'Greatest Show' Tops as Massive Circus Spectacle

In "The Greatest Show on Earth," a Paramount picture which opened Wednesday at the Landsun theater, Cecil B. DeMille has applied his film-making genius to a massive circus spectacle combined with a drama about the performers and workers of the Big Top. The result is a truly superb Technicolor treat that captures the spirit and the essence of the Greatest Show as no film has done before. "The Greatest Show" continues tonight and Saturday at the Landsun.

With infinite skill, DeMille has depicted the whirling excitement, the spangled gaiety and the soar-ing thrills that make the circus such a beloved institution. Here in brilliant color photography is an authentic view of the Big Top that is every bit as exciting as a ring-side circus seat.

With Betty Hutton, Charlton Heston, Corneal Wilde, Dorothy Lamour, Gloria Grahame and James Stewart starred at the head of a huge cast, the film sets forth the hopes, despairs, trials and triumphs that are played out behind the glittering arena displays. The plot details Miss Hutton's daredevil rivalry with fellow-aerialist Corneal Wilde for the coveted trapeze above the center ring; the strange secret hidden behind James Stewart's clown mask; and the tireless efforts of circus boss Charlton Heston to keep the show on its feet.

But "The Greatest Show" is essentially a happy picture—a warm-hearted record of the brightness and excitement that the circus brings, blended with a memorable portrait of the courageous people who make it all possible.

Made in cooperation with Ringling Bros.-Barnum & Bailey Circus at their winter quarters in Sarasota, Florida, and during actual performances on the road, this drama-epic features many of the circus' most famous acts. Acrobats, trapeze artists, tightrope walkers, equestrians, clowns, performing elephants and dogs are seen in the film, as well as the menagerie of animals.

There is a brilliantly colorful mile-long circus parade; there are fascinating scenes of roustabouts raising and striking the mammoth Big Top; and there are views of the infinite number of skills that keep this massive machine rolling with clock-like precision.

Country Club Notes—

Fine Breakfast Spread Nets Work on Grassed Terrace

By STANLEY SUTTON

Pres. Van Welch is planning on taking some lessons from Oscar Lusk. It seems that when Oscar is sent out after a man, he brings him in whether it is for jury duty or for any other reason. When Van goes out after men, he uses bribery in the form of a fine spread of food. A breakfast was served Sunday morning for a group of "volunteer" workers. It was enjoyed by Messrs. Welch, Harrall, Springer, Whitson, Bullock and Estrada. There was enough food for 20 men and enough work afterwards for 20 men.

The above gentlemen took care of the food and the work, also. Some fresh dirt has been dumped south of the swimming pool and it was spread, levelled, and sewn. The next day Kranz, Cliff Loyd, and Martinez went further in removing the rocks and now when nature takes her course we can enjoy the grassed terrace.

Water well troubles seem to be coming upon us. The flow has been reduced recently both to the detriment of the club and Johnnie Bill Collins who is doing our farming. Apparently we are going to have to spend some money to improve the present situation.

John Short has engaged his boys of the FFA in his welding classes in some constructive work for the club playground. With donated pipe and donated labor, we stand to have some swings in the near future so as soon as we have some donated paint, chain, and concrete, members can do their swinging on the grounds.

July is moving on us with some rapidity and the tournament committee realizes that the bulk of the work is going to have to be done in advance. Springer is going to need all the help he can get so if you have that golden glow of fellowship, don't be sparing of your time or ideas, but get with Floyd and join him.

Jim Miller was not fooling when he promised to contribute to the landscape. All the tee boxes and seven of the nine fairways have been fertilized with ammonium sulphate and 16-20-0. The area treated is from 185 yards out from the tee to 225 yards. Then fertilizer is applied from the edge of the green 50 yards back toward the tee. We can assure you the areas will be noticeable. In the process Jim is working himself and Joe Estrada and anyone else he can collar. The greens are in fine shape now and seem to jump in length from day to day.

After the Junior-Senior Prom, the younger set is having their party at the Country club. Chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Earl Cox and Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Rowley, this group will be entertained at the club building May 16 and will be served a breakfast by the club hostesses.

Don't forget the Gorts will supervise and instruct the square dancing group every Wednesday night. Neil Watson, sensitive soul that he is, gave us a hurt look in regard to the unpleasant truths we revealed last week. No reproaches but a hint that we might be injuring his reputation. Out of regard for his feelings we are not going into the details of the manner in which he puts his return address on the wooden tees. Nor shall we reveal the methods he uses to remove the red bands from the range practice balls before he puts them into play. After all there must be some members with greater chiseling ability. We know for sure there are one or two at Hobbs.

Residents Find English Sparrow Adoption Is Fun

Playing adopted mother to a tiny homeless English sparrow is proving to be an interesting pastime for Mrs. Martha Colvin and her grandson, Bobby Betancourt, at 709 W. Missouri.

Bobby brought the sparrow in about three weeks ago after it had been given to him by another boy. The little bird has been named "Twitty." He keeps the household with his cries for food every minutes. Fortunately he is a sleeper. So far his diet has consisted mainly of soaked bread bits of hamburger meat. He is thriving on this and is feathering rapidly.

As soon as he is able to care himself he will be given his freedom, for Mrs. Colvin thinks it unkind to keep wildlife caged.

Bobby turns "Twitty" loose the house and yard. The boy knows its name and will come on the boy when called. He will come on the boy's head or his shoulder. Bobby took the bird to his room at Central school last Monday afternoon, for all the children to see. Bobby is a fourth grader. Mrs. Gorman's room.

Hollace Lynne Cockburn, a student at R-dford School for Girls in El Paso, spent last week at home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Barney Cockburn. Sunday, Mrs. Cockburn took her daughter to school and Monday evening attended a piano recital in which her daughter participated. Mrs. Cockburn returned home Tuesday.

CHECK these advantages of SOIL-CEMENT for light-traffic roads

ECONOMY
Soil-cement pavement* is low cost because: (1) about 85 per cent of the required material is usually soil already on the site and (2) it is quick and easy to build.

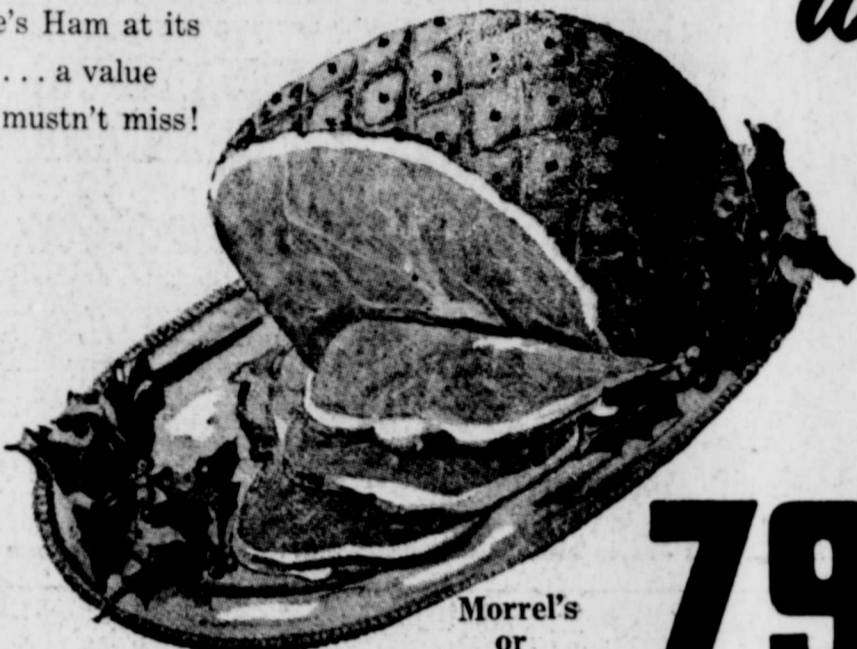

ADAPTABILITY
Whether an existing road is dirt, gravel or other flexible material, it can be transformed into strong soil-cement pavement. Soil-cement roads can be built and used in a wide range of climates.

DURABILITY
The outstanding durability of soil-cement for local roads has been proved by years of all-weather service at low-maintenance expense. Thousands of miles of soil-cement pavement now serve America.

High Court Not Final

ONE OF THE arguments over the "tidelands" has been the matter of the United States Supreme Court ruling which held the land belongs to the United States government and not the states.

And those who represent states which do not have "tidelands" and who have been opposing the granting of the "tidelands" as well as the "continental shelf" to the states have argued that the U. S. Supreme Court is the final authority.

They argue that when the United States Supreme Court speaks that is the end—there is no higher authority to which an appeal can be taken.

But there are many others with sound minds, well-informed, educated, and with legal minds who contend the Supreme Court is not the last word but only that body, which passes on the laws adopted by the Congress of the United States.

They argue that Congress is the last and final word because the constitution granted to this body the right to make and adopt laws. When the Supreme Court rules a law is illegal or unconstitutional then it is the right and Congress has the power to adopt another law which comes within the constitution.

Those arguing that the U. S. Supreme Court is not the final authority point out that the majority of the opinions of the Supreme Court are not unanimous. They cite case after case where the members of the Supreme Court vote 5 to 4—in other words the final opinion is given with a split decision—a decision which could be changed either way by one vote.

One member of Congress, who challenges the statement that the Supreme Court is the final word, has even checked the cases over a five-year period and cited case after case where the opinion was handed down by a bare majority. He cites case after case where members of the high court have dissented not once but many times.

In other words he points out that the high court cannot even agree among themselves that their opinion is right or their opinion is the final word.

Most of us, we believe, are in agreement with the fact that Congress is the final word because Congress under the constitution is given the right to pass laws and Congress is responsible to the people. Members of Congress are the representatives of the people. The Supreme Court is responsible to no one.

Most of us also have agreed there have been times when the opinions of the high court smacked of politics instead of the results of the study of the best legal minds in our nation. Charges have been hurled against that court that it was "packed"—"packed" with members who would give favorable opinions to those in political power.

Most of us know that although there are many fine legal minds now sitting on the court there are others who do not reach the high standard we like to think must be met before a man can become a judge on the United States Supreme Court.

We also know as citizens there have been opinions handed down by the Supreme Court which did not comply with the rights guaranteed to citizens under the "bill of rights" or under the constitution.

There have been too many government bureaus set up their won regulations and rules in direct violation of rights of citizens and the court has held this as right.

It, of course, is human to err and no one can doubt or question but what the United States Supreme Court is composed of human beings and it can err, too.

Petticoat Fiesta

ARTESIA'S FAVORITE neighbors, those people out at Hope with their petticoat government, are going to be jumping up and down this week-end as they celebrate another year of progress under the females with the annual petticoat fiesta.

It's gonna be the biggest, the bestest, and longest, and the liveliest fiesta Hope has ever had.

And Artesia is behind them all the way, for the city has supported Hope's plans for this fiesta in a big way, just as Artesia generously has supported many another Hope enterprise.

We're kind of proud of those ladies and the people who put them in office. They just don't have sense enough to quit while they're still ahead of the game—and we admire them for it.

Remember the story about the aeronautical engineers who measured and tested the honey bee and came up with the conclusion that the honey bee wasn't engineered to fly? And the bee keeps right on flying—and make a little honey, too.

Those petticoats and their people—well, most of their people—are like that. They couldn't possibly make anything out of that dust bowl pile of sand-blasted buildings out there—but they are. They can't possibly find enough water that can be pumped cheap enough out there to do any good—but we bet they'll do it, somehow or other.

They just won't quit out there at Hope, when by all logic they should just have left the place for the sand to cover up. People who scrap like that to make something of their town do everyone a lot of good for the example they set, the pioneering spirit they exemplify.

Why Discrimination?

A GOOD MANY individuals today who have taken the trouble to check the requirements for the purchase of a fish and game license in the state are beginning to ask why the discrimination against local youths and against members of the armed forces.

They have reference to a regulation put into effect this year requiring those in the armed services to buy their licenses at the military installation.

They also point out that the present regulations would prohibit the citizen of New Mexico now in service and serving his country elsewhere from purchasing a hunting and fishing license if the regulations are followed.

But the part the members interested in fishing and hunting question is in the two questions on the license. One of those asks the question as to where the applicant is a member of the armed forces. And then it asks the applicant as to whether he has been a member of the armed forces stationed in New Mexico continuously for the past six months.

Those objecting to the wording on the license and the regulation emphasize the fact that members of the armed services have not given up their citizenship merely because they are in the service. They also emphasize that these individuals have a perfect right to purchase a license under the present regulations if they have resided in the state for some six months.

The regulation for meeting resident license requirements reads as follows: "It is illegal for any civilian to purchase a resident license unless he has been an actual bona fide resident of the state for six months next preceding date of application. It is illegal for any person in the armed services to purchase a resident license unless he has been stationed continuously in the state for six months preceding application date."

Those objecting to the regulation feel that anyone who has lived here for six months meets the requirement and there is no reason for the armed services comment or for the requirement that members of the armed forces purchase their licenses at a military installation. They believe they are being denied their American right and they emphasize that individuals do not give up their American rights merely because they enter the armed forces to serve their country.

THIS LAND OF ENCHANTMENT—

Intensive Study in Roswell Spurs City to Act For Clean-Up of Unsanitary Alley Conditions

ROS WELL IS GOING TO DO something about sanitary conditions revealed by an intensive study.

The public health committee of the Chamber of Commerce in its first fact-finding report says alleys in the city "are in general deplorable and most unsanitary, with only 44 per cent of the people complying with existing city sanitary laws" concerned with alleys.

Garbage cans were found missing in many cases, the committee said, also pointing out that city sanitary collections are efficient, the fault being with the people.

NEW MEXICO AND PORTALES might be the bridge of understanding on race prejudices, Dr. Thomas F. Houli, assistant professor of sociology at Eastern New Mexico university, told Portales church women the other day.

Dr. Houli said a recent survey of his in Portales shows the people there have less racial prejudice than the national normal.

This contradicted the doctor's first impression of Portales which was, he had been told, an extremely prejudiced town. The doctor's survey included 200 people.

NEW MEXICO'S CHANCES for a wheat and fruit harvest have been killed by a frost and high winds.

Hurricane winds sweeping the state's East Side over the last week have stripped winter wheat fields of most grain crops and nighttime frosts in the higher fruit-growing valleys have blighted peach and apple blossoms in most of the state's rich orchard areas.

COMPARED TO LEA COUNTY's weather, the Hobbs News-Sun says, the chameleon is a steady-going, colorfast lizard.

GARBAGE CAN SALES AT Portales City Hall have been might good lately, the local press reports.

The administration bought 1,800 to encourage home owners to use a little more caution in disposing of garbage.

Already 1,000 of the original stock has been sold, but the city manager says there's still a place for those remaining unsold.

COL. CLYDE ELY, EDITOR of the Silver City Daily Press, who, according to the Roswell Daily Record, always puts on his hair shirt when he thinks about Drew Pearson, declares that he is overjoyed because Pearson can't find a sponsor for his radio program.

Ely declares that Pearson is a "menace because he is both cunning and perfectly indifferent to the truth."

THE TAXIDERMIST

NEW MEXICO EDITORS ARE SAYING—

Politicians' Charges of 'One-Party Press' Fail to Admit Strong Opposition Charges

FOOLISH TALK

It has always been the case that when a political administration is turned out of Washington its leadership charges that the nation has developed a one-party press.

Nearly always in such instances there have been violent turnovers in editorial opinion, and editorial attempts to persuade the people, and in that case the opposition finds reason to fear that the dominant party has entrenched itself in editorial offices. The last election was a notable example.

However, that is the talk of politicians, and like a lot of other talk it doesn't make sense. In the last election there were scores of Democratic newspapers which supported the Eisenhower candidacy in the hope that the party of their choice could be cleansed of its dirt, and that sometime in the future it could come back before the people with clean hands.

These newspaper editors put their faith in Eisenhower's integrity, even when it might have been bad business judgment to follow his leadership. Furthermore, they will be ready to take another line of attack if the necessity presents itself. That was the case back in 1920 when the Democrats were turned out of Washington, and in 1932 when the Republicans were put out to graze for 20 years.

In each instance, however, the opposition to the successful candidates had enough strong support to disprove any one-party press charges. And we know enough about the way newspaper publishers and editors think and act to know that there never will be a one-party press in America so long as we are able to maintain our present brand of Democratic government. — Roswell Record.

GOOD MOVE

Bernalillo County commissioners yesterday authorized the State Tax Commission to install a new system of tax assessment for this county.

In this system, known as the "unit system" each piece of property will be listed on the tax rolls under its legal description instead of under the name of the owner. This will make it possible to keep an accurate, up-to-date record of tax payments and delinquencies. It will make it impossible for someone who has kept his taxes paid up to have his property sold because some former owner neglected to pay taxes in some prior year.

The new system also will place on the tax rolls pieces of property that have escaped assessment because the owner neglected to make a return.

All in all, this new system ought to prove of great value to the county. Some time will be required to put the new system into operation, but we believe it speedily will justify the time and expense required for installation. —Albuquerque Tribune.

TIME TO SPEAK UP

We believe it's time to call a halt to the continuing attacks being made upon the community of Taos as a so-called "Red Center." We have been labeled in various press reports as a gathering place for Communists and subversive elements.

Taos has been long-suffering and silent under these assaults, feeling that the proper authorities are fully cognizant of any such movements and completely competent to deal with any legitimate dangers.

However, a recent series appearing in the Scripps-Howard papers concerning serious breaches of security in New Mexico communities, declared: "Residents claim that the village of Taos also is a hotbed of Red activities." The articles, written by NEA Reporters Doug Larsen and Doyle Kline, were "checked with responsible sources."

The series created a sensation throughout the country and many apparently feel the articles may be instrumental in preventing further careless talk. We are just as anxious as any other community to prevent information leaks which would lead to undermining of our national security, but Taosenos are justified in resenting a blanket indictment of the area.

If such dangers exist, we have a right to expect these problems will be met by agencies established to cope with them without having Taos repeatedly maligned in the press. — El Crepusculo, Taos.

DOUBLE HOLIDAY

Artesia merchants, through their Chamber of Commerce, are treating themselves and their employees to a three-day Christmas holiday. Since Christmas falls on Friday, the merchants voted to close on that day, plus Saturday and Sunday. They won't be much business the day after Christmas anyway; just mostly exchanges of wrong-size gifts. It's an idea that Hobbs employers might consider. — Hobbs Sun-News.

THOUGHTS IN PRINT

Prisons of Tomorrow Designed to Follow Latest Style—Campus Scheme

ARCHITECTURAL NOTE ON the prisons of tomorrow, from Journal of the American Institute of Architects:

Paul Gerhardt, Jr., Chicago city architect, designed the Bridewell house of correction on the campus scheme — with mere chain-link fencing instead of a high masonry wall. It reminds one of a remark made by the late Alfred Hopkins, who designed several prisons that looked more like universities: "If we keep this sort of thing up, the gangster of tomorrow will have to enter the name of his son at birth, as is done in some of our exclusive prep schools."

IF YOU'RE BOTHERED BY split infinitives, remember what George Bernard Shaw said about them. Country Gentleman quotes it in reply to a persnickety reader:

"Every good literary craftsman splits infinitives when the sense demands it. . . . It is of no consequence whether one decides 'to go quickly' or 'quick to go' or 'to quickly go.' The important thing is that he go at once."

IN THE SPRINGTIME, SOME editorial writers turn to thoughts of fishing flies. The St. Louis Post Dispatch reflects:

Neither jewels, nor Christmas-tree baubles, nor autumnal leaves are more fascinating colorful than some of these delicate yet lethal combinations of feather, fur and hook.

For diversity, the flytier draws on peacocks, pheasants, mandarin ducks, teal and turkeys. In England, a special breed of cocks, the Andalusians, was developed to supply just the right blue-gray feather for the Blue Dun fly. Also used is the soft fur of deer, fox, mink, seal, muskrat, squirrel, coon, possum and even the polar bear.

Thousands of combinations, on hooks large and small, have been worked out to simulate the form and action of flies, nymphs, grubs and small fish, since Claudius Aelian first described the Macedonia Red Hackle almost 2,000 years ago. Nomenclature has kept pace with the fly-tiers' ingenuity. For example: Royal Coachman, Artful Dodger, Black Prince, Grizzly King, Parmachene Belle and Queen of the Waters.

BIRDS, LIKE HUMANS, CAN be altruistic, the National Geographical Society reports. For example:

Two Canada geese were reported recently as trying to help a crippled member of their flock rise from the water of a Connecticut wildlife refuge. A competent observer said they stationed themselves one on each side of the founded bird and, dashing across the pond, repeatedly did their best to lift their friend into the air.

There is a published case in which a crippled upland goose, seized with the urge to migrate, set out on foot. Her mate, although perfectly able to fly, chose to walk at her side.

In faraway New Zealand, a male hula whose mate had a deformed bill appeared to realize she would starve without his help, and fed her for several years Huia dig grubs from logs, hence need strong bills.

For obvious reasons, birds often feed each other on the nest or in the mating season, but some authorities are able to explain the feeding of an adult bird at other times only on grounds that birds are naturally kind.

COFFEE TALK—

After False Start, City's Street Signs Show Up With New Background

You'll be able to see the city's new street signs now. Rather than painting street names directly on curbs with black paint as they started to do, city workmen are now painting aluminum backgrounds on all curbs.

Then they'll go back and paint the name of the street in black paint over the aluminum.

It stems from a suggestion by E. E. Kinney, petroleum consultant, who found the signs were high invisible at night.

But while the city is progressing in this matter, no recognition has been made of those two bit stop signs that line Roselawn street, and are placed at intersections at Seventh and Quay, Seventh and Richardson, etc.

Maybe the city is just going to have to start all over on this stop sign business, for not only has nothing been done about those stubby affairs, but the good ones—those big fellows four feet high with the big orange disc—that have been knocked down haven't been reinstalled.

One at Bullock and Sixth is missing, one at Centre and First, one at Second and Main.

ARTESIA'S FUTURE FARMERS plainly stole a march on some of these leading organizations the other night with what seems to be a very unique device in Artesia.

FFA had a big spread for 150 members, their parents, and special guests at the ag building at Senior high school Tuesday night. Chicken dinner and all that.

When parents and guests came to the door, there was an FFA greeting committee to welcome them. Inside there were more boys to show you about and seat you.

But two other deluxe, grown-up social affairs conducted this week were like deep freeze affairs. Guests wandered into meeting rooms, didn't see anyone they recognized, and stood around in couples, hoping someone they knew would come.

Those FFA boys are learning a lot the generation before them never knew—poise in public gatherings, leadership, parliamentary law. They'll be effect leaders in whatever field they choose.

AS USUAL, ARTESIA school authorities will again be up naming valedictorian salutatorians among the graduating seniors.

Their reason is good enough. So often there are only a few in the class, and to pick out two at the top for signal honor is not doing justice for the remaining seven or eight who are so close.

It's a custom in the Artesia schools to not name two outstanding students—it seems we're fortunate enough to have more than two every year.

INSISTENCE THAT names of a married woman printed in the Advocate as John Jones rather than Mrs. Jones or just plain Beth Jones has aroused the ire of some men's groups.

"We call each other by first names in our meetings they say, 'so why not in paper."

Well, when the paper called married women Beth Jones sounds like an unwed teen. When it names her Mrs. Jones it sounds like she's a widow. But when it calls her John Jones, people can pin down.

In a town of 10,000 and a newspaper with a circulation of 2,500 copies every issue a readership of around 10,000 there's going to be some confusion as to identify unless forms set up to handle all things are followed.

WHILE THE FINAL FIGURE are not yet all in, Artesia figure they made somewhat the vicinity of $1,500 on the minstrel show, the Darktownies, couple week-ends ago.

Of that sum, about $750 ready earmarked to give children from families who can't afford eye examinations and glasses where needed. Sight conservation is one of the club's continuing projects.

MOTHER—always in your heart

It was she alone, all alone, who went down into the valley of the shadow of death to receive your trembling soul at the gates of life;

It was she who pillowed your baby head in the hollow of her bended arm;

It was from her tender breast you drew the life-giving fluid that sustained you in your helpless years;

It was she who taught your lisping tongue to frame that God-given prayer, "Our Father Who Are in Heaven";

There was never a man so vile, so base, so low, but who in his sin-stained soul keeps pure and apart a little place for his Mother's memory and in the silent watches of the night, when thoughts turn back to pure and happy childhood hours, he REMEMBERS THAT MOTHER . . . and thinks of God.

Kiwanis Told Travelers Must Be Supported

More support for the REA Travelers must be given by Artesia sports fans if the Travelers are to continue in the National Industrial Basketball League, Paul Frost, Central Valley Co-Op manager, told Artesia Kiwanis club Thursday.

While Central Valley directors have renewed the Travelers' affiliation in the NIBL for 1953-54, Frost said, there must be support for the team next year or the Travelers cannot return.

Frost screened, as the club's program, a film on the Akron Wingfoots-REA Traveler game last fall in Akron. Guests at the meeting were Jim Parmer, Lowe Wickersham, John Parmer, Clifford Downs, all of Artesia; and Warren Harrison, Charles Johnson, and R. H. Cause of Sciatica Discussed by Local Doctor Sciatica is an abnormal condition of the great sciatic nerve which provides the nerve supply to the tissues of the thigh and lower leg. Pain is the chief characteristic of sciatica.

Chiropractic research shows that sciatica is caused by pressure on nerves due to subluxated (misaligned) vertebrae pinching the nerves and thereby blocking the passage of the normal nerve supply. Falls, jolts, and strains are some of the reasons for vertebrae becoming misaligned. The Chiropractor is trained to locate the exact point of the nerve pressure and to remove the pressure. The nerves then carry their full quota of nerve energy.

It is not right to say "everything possible has been done" unless Chiropractic is included.

For further information about Chiropractic you are invited to consult Dr. Kathryn Behnke, Palmer Graduate Chiropractor, 408 W. Richardson, phone 861.
