tuesday

Already looking like a well-drilled club, the Artesia Drillers broke loose in late frames of their opening home exhibition game Tuesday evening to down Clovis of the West Texas-New Mexico league 9-1. Until the eighth inning Artesia held only a slight margin, but a six run outburst put the team on ice for the Drillers.

The game was obviously approved by the fans as the 1953 team displayed its prowess on which Mgr. Earl Perry betwined to retain first division honors for Artesia. In 1952 the Drillers finished just inside the first division in fourth place.

During early phases of the game Artesia exhibited outstanding defensive ability which paid off in 11 hits earned by the Drillers.

It was in the eighth inning that the hidden batting power of Artesia began to show itself.

Clovis' trouble started when pitcher Claude Hinkle pitched the ball to Fortin, Artesia's new rightfielder, had been in the park. Fortin knocked it from the park.

Vince DiGiantamasso went to bat on an error, as did pitcher Royce, with Vince the Giant hitting on the error putting Royce first. Joe Calderon walked and Royce came in when Bill Dial, p. lf, knocked a long double. Paul Hinkle was walked and he and Royce came in on Mighty Joe Bauer's big double.

Clovis scored in the first stanza on three singles by Glen Pine, Moore, and Ray Parker combined for a lone run with Pine using the plate.

Artesia scored in the fourth on a earned run by Paul Halter, who gained base with a hard ball to left field. Halter came when Winston Havenstrife at bat muffed his speedy ground-

Mathis Marks Seventy-Fifth Birthday

JOHN A. MATHIS, SR.

Honors Come to John A. Mathis On Seventy-Fifth Birthday

Honors and recognition galore for John A. Mathis, Sr., one of Artesia's best known, best-loved residents, are coming this week as the dean of Artesia insurance men nears his 75th birthday.

He will be 75 April 18.

Nationwide recognition is coming to Mr. Mathis this week through his nomination to the "All-Star Honor Roll" of The Insurance Salesman, leading magazine in the life insurance business.

The Honor Roll, an annual tradition in the business, is made up of one field representative from each life insurance company, nominated by his company as its "outstanding man of the year."

Readily Nominated—

Union Life Insurance Co. of Little Rock, Ark., readily nominated Mr. Mathis for the award, according to a letter from Elmo Walker, president of the company.

Union Life has written all policyholders contracted by Mr. Mathis to inform them of his achievements and draw attention to his 75th birthday, which finds him still actively selling life insurance, setting a pace unapproached by many younger men.

Walker, as president of Union Life, has written policyholders:

"John A. Mathis will celebrate his diamond anniversary on April 18. He will have lived 75 years. Because his accomplishments with Union Life Insurance Co. have been so outstanding and because all of us, both in the home office and throughout the nine states in which we operate, love and respect him so much, we are designating the entire month of April as 'John A. Mathis Month.' All business produced will be in his honor.

Heads Business—

"You perhaps are familiar with his participation in and the contribution he makes to the civic, social, and religious life of his home town and state. You will be interested to know that he was our leader in all phases of agency work in 1932; that he is a member of the National Quality Award club—the highest recognition that can come to a field underwriter; and that his policyholders won over $2 million of life insurance in his company.

"It has never been my privilege to know a man with finer character or one for whom I had any greater admiration. I think he has had more than his share of disappointments and misfortunes, but they have never broken his spirit, erase the smile from his face, or extinguished the desire in his heart to live his life by the highest standards, contributing generously his time, his talents, and his money to those less fortunate.

"He has been a wonderful father and grandfather. He is a great man. If we had more like him, the problems and complexities prevailing throughout the world would be less complex. I would like to know of the affection and the high regard we all have for him.

Mr. Mathis came to Artesia in 1940. For three years previously, he had been in Roswell after leaving Lubbock, Texas.

He has been in the insurance business for 39 years.

His home is Gilmer, Texas.

Artesia Drillers—

ers a heavy favorite in both games next week.

Sunday Artesia will go to Albuquerque for an exhibition game in the Dukes' home park. Monday night the Drillers will be idle, resting before their 140-game Long-horn league schedule opens in Carlsbad the following night.

Tickets for Artesia's opening night Wednesday are now on sale in Artesia, Driller Mgr. Perry has announced. Price of tickets for opening night next Wednesday is $1.

Josey Leaves—

First applications from would-be successors to Josey's job are expected to be opened when the city council next meets Wednesday, April 22.

He has resided at 1304 S. Eighth with his wife and three children.

Plans most recently advanced in the council call for the well to be connected to the shallow ballpark well drilled last spring.

Speeding—

Hodkins could not make the turn. Hodkins was thrown about 60 feet from the truck, according to State Patrolman A. J. Smith of Artesia, who investigated the accident at 4 a. m. Thursday.

Harlan was pinned beneath the truck.

Smith said the vehicle evidently overturned four times.

Hodkins died of head injuries, Harlan of a broken neck, according to an Artesia doctor's examination of the bodies.

Two bodies were taken by Paulin Funeral Home ambulance to Artesia for examination by medical and police authorities. Investigation to learn of relatives of the Thursday.

It is believed Harlan has no living relatives.

Only two months ago a cooperative plan between state and county officials to eliminate Highway 83's two dead men was in process dangerous curves was announced. Final right-of-way procurement and final engineering plans are now being sought.

Funeral Services Are Held Monday For Omer Kersey

Funeral services for Omer Kersey, pioneer Artesia oil man, were held Monday afternoon in Artesia, following his death here April 10 of a heart attack.

He was born Sept. 18, 1880, in Lebanon, Ind., son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas N. Kersey. He married Gertrude Beck of Lebanon on July 31, 1901. He is survived by his widow and three children.

The children are Harold Kersey, his partner in the drilling business, who resides in Artesia with his family and Miss Thelma Kersey and Mrs. Roy Holcomb (Margaret), both of Alamogordo. There are four grandchildren, Kathryn Kersey, Judy, Omer and Rosemary Holcomb.

His early years were spent and around Lebanon, Ind. He came to Artesia in 1921 and was one of the pioneer oil men in this field.

Mr. and Mrs. Kersey celebrated their Golden wedding anniversary in July of 1951.

Mrs. Mack Reasner of Artesia is a niece.

Funeral services were held at Paulin Chapel at 2:30 p. m. Monday with Rev. Ralph O'Dell officiating. Burial was in Woodlawn cemetery.

Library—

Mrs. Stevenson questioned Artesia library officials on existing facilities for adult education and why they are offered, as well as what the library would like to do if it had the facilities and finances.

Included in public library adult education measures in Artesia are the Great Books discussion group, book and library talks before community groups, and newspaper publicity designed to attract adult interest in outstanding books at the library.

Also included in the survey was analysis of the library staff and its qualifications.

The survey disclosed ideas which may be in the future employed in the Artesia library.

Staff members have already shown a keen interest in organizing initial phases of an audio-visual program, which would for the present provide a complete indexing of especially visual materials available at little or no cost to adult groups.

Among adult education services which a library can render are exhibits, films, phonograph records, program planning and counseling, story telling, book talks, group leadership training, and informa-ice of Artesia, headed by Jack Scudiero. Fence posts, bricks and a car jack were blown from the well.

Possible purchase of the well has been discussed by city council over the last month and a half. It is expected the council will move to purchase the well if production is sustained and water tests are acceptable to state public health authorities.

Purchase price of the well, according to council discussion, is $2,000.

Councilman H. B. Gilmore, chairman of the council water committee has stated in council meetings an estimated $11,000 will be required to buy the well, equip it with pump and motor, and connect it to the city water system.

Cause of Asthma Discussed By Local Doctor

Many asthma sufferers have become discouraged because they have felt theirs is an incurable disease. But asthma, like any other sickness, responds favorably to Chiropractic when its primary cause is a subluxation.

A subluxation is a mis-placement of a vertebra in the spinal column which results in the impingement of nerve fibers and thus the improper or inadequate distribution of vital life force within the body. A subluxation is a "blocking" so that some part of the body is prevented from getting the necessary vital nerve force to maintain health.

When the Chiropractor adjusts the subluxation and replaces it in its normal position, life force can again flow in the proper quantity and quality, and health restoration can begin.

Even in chronic cases of asthma that have existed over a long period of time, Chiropractic can be beneficial—so, do not be discouraged, do not give up hope. Remember, it is not right to say "everything possible has been done" unless Chiropractic is included.

For further information about Chiropractic you are invited to consult Dr. Kathryn Behnke, Palmer Graduate Chiropractor, 408 W. Richardson, Phone 861.

Delay in Meeting School Problem Makes Trouble

AGAIN THE COUNTY'S school boards have delayed negotiations toward meeting knotty school reorganization problems, thereby considerably adding to the difficulty under which all Eddy county schools have been operating for the past several years.

To many Artesians, it looks as though another Carlsbad promise made in the sweetness of victory after again defeating the Artesia county bill has been ignored.

There is no act which will unite Artesia and North Eddy county so much as deliberate failure to meet pressing school problems.

In a statement he gave the Artesia Advocate Feb. 14, George Harley, president of the Carlsbad school board, said "I immediately saw the justice of an equalization of taxable valuations for students throughout the county..."

Virgil O. McCollum, member of the county school board, issued a statement the same day, recalling a meeting he had with T. E. Brown, Sr., of Artesia, saying "We were both aware of the inequalities that existed in tax valuation as they applied to the school districts involved, and I told Mr. Brown that I was in sympathy with the problem which they wished to solve."

Feb. 14, it will be remembered, came several days before introduction of the Artesia county bill into the legislature. Was the statement of these two Carlsbad board members, containing such words as "justice" and "aware of inequalities" merely a sop to North Eddy county to lessen county-split pressure?

Since the legislature adjourned, there has been almost complete ignoring of the county school situation by members of the Carlsbad board, who alone are placing a stumbling block in the matter of reorganizing the county's schools on a more equitable, fair, and just tax basis.

In a statement to the Carlsbad press April 9, Harley said the Carlsbad board of education is "sympathetic" to the principle of equalizing school districts in the county on the basis of school population and property values.

Harley is quoted as adding, however, that the question "needs further study."

He adds that reorganization of the school districts on a basis that would be fair to all the school children in the county is a complicated question and is, has been, and will be in the near future be studied by the Carlsbad board.

Shortly after the statement appeared, Harley told an Artesia school official his board wasn't hurrying things any on the reorganization, since Artesia seemed to be sitting on the edge of a deep oil pool which, when brought in, would skyrocket North Eddy county property valuations and therefore provide plenty of money for school development.

Plainly, the Carlsbad school board is temporizing, procrastinating, and otherwise stalling.

It should be realized that any school reorganization in Eddy county becomes effective at the start of the state's fiscal year, July 1. Artesia school officials have declared, in addition, that the beneficial results to

THIS LAND OF ENCHANTMENT— Federal Narcotics Agents to Launch Complete Check Into Alleged Dope Sales at State Pen

FEDERAL NARCOTICS agents are going to open a complete check into reports of dope activity at the state penitentiary in Santa Fe, according to Warden Morris Abram.

Federal agents will interview a former employe and convicts who accuse the employe of peddling narcotics last fall.

The employe under questioning flatly refuses the accusations.

All four convicts making the accusations have long criminal records, and two are life-term habitual criminals.

Meanwhile, a doctor who was prison physician for several months seven years ago reports there were three or four stab wounds a year while he was there.

SENATOR DENNIS CHAVEZ' administrative assistants says he plans to file a libel suit in the very near future against Patrick J. Hurley and his manager, Steve Alex.

This is the latest in a battle

North Eddy county schools of school reorganization will not be felt for probably two years after the reorganization becomes effective.

By some sort of financial engineering Carlsbad board members also made sure Artesia had enough money in its school budget this year to better meet its direct charge budget, thereby relieving financial pressure on Artesia. The act was plainly designed to also relieve pressure on Carlsbad to carry through the reorganization, since Carlsbad can now say "You have plenty of money, so what are you talking about."

As the thread of Carlsbad attitudes toward the county school reorganization emerges into a clear pattern, it is increasingly apparent that a policy of delay and callous ignoring of the real hardships worked on our school children has been adopted.

Not So Bad

NORTH EDDY COUNTIANS discouraged over water supply can take heart in these comparative statistics which ceaseless research has finally brought to light.

Rainfall in Death Valley averages 1.5 inches a year.

Rainfall in Artesia amounted to 6.16 inches in 1952 and 7.36 inches in 1951. To date this year we have had .40 inches of rain in the first 31 months.

We can always point out we're four or five times better off than Death Valley.

They Aren't Any Good

A CLOSE INSPECTION of those pavement-level stop signs which abound in Artesia reveals that 90 per cent of them can't be read by anything but a low-flying eagle.

Point on most of the signs has neeled off, leaving only a chunk of iron with the word "stop" raised to be sure. But there is no contrast between the lettering and the background of the sign, making it almost impossible for anyone not familiar with this obsolete type of sign to know what it means.

To many out-of-towners those cast iron stop signs we have sunk in the pavement, merely divide a traffic lane and provide a point of reference in making a right or left hand turn.

They simply don't do the job they were intended to.

Artesia has some bonafide stop signs in town. They stand four or five feet high, are sunk well into the ground, some in concrete, and against their large orange background the black letters telling motorists to stop clearly stand out.

Stop signs aren't any good if they can't do the job they're intended to do. Those cast iron types sunk in the pavement aren't doing the job, especially where out-of-town motorists are concerned. Even the careful driver can be fooled by these pint-sized obstacles; used to looking for a stop sign on the corner standing up four or five feet, he can be excused for overlooking the diminutive types we have in Artesia.

As traffic steadily increases in volume in Artesia, preventative measures assume steadily greater importance. We should correct the areas of traffic control where past measures are deficient before they become lost in bigger problems.

Now Is the Time

WHILE EVERYBODY is thinking and talking "Clean-Up, Paint-Up, Fix-Up" in Artesia during the present campaign, it's a good opportunity for everyone to take stock of his or her household and business to make sure that lack of cleanliness and fixing-up isn't creating a fire hazard.

One of the objects of the current campaign is to make households and businesses conscious of fire hazards which may exist in their homes or businesses. Stacks of old papers, dirty rags, kindling inside a house are all invitations to fire.

Cleanliness as accentuated by the two-week campaign we are now in serves many an ideal. It makes for a healthy community, since refuse piles and other disorderly accumulations or rubbish are breeding grounds for all manner of disease-bearing wildlife.

It makes for a safer community, too, since fire hazards are eliminated.

It also serves to give the community an appearance of orderly attractiveness which is important when new residents, new businesses, and the day-to-day shoppers in our trade area are making decisions as to where they'll locate and take their business.

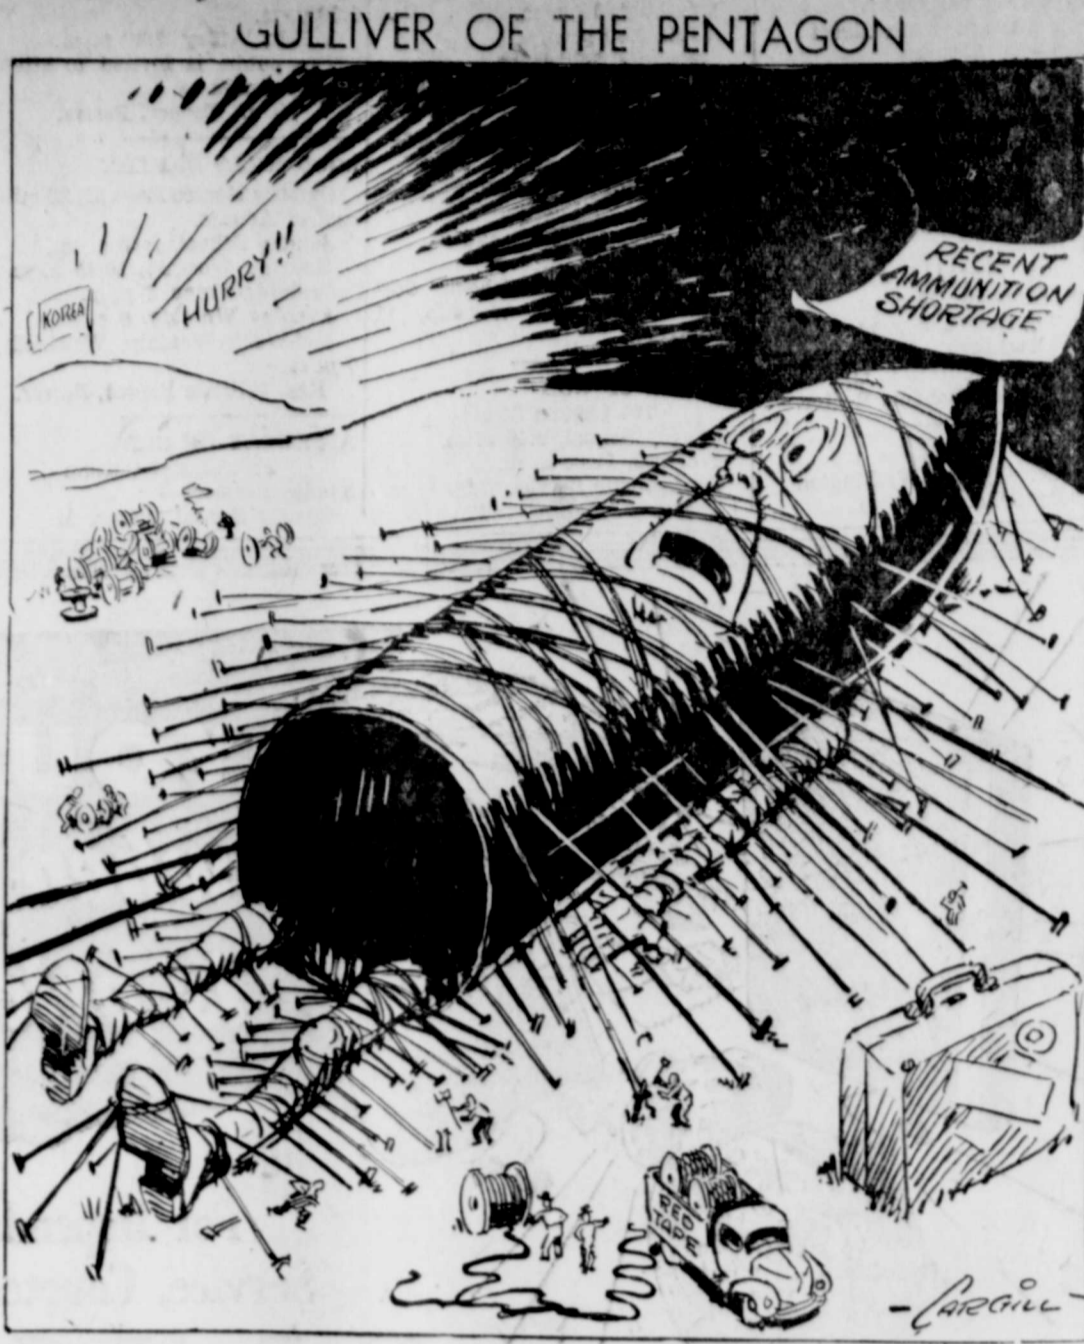

South Lea county. The twister in Jal took half of the roof off a community building occupied by a teenage canteen. No one was injured.

TRAFFIC TICKETS IN TUCUMCARI are painless now for out-of-town motorists.

When they violate the traffic laws in Tucumcari now, officers give them a printed list of traffic "don'ts" and a coupon entitling them and their passengers to a free cup of coffee at the nearest eatery.

The Tucumcari chief of police said that while erring motorists drink coffee on the house, they're supposed to have a chance to read the traffic "don'ts."

In the four months the plan has been used, the chief says, traffic offenses have fallen off sharply.

NEW MEXICO EDITORS ARE SAYING— Despite All Federal Hocus-Pocus About Sandia Hush-Hush, Nothing Too Secret There

IT ISN'T VERY SECRET. The furor raised by a pair of reporters on discovering that there is really nothing much secret about the Sandia special weapons base at Albuquerque is amusing.

Nearly everyone in New Mexico has known about that situation for years. The thousands of persons who land at Albuquerque in commercial aircraft could hardly avoid noticing the "holes" in the nearby Sandia mountains. Common curiosity would prompt most of them to ask questions and it isn't difficult to find someone with a ready answer.

Military authorities have made no effort to hide the atomic base, perhaps in the belief that you can't disguise anything that big, or perhaps thinking total security wasn't necessary anyway.

There's one thing sure. If there ever was an idea of keeping Sandia base a secret, it shouldn't have been built where it is—in the landing pattern of commercial aircraft.

Now, it would be almost impossible to move it. The government might move Albuquerque away from Sandia base and put a roof over the Sandia and Manzano mountains. That might answer some of the demands for all-out security. Then you could shoot all the civilians who know anything about the atomic base, and throw all the military who know about it in prison, to hold until needed.

If it will ease anyone's worries, we know of some wonderfully big holes in the ground where the military can store its atomic thingsamajigs, if war ever comes and the enemy knows too much about Sandia to forbid its use.

There's the Carlsbad Caverns, for instance, combining beauty and utility. Then there are the potash mines where five companies have honeycombed the earth's surface with the degeondest bunch of rooms and corridors you ever saw. Plenty of room, plenty of security.

Oh, yes, Carlsbad people don't go about blabbing either.—Current-Argus.

WILL IT BE FORGOTTEN? Things are getting pretty warm in the investigation of Pat Hurley's claims that he was beaten out of the senatorship by illegal votes cast for Sen. Dennis Chavez.

But the disclosure recently of the convict raid on the prison hospital where they seized an unspecified amount of narcotics last September, is more than shocking.

IT'S SHOCKING. The public is accustomed now to shocking disclosures of what has gone on behind the walls of the New Mexico state penitentiary.

The death, in a prison gang fight, of Speight Parks last January caused some light to be thrown on a sordid situation. It was shocking to most people to learn that it was possible for prisoners to brew an alcoholic drink within the prison, and to stage a mass drinking party, that led to Parks' death.

But the disclosure recently of the convict raid on the prison hospital where they seized an unspecified amount of narcotics last September, is more than shocking.

with the state canvassing board being right in the middle.

It is likely that the governor, the secretary of state and a member of the state supreme court, comprising the canvassing board, did all that is ordinarily required in an official canvass. So far as we ever heard about the duties of such boards, they have not been required to look into the legality of votes cast. Their job, as it is generally understood, is merely to check the voting figures, and declare elections upon the result. So far as anyone knows the board is not a body of investigators, and therefore it doesn't seem exactly cricket that they should be charged with any negligence of duty in checking the results of the last election and declaring that Chavez was duly elected.

However, there is plenty of reason to believe that there were many irregularities in the election, and that perhaps many of the votes Chavez received were illegal. The same may be true of some of those cast for Hurley, since it is not likely that the trend would be all one way.

The claims of Hurley will not be discounted any place where people want to believe that our elections are not always lily white. And the evidence that Hurley has produced will not be disputed by many, in all probability.

The question seems to be, then, what can be done about it? Can this incident be used as a means of wiping out the state's bad election practices, or will it just wind up as another incident, and be forgotten?—Roswell Record.

COFFEE TALK— 'King' Cole Blows Town in Hurry Without Bidding Adieu to Friends

WITHOUT SO MUCH AS A single note of fanfare, Sam H. "King" Cole has left Artesia. He did so without informing anyone else but the few officers at the police station when his decision was reached.

The King asked deputy O. L. Lusk to take him north of town so he could get started on his travels again. Lusk complied, and the last anyone saw of the King, he was trying to catch a ride for Roswell.

In his week in Artesia he visited city council, where he drew sketches of the mayor and a councilman, both of which closely resembled each other and several other sketches he had done of townsmen; gave a talk on Americanism to a civics class at Senior high school; outlined plans to build a Boys club of adobe brick; started wheels spinning on a home guard, and civil defense set-up, etc., etc.

Artesia has no particular regrets at losing the King, who once said he planned to move his 89-year-old mother here from Ohio, nor, it is expected, did the King especially regret leaving Artesia. It was a pleasant interlude for both the King and the town.

King said he is planning his fifth trip around the world, and will push on from New Mexico to Arizona and California, then jump off for Hawaii, the Philippines, and Korea.

NOBODY HAS HEARD A word from Farmers Union of Denver about any further plans to set up offices in Southeastern New Mexico, although offers of office space have been made to the cooperative.

The well-decorated, air conditioned seventh floor at Artesia Hotel, which NuMex will vacate May 1, has been offered Farmers Union, and the Artesia resident has offered to build a modern office here in town for the co-op, if that's what Farmers Union wants.

THEY ARE WITNESSES TO that accident last Saturday involving a city police car who claim the police car didn't have its siren going when it rounded the corner bent on taking a six-year-old boy to the hospital.

They add that the youthful driver of the other car involved couldn't see the red blinker light atop the car, since it was traveling boardside to her when the two collided.

Compromise on Taft-Hartley Bill Turns Into a Bittle Battle

DEBATE IS GOING TO BE hot and heavy on Capitol Hill before Congress reaches any final agreement on changes in the Taft-Hartley labor law, believes Ed Townsend, Christian Science Monitor staff writer.

Townsend declares "There is little in common between the views of labor, management, and the public—as represented by Congress—on how the law should be amended."

"Each indication," he adds, "of a harmonious and compromising approach to revisions now seems to have been premature, an open and perhaps angry battle over changes now appears certain."

Townsend continues:

Of all the controversial issues, the one that may very well cause the most debate and the stormiest sessions on House and Senate floors is the least known. It hasn't been the cause of strike tensions in the past, or been argued back and forth in many labor-management disputes. It is a real "sleepers" as an issue: Who should have the final word in labor lawmaking—the federal government or the states?

Perhaps this sounds like just a technical question with little real impact on day-to-day labor relations. Actually, it's a lot more than that.

State legislatures—many of them strongly influenced by business and industry—have opinions on the rights and wrongs in labor relations that differ widely from those of Congress. Usually, they are more conservative opinions and lead to the enactment of more restrictive labor laws than those passed by Congress.

This has been especially true, for instance, since 1947 in the one area in which state legislatures have a clear authority to write stronger labor laws than those of the federal government. The Taft-Hartley Act specifically provides that states may pass tighter union-security restrictions than those in the national labor law. At least a dozen states have done so, by enacting "freedom of work" laws barring not only the closed shop that is prohibited under Taft-Hartley but also the less-restrictive union shop and maintenance-of-membership plans, both permitted under present federal labor laws.

As it now stands, nothing is said in the national law about whether Taft-Hartley or state labor laws take precedence on

Townsend continues:

Of all the controversial issues, the one that may very well cause the most debate and the stormiest sessions on House and Senate floors is the least known. It hasn't been the cause of strike tensions in the past, or been argued back and forth in many labor-management disputes. It is a real "sleepers" as an issue: Who should have the final word in labor lawmaking—the federal government or the states?

Perhaps this sounds like just a technical question with little real impact on day-to-day labor relations. Actually, it's a lot more than that.

State legislatures—many of them strongly influenced by business and industry—have opinions on the rights and wrongs in labor relations that differ widely from those of Congress. Usually, they are more conservative opinions and lead to the enactment of more restrictive labor laws than those passed by Congress.

This has been especially true, for instance, since 1947 in the one area in which state legislatures have a clear authority to write stronger labor laws than those of the federal government. The Taft-Hartley Act specifically provides that states may pass tighter union-security restrictions than those in the national labor law. At least a dozen states have done so, by enacting "freedom of work" laws barring not only the closed shop that is prohibited under Taft-Hartley but also the less-restrictive union shop and maintenance-of-membership plans, both permitted under present federal labor laws.

As it now stands, nothing is said in the national law about whether Taft-Hartley or state labor laws take precedence on other issues where conflicts—on such things as the strike-picketing rights of unions, boycott and other controversial labor practices, and on labor junctions. Generally, courts held that where conflicts do arise, the federal law must be regarded as the final authority. They have barred the enforcement of stricter state laws of wide variety of cases where state commerce was involved. Taft-Hartley was therefore in effect.

Efforts now are being made Capitol Hill to make the Taft-Hartley law specific on the law issue, in that way bars courts from discretionary decisions. In effect, advocates tightened labor laws want a federal act amended to do nothing in the Taft-Hartley shall prevent any state from enforcing and enforcing a labor law that is more restrictive than the federal law.

Unions are deeply concerned over the possibility that something will happen. They say can be "no worse amendment Taft-Hartley law to whatever would subordinate the federal law to whatever legislation states might pass." And they contend that such an amendment would "have far-reaching and together undesirable effects clearing the way for a host of new, tough laws at labor" in many states.

Management groups, states, Congress conservatives worry the government's expanding powers are supporting the state rights amendment. At the moment, they appear to have sufficient strength to put it over.

If they do, this is a sure thing

What might, on the surface, seem to be only a minor amendment the Taft-Hartley Law will be important consequences: it means that the next real tightening of labor laws will come from Washington but from state capitals.

TRUCK USERS BUY MORE CHEVROLET TRUCKS than any other make!

No matter the size or type of truck you need—what better proof could there be that a Chevrolet truck is your best buy!

MORE CHEVROLET TRUCKS IN USE THAN ANY OTHER MAKE!

Recently published official registration figures for the last full year show that truck users in every single State bought more Chevrolets than any other make!

It is difficult to imagine more convincing proof of Chevrolet's superiority, for such clear-cut and overwhelming preference can lead to but one conclusion:

Chevrolet trucks must be better, must enjoy solid advantages over other trucks. Such preference must rest on a firm foundation of good, sound value. And, of course, it does—as owners of Chevrolet trucks can testify.

Chevrolet trucks are widely known and preferred for their ability to hold hauling and delivery costs down. They are known for their power, their stamina, for their exceptional gas and oil economy, as well as their low-cost upkeep. And on these same counts, you can expect 1953 Chevrolet trucks to be even more outstanding.

So before you buy any truck, see how much more Chevrolet trucks offer you. Stop in and see us soon.
