Mrs. Artesia Close Runner-Up In Mrs. New Mexico Contest

Mrs. M. A. Reuter, Mrs. Artesia of 1954, was edged into second place in finals for the Mrs. New Mexico title in Albuquerque last week-end.

Winner was Mrs. Henry Eichel, wife of a Kirtland Air Force base colonel.

Mrs. Reuter was named Mrs. Artesia during the recent Artesia Junior Woman's club Spring Style Show. The contest was sponsored by Southern Union Gas Co. and H&J Food Baskets.

Two other women from Clovis and Farmington competed in the state finals for the Mrs. New Mexico title.

The four women baked apple pies, washed, dried and ironed a basket of clothes, stitched an apron, and made a salad before the judges.

The keen eyes of judges in Albuquerque.

Mrs. Vera Napier, one of the state judges, said in an Albuquerque Tribune feature, "when the final scores were tallied it was just a matter of tenths of points as to who was the winner."

Mrs. Reuter is the alternate Mrs. New Mexico and will go to national finals if Mrs. Eichel cannot do so.

The Eichels will go to Ellinor village, a resort development at Ormond Beach, Fla., for the Mrs. America contest April 21-25. They will live in a special house, where Mrs. Eichel will cook, sew, decorate and entertain for national judges.

Mrs. Reuter has one consolation—she was awarded a gas range by Southern Union as winner of the Mrs. Artesia crown.

Nutritional Delinquents . . .

Despite High Standards of Living, Teenagers Of All Income Groups Are Undernourished

By GRACE I. NEELY
Nutritionist

New Mexico A&M College
AMERICA'S standard of living was never higher than it is today. Yet, half of our teen-agers are badly undernourished.

Why is it that no teen-age boy or girl in America is safe from malnutrition?

We pride ourselves on the care and feeding of our children. Up to the age of two, our children are the best fed in the world. After that age, their diet falls off sharply. During the teens a critical period of change, the food-health problem grows acute. Diet deficiencies show up in retarded growth development, skin defects, poor night vision, low resistance to fatigue, and skeletal deformities. This is the bleak picture of mass teen-age malnutrition.

In an intensive ten-year research, the food-health pattern of 2536 young Americans (equally divided between the sexes) from prosperous cities and industrial and rural areas was checked. The young people came from better than average income-level families. Only 4.7 of those studied were from families on relief, unemployed, or retired.

A careful check as made of what each youngster ate, both inside and outside the home, and the total food intake was measured against "recommended allowances" of the Food and Nutrition Board of the National Research Council. Each teen-ager was given an exacting series of medical, physical, and mental tests, including checks on weight, growth, skeletal status, teeth, eyes, tongue, gums, adequacy of subcutaneous tissues, as well as evaluations of body functions and body chemistry.

The investigation disclosed that only about one-fourth of the group were getting sufficient energy foods to keep the body machine running efficiently. Nearly half the girls (a few less boys) failed to get adequate amounts of protein foods vital to building and repairing body tissues. There was a shortage of calcium and phosphorus needed for good teeth and bones, and of iron intimately related to good red blood and necessary to prevent nutritional anemia. Physical difficulties such as poor growth, poor resistance to fatigue, and poor complexions appeared where diets were short in fat-rich foods—margarine, butter, cooking fats, and oils.

The teen-agers' diets contained not enough B vitamins related to satisfactory growth, and nervous stability; too little vitamin C important to health of gums, healing of injuries; far too little vitamin A essential to proper growth, good night vision, and good complexions.

More than six times as many men of your age will die of lung cancer this year as died in 1933. Our research scientists still don't know why. They do know, however, that over half of those who will develop lung cancer can be saved . . . if they get proper treatment while the disease is still in the silent, symptomless stage. That's why we urge you to have a chest X-ray every six months no matter how well you may feel.

discouraging picture, something can be done. Most of the harmful deficiencies can be ended by a few simple dietary changes without added expense or complicated charts and without extra time spent in the kitchen. A well-balanced diet is often less costly than a poor one.

Good health, like charity, must begin at home. The parent must understand that "ample food" may not mean a healthy diet—and a healthy child.

Many parents fail to realize the importance of fats as a growth promoter and fatigue fighter. Fat serves to insulate the body, acts as a supporting framework for many of the vital organs, is a major factor in maintaining good skin, speeds up the metabolism of other nutrients, and aids in the absorption of the fat soluble vitamins (A, D, E and K).

Many vitamin deficiencies are reflected in physical defects. Vitamin A, essential for growth, is also vital for healthy skin. Liver, some seafoods, milk, and the table fats are rich in sources of vitamin A. Since each pound contains 15,000 units, table fats are a particularly dependable everyday source of vitamin A. Some leafy and yellow vegetables are also good sources of vitamin A, but the vitamin A exists in them as "carotene" which must be converted by the body before it can be put to use.

EVERY PARENT has to safeguard the health and future welfare of his children. But the success of any improved eating program rests with the teen-agers themselves. They must be shown the need for improving their diet habits. Such training cannot be delayed, as the years between thirteen and fifteen are the most critical.

Here is a suggested five-point program to tackle this dilemma of mass malnutrition:

1. Provide constant good diet from infancy upwards. No matter how good today's diet is, it cannot make up for yesterday's omissions. Although it is possible to overcome the health damages of poor diet to a degree, prevention is better than cure, and some damage can never be repaired.
2. A better example is needed for the teen-agers. Every time Mom omits a necessary food in an effort to shrink inches from her waistline or when Dad turns up his nose at "rabbit food," they set a bad example. Teasing, diet fads, and constant talk of food likes and dislikes are no way to improve teen-age eating habits.
3. Improved nutrition teaching is needed. Show teen-agers the relationship between the food they eat and the way they look—their natural desire to be as healthy and attractive as possible will do the rest.

4. IMPROVED SCHOOL health examinations are necessary. Rejections by the armed forces show that many major defects are overlooked in school. Detection plus education is an answer, with new tests for nutritional status added to present routine health examinations.

5. Each community must be alerted. Teen-age nutrition should be recognized as a community problem. It has enough drama to catch wide attention, linked as it can be with all the teen-age problems that crowd the press—recreation, beauty, fashion, delinquency, military service, and parent-child relationships.

Nutritional delinquency among teen-agers can be eliminated. Teen-agers can eat better with more fun and at no greater expense. And in the process, they will achieve a more buoyant life.

Taxes now take 17 cents out of every consumer dollar, as compared to only nine cents just 25 years ago.

Cotton Growing, Wholesaling Would Suffer in Tariff Cut

A new U. S. trade policy embracing a further downward revision of tariffs would sacrifice textile jobs by the wholesale and also shrink or destroy the livelihood for countless cotton farmers, a textile trade official said today.

F. S. Love, of Charlotte, secretary-treasurer of the American Cotton Manufacturers Institute, asserted that such an outcome in the determination of foreign trade policy could be ironic indeed when it is considered that the tariff has only a very minor bearing on the total problem of restoring world trade.

The U. S. market is already the easiest in the world to enter, he told the Rotary club in an address, and the tariff is of highest importance to industries like textiles which must compete with low-cost overseas production.

He went on to point out that despite U. S. concessions under the reciprocal trade act, this country's cotton goods are virtually excluded from important textile manufacturing nations and their markets by a maze of "hidden tariffs" in the form of quota restrictions, embargoes and currency manipulations.

U. S. EXPENDITURES of dollars in foreign markets exceed foreign expenditures in this country by $2.5 billion, he continued, and it is estimated the foreign dollar balance in 1954 will reach about $3 billion.

What has happened he explained, is that the U. S. dollar has now become the only desirable medium of world exchange and most foreign countries therefore have reasons, apart from trade with America, for piling up excess reserves of dollars and gold, and the longer this condition exists, the smaller will be the chances of a relaxation of artificial trade barriers many nations have imposed.

The luncheon program on which Mr. Love spoke was arranged by A. K. Winget of Albemarle, board chairman of American and Eford Mills, and second vice-president of ACMI as well as veteran chairman of its cotton committee.

No conceivable advantage of American efficiency in producing cotton textiles, Love declared, can possibly offset the wage disparities between the United States and other major textile manufacturing countries.

Compared with an average hourly textile wage rate of $1.30 in the United States he said, the textile worker in India earns about nine cents an hour and in Japan about 13 cents, while even in Great Britain the rate is less than a third of the U. S. level.

WHILE A COMPLICATION of circumstances was involved, he continued, the enormous wage gap was nevertheless a major contributing factor which toppled the United States from first place in volume of cotton goods exports to fourth place in 1953 behind Japan, Great Britain and India.

"The textile industries of a number of other nations have been virtually rebuilt since World War II—some of them with U. S. tax money—and some of the finest cotton mills in the world may be found today in Japan, Holland, Germany and other countries," he added.

"When confronted with these facts . . . the proponents of 'trade,' at the last all of them say that if textiles and other venerable industries must be sacrificed, it is regrettable, but can always develop substitute industries to take their place. 'Will they be able to sell American cotton to textile mills when the price of cotton is today supported point considerably above world market price?'"

State gasoline taxes in states exceed the New Mexico rate of six cents per gallon. States likewise charge tax.

Two Hospitals for Indigent TB Victims Run By State

New Mexico state department of public welfare operates two hospitals for the care of the victims of tuberculosis who are financially unable to purchase private sanatorium care.

These two institutions are the state tuberculosis sanatorium, at Socorro, and the recently acquired Fort Stanton hospital.

There is no age limit for admission of patients to either of the state operated hospitals. Anyone suffering from tuberculosis who is otherwise qualified is acceptable for admission regardless of age.

The following eligibility requirements must be met:

1.—A diagnosis of active tuberculosis must have been made by a licensed physician, substantiated by X-rays and sputum examination reports.

While generally the rule of one year's residence in the state will apply to patients, applications may be accepted by county welfare offices when residence elsewhere cannot be established or if the patient's life would be endangered if he were returned to his place of legal residence, without first receiving sanatorium treatment.

Applications for admission consist of the following material:

- 1.—A medical social summary, containing pertinent social and medical history.
- 2.—A social data form, containing pertinent family and financial data.
- 3.—A medical report from the patient's physician.
- 4.—X-ray films.
- 5.—Sputum examination reports.

All applications for admission to either of the institutions for treatment for tuberculosis must be made to the county welfare office.

New Endrin Controls Most Cotton Pests

One of the newer organic insecticides, endrin, has been found to be the best insecticide thus far tested against the combination of the boll worm and the boll weevil, two of cotton's most destructive insects.

Entomologists of the U. S. department of agriculture find that endrin also gives control of several other cotton pests but not of the pink bollworm or of spider mites. Endrin has a longer-lasting residual action than toxaphene, the only other insecticide recommended for control of both the boll weevil and bollworm.

Endrin is toxic not only to insects but also to man and other warm blooded animals; and users are cautioned to follow exactly the recommendations of the manufacturers which are printed on the label of the insecticide container.

Endrin is closely related chemically to dieldrin, one of the cotton insecticides widely used at present to control the boll weevil.

ent to control the boll weevil. Endrin has been tested by USDA's Agricultural Research Service entomologists under the widely divergent cotton-growing conditions found at locations such as Florence, S. C.; Brownsville and Waco, Texas; Tallulah, La.; and San Fernando, Tamaulipas, Mexico.

At Florence, endrin-treated plots yielded gains in seed cotton of up to 746 pounds an acre. In Mexico, use of endrin increased the seed cotton yield 1,071 pounds an acre during a heavy boll weevil infestation.

With cautious optimism entomologists state that the new material comes closer to being an all-purpose cotton insecticide than any yet tested. Applied in quantities varying from 0.2 to 0.5 pound per acre, it is effective against the boll weevil and bollworm. At the rate of 0.1 to 0.2 pound per acre worms, cotton fleahoppers, and cotton pests as thrips, cotton leaf-lygus bugs.

Roswell to Hold Annual Circle Art Exhibit

Second annual Circle Show, presented by the Roswell museum, will be shown late in the spring, beginning May 23, and continuing until the middle of July.

The Circle Show, so called because entries are considered from a 150-mile radius around Roswell, was very successfully inaugurated last year.

Any artist within the radius, whether professional or amateur, may enter work in the show, also those artists who were born in the area, and those who have lived in the area five years and consider it their home.

The two classes of entries include painting in various media and sculpture. A jury of three will judge the show before the opening date, and declare the prize winners. The last date for entries will be April 30; consequently publicity on the show has been begun early, in order to enable entrants to prepare material for exhibition and write the Roswell museum for entry blanks.

Last year's show drew many entries from all over the 150-mile radius. It ran from May 3 to late in May; the prizewinning paintings and sculpture were exhibited throughout the summer.

Twenty-two cash and honorary awards were presented from the 154 items on exhibition. The winners of the two purchase prizes

Burnett Is Hailed By Sporting News As 'Minor League Executive of the Year'

Dick Burnett, owner of the Dallas Eagles credited with keeping professional baseball alive in Artesia through a working agreement with the Dallas club, has been named "Minor League Executive of the Year" by the Sporting News.

The honor was bestowed by J. G. Taylor Spink editor of the weekly newspaper of the baseball world.

The Sporting News wrote: "Serving as an inspiration for independent operation can compete successfully with the largest farm systems, both on the field and in the front office. Burnett, without major league connections, assembled a team that topped the Texas League during the regular season, won the playoffs and then captured the Dixie Series. In addition, his club led the circuit in attendance with 207,876.

These accomplishments alone would have been sufficient to win the honor, but he contributed even more, devoting his time, energy and money to what he considered the betterment of the game as a whole. At his own expense he held a two-day confab in Dallas. There proposals were advanced as beneficial for the sport, laying the foundation for much future legislation that is expected to remedy some of the evils that have fastened on the game throughout the years.

In gaining one of baseball's highest honors, Burnett has attained prominence in the baseball world and his accomplishments are constantly bringing wide-spread publicity to Dallas.

A review of the highlights of Burnett's baseball accomplishments since coming to Dallas follows:

1948—He purchased the Dallas Club for over $500,000. The highest price ever spent for a Texas League property. He spent another half-million dollars on improvements.

1949—Burnett assembled a power hitting club that won 13 straight games at the start of the season, but later dropped off to a fifth place finish. This club set an all-time Texas League attendance record of 404,851.

1950—Burnett signed Charlie Grimm from the Chicago Cubs at the highest known salary ever paid a minor league manager. He staged the greatest opening day program in minor league baseball to lure 53,578 fans into the Cotton Bowl with an all-time, all-star lineup.

1951—After three years of independent operation, Burnett signed a working agreement with Cleveland and replaced Grimm with L.

D. "Dutch" Meyer, to wind up with his first club in the first division, with the Dallas Eagles in third.

1952—Burnett introduced the first Negro player into the Texas League by signing Dave Hoskins. This proved to be a very timely move as the performance of Hoskins was outstanding and 180 thousand Texas League fans turned out to see him. The Eagles wound up in first place and a co-championship with playoff winner Shreveport.

1953—Burnett saw a dream come true with a first place team, playoff winner and Dixie Series Championship.

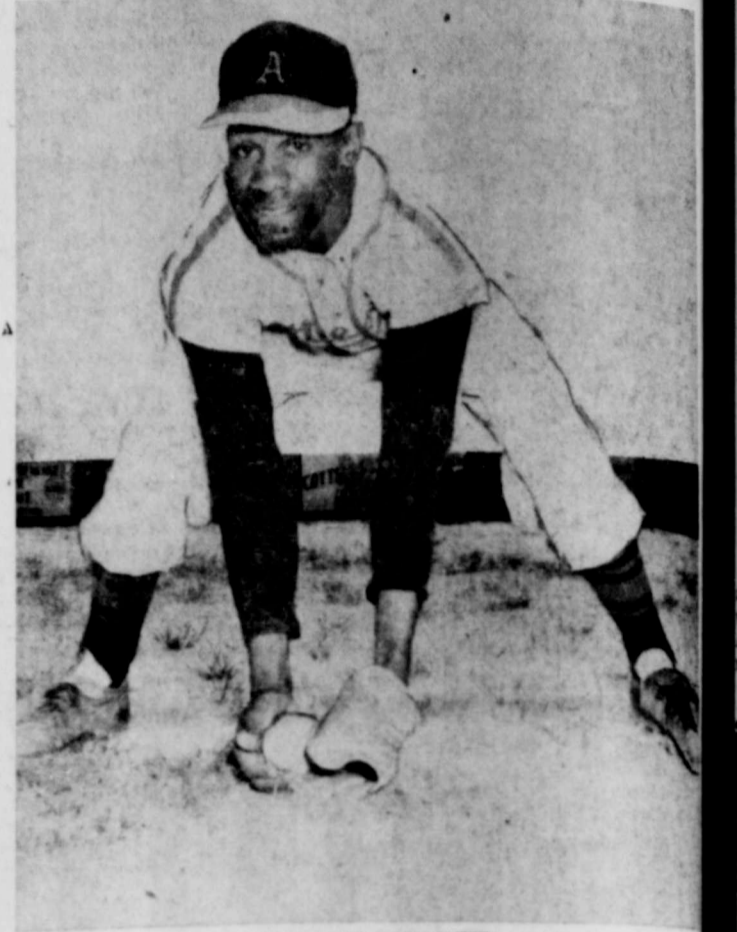

NuMexer Shortstop Studies Pro Baseball for Education

Reuben Smartt, popular shortstop with the Artesia NuMexers, has a new reason for playing baseball—it's educational.

With Reuben, who wants to be a physical education instructor, baseball is more than a hobby, or a sport, or a money-maker. It's a field to be studied as part of his education.

That education to date includes four years of study with a biology major and physical education minor at the University of Knoxville in Tennessee, where he received his BS degree.

Then Reuben went to University of Michigan, where he has piled up 18 hours toward his master's degree.

REUBEN SMARTT

"You get kind of stale after five straight years in school," Reuben says by way of explanation of the switch to baseball from college.

The fast young shortstop took up professional baseball in barnstorming with Satch Paige's All-Stars.

Reuben had a class Saturday morning, then none again until Tuesday. So he'd take off baseball barnstorming with the All-Stars on week-ends, returning to the university Tuesday. He picked up baseball experience and money for school.

Dave Hoskins, first colored player to play in the Texas league, recommended Reuben to Dallas. The Eagles assigned him to Greenville of the Big State league, where he played in 1953, weathering the franchise switch from Greenville to Bryan. Jodie Phipps, now pitching with the NuMexers, was on the same team.

Reuben sees baseball as a chance to travel, to continue his education, and to get a rest from school.

"I see physical education as my future," he says. "I'll go as far in baseball as I can, and as long as I continue to learn something. When I stop learning, I'll go back to school."

Reuben already has background in football, basketball, and track sports in which he participated in high school.

"It depends on the breaks," Reuben says of his future. "If I get 'em and go up, I'll stick with it. I don't and stop learning, back to school."

Price's Steal at Home Captures Baseball Game

Ronald Price's theft of home plate in the last of the sixth inning provided Artesia High School Bulldogs the winning run in their game with Loving Junior High Saturday afternoon at NuMexer Park.

The game provided the Bulldogs with their first win of the season against one loss to the Roswell Coyotes.

Bob Cerny, who pitched fine ball after relieving Louis Campanella in the second inning, was credited for the win. Omar Martinez was charged with the loss.

The Bulldogs next game will be with the Carlsbad Cavemen Wednesday at Carlsbad at 2:30.

Starting just east of Raton, the Canadian river is more than 900 miles in length.

Dobkowski Back in Ball After Tour in Service

Paul Dobkowski, Artesia NuMexers second baseman, is getting back into professional baseball after a 21-month layoff.

Paul has been with Uncle Sam's tourists on such trips as that to Triangle Hill in Korea, where he fought with the Seventh Division.

A native of Chicago, Paul broke into professional baseball as one of Chicago high schools' stars.

As Paul explains it, Chicago contributes three players every year from its schools to the national high school all-star games in New York.

Paul was one of three to be chosen. He apparently made such a good showing he was offered a contract by Brooklyn.

"I didn't sign it," he says, "because I wasn't sure I wanted to get into baseball."

But Leroy Shock, of Chicago's White Sox prevailed on him, and through Leroy, Paul went to Eldorado, Ark., for his rookie year in baseball with the class C Cotton States league.

Texarkana bought him and sent him to Lubbock where, he proudly notes, he played under Paul Dean, brother to Dizzy.

Then came the Army.

After Paul's discharge, he found his contract held by Galveston, then later by the Dallas Eagles, who sent him to Artesia.

Paul expects his wife to join him here in June. The Dobkowskis are expecting their first family addition.

Paul figures he'll stay in professional baseball as long as he feels he's advancing in the sport.

When he stops, he'll return to Chicago, where "I can always pick up a job in my trade—I was a machinist before I went into baseball."

New Mexico is exceeded in area only by Texas, California and Montana.

As Television Novelty Wears Off, Income Up For Quality Competition in Entertainment

Steady increases in income for sports, motion pictures, radio, newspapers, magazines, and general entertainment were forecast by Jerry N. Jordan in his fifth annual report on the Effects of Television, published by the Sports-Television Manufacturers Assn.

"As television passed out of its novelty period in most of the nation during 1953," Jordan said, "nearly every industry it was supposed to hurt turned upward in income, attendance, or sales—many reaching their all-time peak. Newspapers, magazines, radio, books, concerts, track and harness racing and professional football had the best years in their history. Motion pictures, college football, boxing and basketball were climbing again after a temporary decline. Major and minor league baseball attendance dropped 1.8 per cent and 7.8 per cent. The sports industry as a whole, with 15 million dollars in rights fees, raised its income from admissions plus television to approximately the all-time peak of $284 million reached in 1949."

Citing the fact that more than half of all American homes (28 million) now have TV sets, the report points out that 56 per cent of these owners have had their sets for two or more years. "The novelty effect of television is over. Normal habits have formed—and the gloomy prophecies of empty stadia and theatres, curtailed reading, and the doom of radio simply have not come true—and will not come true."

"There are two important reasons for this," Jordan explained. "One is the enormous increase in time and labor-saving devices since World War II, which has created more leisure time for recreation. The other is the courage and creative ability of the men in the recreation industry who have found ways to live with and profit by television."

hours saved by modern electrical appliances, faster transportation, shorter working hours, automatic heating and power tools, the report concludes that television has merely filled a time vacuum created by our improved standard of living.

"It never did have to hurt anything," Jordan said. "Our modern way of life has saved so much time for the average person that he is able to watch TV several hours a day, and still have as much time as before for other recreation."

Television does compete with other recreation, the report states. But it competes because it is good entertainment, not because it is free. Fifty million people staying home at watch "I Love Lucy" is tougher competition for any sport than the telecast of the sport itself. Similarly, 43 million people watching a Sunday World Series telecast "knocks competing TV shows for a loop."

"Top attractions still sell out, whether televised or not," Jordan said, "and also draw the big TV audiences. Mediocre events neither draw well at the gate nor over the airwaves. Television has made people more discriminating. Good shows last longer. Bad shows flop faster. That is the problem all people in sports and recreation must face today."

THE REPORT PAYS HIGH tribute to the way leaders in sports, entertainment and communications have met this problem. "To the credit of these men, few sought to fight, ignore or weep over TV; most strove to live with it," Jordan said.

"They went out and worked to find the best ways to profit by this new competition. Radio increased local and spot programming and had its greatest year. Newspapers found that TV stimulated reader interest and broke every record in their 300-year history. Magazines stepped up color, enlivened their editorial matter, and increased both circulation and advertising revenue."

"Book publishers," Jordan said, "found a gold mine in paper back editions. Long-playing records and high fidelity boosted home music. New 3-D techniques and big productions stimulated movie going. Racing increased fan interest, opened new tracks and smashed every past record. Baseball teams shifted to new cities and found fans waiting. Boxing became a topic of conversation in millions of homes. Professional football built fans all over the country and hit new peaks in attendance and profits. "The future is even brighter," Jordan concluded. "The electronics industry, which gave us television, will speed up time and labor savers in every walk of life, giving us still more leisure time to enjoy all forms of recreation."

Jordan predicted between 750 and 1,000 TV stations by 1957, with nearly every home, except in distant rural areas, having a television set. "Color TV will not obsolete black and white," he said, "but it is coming faster than most people think and should help to increase rights fees for sports events."

THE SPORTS COMMITTEE of the RETMA was formed to help promote attendance at spectator sports through the national advertising of radio-TV manufacturers and their local distributors and dealers. Members are from RCA Victor division of RCA, General Electric Co., Philco Corp., Allen B. DuMont Laboratories, Inc., Hoffman Radio Corp., Motorola, Inc.

Jerry N. Jordan is author of "The Effect of Television on Family Habits," "The Long Range Effect of Sports Attendance," "The Effect of Television on Recreation and Communications" and other studies published by the RETMA. He is presently with N. W. Ayer & Son, Inc., in Philadelphia.

Tax-Exempt Property in NM Hits New High

Total value of listed property exempt from taxes in New Mexico now exceeds 85 million, an all-time high.

Even so, the reported figure probably amounts to considerably less than one-fourth of the actual value of the tax-free holdings, according to the Taxpayers Assn. The total of all private and corporate property currently assessed for taxes in the state is 754 million.

More than 41 million worth of listed private property is now free of taxes under the veterans exemption laws of New Mexico. This figure is due to increase sharply next year when it will show exemptions for Korean veterans for the first time.

The total rose by almost 6 million when World War II veterans were added in 1948, and has gained an average of 3 million in exemptions annually since that time.

Additional private property exemptions currently totaling almost 20 million stem from the constitutional provision excepting the first $200 in assessment against each property owner classed as the head of a family in this state.

The listed value of public and church-owned property in New Mexico amounts to only a little over 24 million. However, such holdings are not shown at all on

Cattleman Burns Over Mess Left By Sportsmen

A prominent and cooperative cattleman, one who has opened his foothill lands to hunters, tells about the quail hunters who hunted on his land with his permission; had their lunch in their cars parked on his main road, and then threw their beer cans, whiskey bottles, paper bags, sardine cans, and orange peelings out of the car window to be a monument to their visit and a remembrance to the landowner every time he goes to and from his ranch.

"Why can't people put their refuse in the lunch sack, throw the beer cans on the floor, all to be removed on reaching home? Believe me, it's easy, and will help our general program of better relations," said Fred Patton, director of public relations for the New Mexico department of game and fish.

"Picture a car driving up to your home, parking at the curb or even in the driveway, eating a lunch and then throwing everything on the front lawn. You would be hotter than a pistol and about in the mood to use it on the thoughtless so-and-so. I saw duplicates of this kind of conduct in various pheasant-hunting and fishing areas of the state.

"We have to work hard to change some of these habits," said Patton, "or we will lose more areas to hunt on. Think it over and pass the word on to your hunting partners."

Kiwanis to Mark Fortieth Year, Speaker Reminds

Dr. W. S. Dando of Carlsbad reminded Artesia Kiwanis club it will celebrate 40th anniversary next month.

Rev. Ralph O'Dell spoke to Kiwanis briefly on what Kiwanis is. Founders choose the motto "We Build" and Kiwanians have been building ever since, Dr. Dando said. The spirit of laughter, friend-the effort, according to Dr. Dando, ship, lifting, and building is worth. The club recognized one of its own members, who is unopposed for mayor of Artesia, and gave him a rousing cheer.

Donald Sperry, Junior Kiwanian, spoke to the club on his impressions of the club and expressed appreciation for being club's guest during March.

Guests were Bill Sanders, J. B. Champion and Bill Jackson of Artesia, Jack Isaacs of Roswell, an inter-club relation delegation from Dan Nickolds, Dr. W. S. Dando, Kenny Davis, Tommy Thompson, Sid M. Roberts, Jerry Rhodes and Herman Wertheim.

THEIR MURDERER HUNTED

A WIDESPREAD hunt is on for murderer of Maxwell Bodenheim, 63-year-old former "sultan" of New York's Greenwich Village, and his third wife, the former Ruth Fagan, 35, shown together above. Bodenheim, famous for his novels and bizarre life in the 1920s, had fallen to panhandling in recent years, a victim of alcohol. He was found shot to death on floor of a dingy room. His wife had been stabbed in back. (International Soundphoto)

Thus we have Senior high school now housing 200 students more than the 500 it was designed to take care of. And the classes there are getting bigger.

"So by taking ninth grades out of Senior high and putting them back in Junior high, where they belong and where they were until crowded out by expansion, we will ease the pressure for the time being on the high school," Stroup said.

Bonds would be paid in seven years through $65,000 annual principal payment and interest payments beginning at $10,125 the first year, decreasing as principal is paid.

Lake Arthur

Lake Arthur schools were 100 per cent represented at the South-eastern district meeting of the New Mexico Educational Assn. in Hobbs Friday. The entire faculty membership, consisting of Supt. and Mrs. Herbert M. Whatley, Mrs. Bernice Swinney, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Conrad Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Sooter, Mrs. Harry Cumpsten, Coach John Havener, Jr., and Miss Audrey Boatright, attended. Cumpsten accompanied his wife to Hobbs.

Supt. Whatley was elected as a member of the executive committee and he was also elected as representative of the executive committee of New Mexico rural area administration association from southeastern district, which meets at Santa Fe.

All the teachers reported an enjoyable and profitable time, attending the panel discussions of their choice and some remained for the business session.

Travis Stovall of Artesia conducted the services at the Methodist church in Lake Arthur Sunday morning in the absence of Rev. C. A. Clark, pastor, who was closing out his series of meetings in a revival at Inez. Stovall had as his lesson "God and You," which dealt principally with Christian education of young people. Herbert M. Whatley presided at the worship services.

Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Jones spent the week-end visiting her parents, the William Kliters at Orograd, N. M., after attending the southeastern NMEA meeting in Hobbs. Miss Jeannette Havener spent Sunday visiting Miss Treva Gayle Jetton on the Cottonwood.

The last quarterly conference of the local Methodist church held at Loco Hills Sunday evening was well attended by Lake Arthur members. After enjoying the sumptuous meal which the Loco Hills Methodist ladies served, worship services were held. Rev. Trone, district superintendent, preached and also presided over the conference which followed. A discussion on the painting of the Lake Arthur Methodist church on the interior and exterior was held. Mrs. Ed Shroek was elected as delegate to the annual conference which is to be held in Carlsbad in May.

Funeral services for Mrs. Nellie Conley, 79, of Warren, Ohio, was held Sunday. Mrs. Conley is survived by two brothers and two sisters, one of whom is Mrs. May Gromo of Lake Arthur. Mrs. Conley is also the aunt of Mrs. Ruth Bates and Mrs. Juanita Gromo of Artesia. The entire community extends sympathy to Mrs. Gromo and relatives during their sorrow.

Lake Arthur citizens are mourning the deaths of two former residents who spent a great deal of their time here with their families and were beloved by all who knew them. They are Mrs. H. E. Flowers, now of Artesia, who is known here as Mrs. Manan and who is the mother of Mrs. August Nelson of Lake Arthur, and Mrs. Guy Robinson, now of Hagerman, who is the mother of Paul Robinson, Lake Arthur.

Mrs. Flowers was very active in church community affairs while she was rearing her family here and was very active until the time of her death.

A large assemblage of friends from Lake Arthur and Cottonwood were in attendance at last rites for her.

Mrs. Robinson settled on a farm near here with her late husband and family in 1908 and has lived here and at Hagerman since that time. Less than a month ago she had the joy of having all of her children with her at a family reunion held here at the home of her son, Paul and family.

She was very active and alert in managing her business affairs, and above all else enjoyed her family—children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

These gentle and understanding personalities will be greatly missed but their influence will follow them for good.

Community Night at Lake Arthur school house will be held at 7 p. m. on Thursday, April 1, it has been announced by Supt. H. M. Whatley. A pot-luck supper will be held at 7 p. m. Everyone in the community is asked to bring a covered dish. Drinks of coffee and pops will be furnished.

At 8:30 a film on "Fly Control and Biology," will be shown by L. B. Summers, Roswell, Chaves county sanitarian and milk inspector, for the city of Roswell. Mrs. Summers, who also teaches classes in sanitation Tuesdays and Thursdays in Hagerman and Dexter, will make a brief talk. This is a continuous program on health which has been going on all year, Supt. Whatley stated.

It is hoped that all school patrons and everyone in the community will attend Community Night. Ralph Pearson and John Haven left Sunday for Tucumcari to attend Masonic Grand Lodge.

Presbyterian Women's Spring Luncheon Held

A spring luncheon was held on Wednesday, March 24, by ladies of the Ella Hedges circle of the Presbyterian church of Hagerman at the Womans club.

The 1 o'clock luncheon was served buffet style, and members were seated at quartet tables with seasonal flowers being used as the centerpiece and throughout the dining room.

Those present were Mrs. Bob Utterback, Mrs. Jim Langenegger, Mrs. Linden Jenkins, Mrs. John Rhodes, Mrs. Bobby Templeton, Mrs. Richard Lang, Mrs. Clarence Harshey, Mrs. Max Wiggins, and the hostesses, Mrs. Homer Mayberry, Mrs. Robert B. West and Mrs. Jack Langenegger.

Following the luncheon members from the Methodist church met with the ladies to help plan the joint Bible school to be held July 12-19, namely, Mrs. Horice Freeman, Mrs. Jack Menoud, Mrs. Bobby Williamson, Mrs. Lester Hinrichsen, Mrs. Dacus Parker, Mrs. Stanley Utterback, and Mrs. Spurgeon Wiggins.

Cokes were served at the close of the afternoon.

Ten, Twenty Years Ago In Artesia

TWENTY YEARS AGO
(From The Advocate files for March 29, 1934)

J. L. Truett, Eddy county Democratic chairman, announced here Monday that a meeting of the central committee would convene in Carlsbad Saturday to canvass returns of the Democratic primary held March 24.

Joe Ballard of Artesia, a student in the University of Texas at Austin, has been elected captain of the freshman track team, according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ballard.

Mrs. Jessie Morgan of Artesia was re-elected grand secretary of the Eastern Star order at the close of the state convention at Albuquerque Friday.

Mrs. M. G. Schultz entertained last Thursday honoring her son, Max, Jr., on his ninth birthday.

Political party lines tend to left and right—and up and down. I am superstitious enough to believe a good candidate for office is one who prefers a straight line.

How shall the community know the man who politics them by his words and in accordance with his actions? If elected, he will administer to the community—and to the individual? He will society know him except that he render his own interpretation of what he himself shall know as good conduct?

I am superstitious enough to believe that a good candidate for any office is one who prefers to walk a straight line!
