Air Service Drive Continues

Sooner or later—and probably later—Artesia is going to get air service. When the city does become a stop for an airline, it will be the result of a campaign which is developing more angles than the maze scientists test animal intelligence with.

Thus far Artesia has been refused airline service three times, and it has a partial refusal on its last appeal for a rehearing following rejection of the third plea to the civil aeronautics board (CAB).

Paul W. Scott, Chamber of Commerce manager, reports receiving the CAB's latest rebuff—denial of a petition for rehearing of a proposal by which Artesia would have received Pioneer airline service on an Amrillo-El Paso segment.

"Everything in our petition for a rehearing was denied," Scott said, "except one request—that if the Amarillo-El Paso flight be rejected, Artesia be considered on the Lubbock-Roswell extension proposed by Pioneer."

Under the first plan, Artesia would have been a stop on the Amarillo-El Paso flight, as would Clovis and Roswell.

Pioneer later applied for an extension of its Dallas-Lubbock segment to Roswell. So far CAB has not closed the door on this petition.

If the extension is granted to Roswell, Artesia will then go to work seeking a leg from Roswell to Artesia, or Roswell to El Paso via Artesia.

If not, Artesia will ask for a Lubbock-Artesia flight with a leg to Roswell, Scott said.

Artesia—and 103 other cities in the Southwest—have just completed a petition to CAB for a comprehensive survey of air service in the

Two Oil Wells Completed, One Is Abandoned

Two oil wells were completed in North Eddy county this week—one of them the Stanolind No. 1 Guadalupe foothills unit, plugged and abandoned.

There were no new locations. Completed as a small producer was Southern Production Co. No. 31 Turner "A" in SW SW 18-17-31 drilled to 1999 feet and pumping four barrels a day after shot.

Stanolind's well in the Guadalupe foothills—SW SE 20-22-25, was drilled to 13,034 feet before the plug and abandon decision was made.

Meanwhile, Stanolind's No. 1 State "AB" on Twelve Mile Hill is waiting on casing at last report. It will be converted into a gas producer, and applications are pending for dual completion of the unit as a gas well.

Drilling report is as follows: Powell & Stewart No. 1 State, NW SE 10-19-29. Drilling at 1210. Robert W. Atha No. 1 Magnolia State, NE NW 14-21-27. Total depth 538, testing. Binkley & Curry No. 1 Murry, 1-24-27. Total depth 763, rigging up rotary. D. B. Scully No. 1 Superior-State, 32-25-29. Drilling at 1343. C. L. East No. 2 State. Total depth 3100. Scout Adventure To Unveil Sunrise From Old Baldy

The conference, inaugurated in 1950 by the Dallas Chamber of Commerce, represents cities in Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas, and New Mexico.

CAB will be asked to study the "community of interest" among cities of the Southwest—a matter determined by such statistics as the number of telephone calls, telegrams, letters, parcels, and inter-city traveling (determined by motel and hotel registrations) among the cities.

The Southwest frankly expects to have the CAB find the rapidly expanding region needs more air service.

Artesia began its prolonged campaign for air service in the early 40's with completion of the million-dollar auxiliary air field built by the government. Twice in the past three years air service has been sought—in 1950 it was refused outright by CAB, and this year partially refused.

Drillers Split Pair of Weekend Games With Win Over Roswell, 9-4 Loss to San Angelo Colts

Artesia Drillers split a pair of games this weekend to remain well in fourth place, but farther behind the league-leading San Angelo Colts.

Artesia won in a close game Saturday night over Roswell 9-8, but fell before San Angelo's Colts 9-4 at Driller Park Sunday night.

Artesia's win Saturday night was based on homers in early innings and a successful defense of a slender lead in the ninth inning.

Joe Bauman started the Artesia attack with a homer in the first frame with two aboard.

Roswell shrugged off the lead—and then some—with five runs in the second inning.

While the third was scoreless, Artesia countered with three in the fourth on Paul Halter's one-aboard homer, and the Drillers went ahead 7-6.

Rockets countered with a lone tally in the bottom half, but Artesia scored another in the fifth and still another on an error in the seventh.

A one-run Rocket rally in the ninth failed to turn into anything serious.

Roswell outhit the Drillers 11-10. Pat Monahan started for Artesia, was relieved by Fidel Alvarez. Four pitchers were used by the Stasemen.

Before the league-leading Colts Sunday night, it was another story. San Angelo allowed two home runs in the first inning, each finding one one, but thereafter settled down to no-run baseball for the rest of the game.

In the first, homers by Joe Bauman—his 37th—and Bill Haley, found one aboard each time, but thereafter Artesia was shut out of the scoring division.

While the Drillers marked time, San Angelo scored three in the third, two more in the sixth and four in the smashing finale.

Colts grabbed 12 hits for nine runs off hurlers Andy Alonso and Bob Presley, who relieved in the ninth. Alonso took the loss.

Local Doctor Discusses Cause of Anemia
 Anemia is described as a diminution in the number or quality of the red blood corpuscles or in the amount of hemoglobin, or in both. It may be local or general, or it may be primary or secondary. Anemia results from a failure of the bone marrow to produce a normal amount of red blood cells, or because there is an increase of blood destruction.
 Among the symptoms accompanying anemia are muscular weakness, loss of strength, dyspnea, palpitation, dizziness, impaired appetite, etc.
 It is a well known fact that every tissue cell of the body has a nerve supply to make it function correctly. But many people do not know that there can be an interference with the nerve supply reaching the parts for which it is intended. The Chiropractor is trained to locate that interference in the spine, where the vertebrae (the movable segments of the spine) can become subluxated (misaligned), thereby pressing upon the nerves and interfering with the nerve supply reaching its destination. Chiropractic results in cases of anemia have shown that removing the CAUSE by removing nerve pressure has been highly beneficial to many patients.
 It is not true to say "we are doing everything possible" unless Chiropractic is included.
 For further information about Chiropractic you are invited to consult Dr. Kathryn Behnke, Palmer Graduate Chiropractor, 408 W. Richardson, phone 861. —Adv.

Attitude Change Needed

There is no question but what we need a change in attitude on the part of citizens and law enforcement officers. There is no question but what an educational program is needed—one which results in law abiding citizens cooperating and working with law enforcement officers.

We have pointed out before that today as citizens we try to see how many violations we can get away with while the attitude of the officers seems to be to catch and have fined as many of us as possible.

And the result is we are not getting a job done that we all want to see done—halting the destruction of human lives and of automobiles and trucks.

The highway patrolmen have the job of trying to halt automobile accidents. They can't do it alone. The chances are we can't stop all of accidents even if officers have the full and complete cooperation of everyone. But we can be more successful than we are today if we do work together instead of working against one another.

Most of us know and realize just what the program of the State Highway Patrol is. We know they are concerned with traffic regulations and trying to reduce accidents. Their first big job is not enforcing the regulations, arresting people, and getting them fined. That is only one part of their work and not the most important part.

Arresting people and having them fined for violations is all in an effort to convince these people and other people they are going to be arrested if they violate traffic regulations of losing our lives and causing others' lives, the laws, and the rules, we are taking a loss of their lives.

We can't keep from thinking what a fine thing it would be if as citizens and drivers of cars and trucks we would all definitely determine to follow the traffic rules and the traffic laws. If we would observe the speed limits day and night; if we would remain on our side of the highway; if we would not cross yellow lines or even white lines; if we would not attempt to go around cars when danger prevails, we would have no reason to dodge or avoid the officers but rather we would be giving that officer a friendly greeting. We should be doing that instead of condemning him and criticizing him and taking the attitude he is out there to catch us violating some law.

The fact is, that officer is out there to help us. He is to remind us of the traffic violations; to help prevent others from committing them; to assist us if we have trouble; and to help protect us.

But we do not have that attitude toward him. And we are willing to admit he is partly to blame for the attitude we do have. He has sorta the same attitude toward us.

But if we will change this attitude; if we will work with him and help him by observing the safety regulations then we feel sure he will aid and help us.

Because it is going to take a change in our attitudes to halt the traffic accidents. Either we are going to use the knowledge we have and reduce the number of accidents or they are going to increase and all the highway patrolmen in the world aren't going to be able to change us and to catch the violators.

Today probably less than 1 per cent of traffic violators are caught.

THIS LAND OF ENCHANTMENT—

Typical New Mexican Hard to Define—Maybe Lies Between Blue-Blooded Spaniard, Texan

JUST HOW DO YOU GO about picking a typical New Mexican?

United Press believes that the choice would be something between a blue-blooded Spaniard and a bow-legged Texan, with just a dash of Navajo and Apache Indian thrown in.

"The typical occupation," says UP, "would be a little harder to find probably a retired rancher working in an atomic energy installation with a part-time job in the gas fields and copper mines and an irrigated vegetable farm as a hobby."

New Mexico has, UP notes, three separate cultures—Indian, Spanish-American, and the so-called "Anglo" newcomers who have moved in during the past century.

"In the southeastern corner, known as 'Little Texas,' which presumably includes the Artesia area, 'the typical New Mexican would be a blue-eyed Anglo with

It will be a great day when none are caught because we have joined hands with these officers in observing traffic regulations and employing safety measures and there are no violators. It at least is worth a trial.

That Tenure Law

EVERY NOW AND then the question of keeping school teachers or letting them go comes along and many citizens and the public in general seemingly do not understand that the teachers in New Mexico are under tenure. That is, they cannot be discharged after teaching three full years and being given their fourth year's contract, except for cause.

The law was adopted with all good intents and purposes. It was the purpose of the law to govern the hiring of teachers and to assure teachers of protection in the event that politics becomes involved in the school program.

It also took away the right for recommending the firing of teachers when a difference of opinion developed between the teacher and the administrators.

But the law in many instances does not fulfill its purpose or at least it doesn't make for keeping the list of teachers at the highest standards.

The outstanding teacher is not concerned about tenure. He or she keeps the job when they are good teachers and when they can do a good job. The law tends to protect the poor teacher and the teacher not capable of doing the best job after they have been able to acquire tenure.

So school administrators and school superintendents are not free to discharge teachers, who perhaps should be let out. They have to keep them and provide jobs with equal pay after they have once acquired tenure.

There has been considerable talk about the teachers and the school people concerning the amending of the law. There have been movements launched and then halted to bring about these changes. It has been indicated that if the changes are not brought about by the profession it may be possible another active group in the state may push for those needed changes.

But it will be far better for the profession to have the law amended so it protects the teachers and yet at the same time provides protection for the school administrators and the school boards and makes it possible for them to not renew the contracts of those people who for physical reasons or other reasons just can't or aren't doing a good teaching job.

Rodeo Success

SUCCESS BEGETS further success, and following this year's Ranch Hands Rodeo, Artesia can look forward to an even better rodeo and all the modern trappings that go with it when rodeo time comes around again next year.

Each year the rodeo has attracted more contestants and spectators, who have come from farther and farther away, as the word spreads that the Artesia rodeo is a worthwhile attraction.

We frankly point with pride at the rodeo just ended. It was a well-staged, well-planned, professional-like show, but with the amateurs off the Southwest's ranches providing the thrills and spills. It is sponsored by amateurs, staged by amateurs, and for that captures something missing from professional rodeos.

We should note the marked improvements at the fair grounds, more obvious this year than last. It's a neat looking little set-up, with its trim fences, big parking areas, and improved seating. There'll be more added before next year's show.

As Artesia grows confident of its ability to continually produce a fine rodeo, we can expect better and better things to come. Perhaps in shows of the future will be more professional acts, which rodeo crowds have come to expect as an added attraction. Parades will become better and better as the annual nature of the parade is established and contestants, especially in the float division, know that next year and every year they should include plans to participate in the parade.

Artesia's rodeo is not a hand-to-mouth affair—it is a success, won by hard work on the part of many people. We no longer face the question of whether or not we'll have a rodeo this year, but only how good do we want it to be?

an Oklahoma draw and a job in the oilfields." NEW MEXICO'S STATE POLICE board is anxious to have more applications from young men who want to become officers.

Board members want to send 35 men through the intensive training course, but has only 50 applications from men acceptable physically and mentally.

The State Police force is to be increased to 100 men from the present 81.

SAFETY DEVICES ARE ONE of the most touchy points in whole controversial workmen's compensation act.

The safety devices are highly sensitive subject because, according to an Associated Press writer, they can mean a 50 per cent penalty against the worker or his boss in settling injury and death claims.

The thorny task confronting the state labor and industrial commission is how to go about specifying which safety devices, each of a large variety of industries and businesses shall be required to install.

IT WOULD BE A WONDERFUL thing to build a county civic auditorium in Carlsbad, the Current-Argus believes, but "it would probably create another hassle between Carlsbad and Artesia."

CLOVIS HAD A UNIQUE double wedding the other day when a mother and daughter and their prospective bridegrooms secured licenses. The mother is 58, her daughter 42.

"THE WAY SOME MOTHERS let their children run wild you'd think they had thousands of them," says the Hobbs News-Sun, which adds "There was a time when a fool and his money were soon parted. Now it happens to everybody."

WHAT! M'SIEU DOESN'T CARE FOR SNAILS?

NEW MEXICO EDITORS ARE SAYING—

Eddy County Is Full of Gamblers, But Peace Officers Have No Cause for All-Out Crusade

COUNTY FULL OF GAMBLERS Eddy county is full of gamblers. Now should Sheriff Bill High and Carlsbad Chief of Police Luther McCollum become unduly excited we caution them to read on before they lash out at us for our "careless" charges by gamblers we mean the farmers and ranchers of Eddy county.

People who leave Eddy county for Ruidoso or Raton to play the races are pikers compared to the farmers and ranchers who gamble with primary food production to make a living.

Horses are predictable; the elements... and insects... and plant diseases... and farm and ranch market prices are not.

Quietly, without fanfare the farmer and rancher places his bet. Day in and day out, year after year he does so every time he seeds a crop or puts in a batch of broilers. The market may be fine when the matured or the bottom may have dropped out. The boll weevil or the army worm or blight may hit him, or it may not. There may be a flood, a drought, or a windstorm. Excessive rain may ruin his plantings. Disease may hit his cattle and hogs; excessive heat may endanger his chickens. He never knows the odds.

City-folk look upon the rancher or farmer's life as an easy one; as something to retire to some day. Frequently they are prone to complain that the government coddles him too much; that the price for this or that is too high at the corner grocery... and all those surpluses!

Yet, would he also would run the risks, would do as much for as little?—Eddy County News.

DISERVICE TO POWS We consider it a disservice to imply, as recent news dispatches have that many returning American soldiers, fresh out of communist prisoner of war camps, are spies for the Reds.

It is natural, we suppose for some young soldiers, subjected in some cases to as much as three years of communist harangue, to be honestly confused on the issues that have turned the world into an armed camp. Some actual, practicing communists may have been created out of the misery and hunger of the POW camps in North Korea. There were undoubtedly many — their POW mates taunted as "Progressives" — of weak moral fibre who served the Reds in order to get a little more food, a few privileges from their captors. Have you ever been hungry — the gnawing, aching hunger that comes from months of an inadequate diet? Some men will do anything when starved long enough, and how are we to judge their acts?

But we are dead certain that the vast majority of men now coming out of the Red camps in North Korea are just as good Americans as they were when they went in, maybe a lot better. They know the enemy, have a pretty clear idea why they were fighting in Korea, and harbor no doubts about which side they are on. American soldiers are not easily fooled.

This cops and robbers business, these Red whippers of a communist fifth column infiltrating the U. S. in the guise of these former prisoners of war, sounds downright silly to us.

American captives of the Germans in World War II didn't fall for the nazi bunk, and the men captured by the Japs were not converted to the Jap cause. Is there any reason to believe the men or conditions are much different in Korea, or that communists are more persuasive than the enemy in World War II?

We can't see it. Furthermore, we think it's a shame to cast aspersions on the entire lot of returning men. Haven't they been through enough? — Current-Argus.

TOO MANY AUTO DEATHS The swollen count of New Mexico's highway deaths is something to become worried about.

We don't pretend to keep a box score on the number of road deaths in the state, but the other day state police hiked their count to 208 or the year, and that, figure undoubtedly will be well out of date before this editorial is printed. Thus the pace is at least one per day, and if — this summer's rate continues the toll could easily exceed 400 by the end of the year.

Yop can add up all the factors contributing to auto accidents, but you always wind up at the same place—the driver. If every person operating a motor were careful and courteous and driving the vehicle at such a speed that he could stop within the visible limits of safety, perhaps as much as 95 per cent of the daily auto tragedies would end. That's the fellow you've got to fix—the man behind the wheel. So far we don't seem to have made much headway in convincing this man that an automobile should be handled ten times as carefully as a loaded rifle.—Carlsbad Current-Argus.

COFFEE TALK—

Big Rodeo Pay-Off Stretches Into Small Hours After Show Finishes

A PART OF THE RODEO fans never saw the pay-off of last go-round money and final prize money to the cowboys who took part in the Ranch Hands Rodeo.

From closing of the show until 3 a. m. at the American Cafe, cowboys and cowgirls clustered around co-producer Bob Chipman for checks—some of which went high in three figures for a cowboy who had taken part in several events and did fairly well in them.

But there were other cowboys who received only sprains and painful bruises, and were out of cost of bringing a truck and a horse to Artesia for the event.

To our minds they're the heroes—those with the adhesive plaster to show for their trouble. One or a few cowboys don't make a rodeo—it takes lots of them, and only a few can wind up in the money.

LOOKING FORWARD TO vacationing at "home" which you haven't seen for several years always bring up the idea—suppose we like it so much we'll want to stay and not come back.

But somehow, after the two weeks are up, we're always more than ready to come back, even though not without some stretching of the heart strings.

Perhaps half the fun of vacations is anticipating them before they come, and another quarter of them anticipating the return.

ARTESIA'S NATIONAL Guardsmen are undergoing another intensive two-weeks summer training at Fort Bliss near El Paso, and anyone who thinks they don't have the latest equipment for that training is mistaken.

Artesia's Guard battery, for instance, has eight of those big Army-specification GMC trucks, all equipped with Hydramatic drive, yet.

To boot, the Artesia Guard is equipped with four automatic anti-aircraft guns, directed by remote radar controls as well as manual systems.

Down in camp, they'll fire at radio-controlled target planes, and we bet the well-trained Artesia unit gets more than its share.

People generally underestimate the value of our Guard unit to the community—their payroll is a pretty good chunk of new money coming into the community, and their modern equipment, is valued at over $500,000.

Young men who haven't looked into the Guard, either through misinformation, misunderstanding, or apathy and indifference, are missing an experience, and in this day of the draft, an opportunity to prepare for nearly-invaluable military service.

WOMAN CALLED UP THE other day to put something in the paper. She wanted a notice put in saying "Only cowards send anonymous letters."

Advised it might be put in a classified ad under public notices or something like that, she agreed.

But after coming to the office to pay for the ad, the lady departed without giving her name, and quickened her pace when called to return and give her name.

But we agree about anonymous letters anyway—if a person has belief in his convictions and the courage to hold them, let him—or her—be identified with them.

AS WE LOOK OVER OLD Advocate files preparing a history of the newspaper for a fiftieth anniversary feature coming up Aug. 28, we're struck by the differences from then to now, but even more, the similarity.

The big changes have been in the mechanical development of the newspaper industry, and in the mechanics of editing, headline writing, and physical make-up of the paper.

Then every piece of type was set by hand, headlines, ads, and straight matter. Now 95 per cent of it is done by machines, which cast the type, cast the columns, and spacing material, and engrave cuts.

Headlines are more complicated now than then as completion for the individual's time has increased. Where "Interesting Occurrence" or "Startling Happening" or "Unusual Incident" or "Tragedy Strikes," would suffice then, today's headlines go into lengthy detail in comparison.

Editorializing has been strictly separated from news reporting, ads are barred from the front page.

But in 50 years the traditions of newspapering have been strengthened. Then as now the hometown newspaper was devoted to the development of its community. It tread with delicacy where personal reputations were blighted by mistakes, sounded a clarion call when some official or bureau slighted the community. Column after column, then, as now, were devoted to worthy causes, to free publicity for worthwhile community efforts.
