On Wednesdays and Fridays the library will be open from 9 a. m. to 11 a. m. and from 2:30 to 5:30 p. m., Mrs. Knorr said. Mondays the library will open at 12:30 and close at 7:30. First Suit of Season Filed Over Questionable Hay Check

A recurring annual problem—the Texas hay dealer who buys hay in the Artesia area with a questionable check—reared its head in justice of peace court this week. J. E. Smith was charged with giving a hot check for $263 for a load of hay by Everett O'Bannon of Cottonwood. Smith declared he told O'Bannon the check was not good when he presented it for the load of hay. He said he told O'Bannon the check would be covered when he could sell the hay in Texas. Smith was arrested in Lovington Monday on another charge, filed by J. D. Briscoe, operator of a service station in Artesia. Briscoe said a worthless check was given him by Smith for a gasoline bill. Smith pleaded not guilty to both charges. Judge John Ellicott deferred sentencing on misdemeanor charges.

North Eddy School Board To Study Rural Representation In Open Meeting Tuesday

North Eddy county residents and their school boards will get together in an open, public meeting next Tuesday night to decide the best course in insuring representation for rural and municipal areas on the board of education for the reorganized area. The meeting has been set for 7:30 p. m. Tuesday night in Senior high school auditorium, Artesia.

Decision to hold the meeting came during an Artesia board of education meeting this week. The board indicated it would not resign, as the state board of education has requested, until it is assured that a board to succeed it will be chosen in a democratic manner representative of the citizens of the school district.

Special invitations will go to the Hope school board, Cottonwood school directors, North Eddy county's two members of the county school board, Howard Stroup and Monroe Howard, and Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Thomas, county school superintendents for many years.

Stroup, who attended a state board of education meeting Monday which resulted in official approval on the Eddy county school reorganization, told the Artesia board Tuesday night the state had intended no discriminatory action in asking the Artesia board of education to resign, and not Carlsbad.

They are two different situations," Stroup said. "Supt. Murphy of Carlsbad told the state board his board had voted to provide representation—he committed his board, while Supt. Mayfield of Artesia could not, since his new board had not acted officially on the matter."

In his report on the state board meeting, Supt. Mayfield told the board Stroup had pointed out rural representation had been used as a sales point for the reorganization in North Eddy county. In addition, Hope representatives appeared before the state board concerned of representation on the Artesia board.

Artesia board members indicated they were agreed that rural representation on a board for the reorganized district should be set up. They declared, however, that until the method of picking the representatives and the ratio of representation was studied, they would not resign.

It was brought out in the meeting that the state survey board which toured the county last December and ended in suggesting the reorganization had recommended enactment of state law which would provide seven-member boards for Eddy county to give rural representation. "Here's what next Tuesday's school meeting, open to the public, is about: It is generally agreed that two rural representatives and three Artesia representatives should be appointed to the school board. It is not known what method should be followed to pick these representatives. The Artesia and Carlsbad representation questions are different, since Hope and rural areas have asked the state board of education for representation on the Artesia board, while similar requests have not been made in the Carlsbad area. In addition, the new Carlsbad board is committed to giving representation. The meeting is slated for 7:30 Tuesday night in Senior high auditorium.

ber, declared "There is not a question of representation—we all want rural representation. The question is how we shall get it." It was brought out that a board appointed by the state would be in office only until the next school board election in 1955, 1 1/2 years from now. T. E. Brown, Sr., who attended the meeting and said "I played a small part in this reorganization," declared there should be representation from the municipal board and the rural boards.

Residence Unimportant—His primary interest, Brown said, was the benefit and welfare of every school child in Eddy county, regardless of where they lived. "A lot of people have given up things, made sacrifices so the reorganization could come about," he declared.

Carlsbad gave up Southwest Potash Co., Mr. and Mrs. Thomas resigned from a position they had long served. Atoka gave up great valuation, and Hope gave up its direct local control over its school. From the first, Brown said, there was a tacit understanding from the old school board that a method would be worked out for representation for the rural areas.

"I am not prepared to say here tonight that one method would be better than another," Brown said, "but I have been concerned over our commitment." Need Cooperation—He gave a personal opinion that

City Stymied on Enforcing Dog Licensing--No Vets

Artesia has a rigid dog ordinance requiring all dogs be vaccinated against rabies and licensed. But city councilmen say it wouldn't be cricket to enforce it. There is no veterinarian in the city to give the rabies shots, and councilmen are not sure whether one who promised to come here July 1 will actually locate in Artesia. Artesia residents in the past few months have had to take their pets to Roswell for vaccination. Councilman Marshall Rowley told his comrades Wednesday night in city council, "It just isn't cricket" to make dog owners take the trip.

Lakewood Farmers Charge Federal Spraying Damage

Charges that government salt cedar spraying damaged their cotton were involved in a suit against the federal government this week by two North Eddy county farmers. R. L. House and Albert Lee, whose farms are in the Lakewood area, charge the government in 1951 sprayed salt cedars adjoining their acreage with 2-4-T or 2-4-D spray. The spray damaged their cotton. It was laid down by an airplane operation by the reclamation bureau in 1951, the farmers contend. House is seeking $14,089.20 damages, and Lee $10,273.50.

USDA to Donate 50 Million Pounds of Butter

The U. S. department of agriculture has recently announced plans to donate up to 50 million pounds of butter acquired under price support programs to charitable institutions — such as orphanages, homes for the aged, and mental hospitals—non-profit school lunch programs, and other eligible outlets.

Through March 31, the USDA had purchased 143 million pounds of butter under the 1952-53 dairy support program. The recent action by the USDA will substantially reduce the inventory of butter acquired under this program announced a year ago.

Rockets Capture Series in 8-6 Win Over Drillers

Roswell Rockets edged the Drillers 8 to 6 Tuesday night to take Artesia's two-game home stand.

Television set owners play cards more than no non-owners.

Rookie Rolando Bacardi went the distance for the Rockets, allowing 1 hit, including three home runs. Driller starter Bert Estrada was charged with the loss.

Artesia opened the scoring in the first on singles by Jackie Wilcox, Vince DiGiantomaso and Joe Fortin, plus an error scoring Wilcox and Vince.

Roswell came back with three in the second when Modesto Perez got to second on an error, and pitcher Bacardi singled him home. Rocky Gonzales doubled Bacardi in. Gonzales scored on Al Costa's single.

The Rockets came up with their big rally in the third, started by Buddy Grimes' walk. Ozzie Alvarez singled, leaving Grimes on second. Perez singled, chasing Grimes home and Alvarez to third. Gonzales doubled to bring the pair home. Costa doubled Gonzales in and Wayne Crawford doubled Costa to home to end Rocket scoring for the night.

Drillers scored three in the third when Les Mulcahy belted one over the left field fence. Joe Bauman walked and Bill Halsey repeated Mulcahy's feat.

Joe Fortin, lead-off man in the fifth, sent the first pitch over the center field fence, thus ending Artesia's fruitless comeback.

Tucson Publisher To Address State Press Association

William Rankin Mathews, editor and publisher of the Arizona Daily Star, Tucson, will be the main speaker at the New Mexico Press Association's summer convention at Las Vegas June 26-27.

He was recipient of a Pulitzer Prize honorable mention for editorial writing in 1934.

The convention, with El Fidel hotel at Las Vegas as headquarters, will include two luncheons, a chuckwagon super, a banquet, and a cocktail party.

On the program is a motion picture, "The Colonial Printer," produced by the Williamsburg (Va.) Foundation, and tracing development of printing and journalism in America before the founding of the republic.

Mathews is a member of the advisory committee of the Columbia Graduate School of Journalism (Pulitzer Prize committee), and has been chairman of the Pima county (Ariz.) Democratic central committee since 1930.

He was born in Lexington, Ky., did newspaper business work in California, and became publisher of the Arizona Daily Star in 1930. He was an officer in World War I, was wounded, and was awarded the Croix de Guerre with Palm and cited for capture of enemy machine guns and trench mortars and 75 prisoners near Vierzy, France, July 18, 1918.

Gov. and Mrs. Edwin Mechen and Lt. Gov. and Mrs. Tibo Chavez will be convention dinner guests on Saturday, June 27. Directors of the association will meet at dinner, presided over by President Carter Waid of the association, editor of the Belen News-Bulletin, on Thursday evening preceding the convention.

DEATH MARCHES IN PARADE

conjunction with the association are the Associated Press, the New Mexico Press Women's club, and the New Mexico Public Relations conference. G. K. Greaves, editor of the Portales Daily News, is AP chairman. Mrs. Homer Gruver of the Las Cruces Citizen is president of the press women, and Eugene Mann, of Eastern New Mexico university is president of the public relations group.

Committees which will report at a business session Saturday morning, June 27, are: public printer committee, with Homer Gruver of the Las Cruces Citizen as chairman; resolutions committee, William McDullane, Silver City Enterprise, chairman; dues committee, Charles Fischer, Clovis News-Journal, chairman; and time and place committee, James Barber, Carlsbad Current-Argus, chairman.

Disabled Favor Agriculture

More disabled veterans are taking training in agriculture than in any other major field, VA said. Approximately one-third of the 30,000 disabled veterans in training are training under the VA's institutional on-farm training program. Instruction is provided both in the classroom and on the farm to these student farmers.

Professional and managerial training was the next most popular field chosen by disabled veterans, with trade and industrial running a close third. Clerical, sales and service occupations attracted relatively few veteran trainees, VA said.

Korean veterans receiving education and training through the VA now number more than 135,000. More than 4,000 are disabled Korean veterans training under the Vocational Rehabilitation Act. More than half of the Korean veteran trainees are attending colleges or universities, and about one-fourth are enrolled at other schools.

High Temperature Not Necessary For Ripe Tomato

Many farmers and home gardeners have the idea that the tomato must have hot weather to ripen. However, U. S. department of agriculture research workers say that thought the plant is of tropical origin—this just isn't so.

They have found that tomatoes—whether on the vine or window-sill—will ripen most rapidly in temperatures from 55 to 65 degrees. Incidentally, this may explain why that pink color takes so long in coming after the green fruit is full grown in hot midsummer.

Watering to cool the plant during hot periods may hurry the ripening along.

100 Million Pounds of Dry Milk to Be Given

U. S. department of agriculture is making available 100 million pounds of nonfat dry milk solids for donation to school lunchrooms, welfare organizations in the United States and its territories, and to private welfare organizations assisting needy persons in foreign countries.

According to John J. Slaughter, southwest area field supervisor production and marketing administration's food distribution branch, USDA, Dallas, the milk is being donated under authority of section 416 of the agricultural act of 1949.

This authority specifies that receivers must pay handling and transportation charges—and any other charges as may be needed for adequate protection of the milk from point of origin to point of destination.

Milk is packed in wooden export barrels and fiber drums, each weighing 175 to 225 pounds. Ten units is the minimum for any domestic agency to order and 40,000 pounds, or one carload, for foreign use.

Milk will be available for the six-month period beginning May 4. Ap plication for domestic distribution should be made within the first 90 days.

The commodity credit corporation acquired the milk under the support price program.

Further details on distribution may be obtained from PMA's food distribution branch, Dallas, or from the State Department of Public Welfare, Santa Fe.

Motorists May Expect to Keep Paying Gas Tax

New Mexico motorists can expect to continue to pay a state gasoline tax of at least 6 cents a gallon for another eight years.

That was emphasized today by the Taxpayers Association of New Mexico, in a statement which pointed out that the basic state tax remains at 5 cents a gallon.

The Legislature tacked on an additional 2 cents in 1949 to retire the bonded indebtedness of the State Highway Department, which then totaled almost $20 million," said Albert K. Nohl, acting director of the taxpayer organization.

That temporary increase was cut to one cent by the legislature meeting in 1951, with the understanding that it would be eliminated entirely as soon as enough extra revenue had been accumulated to fully retire the highway bonds.

"On that basis, it appeared the state gasoline tax would back down to only 5 cents a gallon well before the last of the outstanding road bonds matured, as scheduled in 1961," Nohl said.

"But the legislature this year changed that plan so that the one-cent revenue, except for the amounts needed for debt service, will go for secondary roads and rights-of-way expense—until 1961."

Preparations for Artesia Invitational Hint Success

You may have been missing us but preparations for our big invitational tournament have been taking our time lately. Let us give you some advice. When you are requested to put in an appearance at a committee meeting which is for the purpose of handing out some work, be there early. Don't be late nor don't be absent. If you can defend yourself, you'll get along a lot better and with fewer jobs.

All the golfers and their ladies are putting out the effort these days for the big week-end July 1-5. Bourland's finance committee is busily engaged in gathering in the folios and anxiously making tentative budgets and expense estimates. Rowley is buzzing around looking for an old Calcutta pool ticket to copy from. Bullock seems to think our prizes will put all others in the shade. The publicity committee has sent invitations to 49 pros to attend our contest and is working on a mailing list from these pros in order to extend a personal invitation by letter to every possible entrant in the West Texas-New Mexico area.

Dave Rodwell is assisting in effecting news releases for us at the proper time. The committee for entertainment and for entertainment for visiting ladies is working together to offer an attractive program for the golfers families as well as the participants. An orchestra has been secured for the Saturday night dance but we are having difficulty in securing a stick man for the domino game.

Bill Keys, permanent chairman of the tournament committee, tells us that for the local members there is a handicap contest coming up for this week-end. Both men and women are invited to compete and there are three prizes. Entry fee is $1.

The bathing suit style show was a huge success. The buffet was enjoyed by a large crowd and the exhibition of bathing suits was a source of continuing pleasure to the onlookers. Models for the occasion were Mmes. Waters and Farmer and Misses Watson, Sadler and Martin, and styles offered were presented by the Toggery Shop, the Style Shop, and the Jack & Jill Tot to Teen Shop.

Rowley says he is going to withdraw as dispute judge in golf ethics. He says aside from the intense thought needed to settle arguments, he really wants to get into the act himself. He has a poor opinion of the quality of the heckling

Article by Mathis Is Published on Life Insurance

Recognition was received this week by John A. Mathis, Sr., of Artesia, through publication of an article by him in the leading trade journal in the field of life insurance.

Mathis, of Union Life Insurance Co. of Arkansas wrote under the title, "If I Could Turn Back the Clock."

The publication in which Mathis' article appeared, The Insurance Salesman, has the largest paid subscription list in the life insurance field, and one of the largest among trade journals in any field.

Articles appearing in the magazine are prepared by life insurance men considered to have more than an average knowledge of the business.

Recently, Mathis was named as his company's leading representative and this article was written as a result of an inquiry of the publisher to his home office asking them to name their outstanding representative.

He was recently elected honorary vice-president for life of the Eastern New Mexico Life Underwriters' association.

brought to his attention. He advocates subtlety and mental hazard rather than the brutal methods of surprise by noise. Last Monday he was observed practicing some of his refinements on an innocent unsuspecting out of town guest.

Just as Doug, the visitor, had addressed his ball preparing to putt, and had concentrated on the line of the putt taking into consideration the grain of the grass and the slope of the green, Rowley says, "Excuse me, Doug, I believe it's my putt rather than yours." Now this is a real advance in the needel technique because it provides the needler with a disguise. Of course, the putter has his concentration shattered and misses the putt but there is a slight possibility that Rowley was right and it really was his first putt.

Therein lies the perfect defense. In this case an onlooker asked the needler if he really thought Doug was not away but Rowley said, "Shucks, no, but if he ran that putt in it would have cost 65 cents."

Bob Hellinghausen of Monahans played our course Tuesday. Since he is a championship flight golfer and a follower of the West Texas tournaments, we believe his opinion to be correct concerning various golf courses. He tells us that with the exception fo Ranchland Hills in Midland, he considers our course in the finest condition in this area. We seem to have more grass than our fellow clubs.

Jim Miller and Floyd Springer seem to have found a way of knocking down on the club. You never saw two fellows putting out more in improving the club and grounds. Several large blisters and callouses have appeared and let me assure you they are on the palms.

Local Doctor Discusses Abnormal Blood Pressure

A certain positive pressure exists in the arteries at all times. This pressure is produced by the contraction of the heart which forces blood out into the already filled arteries. The arteries are elastic vessels and because they offer resistance to the flow of blood they are constantly "on the stretch."

In dealing with high and low blood pressure, the Chiropractor looks for the defect which is responsible for the abnormal pressure. This defect is often found in the nervous system, as the nervous system supplies the heart and blood vessels with the nerve impulses which are necessary for their proper regulation. The Chiropractor looks for the nerve pressure which is interfering with the transmission of vital nerve energy. Once this interference is located, Chiropractic adjustments are made to remove the pressure, permit the normal transmission of nerve energy and allow the affected parts to gradually build back to normal. Chiropractors have been unusually successful in handling this type of case.

For further information regarding Chiropractic care for abnormal blood pressure, consult Dr. Kathryn Behnke, 408 W. Richardson, phone 861.

supply is likely to be the least in 25 years. Soils in irrigated areas along the Rio Grande are very dry. El Vado reservoir is empty, in the compliance with the Rio Grande Compact, and probably will not be able to store water this year.

Supply for the Middle Rio Grande irrigated area will be extremely limited. Elephant Butte and Caballo reservoirs contain four times the water stored a year ago, but the total storage plus expected inflow into the reservoirs will not exceed 60 to 70 per cent of normal irrigation water demand.

Wages paid hired help on U. S. farms increased six per cent in 1952, while the number of people working on farms declined about 200,000. The number of farm workers dropped to 9.8 million in 1952, lowest number on record since 1910.

Booklet for Vets Buying Homes Is Newly Published

"To the Home-Buying Veteran," a 32-page guide for veterans planning to buy or build homes with GI loans, is now available at all veterans administration offices.

VA said the pamphlet is designed to help World War II and post-Korea veterans get started on the right foot under the GI home loan program.

The pamphlet discusses what a veteran should look for in selecting the neighborhood, the lot and the house itself.

It also covers the cost of home ownership, the contract of purchase, final settlement or closing the loan, and what to expect before and after moving into a new home.

Responsibilities Reviewed—Responsibilities of the veteran home owner and what the VA can and cannot do to assist the veteran are also discussed.

A copy of the pamphlet will be sent to each veteran applying for a certificate of eligibility for a GI loan. Veterans also may obtain a copy by writing the nearest VA office. There is no charge for the pamphlet.

The veteran should send his original discharge or separation papers, by registered mail, to the VA regional office when making application for this certificate of eligibility. VA urged eligible veterans to apply for this certificate well in advance of their contacting a lender for a loan. This will speed up the processing of the loan guaranty and eliminate delays, VA said.

Government-Backed Los Alamos Nevertheless Is Boost to Private Enterprise in Enchanted Land

A cluster of wooden barracks which housed a small group of scientists working on the Manhattan Project has mushroomed during the last decade into New Mexico's eighth largest city.

The city and county of Los Alamos, where more than 5,700 workers now contribute to atomic energy research and development, is reported on in the current issue of New Mexico Business, monthly bulletin of the bureau of business research of the University of New Mexico.

Los Alamos employees earn money at a rate of nearly $2.5 million a month, and spend it in ever-widening circles out from Los Alamos, as far afield as Albuquerque and Denver.

Boosts Private Business

"Los Alamos, a government town which owes almost nothing to free enterprise, has given private business a healthy boost in northern New Mexico," the publication states.

The state legislature made a county of Los Alamos four years ago and, as befits a youngster, it is the smallest of the 32 counties. It has an area of 108 square miles, as compared with more than 50 square miles in the city of Albuquerque alone.

Only permanent community in this minuscule unit is Los Alamos itself, located 24 miles northwest of Santa Fe. The 7,300 foot elevation gives it the coolest climate of any large city in the state.

The federal government, the bureau reports, owns all real estate, lets contracts, and passes judgment on who may live at Los Alamos. Since the government must attract skilled workers to the remote locale, new homes and public buildings are modern and well-designed.

Attractive Result

Result of this, the bulletin says, is that "the federal government, at a fairly stiff cost, has made Los Alamos attractive to middle-class Americans: A community uniformly clean, safe, and up-to-date in its physical layout and services."

"The population of Los Alamos (city) is 12,700. This makes it the eighth largest in the state. New Mexico Business says that "The atomic energy commission plans an eventual stable population of about 14,000 for the county, about 10 per cent greater than at present."

Men outnumbered women considerably at Los Alamos during the early stages of its growth, but do so no longer. In 1949, 53.3 per cent of the population was male. By 1951, only 50.2 per cent were male.

An exceptionally high educational level on "The Hill" was noted in the business research pamphlet. About half the high school graduates there go on to college. In 1950, almost a quarter of the residents, 25 or older, had completed college.

An additional 32 per cent of the residents had completed high school, compared with 18 per cent for New Mexico.

Favorable Average— There were only 14 deaths in the county in the fiscal year of 1951-52. The official death rate of 1.1 a thousand is about eight times more favorable than the national average, but is not too different from the nationwide rates for groups in the youthful brackets that comprise the bulk of Los Alamos's population, the bulletin says.

"Tuberculosis is almost non-existent in Los Alamos," the booklet says. Only one active case was detected from 1946 to 1950 out of 6,700 persons X-rayed in that period. This is due largely to careful health screening of job applicants and school children, and to the excellent medical facilities in the city.

The county has three library systems, a technical library for the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory, a school library, and a public library. These last two are used almost interchangeably by residents, the report found.

In the public library, leisure time novels and short stories are the most read. In the center of the giant American atomic research program, science fiction stories are extremely popular.

The Los Alamos county commissioners, clerk, sheriff, assessor, justice of the peace, probate judge, and treasurer are elected by local voters and receive a dollar a year for their services.

Deputy county officials on full pay carry on most of the essential business of the county, and function more efficiently than some other New Mexico subdivisions, the report suggests, because they are unencumbered by obsolete methods which are sometimes found in older parts of the state.

A policeman's lot is a fairly happy one at Los Alamos, where screening of employees before they can secure jobs and hence live at Los Alamos, makes the crime rate very low.

Also, a cop's pay starts at $4,205 a year. Their authority is derived from the elected county sheriff, but they are hired by the atomic energy commission.

Non-existent Welfare— Since Los Alamos is a county of full employment, the welfare problem is almost non-existent, the report found. The county maintains an indigent fund of about $2,000, but claims against it are "small and infrequent."

Virtually every family owns a car in Los Alamos, and about one out of every 10 families has more than one, county officials estimate, adding that one of the two is usually a beat-up "go-to-work car."

There is presently no newspaper in Los Alamos. Although residents appear over-whelmingly to want a paper of their own, it is doubtful, the report states, whether circulation and advertising revenue could support a local paper.

Mrs. W. S. Hogsett and son, Charles, left this week for Litchfield, Ill., to visit relatives. They plan to be gone two weeks.

Drillers Earn Second Win Over Potashers

Artesia scored its secundo defeat of the Carlsbad Potashers in the 1953 Longhorn season Wednesday night, administering a 4-1 clubbing to the first place Carlsbad entry.

Only John Treece's home run in the bottom of the eighth with none on scored for Carlsbad.

Frank Martin went the route for Artesia, allowing Carlsbad only six, well-spaced hits.

It was Martin's sixth consecutive win for the Drillers, against no losses.

Mgr. Earl Perry indicated Mar-men report on the comparative values of fine wool from rams and ewes in two different clips. They point out that wool buyers often automatically discount the price of fine ram wool by one-third of the value of fine ewe wool.

In the study of the first clip, about 435 pounds of grease wool from rams and about 563 pounds of grease wool from ewes in the same herd were sorted, scoured, and made into tops. The ram fleeces contained a total of 16.27 off sorts while the ewe wool was 23.29 per cent off sorts. The ram wool was about 80 per cent staple length while the ewe wool was about 66 per cent French combing.

The clean wool from the rams was superior to the ewe wool because it produced a larger percentage of higher priced tops, a larger percentage of noils, and a lower percentage of waste. On the basis of its actual value, the ram wool would have brought about 17 cents a pound more at the ranch than it brought.

In the second clip, about 100 ram and 100 ewe fleeces were bought from an Indian trader. These fleeces were sorted, scoured, and made into tops. In this study, there wasn't much difference in quality between the ram and ewe wool. The ram wool contained tin, if he won the Wednesday game, would pitch against Carlsbad again last night.

Artesia hit Carlsbad nine times, scoring solos in the fifth and sixth and two in the final inning.

Bill Haley's three doubles for Artesia provided the most RBIs.

Despite Artesia's win Wednesday, Carlsbad nevertheless went into Longhorn league's first place. San Angelo dropped two games to Big Spring, 7-4 and 3-2.

But Carlsbad's lead figured out to be a slender one statistically—006.

Estill Tour

Communism, and conversations with leaders in every field of human endeavor to gain an insight on European problems, especially as they relate to the church.

Estill will close his law office in Artesia for better than two months to make the trip. Because of the double financial cost—loss of income and cost of the trip—Christian people of every denomination have been contributing funds for the tour cost.

City Stymied

A recently graduated veterinarian is due to locate in Artesia July 1, but there have been unofficial reports he would not move here, councilmen said.

Personal Mention

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Nugent left today for a two weeks vacation trip. They will go to California, Oregon and Washington.

Mrs. Mary Thirby returned last Wednesday from a five weeks vacation to her former home at Cedar Falls, Iowa. She visited relatives and friends and looked after business. Mrs. Thirby is an aunt to Bob, Jack, and Ed McCaw, and to Mrs. Russell Rogers.

About 3 per cent more off sorts. Even so, on the basis of its actual value, it should have sold at the ranch for about 15.5 cents a pound more than it really brought.

Over 5,800 4-H Members Pace Lively Program

More than 5,800 4-H club boys and girls in New Mexico are engaged in community betterment programs of health, recreation, and safety, according to L. S. Kurtz, state 4-H club leader with the Extension Service of New Mexico A&M college.

"Through these programs, 4-Hers learn how to live healthfully, develop personal and community resources that make for improved leisure time and happiness, and curtail accidents by removing safety hazards," Kurtz says.

In 1952, 753 New Mexico club members participated in the 4-H health improvement program, for which Kellogg Co., Battle Creek, Mich., is awards donor; 3,028 received training in 4-H recreation and rural arts, with incentives provided by United States Rubber Co., and more than 2,000 took part in 4-H club safety activities, with special recognitions offered by Gen-

Hagerman News

Margaret York accompanied her mother, Mrs. Fox to Roswell for a week of two, at the Fox home.

Funeral services were held for Mary Ballard Foster on Friday morning at 10:30 at Hagerman Methodist church.

The Rev. G. H. Woolf, pastor of the Methodist church, and Rev. J. H. New, pastor of the Baptist church, conducted the services.

Many beautiful flowers covered the casket and graced the chancel. Mrs. Foster was a faithful member of the Hagerman Methodist church.

The WSCS of which Mrs. Foster has been a home member, attended to a body.

Funeral bearers were Messrs. H. E. Edd, Delbert Dennis, Melvin Edd, Wayne Graham, Elmer Edd and Wayne Shipman. Interment was in the Hagerman cemetery.

Mary Ballard was born Nov. 27, 1881 at Fayetteville, Ala., and died at her home on W. Kansas, Hagerman, June 3.

She was married to L. D. Foster in 1901 at Gatesville, Texas. He died about 18 years ago.

By this union six children were born, all of whom survive. They are: four sons, C. P. Foster, F. E. Edd, and W. N. Foster, all of Hagerman; two daughters, Mrs. Edd, wife of Wylie, Texas, and Mrs. J. Rentfrow of Morton, Texas.

Mrs. Foster was also survived by grandchildren and 20 great grandchildren.

Among those from out-of-town who attended the services were Mr. G. H. Lambright, Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Foster, Wilman and Helen Foster, all of Lubbock, Texas; and Mrs. Ira Copeland, Mr. and Mrs. Delbert English and son A. P. Foster, all of Dexter; Mr. and Mrs. A. E. In Healthy Shape

BASEBALL FANS should take note that no Longhorn league team wanted to drop from the league when that alternative to the loop's knotty discussion over its future was offered in a meeting Monday.

League Prexy Hal Sayles offered the alternative as one solution for the league's welfare following withdrawal of the Winters-Ballinger franchise. No one took him up on it.

Commenting afterward, Artesia Mer. Earl Perry said all remaining teams in the league are evidently financially healthy—or at least able to get by.

That's a tribute to the way baseball is supported in the Lonehorn league, especially in the smaller cities of the circuit. Professional baseball today is expensive—no one better knows that than Artesia.

We have in the Winters-Ballinger case an exclamation point to add to the statements of Mr. Perry and the ball club's board of directors. They have repeatedly warned that failure to enthusiastically and consistently support the Artesia Drillers could result in great financial loss.

Perhaps there are some in the community who believed baseball will always get by, one way or another, that someone will pay the bill, that surely the ball club just wouldn't quit.

But we see in the Winters-Ballinger case that a ball club can quit. Ballinger's ball park had 1,800 fans there the first night the team played home after buying the franchise. But there were only between 300 and 400 the next nights. That doesn't pay the overhead.

That franchise ended the 1952 season as Sweetwater. During the early fall it became Pecos, and then later the franchise went to Lamesa. Two weeks ago it went to Winters and Ballinger who joined to back the club.

We have a case in point that ball clubs can fall through non-support, through lack of consistent, loyal attendance. But we may also be encouraged that our Artesia Drillers, fielded by the smallest city in the Lonehorn league, feel they have enough loyalty from fans behind them to give no thought to dropping from professional baseball.

New School Board
COMMUNITY INTEREST is rising rapidly this week in the plan to have the Artesia board of education resign so that a new board may be appointed to include representatives from rural areas.

As this is written it is unknown whether or not the school board will resign as it has been requested to do. Our guess is that the matter will be deferred until it is studied out a little more carefully, for the new school board knows little of what is involved.

It is also just a guess that when the new board is appointed, it will include three Artesia board members and two rural area representatives, probably one from Hope, where the people are unhappy over loss of direct control over their schools, and one from Atoka, where the people were sold on reorganization with the promise, among others, that they would have direct representation on the school board.

There can be no arguing that giving

Tinder-Dry New Mexico, Arizona Forests Give Fire Officials Jitters: Closings Studied

FOREST FIRES WHICH already have swept through areas of the Lincoln National Forest and edge of the Gila wilderness have forest service officials worried.

Forest fires are more likely than ever in tinder-dry New Mexico woodlands, the U. S. forest service fears.

Two fires were reported along the Colorado-New Mexico border this week.

The regional fire control office in Albuquerque has closed part of the Cococino National Forest south of Flagstaff, Ariz. There are indications that if weather conditions continue as dry as they have been, areas of New Mexico will also be closed.

STEVE HURLEY, SPOKES- man for Pat Hurley's election battle, says opposition to the recount Hurley is demanding in the U. S. senatorial election comes from those who must profit from corrupt politics and those who have reason to fear a thorough inves-rural representation is the just thing to do. Not only is it just and fair, but it is also the wisest course, for we shall be faced with problems in our rural schools which shall call for advice from people familiar with the areas discussed.

Some Artesians are miffed because the Carlsbad board was not also requested to resign. School officials say that no one from the Carlsbad rural areas requested representation, and so the action was not taken. But whatever the situation at Carlsbad, let's be concerned about doing what's right in our own community.

What we are concerned about is the manner in which these new board members shall eventually be chosen by the state board of education.

On whose recommendation will they be chosen?

Will the recommendations come from one or two men, or from the people? Who will have the say as to who is chosen for the new board?

The only other alternative apparent at the moment is holding a special board election for the new Artesia district. This course, however, poses legal questions which to this moment have not been answered.

Whatever is decided on, the method to be followed in recommendation of board members should be fair to the people of the Artesia district. The new board should certainly not be appointed on the basis of recommendations from one or two persons with influence.

Rights Are Denied
PERMITTING DENIAL of American rights to American citizens just tends to encourage a wider spread of this practice and the denial of other rights and privileges.

There is hardly a day goes by that some rights of American citizens are not denied. It is true also that oftentimes citizens are guilty of exceeding these rights and of imposing on the rights of others.

Our rights only extend to that point of where they impose on the rights of others.

But there has become too wide a practice over the state for the good of the citizens of picking up or taking of driver's license on the part of police officers.

Officers have a perfect right to request an individual to show them their driver's license. They have a right to inspect and to check this license. But where they have completed this, however, that driver's license is to be handed back to that car or truck operator.

A law enforcement officer has no right by any stretch of the imagination to take possession or to keep a driver's license. Only a judge in a court—city court, justice court or a district court—has the right to take a driver's license and to keep it.

Don't surrender your driver's license to any officer regardless of his demands because he is exceeding his authority when he proceeds to do this.

There also is another practice in certain parts of this state of ours of issuing citations to individuals and telling them to what court they are to appear in. In the case of city officers and the violation of city ordinances individuals are cited to city court. However, no police officer has the right to tell you to what justice of the peace court you must report if there is more than one justice of the peace court.

The insistence on the part of an officer that a defendant appear in a certain justice of the peace court may be for the best reasons in the world. However, not only has the officer exceeded his authority, but he has created a situation where the public becomes highly suspicious and where it wonders just why this is being done.

Citizens stopped and interviewed by officers should be polite and courteous, merely demanding their rights. But it is also the duty of the officer halting the individual to remain polite and courteous. It is not in their providence to become abusive, to lecture the individual or to resort to physical violence. They are supposed to be trained to remain calm. If they have a citation and just must issue it, then they should go ahead with this job.

It does not fall in their province to set themselves up as the judge and the jury; to convict the defendant before trial; or to presume to exercise the authority and rights left by our laws in the hands of the trial judge.

After all in America the legal system still dictates that any and all defendants are presumed innocent until they have been proven guilty in a court of justice.

Hobbs — Bustling With Money—Could Take Over Longhorn Franchise, Bolster Competition

HERE'S HOBBS' CHANCE
 We think one ideal solution for much of the trouble in the Longhorn League could be solved if Hobbs would take over the franchise of a club.

Bustling with oil money, and with nearby Loving, Tatum, Eunice and Jal to draw from, Hobbs should be able to support a professional baseball club in good style.

If Hobbs were to join the Longhorn League, that would make four teams in this corner of the state, counting Roswell, Artesia and Carlsbad. This should tend to strengthen all existing clubs, especially those in New Mexico, and create a keen rivalry which would be reflected at the gate.

Seven existing teams in the league are in good shape. The one sick member started out at Lamesa, shifted over to Ballinger, and then gave up the ghost. The league are in good shape. The one find some solution for this situation. Our chief concern is that some other town, in some other area, will pick up the loose franchise before Hobbs gets around to it.

We would invite the attention of Hobbs civic leaders to the amazing success of the Potashers in their first year in Carlsbad and suggest that Hobbs could easily enjoy some of the same if they step lively and grab that franchise.

It's true, Hobbs has no field, and the chances are almost nil that a franchise could be shifted to Hobbs for play this year. But there's next year.

There's a bit of selfishness about this proposal. With other Carlsbad fans, we like to get in the car and drive to Artesia and Roswell when the Potashers play there. We'd like to get a chance to see 'em play in Hobbs, too. — Carlsbad Current-Argus.

SOUTHWEST IS DAMAGED
 A damaging blow has been dealt to the Southwest and to New Mexico is particular, by the Public Health Service's declaration that climate has no curative powers for tuberculosis patients.

The statement was made in rebuttal to argument that the Fort Stanton Marine hospital should remain in operation because of the advantages its location offered to patients.

The medical profession seems to have differing opinions about effect of climate on tuberculosis, but practical opinion is that a dry climate such as the Southwest offers, is a considerable advantage to treatment of the disease, and there are plenty of cases to prove the point.

In Roswell, for instance, there are men and women of advanced middle years who came here years ago under the impression that they had little time to live. They recovered from the disease and are now living normal active lives, and have been for 30 or more years in some cases.

Try to convince them that climate doesn't have curative effects, and you'll get an argument on your hands. The public health service appears to ignore the records, however, in its stubborn stand on the Ft. Stanton installation.

A lot of folks who realize that one of the biggest assets of the Southwest is its climate, will be irked at the health bureau, feeling that its statements are damaging and arise from theorizing rather than from practical knowledge and experience. However, there is no way they can get back at the service, or make it back up on its ill-advised statements. — Roswell Record.

"Cooperation is based on understanding and understanding is based on information."
 The words are those of Ray W. Bashaw, administrator of Lea General hospital. He spoke them in a meeting of the New Mexico Hospital association recently.

"You are not being frank enough with your news outlets," Bashaw told his listeners. "If you want cooperation and understanding, you have to give out the proper information. If you can't give it out legally, explain why and you will find your news and radio men willing to go along with you nearly every time."

 Bashaw, past president of the NMHA and for many years a capable and successful hospital administrator, knows whereof he speaks. His record of practicing what he preaches here is excellent.

"Where you get into trouble is trying to cover something up and the longer you try, the worse trouble you're in," he says. "People naturally suspect something is amiss when an attempt is made to suppress what is, after all, public information. Certain things are public information no matter what business you are in."

Many a person, from top-level government agencies on down, could profit by heeding such advice.—Hobbs News-Sun.

THOUGHTS IN PRINT
Capitol Hill Wondering Whether Durkin Appointment Plum, Lemon

IS THE APPOINTMENT OF Martin Durkin as secretary of labor a plum or a lemon?
 Ed Townsend thinks so on the subject in the Christian Science Monitor like this:

The plum organized labor got from the Eisenhower administration—the appointment of a union man as Secretary of Labor—may turn out to have been a lemon, instead.

President Eisenhower pulled a surprise when he chose an American Federation of Labor union president, Martin Durkin, for his cabinet. Senator Robert A. Taft (R) of Ohio termed the appointment "incredible" and business and industry shared his amazement.

Labor applauded the appointment; its leaders said the designation of a union man for the Secretary of Labor job assured the nation's organized workers a voice in top government circles—even though, labor said, the union man Durkin would be "surrounded by millionaires" at each Cabinet meeting.

It is now pretty obvious that the Durkin appointment has not worked out as the administration hoped it would—or, for that matter, as well as labor would have liked it to. The fault is not Mr. Durkin's; a highly capable official, he could be almost certain of an outstanding record as head of the Department of Labor except for one thing, the fact that he is a union man.

His high position in the labor movement, as president of the plumbers' union, has proved to be a hindrance in just about everything he has set out to do. If he expresses an opinion, it is received as the biased opinion of a union official—not as the opinion of the administration's Secretary of Labor. If he makes a recommendation, it is suspect. If he opposes a congressional move—as he opposed recent moves to cut the Department of Labor's budget—a note of bias, of partisanship for the union cause, is certain to be suspected in his words.

Mr. Durkin does believe wholeheartedly in unionism, but his record in years of service in the Illinois state government shows clearly that he always has been able to keep public interest and union interest separate.

He is following the same policy in Washington that he followed in Illinois. Emil Rieve, president of CIO's textile union, recently criticized a Durkin decision on a textile minimum wage as a "sell-out" to industry. Mr. Durkin had acted in what he considered to be the public's best interest, not the union's.

For the same reason, in selecting assistants Mr. Durkin has his sights set on a top-flight industry man for an important assignment. He believes that balancing labor aides with a strong man from industry will be in the best interest of the public—and of the country.

Despite these moves, Mr. Durkin has not been able to win acceptance as a public-minded government official on Capitol Hill, where he most needs to gain that acceptance. No matter what he does or how he does it (and even though many in Congress say he is more conscientious and less labor-biased than his predecessor, Maurice Tobin), Mr. Durkin continues to be considered labor's spokesman—and at a time when labor popularity is at a low point.

That's why labor's plum shows signs of being a lemon. Unions today recognize a need for a Cabinet firend able to get a sympathetic hearing on Capitol Hill for labor's program. As the situation now is, Mr. Durkin can't.

His rebuff on the Department of Labor budget, for instance, demonstrated that. So did the cool reception he got on suggestions he has made about Taft-Hartley amendments.

A less-determined man might have resigned before this. Mr. Durkin's resignation has been rumored consistently for a couple of months; it's not likely, for a time, at least, Mr. Durkin wants to stick out his appointment, to make his voice effectual rather than to quit and admit ineffectiveness.

COFFEE TALK—

People Want to Give Rural Areas School Reps, Can't Figure How

AS THIS IS WRITTEN, there's no doubt that people of North Eddy county are pretty much agreed that they want rural representation on the school board which will govern the newly reorganized district.

And most people seem agreed that a 3-2 ratio is desirable. That would be three Artesia residents, and two from the rural areas.

But the question is: How are we going to set up that kind of board?

The Artesia school board, which wants to give rural representation, isn't going to resign until they're sure that the state board of education will appoint a representative board on a just basis.

The key contention is: Who's going to recommend appointees when the state board acts on the appointment?

Is it going to be a committee of leading citizens?

Is it going to be on a straw vote conducted with legal election machinery?

Is it going to be the result of the will of a mass meeting?

That's what we've got to find out.

Incidentally, this suggestion was heard over the coffee table:

The school boards could conduct a "straw vote" in North Eddy county, but using all the regular legal election machinery and procedure. While such a vote would have no legal standing, it would nevertheless determine who the people want on the school board.

Then the Artesia school board could hand in its resignation with the condition that the people winning the "straw vote" be appointed.

THE CITY OF ARTESIA IS hiring a water meter reader for $300 a month. Some of you white collar workers might well do to ponder this development.

The city wants a man who'll stick with the job and not quit just after he's at last learned where all the meters are hidden.

Some white collar people admit they're getting that—well, a little more—in their jobs.

PEOPLE WHO HAVEN'T paid their bills to the Woodbine cemetery association have certainly put the organization in a sad financial plight. It's nothing new.

Because people don't pay their bills out there, the cemetery board has no money to invest in a four-inch water main. If the cemetery's beauty is to be maintained, it needs to attend to its water system.

So there you are. It'd be pretty sad for the cemetery to have to forego its customary watering program because it can't afford to maintain its water system.

SOMEBODY SHOVED A CLIP ping across this desk which reads: "A Shawnee, Okla., editor told readers into his confidence when he wrote: 'In case you find a mistake in the News-Star, please remember that it was put there for somebody's benefit. We try to get something in the paper for everybody, and some of our readers are always for mistakes.'"

FROM YOUR CONGRESSMAN

Dempsey Predicts Showdown By End Of June Over Government Spending

By JOHN J. DEMPSEY
 Congressman from New Mexico
WASHINGTON, JUNE 11.—A showdown between the spenders and the economy bloc in the Congress is fast approaching. Before the end of this month the American taxpayer is going to know whether the promised relief from excessive waste and spending and from the heaviest tax burden in our history is going to be forthcoming.

Cuts that have been made in departmental appropriations up to this time have been heavy but they aggregate a small amount compared to those that the economy-minded members of the Congress are seeking to make in defense and foreign-aid spending, particularly the latter.

In view of the hardships imposed on our own people by reductions made in appropriations for urgently-needed projects in this country it will be difficult and embarrassing for the spenders to fail to agree to a justifiable cut in the two largest items in the budget. This will be particularly true if the Korean truce agreement results in lessening of pressure for continued heavy military expenditures in the Far East.

The case of the economy bloc has been materially strengthened by at least two recent developments in Washington. The first is the report by members of the business men's group sent abroad to appraise the mutual security program that our expenditures of billions in foreign nations had not produced sufficient results to justify that spending. In fact, they reported, the lavish living of many of our representatives abroad has led to distrust of our country and its motives.

The second development, which supports the plan of the President to cut back the Air Force appropriations by approximately $5 billion, brought startling revelations of inefficiency and waste in Air Force spending. Investigation by a Senate armed services subcommittee, headed by Sen. Styles Bridges, (R-N.H.), of a contract with the Kaiser Motors Corp., of Detroit, to build 159 "flying boxcars"—C-119 cargo planes—has proved beyond question that wanton waste still is to be found in armed services procurement operations.

Hearings by that subcommittee, with searching questions being asked by Senator Bridges and Senator Byrd (D.Va.), brought reluctant admissions from Air Force top officials that the Kaiser company was being paid $1.2 million each for planes that were being built by the Fairchild aircraft Corp. for $260,000, one-fifth of the price being paid Kaiser. The original Air Force schedule for the planes showed an estimated price of $467,000 per plane, less than one-half the actual price being paid. It was revealed also that the Air Force has been planning to make additional contracts with the Kaiser company for 123 planes—a new "flying boxcar" model.

Some of the reasons why the taxpayers are getting only 25 cents in return for each dollar spent by the Air Force in this case were revealed by an Air Force auditor who told the committee he had disallowed more than $4,250,000 of charges the Kaiser company had sought to collect from the government under the contract, and which were actually expenditures for the motor car business of the Kaiser concern.

He listed among those charges $13 million for interest on government loans to the auto makers, $61,620 spent celebrating completion of the first "flying boxcar," $72,533 for travel and entertainment and $4,864 for newspaper advertisements replying to Senator Bridges' criticism of the contract. Such evidence as that and other revelations of waste and inefficiency fully justify my contention that reduced appropriations for the armed services, if properly expended will not result in the loss of any necessary equipment.

"This is incomprehensible," said Senator Bridges, "particularly in view of the fact that less than 50 of the planes have been delivered and those far behind the delivery date. The Senate will have to look over the Air Force budget very carefully in view of these disclosures."

Lt. Gen. Orval R. Cook, Air Force deputy chief of staff, who said, "The Air Force views the contract with apprehension and regret," admitted that the plan delivery schedules were "unrealistic" and that the Air Force has "no well-defined long-range program." His testimony was similar to that heard 2 year ago by the House Armed Services subcommittee investigating waste in military procurement. That should convince the Congress the armed services have not yet been ed the warning of that committee to "apply sound business methods to procurement and eliminate the huge waste of taxpayers' money
