Opening Night Attendance Is Over 4,000, Officials Estimate

Artesia's successful V-J Day Ranch Hands Rodeo continues tonight and Saturday following a highly successful opening which attracted more than 7,000 people in first two nights of the show and attracted favorable comment from rodeo fans.

Rodeo performances are scheduled for 7:30 tonight and tomorrow night. Saturday's performance will be final show of the event.

Artesia Roping club officials are attempting to run heavily-entered events prior to Saturday night's final performance so that awards to winning cowboys may be made at close of the show.

For the best all-around cowboy, a handsomely-tooled saddle will be awarded Saturday night at end of the performance. Sterling belt buckles will be given first and second place winners in all events. Epsilon Sigma Alpha sorority will make its award to the rodeo's "Hard Luck Cowboy."

The rodeo drew well over 4,000 persons to its opening performance Wednesday night. Crowds were easily handled, and no long lines of cars and patrons were encountered, thanks to roping club arrangements for parking facilities. Over 3,000 Seated—

More than 3,000 persons were seated in grandstands at the grounds, and another 1,000 to 1,500 were standing, roping club officials estimated.

Spectators extended praise for a fast-moving show, which is directed by Producers Bob Chipman and Buck Jernigan. The well-timed show covers about two hours.

A dust storm which threatened to descend on the arena Wednesday night held off until mid-way through the final act.

Added to the show for its last three nights is a novice cutting horse contest, featuring non-professional horses.

Other events include bull riding, bareback and saddle bronc riding, double mugging, calf roping, senior and junior barrel races.

Novelty Bull Cart—

Featured at the end of the bull riding is a novelty bull cart stunt in which a two-wheeled cart with a swivel fastening is attached to a bull.

Wednesday night's opening performance featured crowning of Miss Kay Clayton as rodeo queen by Miss Sally Sears, queen of the 1952 event. Hundreds of horses crowded the arena during opening ceremonies.

Proceeds from this year's show will again be devoted to further ground improvements, according to Walter Solt, president of the roping club. Further bleacher additions are planned, as well as other projects.

Here We Go—Grid Practice Starts Tuesday

Call for football practice has been issued by head football Coach Reese Smith for Tuesday, Aug. 18, at 8 a. m.

Uniforms will be issued next Monday from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m., Smith has announced.

"We're going to get right down to work Aug. 18," Smith has told football candidates.

Successful V-J Day Rodeo Parade Seen By Over 7,000

Nine prizes awarded three winning floats in each of three divisions for the big V-J Day Rodeo Parade were announced this week by the Chamber of Commerce, sponsor of the parade.

More than 7,000 people crowded Main street from Eleventh to First to view the parade.

Winners in the float contest were: Organizations — Girl Scout float, first; Boy Scout troop 27, second; Odd Fellows, third.

Children's — Uncle Sam, portrayed by Bobby Brown, first; lamb pulling cart, second; and Billy McCabe with his goat-drawn cart, third.

Commercial — Sam Sanders entry with oil derrick, first; Cox Motor Co. decorated car, second; New Mexico Welding, bathing beauty float, third.

Prizes of $50, $25, and $10 were awarded first, second, and third place winners in organizational and commercial float divisions, and $15, $10, and $5 for the winners in the kids' division.

Paul W. Scott, C of C Mgr., said conservative estimates of Wednesday's parade crowd began at 7,000.

The parade was led by a color guard and marching band from Walker Air Force base, and headed by Lt. Gov. Tibbo Chavez on horseback. Chavez' riding skill attracted favorable comment from many spectators.

A count by one spectator reported to chamber offices showed more than 250 horses in the parade, one of the largest assemblies of horses in a parade here.

Crowds began arriving in the city early Wednesday morning and many stayed in the city through the day until opening of the rodeo Wednesday night.

Miss Clayton Crowned Queen Of 1953 Ranch Hands Rodeo

Miss Kay Clayton was named winner of the 1953 V-J Day Ranch Hands Rodeo in ceremonies following close of the contest Wednesday noon by officers of the sponsoring sorority, Epsilon Sigma Alpha.

Miss Clayton was presented a dozen roses by ESA officers in ceremonies Wednesday afternoon. She also received a bronze statue of a horse.

Miss Ann Armstrong placed second, Miss Peggy Hanna third, Trailing were Miss Marjorie Solt and Miss Dorothy Green.

All contestants were presented with miniature bronze cowboy boots.

Miss Clayton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Clayton, was sponsored by Artesia Kiwanis club.

She was crowned queen of the rodeo in ceremonies Wednesday evening by Miss Sally Sears, queen of the 1952 rodeo.

As queen, she will lead the grand entry for each night's rodeo performance. She will also receive a host of gift awards from Artesia merchants.

Proceeds from the contest are shared by the sorority and Artesia Roping club, sponsor of the rodeo. ESA will devote its share of the funds toward furthering the Nida Dunnam Mills memorial scholarship, awarded annually by the sorority.

Balloting in the queen contest was on a penny-a-vote basis. Spirited vote-getting tactics widely publicized the rodeo.

Miss Clayton was an early leader in the queen contest and retained her lead throughout, although in final days sorority officers reported the three-way race for top as "very close."

Safety Council Urges Adoption of Road Control Measures at School Crossings

Steps designed to make areas around Artesia schools safer and eliminate traffic congestion are recommended by the Artesia Safety Council this week.

The council recommended: Seventh street from Main to block be made a through street to relieve congestion on Eleventh which passes two schools.

Stop markers be removed from 11th street.

Hermosa school children be protected by crosswalks painted on the pavement on the west end of crosswalks on the east end as well as paving is completed.

School slow signs be painted on streets near Hermosa school, and movable metal stop signs also placed in the street when children are crossing.

A junior traffic patrol be formed in the schools, especially protect Hermosa school, which is located on a heavily-travelled street used by cars at higher rates speed.

School crosswalks be painted on Main and Thirteenth, and at 11th and Main, and curb and gutter be installed at Thirteenth and 11th.

Paint caution signs on pavement leading to intersections having three-way traffic lights, especially at Thirteenth and Main, 11th and Main, and at Main and 11th in all directions.

Proposals that a safedriver's club be organized was deferred by the safety council for further study. The organization would assist police in safe driver education and in reporting traffic violations.

Fire Destroys $800 in Pillows At Driller Park

Fire Wednesday night destroyed between $600 and $800 worth of pillows and folding seats at Driller Park concession stand.

Firemen said the blaze, fanned by a high wind, was of undetermined origin.

The estimate was set by Driller Park Mgr. Earl Perry, who said the loss to the ball club was complete, since pillows were owned outright by the club, while seats are leased.

A similar fire last year destroyed a large number of pillows and other materials.

School Board Accepts Bids For Extensive Improvements

Bids for improvement of Artesia school grounds were opened and placed by board of education members Monday evening in a lengthy session which lasted until midnight.

Board members deferred for further study plans to resurface playgrounds at Park and Central schools.

While asphalt has been used in the past, the surface has not been too satisfactory, board members said. Reports of other materials available for playground surfacing will be investigated.

The board also awarded a bid of $2,117.50 to Globe Manufacturing Co. of Amarillo to furnish 270 classroom chair-desks for schools at Cottonwood and Hope, and Senior high school at Artesia.

Contracts for bus service were extended subject to a change of routes.

Oilfield School Discontinued, Board Decides

Oilfield school, which for 25 years has educated children of oilfield families in the Illinois Camp area, has passed from existence.

Artesia board of education Monday night voted to discontinue the school. The action was taken when transportation surveys showed 16 of 18 prospective students live closer to the Loco Hills school than the Oilfield school.

The school was built in 1928 by oilmen through donation and later sold to the county school system.

Hope Water Bids All Rejected, Mayor Announces

All bids on the Hope water project have been rejected, Mayor Ethel Altman has announced.

The action was taken by the town's government when studies revealed all bids exceeded the loan estimate, Mayor Altman said.

The board is now negotiating with Leonard George of Hagerman on drilling of a well only, she added.

W. C. Morgan of Gallup submitted low bid on the well, but Morgan in a subsequent telephone conversation said he was not interested in the well contract alone.

Plans are being formulated for a new opening of bids to be announced at a later date, Mayor Altman said.

Estimated cost of the Hope projects is $50,000, a figure set by government engineers for drilling a well and constructing a pipeline distribution system.

Burke was returned to Eddy county jail at Carlsbad, where he and a second suspect, Kenneth Powers of Carlsbad, have been held since their arrest 10 days after the robbery.

Both pleaded not guilty to the Artesia robbery.

Three other indictments face Powers in Carlsbad. He was a witness at Thursday afternoon's hearing for Burke.

The two men were charged with theft of the safe the night of June 12 or morning of June 13.

The safe was later found abandoned in an empty farm house a mile north and three miles east of Lake Arthur by Chaves county Deputy Charles Troublefield.

Taken was about $150 in cash. About $4,450 in checks and a pair of diamond cuff links valued at $250 were recovered with the safe.

Roswell Social Security Officer To Visit Monday

Ralph H. Yowell, field representative of the Roswell social security administration office, will be in Artesia, Monday morning, Aug. 17, to assist application for old-age or survivors insurance benefits and to give information concerning the 1952 amendments to the social security act.

He will be at the office of the New Mexico state employment service, 511 W. Main, between 10 and 11:30 a. m.

Many women in social security covered jobs do not know that the new old-age and survivors insurance protects them and their dependent families in their old age as well as their dependent children, dependent husbands, or parents in the event of their death. Some women who are not insured on their own account are not aware that they and their children are protected by their husband's social security wage record.

Some women who own businesses or who are otherwise self-employed do not understand that they were given coverage, effective Jan. 1, 1951, under the new social security law, and now have the same protection as women employees. Also, many do not realize that they need to get a personal social security card and pay "premiums" or tax of 2 1/4 per cent on net self-employment income up to a maximum of $3,600 when they file their regular annual income tax reports.

Some women who employ household workers are confused as to the requirements for reporting so-

'53 State Fair Premium Book Now in Mail

ALBUQUERQUE, (Special) — New Mexico's version of the book of the month is going into the mails daily to thousands of avid readers.

Literally, however, it is the book of 'the year—a 293 page volume packed with facts and figures and a storehouse for fall plans. It is the 1953 New Mexico State Fair premium book.

Just off the presses, the premium book details more than $210,000 in prize money and awards to go to the best in New Mexico livestock farm, arts and science fields.

Issued under the supervision of Secretary-Manager Leon Harms, the premium book lists highlights of the 15th annual exposition to be held at the State Fair Grounds in eastern Albuquerque for nine days beginning Sept. 26.

In a foreword, Gov. Edwin L. Mechem described the exposition as "the opportunity of seeing what our state produces, of inspecting prize-winning displays of agriculture, and livestock, of arts and crafts."

"On exhibition will also be the finest examples of our great industrial development and our progress in home building," the Chief Executive added.

Each day of the fair, the premium book points out, is dedicated to an individual, an industry, or a group. Included are Governor's Day, Veterans and Armed Forces day, All-Schools day, Wool Growers, Palomino, Cattle and Quarter Horse day; Indian day; Albuquerque day, Dairy Promotion day.

The premium book, as always, carries detailed regulations concerning entry, shipment and care of exhibits, the Queen's contest, the State Fair Parade, Horse Racing and the Rodeo, in addition to general information.

It lists schedules for judging, 21 fair departments, 14 junior departments and events, a schedule of other fairs and expositions, superintendents of various sections, agricultural officials in the state and counties, and special attractions.

Deep in its pages, where detailed information is given on rules and awards for each department, the premium publication tells the story of an increase of more than $10,000 this year in awards to be offered.

Clean, fresh and new now, many copies of the book will be well-thumbed, tattered and torn from extensive reading before many weeks.

Exhibitors not already on mailing lists or whose addresses may have been changed and others may obtain catalogs by contacting the State Fair office, P. O. Box 1693, Albuquerque. A catalog will be mailed immediately.

Life Insurance Women's Division Head to Address State Extension Club Meet

Mrs. Marion Stevens Eberly, director of the women's division of the Institute of Life Insurance, will be one of the featured speakers at the annual meeting of the New Mexico Association of Home Extension Clubs, this month. The meeting will be held at Eastern New Mexico university in Portales, August 17-19.

Mrs. Eberly, one of the country's leading writers and speakers on economic facts of life, heads a national program whose purpose is to give women the information they seek from the life insurance business—information which will help them to meet their responsibilities as homemakers, breadwinners, and citizens.

The interest of women in money management and financial security, Mrs. Eberly has found, grows out of their desire to use money intelligently as a tool in building family happiness. They have a particularly vital stake in life insurance. One out of 10 husbands name their wives as beneficiaries of their policies and women themselves own $45 billion worth of insurance protection.

Mrs. Eberly is a graduate of Harvard college and a member of the American Association of University Women, the Women's Conference Group, the New York League of Business and Professional Women, and the Public Relations Society of America. She serves on the board of the Women's City club of New York and is treasurer of the committee on Women in Public Relations.

Mrs. Eberly's work touches many fields and brings her into contact with a wide variety of individuals and organizations as a writer and speaker. In addition to her work with editors, writers and publishers, she works closely with government bureaus, religious leaders, women's clubs, adult education groups, social welfare agencies, and other organizations.

At the New Mexico homemakers meeting, Mrs. Eberly will be the principal speaker on the evening program, August 17. She will also participate in the general assembly functions, August 18 and 19.

In every way, more car for your money!

Ford gives you V-8 power like that of costly cars... fine car build... fine car ride and "at-home-everywhere" good looks - but the price tag never moves out of the low-price field

Everywhere you go people are making the swing to Ford. And can you blame them? Many cars costing over $1000 more offer no more of the things you need and want. Here are some of Ford's "Worth More" features... but to get the full story, you'll find it worth your while to Test Drive a new Ford today!

Less front-end road shock.
The kind of shock you feel most is reduced up to 80% with Ford's remarkable new ride. You get a smoother, more balanced, more comfortable ride all around!

Suspended pedals work easier and make foot space of the entire floor area. Suspended pedals are also a "keep out" sign to dirt and drafts... make it easier to keep the floor clean!

Smooth V-8 power is exclusive to Ford in its field. And Ford's Mileage Maker is the most modern Six you can own! Both the V-8 and Six-cylinder power plants deliver their hill-leveling "go" on regular gas—and not much of that, thanks to Ford's Automatic Power Pilot!

An extra suitcase will fit into Ford's luggage compartment—the roomiest in the low-price field. In fact, Ford's combined luggage and passenger space is the greatest in the low-price field... compares with that of many cars of higher price.

Center-Fill Fueling permits filling your Ford from either side of the pump... saves you time when refueling... and puts an end to hose scratches on your fender!

Curved one-piece windshield (below) and large picture windows, give Ford the most "look out" area in the low-price field... another reason your Ford is worth more when you buy it... when you sell it, too!

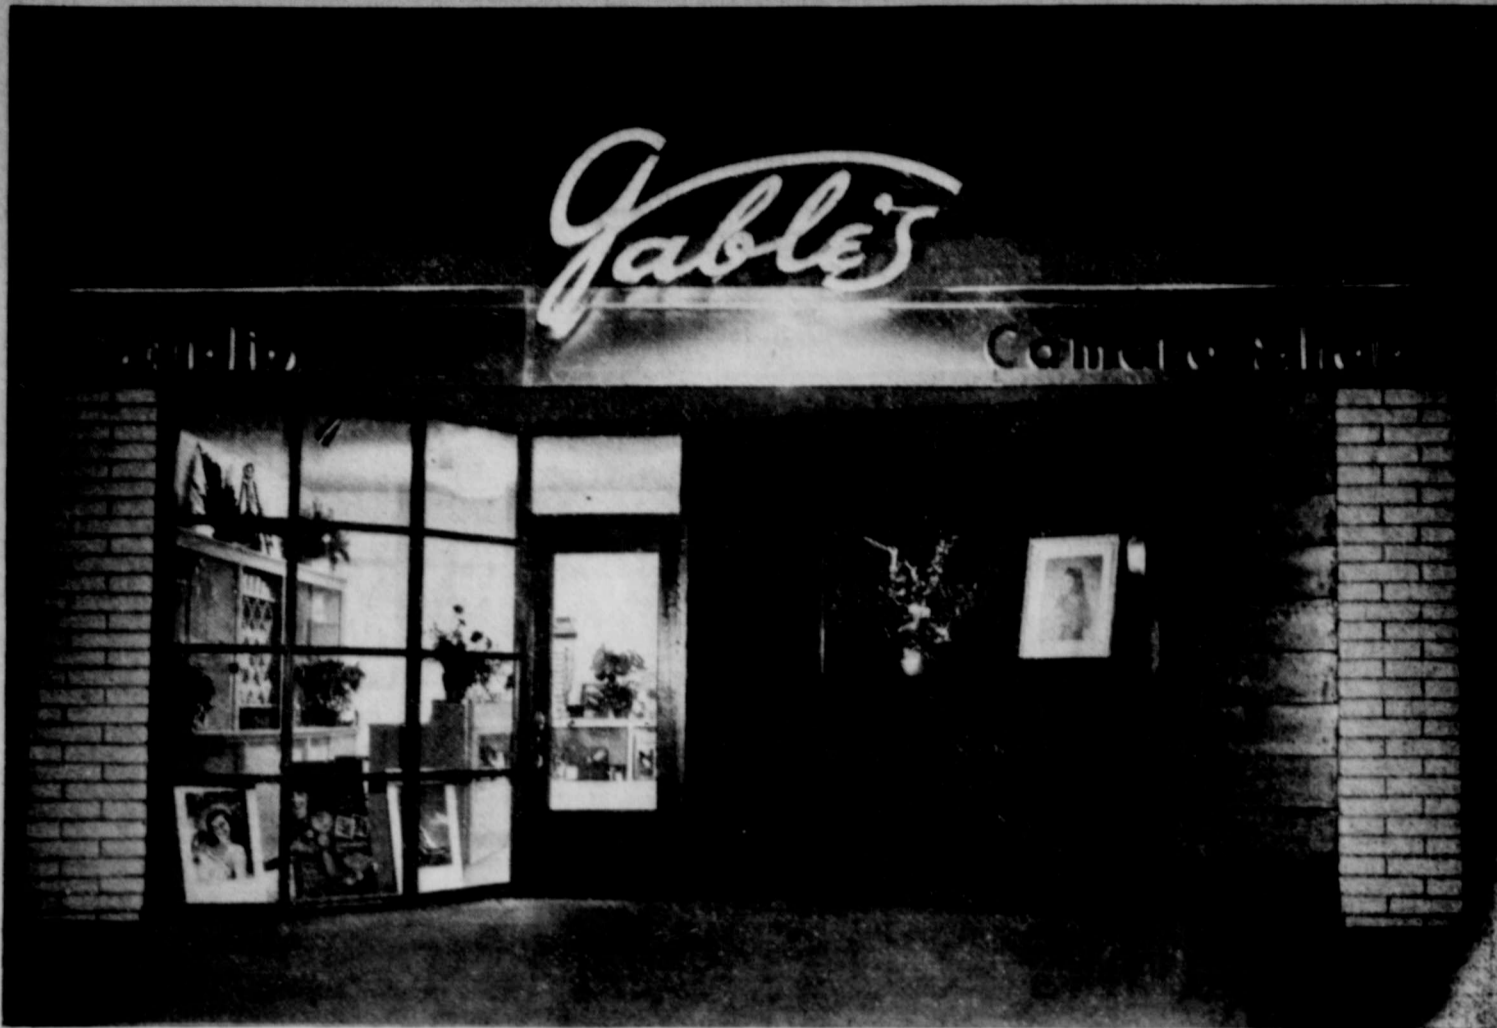

See it... Value Check it... Test Drive it...

Drillers Slump Back to Lose Wednesday

Afer their Big Day, Artesia Drillers went back to their end-of-season slump Wednesday night, losing to San Angelo's Colts 4-3.

All three runs were homers. Two of them were hits by Les Mulcahy, one by Armando Sanchez.

San Angelo again outthit the Drillers, 7-4.

Artesia's four errors hurt the Driller cause seriously.

San Angelo scored a single safety in the second, tying the score, but Artesia went ahead 2-1 in the fourth, a lead which lasted until two San Angelo runs crossed in the bottom of the sixth.

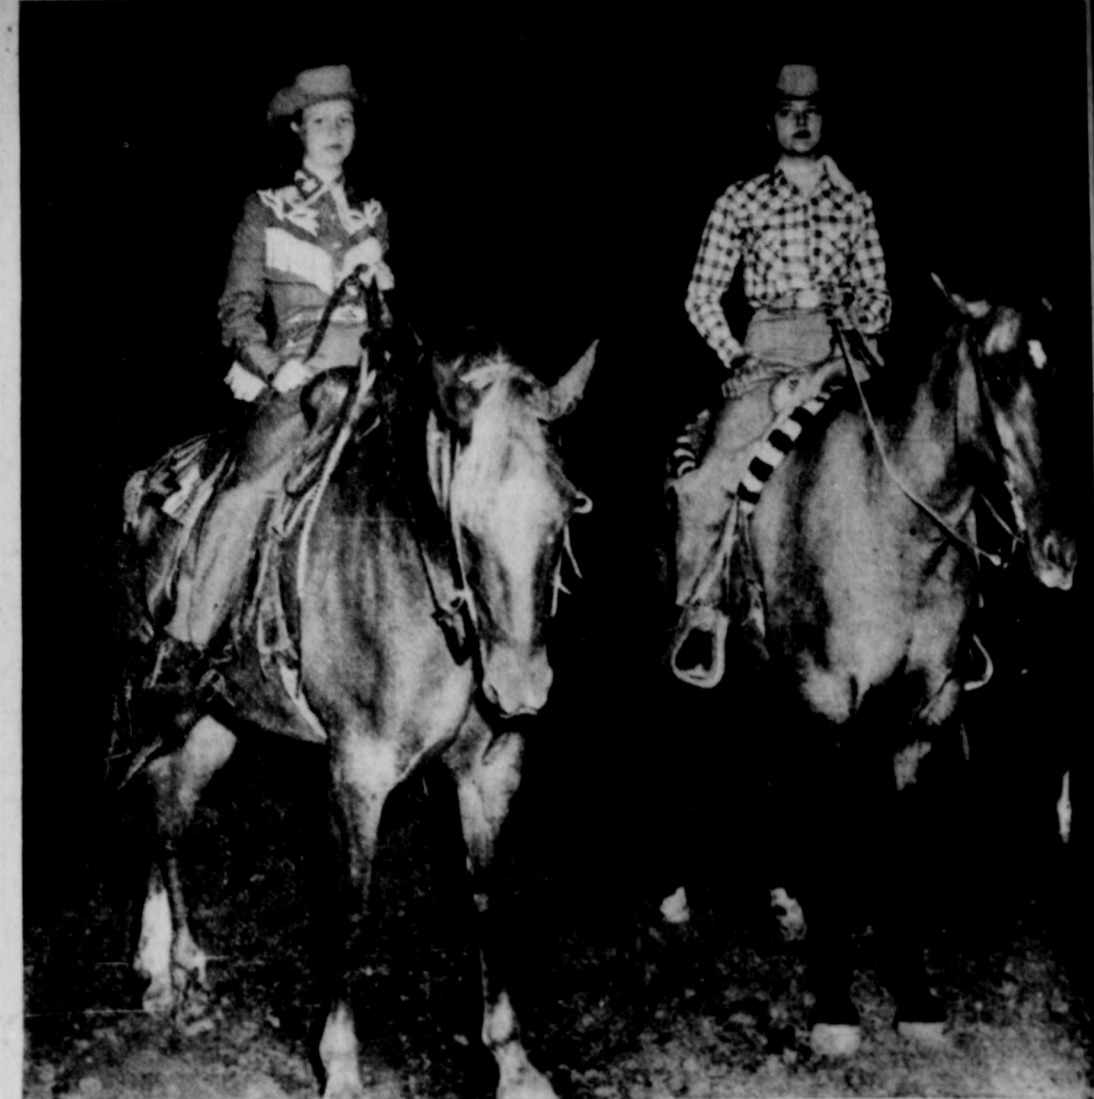

The contenders scored one apiece in the seventh.

Len Ruyle hurled for Artesia, giving up seven hits for four runs. It was his seventh loss of the season, against 16 wins.

Gil Guerra picked up his 13th win by holding the Drillers to four hits—three of them homers.

Mulcahy's homer came in the second and fourth, Sanchez' in the eighth.

on a plate. Give the face of the plate a tempera paint for background. The rim of the plate may be painted a contrasting color or treated to produce an antique effect by using a sponge dipped in gold paint and applied over the background color.

When the background is dry, paste the designs in position, using rubber cement or glue, and smooth the cutouts to make them lie flat. The design may then be touched up with tempera paint for a shadow effect.

Fourth Place Drillers Rise To Top Loop-Leading Colts

Fourth-place Artesia Drillers looked like their early-season selves Tuesday night in dropping the league leading San Angelo Colts 8-3 at San Angelo.

San Angelo out-hit the Drillers 15-9, getting to hurler Andy Alonso with regularity, but were unable to overcome the advantage of Driller power hitting.

Two home runs were key blows for the Drillers, Joe Bauman's in the first with Vince DiGiantomasso aboard and Les Mulcahy in the seventh with Bauman on helped the Artesia cause.

Nevertheless, despite the win, Artesia remained eight full games behind San Angelo.

For Alonso, it was the eighth win of the season, against 12 losses.

Afer Bauman's homer in the first, Artesia was scoreless until the fifth, when Joe Calderon singled, advanced on an error, a ground out, and homed on a wild pitch.

Artesia added three more in the sixth with walks to Bill Haley and Armando Sanchez. Calderon's single loaded the bases. Alonso helped his cause with a two-run single, and Calderon scored when Jackie Wilcox grounded out.

Mulcahy's homer in the seventh with Bauman aboard gave Artesia its last two runs.

San Angelo, which had secured hits every inning, started scoring in the seventh on a pair of singles and a two-run double by Glen Burns. The Colts' last tally came in the eighth when John Malgarini scored on an outfield fly.

Bobby Gregg was charged with the loss. Lew Lozano was reliever in the last frame. Alonso walked two, struck out two, and allowed 15 hits for three runs. Gregg walked seven, struck out three, yielded eight hits for eight runs. Lozano was hit once.

Line score for Tuesday night's game:
Artesia..... 200 013 200—8 9 0
San Angelo... 000 000 210—3 15 2

Veteran Pitcher Joins Drillers on Five-Day Look

King is with the Drillers on a five-day look. He comes from Beaumont, Texas, entry in the Class AA Texas league.

He has hurled for Tyler, Oklahoma City and Portland in the last three years.

List 248,880 with Spanish Names in New Mexico

Persons with Spanish surnames residing in New Mexico numbered 248,880 and comprised over one-third of the State's total population of 681,187 persons, according to a special report of the Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce, entitled "Persons of Spanish Surname, 1950-Census of Population." The total number of persons of Spanish or Mexican origin residing in New Mexico included 239,154 native and 9,726 foreign-born individuals. Those of foreign birth included 9,011 from Mexico and 715 from other Latin-American countries, Spain, or other foreign lands. Of the foreign-born with Spanish surnames, 2,728 were naturalized citizens, 5,678 were aliens, while citizenship was not reported for 1,320.

Among the five Southwestern states covered in the report, Texas had the largest Spanish-surname population, its total of 1,033,768 representing nearly one-half of the Southwest total of 2,289,550. California had the next largest number with Spanish surnames, 760,453, or one-third of the five-State total. New Mexico had 248,880; Arizona, 128,318; and Colorado, 118,131.

The proportion of the Spanish-surname population in New Mexico under 10 years of age, a total of 73,978 or 29.7 per cent, substantially exceeded the proportion of those in this age group for the State's population as a whole, 25.2 per cent. At the other end of the age scale, the proportion of those 65 years old and over, a total of 10,259 or 4.2 per cent, was slightly lower than that for the State as a whole, 4.9 per cent. The median age of the Spanish-surname population was 19.2 years, or nearly five years under the median of 24.0 years for the population of the State as a whole. The number of voting age, 21 years old and over, among New Mexicans of Spanish surname was 116,050.

Males numbered 125,875 and females numbered 123,005 in the Spanish-surname group. Males 14 years of age and over numbered 76,059 and of these 25,785 were single, 46,022 were married and 4,252 were widowed or divorced.

Female 14 years old and over numbered 74,550 and of these 20,588 were single, 45,920 were married and 8,042 were widowed or divorced.

The median number of years of school completed by those 25 years old and over was 6.1 years for both males and females, as compared with 9.0 years for males and 9.7 years for females in the State's whole population.

Two-fifths of the Spanish-surname population in New Mexico, 101,939, or 41.0 per cent, were classified as of urban residence; 89,240, or 35.9 per cent, were rural-norm dwellers, and 57,701, or 23.2 per cent, lived on farms.

The median income in 1949 of New Mexicans with Spanish surnames was $1,156.

1953 Cotton Loan Rates are Set

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has announced that the average loan rate for 1953-crop upland cotton, basis Middling 7/8-inch, will be 30.80 cents per pound, gross weight. Also, the average loan rate for 1953-crop American-Egyptian cotton will be 74.52 cents per pound, net weight, and for Sealand and Sea Island cotton will be 56.22 cents per pound, net weight.

These are the same as the minimum loan levels announced on February 26, 1953. The minimum levels of support were announced at that time in accordance with Section 406 of the Agricultural Act of 1949. This section provides that the Secretary of Agriculture, insofar as practicable, shall announce the levels of support of field crops in advance of planting and further provides that the level of support so announced shall not be reduced if the maximum level of support when determined, is less than the level so announced.

The loan rates for Middling 15/16-inch upland cotton at individual warehouse locations will be announced in the near future.

Get Facts First

WITHIN RECENT WEEKS Albert K. Nohl, acting director of the Taxpayers' Association of New Mexico, has leveled charges that federal aid to schools means federal control of the schools.

Statements imply that federal aid and federal control are synonymous. "It has been proved that except in certain emergencies, when the state accepts federal aid, a definite measure of federal control invariably follows," Nohl declared in his statement.

It was made following introduction of a measure into the U. S. Senate allocation $100 million a year for three years to be distributed to states for new school buildings under a complicated formula.

We would be with the first to protest federal interference with our schools, or any measure which would clearly subject the schools to such interference.

But New Mexicans for years have fought on the basis that federally-created problems—mainly the huge military installations which have been constructed in the state—require federal help in solving them.

Roswell faced serious financial trouble with location of Walker Air Force base at that city until federal school construction aid was extended. Alamogordo's school population grew out of bounds until funds were allocated by the federal government. Las Cruces, with White Sands Proving Grounds 26 miles away, continually is faced with a shortage of classroom space and has received only small relief. Albuquerque and other cities have been extended federal aid because of large military installations and the ensuing impact on the schools.

To date we have heard no cry from school officials or other public officials at Roswell, Alamogordo, Las Cruces, and Albuquerque that the federal government has encroached on operation of the schools.

While such control conceivably could be extended in the future, we rather doubt, after a look at the New Mexico situation, that the federal aid-federal control synonym is valid.

We sometimes tend to make a fetish of such part thinking, which does not approach the tremendous scope of the problems with which we are faced.

The New Mexico Taxpayers' group has performed a valuable public service in its activities and faithful reporting of state expenditures. We would not like to think that it would make unsupported charges, or that it would be operating in the realm of innuendo when the people of the state are on the other hand faced with very real, federally-created problems which cannot be overcome with glib statements.

More Successful

AS MANY ARTESIA merchants believed, the community's last Dollar Day Aug. 6 topped the success met by the city's first two events.

Through cooperation by retailers, the event is rapidly growing, each time attracting more customers to the Artesia area. Retailers are putting more stock on their shelves, insuring a wide selection of merchandise in sizes, colors, quality, and style.

They are offering real bargains, placing good merchandise on the sales counters. There were many shoppers who waited to see how these Dollar Days were going to turn out. Was it to be just another chance to unload merchandise, or would there be real values offered?

Our retailers didn't let the public down, and shoppers wound many good buys, then

THIS LAND OF ENCHANTMENT—

Water Projects Set Up on Priority Basis Might Help State Meet Problems, Engineer Says

WATER PROJECTS DEVELOPED on a priority basis in New Mexico would go a long way toward meeting New Mexico's continuing, serious water shortage.

John Ericson, chief engineer for the interstate strams commission, says the priority system would be similar in many respects to the land use planning system used by the state highway department.

Money would go to projects rated as giving the greatest benefit at the least proportionate cost.

There is at present no long-range program for developing the state's water resources, although members of the streams commission are reported showing interest in the priority plan.

OLD BELEN HAS GONE TO his last round-up.

The famous cutting horse dropped dead of a heart attack while working on the U. D. Sawyer ranch at Caprock.

Fern Eidsen managed the horse in many a show, and cried "like a baby" when told he had died, the Lovington Press reports.

He was the son of racing blue-bloods, and became famous in rodeo circles.

Belen was a worker and never a pet, Mrs. Eidsen says—"I never would get a cutting horse because it ruins them."

THE NEW MEXICAN AT Santa Fe had discovered Governor Edwin L. Mechem wasn't there when a panel of governors in Seattle discussed state prisons.

Says the capitol paper:

"We wouldn't have blamed the governor very much had he advised his colleagues that the best way to solve prison problems is to push the institution into a hole, cover it up, and pretend it doesn't exist."

went home to tell their neighbors about it. Confidence in retailers has increased as a result.

In one way, Dollar Days are advertising for Artesia. The city is making unusual offers to attract buyers, just as manufacturers of everything from shaving cream to baby power offer two for the price of one as an introductory offer.

We are introducing more and more people to our expanding Artesia retail shopping center. Through these introductions people are finding we have friendly salespeople in our stores, we have a wide selection of merchandise, we have attractive, well-managed retail stores. They are also finding that when Artesia retailers make a promise, they keep it.

If buying across the nation does slow down as some economists see in the months ahead, the city will be doubly glad it has the foresight and push to develop such a successful promotion as these first three Dollar Days.

Each time Dollar Days has come around, Artesia retailers have bettered their previous performance. Dollar Days is growing and is rewarding cooperative efforts of retailers.

Through cooperation on a worthy project one significant area of the city is growing.

Still Isn't Right

WHILE THE ATTORNEY general's office has ruled it's all right to operate the state engineer's office with funds from the water reservoirs for irrigation purposes fund, there is still a grave question as to whether money has not been misappropriated by the legislature from the fund.

The question would not be so grave if a small portion of the fund was used to operate the engineer's office, and if there was money in the fund to meet expenses for which it was established.

But when cases arise where there is not enough money in the fund to maintain water reservoirs, let alone build them, the question is very grave, indeed. Such was the case at Hope, and with at least one other dam for which funds were requested during the last legislature.

All governments are hard-pressed to meet their budgets, to find sources of revenue. But when there's revenue set up for one governmental purpose, and a very good one at that, it doesn't seem right to spend it for quite another—at least not so much as to leave no money for the original purpose of revenue-producing legislation.

Keep Trying

WE HAVE DETECTED in some quarters a defeatist attitude toward continued efforts by city officials and Chamber of Commerce workers working to secure airline service for Artesia.

We have already been turned down three times for air service, and are now appealing the third refusal to the civil aeronautics board. We have filed briefs and arguments, more briefs and counter-arguments. We have wired congressmen, we have presented petitions, we have gathered facts and figures, again and again.

If Artesia is refused in this appeal, we hope city and chamber officials will still keep trying. Airline service is worth it, and no worthwhile achievement ever came easily to a city, merely for the asking.

While there is a defeatist attitude to a certain extent about airline service to Artesia, we're mighty glad that attitude hasn't spread to those working so hard on the project. Soon or later their efforts are going to be paid off.

Oil Imports

THE HEART OF OILMEN'S protests against an unrestrained program of oil imports seemingly backed by the state department is opened in this declaration by J. R. Butler of Houston in testimony before the House ways and means committee:

"... I do not believe any segment of the oil business should be here talking about the protection and survival of its private interest in its relationship to other businesses in this country, or whether it will profit more or less by importation of oil. I will say flatly that I do not believe we should look to Congress to keep us as relatively well off as other businesses in the country. It is only if we accept the premise that the problems (of oil imports) is not a matter of private business, but a matter of vital national concern, whether or not this nation can produce the products we must have in the event of another all-out war, that we are asking this committee to review the oil import question."

New Mexico National Guard Below Strength As Camp Looms, Despite Advantages Offered

NATIONAL GUARD

The New Mexico National Guard is far below the strength it should have when it goes to camp next month.

It is rather surprising that its roster is so depleted in view of some rather obvious advantages some young men can gain from membership in the guard.

The National Guard unit assigned to defense of Albuquerque in the 717th Anti-Aircraft Battalion. Since the unit's assignment is right here at home, the advantage to a young man in joining the 717th is plain. He can serve his country in the armed forces while remaining in his own community and working at his own job. Men serving satisfactorily in the National Guard will not be called for duty in any other branch of the armed service.

Veterans who are in the reserve and subject to being called back into service in an emergency can work off their reserve period service while in the guard. They can join the guard with the same grade that they held at time of discharge.

The guard looks like a good deal for young fellows who soon will be subject to the draft or already are of draft age. It also looks like a good deal for the man who has reserve time to serve.—Albuquerque Tribune.

HEREFORD TOUR

New Mexico's cattle growers will mix business with education when they hold the third quarterly meeting of their association in Hobbs on Sept. 2.

Members of the New Mexico Cattle Growers Association will be taken on their third annual Hereford tour. About 600 are expected to make a three-day drive inspecting the fine Hereford cattle in Lea, Roosevelt, Curry, Lincoln, and Chaves counties from Sept. 3 through 5.

Southeastern New Mexico is noted for production of top quality Hereford cattle, and stockmen from over the state will have opportunity to inspect the fine herds.

The meeting will be one of the big ones of the year for Hobbs, now growing in importance as a convention city.—Hobbs News-Sun.

TAKE YOUR OWN PICK

The other day the Albuquerque Tribune ran a banner headline—"12,000 Votes Here Under Fire"—over a news story quoting Senator Frank Barret as saying 4,500 votes in the Hurley-Chavez contest will be "voided."

A few days later, the Albuquerque Journal ran a somewhat smaller headline—"Very Small Vote Change in County"—over a news story about the complete of the recount of votes in Bernalillo county. The change, said the Journal's item, was "fewer than 1,500 votes."

done, he declared, citing that if a fellow makes a million bucks by being lucky on an oil prospector that he tells it that he made two million.

Perhaps that would be right in most respects. Of course Texas can continue to claim to be the biggest state in the union, and all that, and no one will object. But, hereafter we'll just divide everything else in halves, according to the rule of this transplanted Oklahoman.

The alleged bragging attitude of the Texans has brought results, however, that can't be sneered at by the rest of the 48, and from which they could cut a pattern. Every Texan is an ambassador for his home state and he's made it's virtues known all over the world. If he made virtues out of some of its vices and has made them stick, that's to his credit. World War II military men carried the Texan story to some of the remote corners of the world, and made it believed sometimes.

Of course we get terribly tired of the brags the Lone Star people make. They hardly ever let you get a chance to tell your own lies. Bu we have to hand it to them that they keep at it.

But, we'll file this "phony state" description away for future use. Some one will aggravate us into using it one of these days.—Roswell Record.

GOOD AMMUNITION

A fellow who found himself shifted by his company from a job in Oklahoma City to Dallas, was here the other day and committed the unpardonable sin. That is, it would be unpardonable just a few miles east of Roswell, but makes fairly interesting conversation here to most folks.

This fellow, who certainly has no regard for his physical welfare, declared that "Texas is a phony state." Everything is over-

AT THE LIBRARY—

Recent Library Addition Tells Story—Bloodily—About War of 1812

DON TRACY, WHO STAKES out his literary realm—a mighty fertile one—in the Chesapeake Bay country, tells what the War of 1812 did to Maryland's Eastern Shore country in his "Crimson Is the Eastern Shore."

The book is a recent addition at Artesia Public Library.

In his New York Times Book Review article on the book, Jay Walz notes Mr. Tracy would probably want to sum up his book as to what the Eastern Shore did to the war of 1812. It was plenty.

Walz continues:

"This was the country Admiral Cockburn and his British fleet set out to despoil when they sailed from Bermuda to scare the Yankees out of some silly notions about freedom of the seas. But these were not Yankees, Mr. Tracy notes. They were 'Marylanders.' And therein hangs a good part of his tale.

Cockburn burned, pillaged and raped—only to rouse these Marylanders to such anger that, despite the odds, they booted out the 'Lobsterbacks,' thereby playing a heavy role in securing the independence and honor of our country. But what the Eastern Shore men did to the British out of patriotism seems mild compared to what they did to each other out of love and hate, loyalty and lust, and much downright tomfoolishness.

"King" Anthony Worth, rich and ruthless, builds a plantation empire by cutting down his neighbors. He smuggles embargoed goods up Peartree Creek and engages in brisk clipper ship business, simultaneously, with the British and Napoleon. Before Mr. Tracy's novel ends, the "King," with some help from the laws of nature, is responsible for almost as much carnage as is Cockburn.

Task Tillman tries to avenge the deaths, at the "King's" hands, of his father and brother, only to have his house and barn burned by a "stroke of lightning." Young Task, though carrying an ever-burning torch for Gracellen, the "King's" daughter (by wife No. 2), spends his nights with Vivian, the "King's" love-starved wife (No. 4). The wayward lady is eventually turned over, by none other than her husband, to the nefarious purposes of an assassin, who eventually gets around to dropping her into the swamp, Crimson is the Eastern Shore, indeed!

Rodeo Arena Impresses Spectators With Professional-Looking Growth

PERHAPS THE MOST IMPRESSIVE things to spectators at this year's Ranch Hands Rodeo is the increasingly professional appearance of the rodeo grounds.

Few other small-city grounds could boast of paved access roads, five-acre parking space, high rustic fence, and the other improvements that mark the Artesia arena.

Most of it was put up through volunteer labor by members of Artesia Roping club, who turned profits from last year's show right back into the grounds.

To boot, this year's show is fast moving, and while it lacks the professional acts that rodeo crowds have come to expect, it entertains.

PLANS FOR A CITY PLANNING commission are definitely arousing interest in some quarters, enough so to venture a prediction that the idea may finally be sold to officials and put into action.

Key to new approach toward the planning commission is possibility of having surveying and engineering done locally on a volunteer basis, rather than hiring a $10,000 municipal planner to come in and map out Artesia's growth.

It's felt that local people know local problems, local growth trends, and how to deal with local situations. If the idea of volunteer assistance to the planning commission from professional men can be sold, it may remove one big objection raised in the commission's way—cost.

DURING CONVERSATION IN Artesia Wednesday, Lt. Gov. Tibo Chavez said he doesn't believe he'll run for public office after this, his second, term runs out.

Chavez' decision, which is no secret, will nevertheless be cause for regret in many circles, regardless of party. He has been an able public official with a deep, real interest in government and in New Mexico's progress.

Many have pointed out that Chavez, while acting governor in the absence of Gov. Ed Mechem, has ever taken advantage of the opportunity, although it has been said the pressure has been on him to do so.

And whether they agreed or not, newspapersman inely like the criticism he sent at the last press conference, when he told them paper coverage of the rodeo was unimportant, skipped through the far-reaching criticism, and tried to interpretative affairs through a received idea of what a partyislative program was thobeb.

Newspapermen are not criticism, but Chavez' was criticism with meat and stance, compared to the vague, and unconstructive 'cism so often pointed at papers.

Tibo Chavez has attracted attention of a great many from both parties—people understand d his decision nevertheless he reluctant him leave the capitol.

Cave Just Hole in a Hill, While Cavern Is Vast With Chambers

CARLSBAD AREA RESIDENTS out to know the difference between a cave and a cavern. The New York Times explains:

Geologists distinguish caves from caverns. A cave is just a recess of no great extent in the side of a mountain or beneath the earth's surface. A cavern is vast, something with many chambers and with passages that ramify in many directions, perhaps for miles. Mammoth Cave in Kentucky ought to be called a cavern because it lies in an area of 8,000 square miles underlain by cavernous limestone.

Scientifically speaking there is more to be said for exploring caverns than for freezing on a slow ascent of some unconquered Himalayan peak. There are blind fish, lizards and other creatures underground that repay study, strange fungi, bones of extinct animals, artifacts that have meaning for an archeologist.

Exploring a cave or cavern, especially a new one, is hard work. Stumbling over rocks in a vast system of underground chambers can be as dangerous as mountain climbing.

Teachers Should Bend Curriculum to Individual Child

Boyd Breaking, Educator Tells Conference

There's been too much breaking of the public school curriculum, as teachers should bend it to suit individual children, Dr. E. J. Cain, director of a new national workshop that started Monday morning, addressed his audience of experienced teachers in teaching the exceptional youngster.

In the workshop which began Monday, Dr. Cain will lead his 31 teachers or prospective teachers into a look-see at the skills in modern living.

Instead of having a set program of discussion he permits the teachers to take the floor and present teaching problems that are current in New Mexico.

One teacher has already brought up the question of how to deal with children of Kirtland Field fliers whose six-year-old youngsters know more about jet propulsion than the average adult.

How To Fit—

How can these special bits of information be fitted into the routine teaching of the three R's and how can the attention of such precocious youngsters—at least in one specialized field—be channeled into the overall curriculum?

Those are typical problems that New Mexico teachers will be solving for the next four weeks.

Registered in Dr. Cain's class are: Mary Evelyn Tackett, Jewell

Richards, Blaine Etinger, Vanda Powell, Mary Hunt, Lois Cox, Zella Hause, Frances Peterson, Emma Solis, Florence Reid.

Doris Hinman, Marjorie Kuttner, Laura Roundy, John R. Hoback, Helen Harriger, Dora Krucikak, Pauline Peek, Mary Ann Bilbrey, Pauline Utternack, Norma Otero, Jean Bluestein, and Rhoda Hughes, all of Albuquerque.

Other in-state residents include: Eleanor June Burke and Pauline Middleton, Gallup; Florian Perea, Las Cruces; Peggy Rogers, Texico; Edna and Lillian Owens, Ft. Sumner; and Nellie H. Coulton, Alamogordo.

Out-of-State—

Dorothy M. Leighton is the only registrant from outside the state. She comes from Holyoke, Mass.

Dr. Cain holds his doctorate from Columbia University and has been guest professor at San Diego State and San Francisco State. At Danbury he is director of the laboratory of school experiences for teachers.

The 36-year old educator is now collaborating on a book that will stress the importance of a teacher's good relations with the community in which he works.

prevent the newly hatched worms from penetrating to the corn. The kill should range from 80 to 90 per cent.

Applications of light mineral oil and mineral oil plus 2 per cent DDT, may be substituted for the DDT dust if desired. These materials can be applied with a squirt gun or can. Applications should be made in the same manner and at the same time intervals as the DDT dust.

Dobson warned home gardeners of the danger of untimely applications of either the insecticide or the oil. If the material is applied before the ear silks turn light brown, the ears of the corn may be deformed because of poor pollination. If the chemicals are applied too late, they will not give adequate control of the ear worm.

How To Launder Modern Fabrics

by PEGGY POWELL

I guess I am just an old-fashioned housewife. I learned to cook and sew well enough to feed a family of four without any evidence of malnutrition or indications of coming-out-at-the-seams. I learned to wash the family clothes so that we all looked neat and clean and Tom never had to go to the office with a dirty shirt.

Actually, I only knew how to wash the "old-fashioned" fabrics such as woolen, cotton, linen, flannel, silk—even rayon. Then, almost overnight it seems, I found myself surrounded by a whole new vocabulary of wonder fabrics—Dacron, Orlon, Acrilan, Dymel, just to mention a few. And the new fabrics seemed to offer so many marvelous advantages that with each new garment I was eager to see what science had done for us now.

As we acquired more clothing made of these new fabrics I began to acquire a library of washing instruction books that failed to interest me, and an index system for finding the books that was infallible. It never worked.

Just as I was about to admit defeat and was ready to insist that we buy only the materials that I knew how to wash, a near miracle happened. I received a brand new booklet called "Modern Fabrics and How to Launder Them." Here, in a few pages, were washing, drying and ironing instructions for all the new fabrics, and the best laundering recommendations I have ever heard for "old-fashioned" fabrics.

It's too good to keep to myself, and besides it's free. Just drop a card to Whirlpool Corporation, Dept. C, St. Joseph, Michigan and ask for a copy of "Modern Fabrics and How to Launder Them." In a few days your new fabric problems will be over, I know.

and shrubs during the summer months. They may not need as much water as you think. Excess watering is indicated when the leaves on the tips of branches turn yellow during the middle or latter part of the summer.

This yellowing condition may be an indication of over-watering, poor drainage, or a high alkali content in the soil. If it's high alkali, a good soil corrective may have to be used to overcome the condition.

Light sprinkling of water should never be applied to shrubs and trees because it encourages shallow rooting and development of feeder roots near the soil surface. Water should be applied to large plants every five to seven days—in some cases every 10 days—soaking the soil to a depth of 6 to 8 inches.

Sufficient water should be available particularly during the fruiting or flowering stage because there is a heavy drain on the water supply during this time. After the plants have flowered or produced their fruit, watering may be slowed down.

Trees in sandy and light sandy soils must be irrigated more often than those in heavy soils. In either case, watch for that yellowing of

State Cattlemen Urged to Exhibit Livestock at Fairs

Importance of breeding better cattle as insurance against a buyers market is being stressed by the New Mexico Cattle Growers' Association, according to Ed Heringa, Clayton, President.

"We are urging cattlemen throughout New Mexico to exhibit livestock at state and county fairs this year, particularly in areas where there has been sufficient spotted rainfall to maintain stock in good condition," Heringa said.

Declaring the annual New Mexico State Fair as a proving ground for livestock bred and raised in New Mexico, Heringa continued: "Only through competitive judging of cattle from all parts of the state at a central location such as the State Fair, can livestock producers determine whether or not their stock is meeting the current qualifications demanded by breeders and feeders."

"Under conditions such as the industry faces this year, only the breeders of premium type calves can expect to get the top market price this fall. During a sellers market such as the industry experienced in 1951, most any type calves brought good prices," Heringa said.

Cattle entries will be accepted by the State Fair through Sept. 14th. Ivan Watson, extension animal husbandman of State College, N. M., is superintendent of the cattle division of the fair this year.

U. S. Public Health Service Surgeon Discusses Polio Menace; Offers Advice

(Editor's Note: Since the peak period of the polio menace is approaching, the following article by Dr. Leonard A. Scheele, surgeon general of the U. S. Public Health Service, Washington, D. C., is considered timely and with worthwhile advice that could save many lives.)

While it is too early to make any definite predictions, the recent figures on incidence of poliomyelitis suggest the possibility that polio cases in the country as a whole will be fewer in 1953 than in 1952.

Since the first of April this year 3,374 cases of poliomyelitis have been reported in the United States. In the last five weeks incidence of the disease has lagged behind that of 1952. There have been 278 fewer cases than were reported for the same weeks of 1952.

Although we cannot predict a total number of cases with any surety, we are on fairly safe ground in saying that the disease will follow its characteristic seasonal pattern. Poliomyelitis reaches a low point regularly in March. It increases to a peak in August or September and then gradually declines. In the extreme southern parts of the United States the disease usually appears and rises to a peak earlier and progresses northward with warm weather.

For our knowledge of the seasonal characteristics of polio and for the figures which let us know how the incidence is going this year, we are indebted to the health officers of each state and to the reporting systems through which they regularly supply us with information on the reportable diseases in their areas. This year for the first time the state health officers are reporting polio in two categories—paralytic and non-paralytic—a refinement which will add to our ability to evaluate control of the disease in future years.

The state health officer has still another new and serious responsibility on the polio scene this year—that of supervising the use of Gamma Globulin.

Gamma globulin is a disease-fighting part of human blood and is available in all states for the first time as a weapon against the paralysis of polio. Since the supply of gamma globulin is extremely limited, all that is available this year has been put into a national pool.

Advice Offered.

Since no effective long-lasting vaccine against polio is available, doctors suggest that people of every age observe the following precautions when cases of polio are occurring in the community:

1. Keep the general health as good as possible. Get a little more rest than usual and avoid getting overly tired. Don't plunge into cold water when your body is overheated. If you are caught in a rain, change to dry clothes as soon as possible and avoid chilling. Eat sensibly.

2. Because people with mild, undiagnosed forms of polio may unknowingly spread the disease, avoid going to a place where you and your children will be crowded closely among other people. This does not mean that you should try to keep your children separately from their usual playmates, but only that when polio is about you should bear in mind that it may be spread where crowds congregate.

3. Encourage more thorough and more frequent handwashings in your families; make sure that hands are washed immediately before handling food and after going to the bathroom.

4. Be suspicious of water supplies you do not know to be safe. Remember that the clear, sparkly appearance of a brook or spring does not mean that it is free from disease germs or viruses; boil such waters before drinking them or using them for dishwashing. Beak your health department if that water is safe to swim in.

5. Consult your doctor if any member of your family develops a fever with headache, sore throat, muscle pains or weakness, or stiff neck or back. This is especially important when poliomyelitis is in the community.

The highest hill in England's westernmost county, Cornwall, is called "Brown Willy," derived from the old Celtic name, "Bryn Whelli." The peak is 1,375 feet above sea level.
