AAUW Holding Workshop in Ruidoso

This week end representatives from 18 AAUW branches throughout New Mexico are meeting in Ruidoso for their annual branch presidents' workshop and state board meeting.

The meeting begins today with a smorgasbord at Navajo Lodge and will conclude with breakfast Sunday.

Attending from Artesia are Mrs. Vilas P. Sheldon, branch president; Mrs. Lillian Bigler, state fellowship chairman; and Miss Lois Nethery, status of women chairman.

Special guest at the workshop is Dr. Winifred G. Helmes of the headquarters staff in Washington, D. C. As national status of women associate since Aug. 1, 1951, Miss Helmes has had an opportunity to learn more than anyone else what has been done in AAUW branches from Maine to California to further women's opportunities to advance in various fields and to make women aware of their responsibilities as citizens.

A historian by training, Dr. Helmes came to the AAUW staff after several years' experience teaching history in high school, at the University of Minnesota, at Louisiana State university and Bradford Junior college in Massachusetts.

She has also been a research assistant in the Municipal Reference Bureau of the University of Minnesota.

Dr. Helmes is particularly interested in working for greater opportunity for women in higher education—a fundamental aim of the American Association of University Women.

As proof that progress is being made in this field, AAUW members point to the announcement by the national membership committee that 15 additional colleges and universities have been recognized as meeting AAUW standards, specifically require professional opportunity for women in education.

Lucky Shot Difference Between Bartlett as Bear's Meal, Good Trophy

Every bear makes a mistake sometime during his life. This no doubt accounts for the fact that the Kodiak bear being hunted by Bill Bartlett is being eaten for an early meal.

The two met upon Kodiak Island, Alaska, Sept. 11, just as the darkness closed in. Bill Bartlett and his guide, Bill Pinnell, were hunting the monster bears on a river lake. They were watching another bear across a canyon when paw, gave out an earth when Bill Pinnell spotted the giant about 300 yards away.

Then something happened that will never be forgotten by either Bill. The ferocious beast, when he smelled the human scent, stood up on his hind legs and growled a growl of defiance and started his attack.

Bill Bartlett fired his first shot at the charging bear hitting it in the back leg. The bear, evidently thinking some large insect had stung him, slapped the wound with shaking roar and headed for an Alder brush patch.

Realizing that a wounded bear in a brush patch is about the same as 1,000 pounds of TNT, both Bills kept pouring lead at the wounded animal. With each hit the bear became more infuriated, growling his hatred until the earth shook.

The two Bills chased the wounded bear into the Alders but could not see the bear. They kept firing at moving brush as the bear took his hatred out on the Alder brush.

By this time Bill Pinnell, who has had 30 years experience as a bear hunter, realized he was up against a real opponent. Darkness was approaching very fast and a wounded, mad bear was something not to be desired, attacking after dark.

Bill Bartlett, in his excitement, got to within 10 feet of the edge of the brush when he saw the bear coming out after him. Realizing it was his life or the bear's, he fired point blank hitting the savage demon in the back, killing him before he got to Bill, at a distance of eight feet.

Bill Pinnell says in all his 30 years experience he has never seen a bear so hard to kill nor has he ever come so close to having a bear end his career as a hunter.

For Bill Bartlett it was an experience he will never forget. Although being smaller than the world's record Kodiak bear, it is still a very fine trophy.

Incidentally, the above fight of man vs. bear was witnessed by Ray Bartlett and his guide, Morris Teillison, at a distance of about two miles, through high powered glasses.

Ray Bartlett also had an experience, not quite so exciting perhaps, but yet rather unusual.

With his guide, he had gone down the bay in a motor boat to hunt bear in a stream where they eat fish at this time of the year. Thinking they might have to stay all night if the water got too rough, they took some bacon and eggs, bread and coffee with them.

When they got to the stream they beached their boat and walked up the stream about two miles. Coming back to the boat about dark they spotted a large Kodiak in the boat eating their grub.

Ray stalked the bear up to about 50 yards when the bear evidently became suspicious and started to leave the boat. As there was a brush patch near, Ray realized he must shoot fast. But he didn't wish to shoot a hole thru the boat, perhaps sinking it and then have to walk 15 miles back to camp.

Just then the bear stood up in the boat and Ray took advantage of the situation to shoot, hitting the bear in the heart and killing it instantly.

The beast weighed about 800 pounds and it was impossible to get it out of the boat to clean, so the operation took place in the boat.

They left the entire carcass in the boat and took it back to their main camp where there was plenty of help to remove it and skin it out. The meat was given to the Eskimo natives who eat it during the long winter months.

John Boren, also a member of the hunting party, got a nice bear also, in his sleep.

Artesia Polishes Pass Defence, Downfield Blocking in Preparing for Portales Tonight

Artesia's football Bulldogs are polishing up their pass defence in preparation for tonight's contest with the Portales, Coach Reese has revealed.

Artesia residents who have visited Portales in one of its recent trips to date this season believe the team has little opportunity to gain on the ground, and must turn to the air for offense.

Artesia has a good club," Coach Reese says. "They were beat by Tucuman in their game last week, but the game was better than the score indicates."

Artesia won its opener this year, 14-0, over the Rams, Artesia will field the same starting line-up with which it started a 40-0 win over New Mexico Military last week.

Artesia's staff - assistants Jack and Walt Bynum - report that the Bulldogs during the past two weeks of practice since the contest.

Artesia has an injured shoulder that may miss action for a week, Coach Reese said.

Campanella is again plagued with a recurring knee injury which hinders the hard-working lineman to some extent.

Sanders is reported to be injured back but "will be ready to go," Coach Reese says.

Johnson is bothered with coughing after effects of an old head cold, and his playing time this year is an open guess.

Artesia protection and downfield blocking are key defensive measures stressed by Smith in his staff in practice sessions yesterday's light, pre-game workout.

A general consensus of opinion among the Bulldogs is that they should be able to take the game fairly easily, unless the Portales overconfidence becomes a shadowy possibility.

Artesia coaches report that Bulldogs in mental condition after a two-day layoff following the opener at NMMI two weeks ago to

WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT BUICK WILL BUILD THEM

THE GREATEST BUICK IN 50 GREAT YEARS

W'e'll get right to the point. The comments we've been getting from many new Buick owners about the new Twin-Turbine Dynaflow are terrific. And the reason is - this fully automatic transmission is, in itself, terrific. It has a new, firm, solid "take-hold" - gives you instant getaway response. It has new quiet - you can barely hear the acceleration build-up. It has unique and utter simplicity of operation. You just move your Selector into Drive range, press the pedal, and go. That's all. But the sweetest thing of all about TT Dynaflow is its smoothness.

You move from standstill to your legal speed in one progressive build-up of power delivery. You feel a constant "carry" of forward motion, unbroken in any way - because here no gearshifting takes place, either manually or automatically. Even your deceleration is infinitely smooth and gradual, with the cushioned control of flowing oil slowing down. Wouldn't you like to sample this wonderful new getaway and pleasant quiet and immaculate smoothness? We'll be glad to seat you at the wheel of a new 1953 Buick with Twin-Turbine Dynaflow - and let the thrills come where they may. Drop in soon, won't you?

New Mexico Fair To Have Photo Show on Fair

Beginning with the 1953 New Mexico State Fair, Sept. 26-Oct. 4, all photographers, big and small, young and old, will have an opportunity to enter a show for the 1954 Fair, it was announced today by Leon H. Harms, secretary-manager of New Mexico annual harvest rite.

Harms said that entries may be of any size and must be of human interest and express the atmosphere of fair time. The subjects may be of anything from the miniature car races in the hobby department to a lost child with big tears and an ice cream cone in each grimy little fist.

Deadline for receipt of pictures is Oct. 30. Entries may be sent to any Albuquerque finisher or direct to the Fair office. Winners in the three divisions, junior high school, high school and adult, will be displayed with ribbons at the 1954 show. All entries become the property of the state fair. Harms said that the annual contest is being sponsored to provide human interest publicity for future fairs.

Working in conjunction with the Fair Board will be the Albuquerque Photo Dealers and Finishers Association, it was announced by Harold Brooks, Albuquerque photographer. Brooks said that free demonstrations on photography will be offered to everyone at the Educational Building at 8 p. m. each night. Softer Look in U. S. Furniture New Forecast

A softer look in American furniture, with modern usefulness camouflaged by a traditional look, is forecast by S. Robert Elton, director of the National Homefurnishings Show in New York.

Elton studied the exhibits which were offered by more than 400 manufacturers and decorators at the September show in New York, and said the furniture "recalls the past in appearance, but belongs to the present in function."

He said wood tones will be softer, with more natural finishes being used. Fruit woods will have an "antiqued" look, and the light finishes are more oyster white than yellowish.

Elton noted the growing popularity of Provincial styles. He pointed out that the 18th century country furniture of France and America is easily adaptable to today's casual living.

The Homefurnishings Show director predicted there will be more variety and color in furniture styles because of the new materials now being used.

"Thermoset plastics, composition board, stainless steel, enamel, glass fiber, leather, pewter and copper, cane and rattan are some of the many diverse materials that add new interest and practicality to the 1953 picture."

Local Doctor Studies Latest X-Ray Techniques

Dr. Kathryn Behnke, Chiropractor, 408 W. Richardson, has just returned from Ann Arbor, Mich., where she attended the Grostie Research Foundation.

Classes under the personal direction of Dr. John Grostie, learned the latest methods of taking and analyzing X-Ray films and delivering the most effective chiropractic adjustments. Pre and post X-Rays of patients taken care of under this system have shown amazing improvements in patients and good results have been obtained in many cases considered hopeless.

The scientific manner in which X-Rays are analyzed is chiefly responsible for the results. However the new method of adjusting has contributed to the results obtained.

For further information about this new work you are invited to consult Dr. Behnke.

THOUGHTS IN PRINT Sun Power Can Take Over Work of Proaic Fuels When Reserves Used

RESEARCHERS ARE PRE-paring for the day when sun power takes over the work of the proaic fuels such as coal, oil, gas, thorium, and uranium, reports a special correspondent for the Christian Science Monitor.

Natural scientists are not "selling short" on the ability of coal, oil, gas, thorium, and uranium to take care of our major demands for energy for a long time to come, but they are definitely considering a time when solar energy must take over.

In a series of September conferences coming in rapid succession at three different points in the nation, men of research have been discussing solar energy and its prospective utilization in language reserved for science fiction writers only a few years ago.

Atomic energy managed to keep one foot in the door with a conference at the University of California in Berkeley, where George Well, Washington consultant, told nuclear engineers that while present power facilities and fuel supplies are sufficient to sustain us for many years, "the power situation is more acute in many foreign areas."

"Development of nuclear power now would benefit us later," he said, "by enhancing our national prestige, expanding our technical assistance to friendly nations, and by promoting greater well-being and strength in the free world."

He added that the first nuclear plants would produce power only would not become good "breeders" of additional atomic fuel and that shown for the development of conventional thermal-electric plants.

Steam-electric plants took 65 years to improve in efficiency of raw material utilization by a factor of 30 to 40, he concluded.

At the American Chemical Society meetings in Chicago, Prof. Farrington Daniels, president, urged harnessing the sun now. He called atomic energy "pretty insignificant" by comparison. The world's supply of natural gas, oil and coal will be nearly gone in a few hundred years, or at best a couple of thousand, he said.

While he sponsored action now in getting promising laboratory achievements into the pilot-plant stage because "development of new sources of energy cannot wait until reserves are depleted," other distinguished chemists present are known to want immediate solar energy use or equally important reasons.

Great Books Group to Study Writing of 'Greatest Red'

Some Americans are convinced that they, or their children, will be safer from Communism if they do not know what it is. Those who take this view may be patriotic, but they may not be realistic. If we are going to resist Communism, we had better know what it is that we are resisting, say leaders of Artesia's Great Books study group.

Thursday, Oct. 1, at 7:30 p. m., the Great Books discussion group will meet at the public library to discuss the last book of the first year course. The book for discussion is the "Communist Manifesto" by Karl Marx. Mrs. S. P. Yates and William Trenfield will lead the discussion.

This particular meeting is open to anyone who would like to attend. However, only those persons who have read the "Manifesto" will be allowed to take part in the discussion.

There are copies of the work available at the public library. It's a small book and there is still plenty of time to get it read.

An attempt is being made to contact persons who are interested in starting a new first year course and those who are interested in going on with the second year. Anyone who is interested, whether they are contacted or not should feel free to attend this meeting.

This meeting is an organization meeting as well as a discussion. Everyone is welcome.

The discussions are friendly, lively, enjoyable, and informative. The regular meetings are bimonthly on the second and fourth Thursdays.

Those wishing to obtain books for either the first or second year course may do so at this meeting Oct. 1.

New Approach—

"I definitely think we shouldn't drop this project," Mayor Briscoe said. "It needs further study, and we will set up a new committee with a fresh approach."

"It will take a lot of thought, but we want to keep it going," he added.

Councilman Marshall Rowley commented "I think we're all agreed it needs to be done. We have only to study the methods and means to get the job done."

A 30-Year Dream Coming True!

He used to stand on the curb in front of his father's house—and watch the Cadillacs sweep majestically by—carrying fine ladies and gentlemen on happy excursions.

That's when the dream started in his heart—and refused to leave.

Six times, before today, he has signed his name to an application for a motor car title—and, on every occasion, he knew it was a compromise.

But not this time! He is taking the keys to a beautiful 1953 Cadillac—and his 30-year-old dream is coming true.

And what a fulfillment it will be, as he rolls out into the highway and takes the longest way home!

First of all, he'll get those quick glances of approval which tell him the dream he dreamed for so many years is still in the hearts of others.

And then the car's great performance will begin to unfold itself.

Silence—almost complete silence—just the soft sound of the wind slipping by... the quickest, easiest response to the accelerator he has ever imagined... steadiness and roadability and handling ease that remove all but the merest effort from managing the car.

And, oh, what marvelous comfort! It's like sitting in the easiest chair conceivable—and moving smoothly and effortlessly through space.

And then, almost before he knows it, he'll be home—and in the driveway—with the family rushing out with the final voice of confirmation.

Man—this was worth waiting and working for!

And, of course, the years and the miles will add their proof as to the wisdom of his choice: dependability—long life—economy of upkeep and operation—and unusual resale value.

Yes, there is every practical reason for owning a Cadillac—as well as every personal one.

Better come in and see us today. It's probably easier than you think to make your dream of Cadillac ownership come true.

Leveling Doubles Yields On O'Bannon Farm

Leveling his land has increased cotton yields for Everett "Bob" O'Bannon by at least a half bale, the Cottonwood community farmer says.

In 1952 O'Bannon benched 30 acres and planted to cotton.

Before leveling the yield averaged about three-quarters of a bale per acre.

After leveling the yield jumped to two bales per acre.

Although 200 pounds of 13-39-0 fertilizer per acre were used, Bob says at least a half bale per acre increase resulted from leveling.

Just across the road from the two-bale per acre cotton was cotton on land just out of alfalfa making 1½ bales per acre.

"It takes leveling and crop rotation to get the fullest use of Hagerman Baptists are adding a two-story, 40 by 42 foot addition to the educational part of their church building, located on N. Cambridge.

This addition will accommodate about 100 additional Sunday school pupils. The Hagerman Baptist church reports one of the greatest years of advancement in the history of the church.

THIS YEAR O'BANNON HAS 98 acres in alfalfa, 120 in cotton, 14 in grain sorghums, and 38 acres of oats to be followed with alfalfa this fall. Plans are to have about 100 acres in alfalfa, changing to cotton about every six years.

With a water shortage in the valley, O'Bannon believes it's "very important to guard against waste water running off irrigated fields."

This year O'Bannon harvested seed off 52 acres of alfalfa. He harvested two cuttings of hay and did not irrigate after the second cutting. After seed harvesting, alfalfa was again irrigated. One more cutting may be made or the fall growth may be grazed off.

"O'Bannon has a barn which holds 225 bales of hay. This permits him to store low-quality hay that is not readily salable. He uses it for feeding during the winter will be held Oct. 4. All interested are invited to attend.

When price of good hay gets too low, O'Bannon puts it in the barn, too.

O'Bannon leveled 30 acres in 1949, some of it so steep it just wouldn't take water enough to make a crop. After leveling it was well I leveled another 57 acres in 1950," O'Bannon says.

BOTTOM LAND ON THE FARM along Cottonwood creek was rough, so this 42 acres was leveled in 1951. In 1952, 28 acres of steep land was bench-leveled.

O'Bannon decided at the time this was enough leveling for a while, but increased yields from three-quarters of a bale to two bales per acre were so good 64 acres were leveled in 1953.

Forty-nine acres on the O'Bannon farm now in alfalfa will be leveled about the third year out of alfalfa, completing the big program of leveling the farm.

Veterans By Learning Ropes Start Training Soon

Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of articles on Vocational Training for Korean Veterans under the Korean GI Bill. The first article appeared in the August 25 issue of this paper. It dealt with the general situation of these veterans and the various agencies which are helping them. This article is intended to give some practical information to those veterans who are planning to enter the training program. It is based on a recent visit to the Vocational Training Center at the University of New Mexico, where the training program is being conducted. The center is a new and modern building, and the training is being conducted in a most efficient manner. The program is designed to help these veterans to obtain the skills and knowledge necessary to find employment in their own country. The training is being conducted in a variety of fields, including agriculture, mechanics, and other trades. The program is being conducted in a most efficient manner, and the results are most encouraging. The veterans are being given the same high quality of training that is given to our own citizens. This is a most commendable effort, and it is hoped that it will help many of these veterans to find employment and to build a better life for themselves and their families.

Key Home Color to Your Personality

Color in your home should express your personality, according to Interior Decorator William Pahlmann. The well-known New York decorator suggested using fabric to provide color keyed to your type. For the outdoor woman, the one who cherishes her garden and indulges in sports, Pahlmann advised bringing the air of the outdoors into her home. He said: "Her windows should begin with Venetian blinds to admit all the light possible and should be given a lavish drapery treatment of a crisp chintz patterned with florals to draw attention to the windows and the view outside." For the more formal atmosphere get a certification, signed by the veteran and his school, that he was actually taking his course during that month. Normally, a veteran's check should go out within 20 days after VA gets that certification. For these reasons, VA advises veterans to have enough money to take care of their expenses for at least the first two months, as it will be approximately two months after they enter training before they receive their first check from VA. Rates of payments to veterans training in schools do not change unless the number of dependents change. Under the law monthly allowances for on-the-job and on-the-farm trainees will be reduced every four months, as the veteran progresses in his training program. The ancient Greeks issued the first coin to bear a human likeness.

Kill Insects with Homemade Spray, Dust Applicators

Ranchers and farmers in isolated areas of the state sometimes ask if there are suitable methods of applying insecticides to a home garden without buying special equipment. It is desirable, of course, to obtain a small 3 gallon sprayer or a small hand duster to apply the materials. However, if no equipment is at hand, there are various substitute methods which can be used, according to R. C. Dobson, extension entomologist at New Mexico A&M College. One of the easiest ways to dust a few plants is to take an empty coffee can and puncture the lid in about 5 to 10 spots with as small a diameter nail as possible. This will allow the dust to be released at a heavy rate so gentle shaking is all that is required to cover the plants. Another substitute for a duster is the use of an old sock. Dust may be placed in the toe and by a vigorous shaking motion, forced through the fabric and onto the plant, Dobson says. Care should be taken in using the above methods that excessive amounts of insecticide are not applied since burning of the plants may result. A sprayer suitable for garden plants can be made by modifying a sprinkling can. A piece of cellophane placed on the inside of the "head" or spout and punctured at the regular holes with a pin or needle will produce a fine stream of liquid which is suitable for spraying, the entomologist explains. "These methods of application are suitable only on small garden plots, and should be used only if there is no application equipment available," Dobson states. He advises commercial vegetable growers to obtain suitable equipment.

Water Certain To Damage Wood Floors

The rings left on a wood table top by moist glasses are an example of what water will do in a short time to any wood surface. Soap and water scrubbing ruins the finish and will eventually make the surface splintery and cause warping and buckling of the wood. Floors can be kept really clean and the finish like new with a waterless cleaner with a heavy wax base. This cleaning and waxing at the same time not only cuts floor care time in half, but protects the floor's original beauty better than any other method. The wax deposit keeps dust and dirt on the surface where it can be removed easily and quickly by a cloth or cotton dust mop. Although self-polishing waxes are wonderful time savers in the kitchen and bath, they should never be used on hardwood because they are about 80 per cent water and this water is just as injurious to wood as water from any other source.

For Conoco Super with TCP is a new kind of motor fuel—truly the greatest advance in gasoline since the introduction of tetraethyl lead in 1922. New Conoco Super can actually increase the power of the average car as much as 15%. That's because TCP overcomes the greatest cause of power loss affecting most cars on the road today. Conoco Super with TCP is brought to you by special arrangement with Shell Oil Company. TCP is Shell's trademark for the remarkable additive originally developed for aviation fuel.

Combustion deposits drastically reduce power

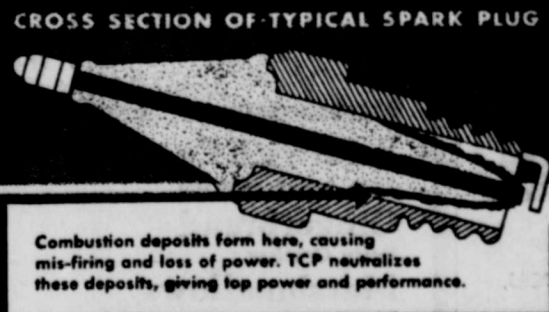

When you drive your car, deposits constantly build up on spark plugs and in the combustion chambers. These deposits can "cheat" you of power in two ways. First, they short-circuit spark plugs—causing them to mis-fire. Second, deposits in the combustion chambers cause fuel to ignite before it should. This is called pre-ignition or "wild ping." The combined effect of mis-firing and pre-ignition is loss of power and wasted gas.

Farmers, Ranchers Work Together as Neighbors In Many Parts of State to Plan Conservation

By T. A. NEUBAUER
Soil Conservation Service

There are many instances of groups of farmers and ranchers working together in planning and applying conservation practices on their land. They say it is easier to understand, to plan and to apply conservation when done with their neighbors. They enjoy working with their friends.

District supervisors are taking an active interest in these groups as they work together for the conservation program. Many supervisors attend these small group meetings to explain what the district is, and to tell about the many ways the district can help, and answer questions about their conservation problems.

There are many groups working on conservation in the 60 soil conservation districts in New Mexico. More than 30 groups in the Deming soil conservation district are working together to get a good conservation program on their land.

Much of the planning was done in group get-togethers and has resulted in the application of a variety of practices. They have leveled land, changed the direction of irrigation runs, re-established ditches, fertilized their land as needed, and stocked storage reservoirs with bass and bluegill.

A group at La Madera in the Seruilleta community of the Abiquiu-Vallecitos district consists of Diego Jaramillo, Rudy Pena, Eleri Jaramillo, Evaristo Jaramillo, Alberto Gallegos, Nicolas Gallegos and Moises Pena. At their present get-together they discussed the conservation movement, purposes of the district, and types of work on which they can get help.

Colored slides were shown depicting the conservation program in other communities in the Abiquiu-Vallecitos district. Fred Alire, chairman of the district supervisors, discussed the functions of the district, answered many questions and accepted applications for help from the district. This group is particularly interested in getting help to revamp their community ditch.

Three groups of neighbors in the Taos district are learning about the conservation problems on their land and are applying the needed practices. The group, which resides at Vadito, includes Cirilo Barelo, Benigno Vasquez and Abran Gonzales. A group at Talpa is composed of Juan D. Valerio, Victor Valerio and Ignacio Gonzales. A group at Rodarta includes Esteban Lopez, Frumencio Lopez and Trinidad Cordova. Here is the way these groups have functioned:

- 1.—First meeting—they discuss the purpose and functions of the district, district cooperation with other agencies, how to get help, and the development of the farm conservation plan.
- 2.—Soil surveys—the farmer or the group leader and the technician go over the land as the survey is made. They study the land together.
- 3.—Second meeting—discuss soils information and discuss and distribute information on how to care for and use the different kinds of land

Sweet Potatoes . . .

The new crop of sweet potatoes comes on the market in volume in September. It's 19 percent larger than last year's unusually short crop, but more than a third smaller than the 1942-51 average.

Sweet potatoes are of two main types—dry and moist.

The commonest dry varieties have mealy yellow flesh. The other type is the sweet potato with a moist deep orange flesh and sugary flavor.

You can often tell from the orange-brown hue of the skin that the flesh inside is orange. The dry yellow-fleshed varieties have a lighter tan skin and are often more slender in shape than the moist ones.

The moist orange variety are often called yams. According to the Louisiana Sweet Potato Commission, "yam" is merely a nickname or sort of a trademark for the golden-color Louisiana-type sweet potato. Actually there's no difference between a yam and a sweet potato.

Wise shopping will pay. Sweet potatoes deteriorate rapidly. Buy only as many as you can use within a few days of purchase. Handle them carefully to prevent bruising for bruised "sweets" are likely to decay. Keep them in a dry place at a temperature of 45 degrees or above.

Choose sweet potatoes that are firm, smooth, heavy for their size and regular in shape. Chunky, medium-sized ones are usually the best buy. Avoid those that show signs of decay—for the decay spreads rapidly and may affect the taste of the whole potato.

Sweets you buy now will be uncured. Those you buy in late fall and winter have been heat-cured to slow down their deterioration. This treatment does not hurt the nutritive value, flavor or texture.

Food value is saved if sweet potatoes are cooked in their skins. You'll find too that their sweetness hasn't dissolved into the water. But if you must peel them for some special dish—peel them just before using. Or, put the pared potatoes in salted water to keep them from darkening.

Sweet potatoes should be cooked quickly and served piping hot so that the air will not rob of their good store of vitamins. If there are leftovers, cover dish of peeled potatoes, or them in their jackets and in the refrigerator or other place.

Fresh Vegetables

For Your Table

Snap Beans are more plentiful than last year. Cabbage is wholesale for about half last year's price.

Plan to include broccoli, Brussels sprouts and cauliflower in your menus soon—it's getting to be the season.

Eggplant is in peak supply. There's plenty of onions and potatoes for all sorts of appetizing dishes.
