North Eddy Cotton Growers Face Best Harvest Prospects; First Bale Ginned

Cotton of North Eddy county's first bale was ginned Saturday morning at the opening of one of the gins on record for the area. The first bale was ginned shortly after 7 a. m. Saturday morning at the Fugate, operator of the Price farm in the Seven area. Ginning was done by the Asisa Alfalfa Grower's Association at Atoka.

McAnally said last week that the cotton has signs of being the best crop harvested by North Eddy farmers, and per acre average probably will exceed the record established in 1948.

Growers may reasonably expect an average of better than a bale and a half per acre, he said. The average would be two-tenths of a bale greater than set in 1948, last bumper year for the area. 54,000 Bales.

On that basis, growers will process an estimated 54,000 bales this year from 36,000 acres. Last year, the producers ginned only 44,000 bales from the same acreage.

County Agent Richard Marek attributed the better yield this year to an "almost perfect" set of weather conditions and a relatively low rate of insect infestations.

More widespread control measures used by farmers in the area helped with the insect control, although the insect numbers were not so great, he stated.

Marek said North Eddy producers were a great deal more fortunate than those in the south part of the county, which has experienced a critical shortage of water throughout the pre-planting and growing season.

Many farmers, he said, have watched well production drop and, in many instances, have seen their irrigation wells fail entirely. Members of the Carlsbad Irrigation District also have been struck by shortages, he continued. Approximately only one acre-foot of water has been delivered to farmers this season, or about a third of that needed to produce a bumper crop.

Biggest fly in the ointment for North Eddy growers, according to marketing specialists, is a market decline, which now is standing at about 36 cents a pound, down a nickel from last year.

However, most growers believe the price loss will be made up by increased production and that they will receive as great an income as that received in 1952.

The labor situation for the picking season is not expected to be changed over last year, according to early reports from Carl Foster, manager of the New Mexico State Employment Service office here.

Although enough workers are expected to be on hand for the harvest, Foster has repeated requests that growers desiring bracers should contact his office, stating their needs for certification.

Gov. Edwin L. Mechem has designated the period of Aug. 31-Sept. 4 as "Child Safety Week."

The proclamation was issued after 22 children in the 5-18 age group were killed on state highways during the first half of 1953.

Police Launch 'Safe Street' Plan In City

North Eddy county motorists found themselves confronted with a full-fledged safety campaign over the weekend with establishment of road blocks Friday and Saturday night to curb traffic violations.

"With the start of school yesterday, many motorists need to be reminded of the importance of safe driving," said Police Chief Frank Powell.

Approximately 3 citations were offered drivers during the first two nights of the special traffic activity, the chief stated. Primary violations cited were speeding, running stop signs and lights, illegal mufflers, having no driver's license, and faulty brakes and lights.

"Artesia has a good record as far as traffic injuries are concerned," he continued. "But it only takes one accident to injure a child. We want to make certain that accident does not happen."

"One-half of all traffic accidents involve a violation of some law, and about 90 per cent of all accidents could be eliminated if both drivers and pedestrians were more courteous."

"We are not making the campaign in order to issue traffic citations, but if a violation occurs, the driver will be cited in court as a protective measure to the child and pedestrians and will be treated accordingly," he declared.

Police Launch 'Safe Street' Plan In City

Counties and state officers stationed here joined with the police chief in seeking more safety-consciousness on the part of drivers and asked that they be especially safety-minded in school zones, and to observe stop signs, cross walks in school areas, and to yield right of way to the school child to insure safe streets.

The proclamation was issued after 22 children in the 5-18 age group were killed on state highways during the first half of 1953.

Police officials also reminded parents to stress the importance of safety to their children, pointing out that "parents are responsible for the actions of their child at home, at school, and on the street."

Sportsmen To Launch Drive For Members

North Eddy County GPA members will launch their annual membership drive during their regular meeting Thursday, which follows an earlier session tonight by a special membership committee.

Goal of the sportsman's association is 700 to 800 members, or an increase in membership of 500 hunters and fishermen. Present membership is about 250, President Ormand Loving has revealed.

"Of all the ardent hunters and fishermen in North Eddy county, there should be enough to bring our membership to the 700 mark or better," he declared.

The $2.50 membership fee entitles the member to attend the association's annual fish fry, which is to be held later this fall.

Serving on the membership committee, which meets at the fire station at 6:30 p. m. today, are Bob Koonce, chairman, and Earl Boulden, Dave Torres, James E. Allen, Emil Bach, J. L. Briscoe, Stanley Carper, and Ormand Loving, president, and Dallas Golden, secretary, ex-officio members.

Kiwanians Hear Boys State Report At Last Meeting

Civic Clubs Stop Words, Start Defense

Shutting off the big words that none of their members could understand, the Lions and Rotary club Monday went into high gear in preparations for their charity ball (?) game Friday night.

"It got so that too many guys were carrying around dictionaries to see what the other fellow was calling him," said one club spokesman, who preferred to remain anonymous for fear of attracting claims of "ignorance" from the opposition.

At any rate, envoys of the two clubs did get together on the uniform for the game — long handles, red or white, for the youthful Lions, and nighties and full-length skirts for the Rotarians.

All proceeds from the game, which will be fielded at Driller Park Friday night, go to a special fund for the high school band.

Total Enrollment Figures Expected To Reach Pre-School 4,100 Estimate

First day enrollment in the Artesia School system indicates that the total number of students for the year will reach a pre-school estimate of 4,100 students, Supt. Tom J. Mayfield said Monday afternoon.

Stanolind Oil Finals Well As Gasser

Stanolind Oil and Gas Co. finalized their State AB No. 1 wildcard as a gasser last week, reporting production of 30,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily, plus 708 barrels of high gravity distillate.

The production, which came after a plugback from 12,400 feet in the Ellenberger, flowed through perforations at 10,102-127 feet in the Pennsylvania strata beneath the shallow Red Lake field.

Effect of the gasser would have upon economy of the Artesia area had not been determined Monday, but most civic leaders, including oil men, showed signs of optimism over a possible rich reservoir in the area.

Thinking toward possibilities of a rich reservoir was prompted largely by the heavy flow of gas and distillate, which oil men claim could not have emerged from a small pool.

Unconfirmed reports indicate the possibilities of a casinghead plant to be constructed in the area, particularly if development continues and is made rapidly.

Supt. Mayfield also estimated that approximately 150 additional students will have been enrolled before the close of the week, pushing the increase over last year to about 400 students.

The increase during the remainder of the week will represent new arrivals, and children of families returning late from vacations.

By grades, first grade students showed the greatest increase and totaled 465 this year. Last year, only 329 first graders registered on opening day of school.

Second graders almost equaled the mark, totaling 380 yesterday as compared to 302 last year. Also exceeding the 300-mark were the fifth graders with 320, and the fourth grade with 313.

By schools, the high school registered a whopping total of 690 students from the ninth through the twelfth grades as compared to only 597 last year.

Enrollment at Park Elementary school declined over last year because of students lost to Hermosa when the latter opened during the spring last term. Enrollees at Park yesterday totaled 430 as compared to 512 last year.

Little increase was noted in schools in the outlying areas of the district, Supt. Mayfield stated. Loco Hills, which absorbed some students of the old Oil Field school, increased its enrollment to 65.

Thieves Hit Third Vending Machine Within Two Weeks

Thieves took $22 in cash from a cigarette vending machine at Triangle Service Station Friday night for the third such offense reported to police within the past two weeks.

Police said Saturday that entrance to the station was obtained by breaking a rear window. They said the machine, which had been priced open with a flat tool, was not damaged and that nothing else in the building was molested. The cigarettes were left intact in the machine.

Police Chief Frank Powell said one of the earlier two thefts was cleared by county sheriff's officers and the Carlsbad Police department with the arrest of a gang of youths last week. The boys, Carlsbad officials said, admitted taking a machine from Thompson's Gulf Station, robbing it of its contents, and abandoning it southeast of Artesia.

Oren Roberts Dies; Services Scheduled For 4 P.M. Today

Oren C. Roberts, one of Artesia's leading civic leaders for more than a decade, died at Artesia General Hospital Sunday afternoon. He had been in failing health for several years.

Funeral services will be held from First Methodist church at 4 p. m. today with the Rev. R. L. Willingham, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Woodbine Cemetery under direction of Pauling Funeral Home.

Mr. Roberts came to Artesia in 1941 from East Texas and immediately associated himself with other civic leaders in building Artesia.

In 1948 he was elected mayor of Artesia on a program of progress, a program which won for him re-election in 1950. His administration was given credit for placing the city on a sound and financial footing, which has been carried into the present administration.

During his tenure as mayor, Artesia for the first time received the state health department's title of being the cleanest city in New Mexico, a position it has held since.

Lake Arthur

By Mrs. R. PATE
Special Memorial Services were held Sunday morning at the First Baptist Church in Lake Arthur for the late J. B. Crook. A huge hand painted plaque portraying "The Last Supper" was hung in the center of the rostrum in honor of his memory. His widow, Mrs. Eva Crook was present at these services and was requested to choose the location to hang the beautiful plaque.
The Rev. Paul M. Chambliss, local pastor conducted the ceremonies, before a large appreciative audience.
Rev. Paul M. Chambliss, pastor of the Baptist Church of Lake Arthur, has resigned his post here effective September 1st. Rev. Chambliss has accepted pastorate of a mission point at Kim, Colorado, which is located about 50 or 60 miles from Las Animas, Colorado, which church is sponsoring this mission.

They plan to organize the church the first Sunday in September and erect a church building and parsonage. The Church has rented the Chambliss' home until the parsonage is built.

Kim is a progressive farming community and has been holding Union Sunday School services. It is an inland town and does not have railroad or bus facilities.

Messrs. A. K. Ripley, John Haver, Jr., and H. B. Pollard left Sunday on a fishing trip to Conchas Dam. They expect to return Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Jetton have a new grandchild, born Aug. 12 in the Artesia General Hospital. The child, Michael Joseph, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Nail of Hagerman. He weighed six pounds and nine ounces at birth. The Nail's have another child, Patricia, who is eight years old.

The intermediates of the Training Union of the Lake Arthur Baptist Church rented the Artesia Municipal Pool and hired the Life Guard recently for a swimming party. Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Brewton and Mr. and Mrs. Mack Reynolds were chaperones to the young folks.

After the swimming party the group enjoyed a weiner roast and made ice cream in freezers. Mrs. Paul Robinson and son, Kenneth, took Mrs. Guy Robinson, Paul's mother, of Hagerman, to Carlsbad to a hospital where she underwent examinations.

The elder Mrs. Robinson remained in Carlsbad with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James Lowery for further tests and observation.

Getting Together

NO ONE WHO heard a panel of parents tell Artesia's teachers and school administrators "What We Want You to Teach Our Children" last Thursday could fail to be stimulated in thought on our schools.

There were many good ideas advanced, many of which will be steadily implemented in the school system. School administrators asked for the panel session—and they got it.

Many of the suggestions can be implemented, and we believe the board of education and its administrators will want to do so. Such a suggestion as the one calling for more news on standing of Artesia's students, while in school here as well as in college can be carried out with a little thought; in fact, such a report has already been studied by school officials and this newspaper and can be presented when methods of doing so is worked out.

There is a trend on our schools toward more student government, and we may expect greater student control of their affairs in the next few years. Students, however, must be prepared for that responsibility, a process which has been going on in Artesia schools for the past several years. Each year has found a little more student government; perhaps the schools may soon be in a position to set up such a student traffic control program as was suggested.

There are trends toward many other recommendations, such as compulsory speech training and elementary directed physical education under a specialist. These trends are expensive, however, and the community should realize that if it wants such programs as these, it must pay for them.

Perhaps the most controversial recommendation was that calling for a shift away from vocational education to a more cultural program, or, as the speaker put it, a shift from "trainin g to make a living to training to live. The thought is that if students are trained in the broadest sense for living, making a living will follow naturally.

Our schools at one time had such a program, but vocational training came over the horizon as the latest thing in education and was promoted by liberal thinkers. The trend has been toward more and more vocational training in our schools. Students are trained in homemaking, farm, sales, even industrial skills. In our own schools we understand there are long range programs for courses in printing and auto machanicis, as well as more vocational counselling.

The speaker argued that the students who will end their formal education with graduation from high school are those to whom the schools have the greatest responsibility in "training to live." On the other hand, advocates of vocational training argue that these students must be prepared to earn their own way.

Such a proposal goes to the heart of educational philosophy, to the fundamental beliefs of education's purpose, from which stems programs to implements education's purpose.

Such a proposal certainly today must face a grim set of questions—ho w should we educate young men who will get high school diplomas one evening and draft notices the next morning? In what way do we best educate young people to achieve better human relations in marriage, in business, in civic life? Are young women, constantly marrying younger, better prepared for life through education in homemaking, or in appreciation of fine music, literature, and painting? What about the youngster who finally, definitely, and unequivocally hates English, history, and social studies, and waxes eloquent over mathematics and physics; or take one who just hates school in general and wants to drop out.

Perhaps the answer is in integration of our curriculum, rather than offering four or five-course intellectual meals every semester, with each dish separate and distinct morsel of unrelated learning. And shall such an integrated curriculum be the same for every student, or should curriculum be tailored for the individual (tailor-made goods are more expensive)?

Our schools are in a period of great change, and for every proposal there may be found an equally well-reasoned, well-documented counter proposal. Again and again we find there is more interest in what the schools are doing — in it self perhaps the healthiest of educational trends.

They're Ready Again

ARTESIA RETAILERS are well-prepared for the city's fourth monthly Dollar Day Thursday—this month with the emphasis on fall fashions.

Success has bred success as far as our Dollar Days go; each one is a little better than the last, with more retailers participating, offering more and better merchandise bargains and a wider stock for shoppers to choose from.

Chamber of Commerce surveys indicate stores are ready for the Dollar Day Thursday—with plenty of fall fashions for showing. We know shoppers in the big Artesia retail trade territory won't be disappointed.

Do We Have Security?

THERE HAS BEEN considerable talk recently about Los Alamos—the question is being asked again as to whether we do or don't have security there.

Senator Joe McCarthy is continuing to be condemned and criticized because he is free with his criticism of some departments for their failure to provide the security we should have.

There is no question but what there are military installations across the nation where we do have security and there are installations where we do not have security.

We recently heard of an instance in our own state where the security was subject to question only a short while ago. That today, we believe, is not true. Only recently the commanding officer, who returned to the base, dressed in civilian clothes, not only had to prove he was the commander but he had his car searched. He had only commendation for the boys on the post.

That is as it should be. The boys at the gate should check every car and every individual.

But we also have heard recently of a Navy installation where there are some top secrets where the commander not only does not permit his own car to be checked but who also prohibits anyone out of his office—from the smallest clerk to the top ranking Navy man—being stopped, checked, or their cars being inspected. This same officer permits the officers to go off and on this installation with any and all kinds of cameras, yet an enlisted man must have a permit for his camera.

This to us doesn't constitute much security. If that commanding officer wants security then everyone should be checked in and out and those on the gat eshould have the authority to check all incoming and outgoing personnel, civilian and military and all vehicles.

Until this is done not only at this base but at all other bases we do not have security regardless of what the high brass in the Pentagon building may say.

It is high time that the Navy learns what is or isn't going on at all of its bases and for the Army to go exactly the same thing. And when they find situations existing such as the one mentioned it is time for them to tell the commanding officer how to handle his security.

He seems to be more concerned about his authority than he is the nation's security.

Weather Bureau

INTRODUCING A SURVEY, this letter came the other day from Albuquerque. "For some time this office of the United States weather bureau has been preparing localized forecasts for your community and transmitting them via news press wire to your city for public dissemination.

"We have been making these forecasts in some instances without the benefit of current weather data for the community involved, and we feel that a layman's candid opinion as to wether or not our forecasts are verifying will be of much assistance to use in effecting improvements in forecasting methods."

THIS LAND OF ENCHANTMENT— Former Clovis PW Searches For Stranger To Offer "Thanks For A Good Memory"

A KOREAN PW HERO, LT. Col. Thomas Harrison of Clovis, is searching for a man who "gave me strength to survive the rigors of two and a half years in a communist prisoner-of-war camp."

Col. Harrison started his search in Albuquerque, where memory began. He told a state news reporter that the man "gave me something to think about" after he lost a leg in a plane crash.

Then he remembered a dance in Albuquerque in May 1950, just a year before he was shot down over Korea. A man, whose name he did not recall, danced with his wife, and was noticed by Harrison as "doing a pretty good fox trot."

Returning to the table, the man asked, "you wouldn't think I had an artificial leg, would you?" He pulled up his trousers leg and showed the doubters. Harrison now wants to say thanks for a memory.

RADAR CONTROLLED state police cars have been moved to the Las Cruces area in efforts to reduce fatalities on the speedways west and south of the college city.

State police officials stationed in the district are seeking to reduce the number of fatalities on the death trap highways of last year—83 —. Twenty-five have met their deaths in the area thus far this year.

The district official pointed out that the real purpose of the radar-controlled vehicles is "simply to reduce the number of fatalities, we do not want to issue citations, but will when necessary.

Speeding into Las Cruces from El Paso, and vice versa, and west of the Dona Ana capital had become a favorite past-time of motorists during recent months.

JUDY O'GRADY AND THE COLONEL'S LADY --!

NEW MEXICO EDITORS ARE SAYING—

Grand Jury Does Much Viewing With Alarm, Finds Faults, Never Gives Indictments

GRAND JURY REPORT

Our Bernalillo county grand jury does much "viewing with alarm" but does not indicting.

The jury thought it was too bad that the State Fair Board and manager did not bring the matter of phony ticket sales to the attention of law enforcement agencies at the time "because many of the facts are now unobtainable."

The jury found some evidence of election irregularities but merely declared that the U. S. Senate sub-committee in the Hurley-Chavez contest did not keep its promises to turn over all its evidence. Hence the jury did nothing about election frauds, if such existed. We don't quite understand why, if such fraud existed, the jury had to depend upon the Senate probes to turn over the evidence. It was our conception that the grand jury would corral its own evidence.

The grand jury report recommended "prosecution to the fullest extent of the law" if election violations are found. That's rather futile. If the grand jury doesn't find out about these violations, of any, who will?

The jurors said the sheriff's office and the assessor's office didn't have enough money upon which to operate. Also that the city doesn't have enough money, specifically the police department.

This deduction will not be disputed. But we can't find anywhere in the grand jury's report how more funds can be obtained.

The jury gave no reason as to why it took no action against persons who filed non-resident income tax returns yet voted in

New Mexico's general election last November.

The report merely criticizes the individuals involved for such practices.

It was, in effect a most ineffectual report. — Albuquerque Journal.

LOOSE AS A GOOSE

New Mexicans must have been shocked by that item in the paper the other day about a Denver man being fined $100 because he voted at the wrong precinct in a special election. He had moved to another part of town but went back to his old polling place for the balloting.

Our state could raise maybe a million dollars by fining every one who voted in the wrong precinct at the last election, or any election for that matter.

The Denver incident points up the laxness that New Mexico has developed in the conduct of its elections. We recall that after last November's voting there was a published account of a New England man being sentenced to prison for accompanying another behind the curtains of a voting machine. That in New Mexico would bring a penalty no worse than a "shush" from the courts or election officials.

The loose election practices which we have come to accept as regular procedure are shocking to people from other areas where the ballot is more carefully guarded. This was apparent in the observation of the Senate subcommittee Chavez contest. They gasped at irregularities turned up in the election investigation which we have long regarded as simple part of the election business—like kids having chickenpox.

The situation suggests that we survey our election procedures and analyze our thinking on the subject. It seems that we have drifted below the national par in our respect for the election privilege.—Tucumcari Daily News.

MAMMOTH VS. CARLSBAD

Saw a sign on a tourist car passing through that advertised Kentucky's Mammoth Cave. Lot of nerve to parade the wonders of Mammoth in this part of the country. An eastern magazine recently listed Mammoth as the world's largest cavern. That's hard to take. Such ignorance right here in America is inexcusable. The Kentucky cavern, of course, is far behind Carlsbad Cavern as to size, beauty and the magnificence and splendor of formation.

Even New Mexicans are not wholly acquainted with the wonders of the Carlsbad Caverns. Recently on the street we made a casual survey and found that only one in seven interviewed had visited the Carlsbad Caverns.

It's cool down in that fairyland of wondrous formations—same temperature winter and summer. A pleasant and fascinating trip any time of the year.

Though the cave is at our back door all too many Albuquerque residents have never observed its wonders. It would be well for New Mexicans to see our state's wonders first before gallivanting around to other wonders in other states not half to wonderful or attractive. We have many scenic wonders in this state. Have you seen them?—Ed Minter in Our Sight, Albuquerque Journal.

Nu Mex Hikes Crude Oil Storage, Builds Gravity Booster Facilities weighs from 60 to 65 tons when finished. The tanks are 30 feet high and 50 feet in diameter.

One tank will be located in the Grayburg-Jackson field, about 20 miles east of Artesia.

The other tank and the new booster station will be located in the Artesia field about 17 miles southeast of Artesia. The tank will be connected to a gravity gathering system, which will enable the company to do away with a pump system, which is now in use.

The station will boost 5,200 barrels of crude oil through the main lines to the Artesia station daily.

University's Lobos Start Grid Practice Today; Terpening of Artesia Potential Star

Bob Titchenal, new football coach at the University of New Mexico, expects to welcome 42 candidates for the 1953 Lobo squad on fall practice Tuesday.

Boys begin two-a-day sessions from the first session to get ready for their nine-game schedule which begins at Logan, Utah State at Logan. The Lobos play six Sky conference opponents and sectional foes over the zica return to make it the strongest position on the squad. White, a near-unanimous All-Conference selection last year and "Most Promising Freshmen" two years ago, will probably see most action. He's considered good All-American timber.

Emphasis in practice will be on offense as the staff tries to develop an attack to match what looks to be another rock-wall defense. The Lobos scored five shutouts last season and limited nine opponents to a total of 46 points for one of the best major college marks in the nation. Most of the key men from that aggregation are back.

There will be no split-T this year for New Mexico. Titchenal, a veteran of 18 years coaching and playing the gridiron game, likes the single-wing and says his material should go best from that attack.

Passing may be a strong part of the New Mexico offense, says Titchenal, with both Coon and Matthews tabbed as good throwers. As for running, there is a lot of power and speed on hand that should go if the right combination is worked out.

The strong point in Loboland, however, will probably once again be defense.

"The boys took second place in the Skyline Conference with it last year," Titchenal says. "I'm willing to let them do it again if they can."

Game Commission Extends General Trout Season

The state game commission has extended the general trout fishing season to Nov. 18, carrying it through the big game season for this year.

This is an 18-day extension to the regular season, it is contemplated in this extension that a number of the big browns will be taken during that time, inasmuch as the spawning begins approximately on Nov. 1, for them.

This should make the angler mighty happy; however, some of the fellows are going to feel that they won't be able to go into the hunting fields with a rifle in their hand and a fly rod in the other hand. The commission is to be congratulated on their farsightedness.

We look forward to some record catches of brown trout in New Mexico during this period.

Grouse, Pheasant Seasons Set By Game Bureau

The season for grouse has been set as Sept. 25 noon to Sept. 27 sunset, three grouse per season. Pheasant was set from noon Nov. 27 to sunset Nov. 29, two cocks per season bag limit.

A second pheasant season was set for Jan. 1 to Jan. 3 in the Gila river area which is composed of Hidalgo, Luna, Grant and Catron counties.

There shall be no season on pheasant in Lea, Torrance, Lincoln, Roosevelt, Curry, DeBaca, Guadalupe, and Harding counties, also no open season on prairie chicken, sharp-tailed grouse, sage chickens and ptarmigan.

SECOND SECTION SEPTEMBER 1, 1953 ARTESIA, NEW MEXICO

Proposed Constitutional Amendment Calling For Annual Legislature Would be Expensive

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of four articles on the proposed constitutional amendments to be decided at a special state election Sept. 15. Amendments 1 through 6 were covered in the first two articles of this series, prepared by the Taxpayers Association of New Mexico.

Does New Mexico need more state government, or less? That question is raised dramatically in one of the 11 proposed constitutional amendments to be decided by special state election in New Mexico, Sept. 15.

AMENDMENT No. 7 would authorize regular sessions of the state legislature each year, rather than once every two years as at present. The state law-makers now convene here in January of every odd-numbered year—only two months after each general election. These biennial regular sessions are presently limited to 60 days and no more.

According to the proposed amendment No. 7 these odd-year regular sessions would be extended to 90 days in duration. In addition to which the legislature would meet again automatically in January of the following (even-numbered) year, but for 30 days only.

Restricted Session— Under this amendment, the new even-numbered year, 30-day session would be largely restricted to consideration of budgets, appropriations, tax measures and any legislation previously passed, vetoed, ordered drafted, or desired by the governor.

In effect, however, under one or another of these latter provisions, any experienced legislator could devise a permissible method of introducing almost any sort of bill he might choose to sponsor.

Supporters of this amendment contend that the organization and activities of the state government have lately grown so complex as to need legislative consideration and direction annually. Some also advocate this measure to avert the traditional last-minute rush, which invariably sees worthwhile measures lost in the shuffle as each biennial session is brought to a feverish, belated conclusion.

But whether this hectic ending of the legislative session would be averted, or only made an annual instead of biennial feature remains a question.

Expensive Law-Making— A known factor is the certainty that the added (even-year) sessions would cost between $75,000 and $100,000 each. And the proposed lengthening of the present regular session definitely would add considerably to its total cost also.

In 1952, 164,000 United States tourists visited Great Britain. Petroleum is found in solid, liquid and gaseous states in nature.

The current legislative practice is to approve the departmental and institutional budgets at each biennial session—with the estate board of finance exercising limited administrative authority in the interim. And this practice has proved to be an important stabilizing factor in the state's finances.

Perhaps the most telling argument against annual sessions of the legislature is the fact that each of the biennial sessions sees a sizeable increase in the total appropriations approved. Annual sessions would afford opportunity for pressure to be applied to the legislators to approve departmental and institutional budget increases every year.

AMENDMENT No. 8 would give the legislature authority to set salaries of the five State Supreme Court justices by law. The state constitution now limits the salary of each justice to $6,000 a year. By the subterfuge of designating the justices as trustees of the state law library, the legislature has given them an additional $6,500 per year since.

More Ethical— It would obviously be more ethical to allow the legislature to set the salaries of the justices as circumstances indicate, rather than resorting to the questionable method of now followed.

AMENDMENT No. 9 would give the legislature honest authority to raise salaries of the district court judges of the state.

The constitution presently limits the salary of every district judge to $4,500 annually. To increase their pay, they have been designated as "juvenile judges," for which the legislature approved an additional salary of $5,500 for each judge.

The same obvious reason for supporting amendment No. 8 applies equally for No. 9.

Drillers Lash Two Wins Over Leading San Angelo

It seemed like old times in Driller Park Friday and Saturday night with the Artesia Drillers backing top-notch pitching with a hitting attack for a series win over league leading San Angelo.

Friday night crossfiring Len Ruyle held a 10-0 shutout while his teammates pounded three Colt hurlers for 14 hits, and Fidel Alvarez followed the stint Saturday night to give up only eight safeties for an 8-2 victory.

Drillers Keep Second Place In Batting

The dual wins placed Artesia only eight and a half games out of first place, and only four games behind fourth place Midland.

In Saturday night's thumping, the Drillers pounded Mario Saldano for 15 hits, including eight of the extra-base variety. Alvarez gave up only eight safeties, including a no-damage double.

Halter led off the Saturday slugging parade with his first double of the evening and scored when Joe Bauman pounded his 45th homer of the year. Les Mulcahy doubled, and was chased home on Bill Haley's two-sacker. Armando Sanchez drew a walk, and back-to-back singles by Joe Calderon, Alvarez and Jackie Wilcox counted three more runs, all in the first inning after two were out.

Artesia counted their seventh in the third when Sanchez singled and scored on Calderon's double down third base. Haley chased in the fourth with a triple into right, scoring Sanchez, who had walked.

Joe Calderon started the parade Friday night, slamming a solo four-master in the fifth. Four safeties and hit batter permitted the Drillers to shove across four more and contribute to the downfall of starter Bill Winn.

Calderon opened the sixth with a walk, but was forced at second on Ruyle's bunt. Vince DiGianta-masso singled home Ruyle and went to second when Halter was hit by a pitched ball. Bauman brought both in with a double off the right field wall. Mulcahy singled in Bauman, Haley walked, and Sanchez lashed out a single to plate Mulcahy and send pitcher Lou Lozano to the showers.

Rookie Russ Agne tamed the Drillers the rest of the way, giving a hit to Mulcahy, which chased Bauman to third after being hit by a pitched ball. Bauman scored on Haley's long fly-out.
