Bill to Stop Rigid Supports Given to Ike

By EDWIN B. HAAKINSON

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Farm legislation calling a halt to rigid, high price supports headed for a White House welcome after a hectic debate that routed disgruntled senators from bed early today. The measure finally passed 44-0 on a past-midnight roll call, making a 14½-hour session. Among other provisions, it grants the Eisenhower administration's request for flexible authority to deal with farm supports and surpluses. The House passed the bill by a leading 208-47 unrecorded vote yesterday. Supporters had hoped to get it through the Senate in much the same way. But after a siege of highly critical speeches, mainly from the Democratic side, midnight neared and many Republicans absent. GOP Leader Knowland of California asked for a recess and a show-up in the morning.

SEN. RUSSELL (D-Ga.), bitter opponent of flexible and lower price supports, protested furiously. He demanded a test vote on Knowland's request to quit without a vote. This brought angry exchanges and lengthy explanations from Knowland and Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas while his assistants put in emergency bills for absent senators. Knowland insisted he believed there had been an informal agreement for no record votes during the night. Johnson conceded that he had proposed this but he had control of only his own vote and that any senator could demand a record vote.

APPARENTLY SATISFIED that he had mustered enough support for the bill, Knowland agreed the roll call. It moved at a slow pace past midnight. Finally Sen. C. Glenn (D-Ark.) employed a parliamentary tactic to end the sitting for late arrivals. On the final test 31 Republicans and 13 Democrats voted for the compromise bill worked out by Senate and House conferees. Five Republicans, 22 Democrats and 1 Independent shouted no. Most of the criticism from opponents, including Senators Kerr (Okla.), Johnston (D-Sc.), Keener (D-Tenn.), Morse (Ind-Ore.) and Young (R-ND), centered upon flexibility for flexible and lower price supports to basic crops and dairy products. They predicted these would weaken the downturn in farm income and help elect a Democratic majority in Congress this year. The compromise measure allows a 20 percent support of 82½ to 90 percent of parity government-set price on cotton, wheat, corn, soybeans and peanuts for next year's crop. (Continued on page six)

First Artesia Area Cotton Is Sold By Simons

The first bale of cotton in Eddy county was put out by the mill gin at the Artesia Alfalfa Growers' Assn. last night from the fields of W. M. Simmons of Artesia. The bale, which weighed 458 pounds and was 1 and 3/32 middling cotton, barely missed being the first put together in New Mexico. That honor went to a farmer in southern Dona Ana county who got up early yesterday and an early bale in El Paso county. The bale will be on display at the Artesia Chamber of Commerce office and Simons will receive a $100 certificate which can be redeemed at any store that is a member of the chamber.

Honest Driver Is Still Fined $15 For Speeding

FITCHBURG, Mass. (AP)—Maurice C. Ellis, 19, of West Townsend, charged with speeding, vigorously disputed police testimony in district court here yesterday that he was doing 50 miles per hour. He interrupted several times to insist he was doing—not 50—but 60. Judge A. Z. Goodfellow imposed a $15 fine and commented: "The least I can say about you is that you are mighty honest."

Controversial Bud Rice May Get JP Competition

SANTA FE, (AP)—Bud Rice, controversial justice of the peace in Mexico, may have a competitor one of these days if a new movement succeeds. Jason Kellahin, member of the State Police board, said the board understands the Tourist Court Operators Assn. is asking appointment of a new justice to set up shop in a precinct near Rice's. The Valencia county commission has authority to name another justice when a precinct has none, he said. Rice holds forth at Budville, 22 miles east of Grants. The only peace justice between Albuquerque and Grants, he has come under frequent attacks for his methods and fines. The police board discussed the matter and decided on a hands off policy on grounds no State Police problem is involved. "We are taking no part in it," Kellahin said of the court operators' move. "We use Bud Rice as the only justice of the peace over there who is available. We're willing to use any available justice." Gov. Mechem commented that nothing illegal has been found in Rice's court operation. "The state comptroller's office checked his books and found everything in order." (Continued on page six)

The Artesia office of the New Mexico veterans service commission will be closed until Sept. 1 but emergency cases can still be handled, W. A. "Bill" Dunnam, veterans service officer, said today. The office will be closed while Dunnam vacations.

K. R. Jones, volunteer service officer, will handle emergency calls, Dunnam said. His residence is 310 N. Fourth, phone 1226 W. In addition William E. Hall, veterans administration contact officer at Carlsbad, is also available for emergencies, Dunnam said. Hall will make his regular semi-monthly visit here Tuesday, Aug. 24, when he will be at Veterans Memorial building from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. to assist veterans and their dependents.

Ike Receives Sweeping Atom Power Measure

WASHINGTON, (AP)—President Eisenhower today got a bill carrying out his sweeping new program to open the way for a private atomic power industry and to bolster European defenses with more data on nuclear weapons. The House put Congress' final approval on the long-debated measure by voice vote yesterday. The Senate had accepted the compromise version Monday. But Chairman Cole (R-NY) of the Senate-House atomic energy committee served notice he intends renewing a fight next January over disputed patent provisions which prompted much of the Senate's bitter 13-day debate on the original bill. The measure sent to the White House requires the sharing of all civilian patents for five years on a free basis. After that, owners of developments not made under government auspices can get exclusive patent rights for 17 years, renewable for the same period. "This was a compromise between the House position calling for exclusive patents at the outset and the original Senate demand for 10 years of compulsory patent-sharing. Cole told the House yesterday that, if reelected, his first job in January will be to introduce legislation to repeal the compulsory patent-sharing clauses which he called "distasteful and un-American."

Church Unity Is Sought in World Leaders' Meeting

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—Representatives of 170 million Christians today renewed their efforts to carry out Jesus Christ's prayer "that they may all be one." Hopes for a closer union of Christ's followers were expressed before leaders of 163 denominations from 48 countries at the meeting of the World Council of Churches. Keynote speeches on unity were made last night by clergymen, who laid the groundwork for later discussions. Bishop Anders Nygren of the Church of Sweden recalled Christ's prayer not long before his crucifixion. The bishop said: "Jesus prayed 'that they may all be one.'" "One must not take that prayer seriously, that Jesus shall not have prayer in vain." He also stated: "If we were not one in Christ we would not be assembled here. And if we were not disunited we would not be here either, for this conference is meant to be a step on the way toward overcoming this disunity." (Continued on page six)

Underground Water Expert From Iraq to Study Area Basin

An underground water expert from Iraq is going to find out just how much water is available in the big artesian water basin which supplies irrigation water for rich cotton fields in the Artesia and Roswell areas. He is Dr. S. M. Hantush, who will work on the job under the direction of Dr. C. J. Workman of the New Mexico Institute of Mining and Technology at Socorro. Dr. Workman has a contract with the Pecos Valley Artesian Conservancy District to survey the Roswell artesian basin. The expert from Iraq will spend about four months digging into all published material ever prepared on the Roswell artesian basin, according to John F. Russell of Roswell, attorney for the conservancy district. That includes extensive work done by the state engineer's office, the United States geological survey, and private geological offices. "We are primarily interested in the amount of water we have in the basin and the length of time it will last," Russell said. Water levels in the basin have been steadily dropping since it was last fully recharged with big rains in 1941 and 1942. "There is nothing definite about what will be done on the survey beyond this preliminary phase," Russell said. "The study by Dr. Hantush will probably indicate our next step." If the expert from Iraq is retained for further work, Russell said possible fields for further study include the relation between streams in the basin's recharge area and quantity of water in the basin. "We would also like to learn what might be done to recharge the basin," Russell said. "We would like to know the rate of flow and recharge. In short, we'd like all the information we can get." He added: "All we now know is that reports show a steady decline in the basin's water level. The question is, how long can we continue to take water out at this rate without being in serious difficulty?" The conservancy district has a $20,000 a year contract with Dr. Workman to study the basin. The district is a division set up by the state to control the artesian basin. It has the power to tax and to establish regulations, as well as enforcement of laws on use of water from the basin. It shares with the state engineer jurisdiction over conservation of the basin's water. There are five divisions within the district, each of which elects a representative to the district's board of directors. The Roswell artesian basin extends from 10 miles north of Roswell to seven to 10 miles south of Artesia, and from the Pecos River on the east to about six miles west of Artesia. It is believed to be primarily recharged by water in the White Mountain area west of Roswell and the Sacramento-Guadalupe mountain area west of Artesia.

Artesia Flood Control Funds Pass Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate has passed a bill to authorize future construction of flood control and river and harbor programs—including three New Mexico projects—involving a federal cost of some $1,070,000,000. The bill, which passed the Senate 77-2, now goes to the House for consideration of projects the Senate tacked on since the measure passed the House several weeks ago. The New Mexico projects, all for flood control, are: Pecos river—in Texas and New Mexico, $9,500,000. Rio Grande basin—Albuquerque, $7,500,000. Rio Hondo, Roswell, $5,658,000. The Pecos river program in New Mexico includes $540,000 for the Artesia area to be used to build a levee three miles west of Artesia and a series of diversion dams to angle southeast to about six miles south of Artesia. The dams are to divert all the water which originally went to Eagle draw and Tumbleweed draw and send it on into the Pecos river. Prior to the announcement of the proposed project, local agencies had worked for many years to get such a program started. It was introduced during the last part of July.

Table Built For Girls Is Burned

Vandals have destroyed a table painstakingly made by inter-mediate attending the Girl Scout Day camp, leaders have reported. The table was lashed to a tree at the close of camp yesterday. This morning the girls found only the frame. Charred wood all that remained of the table top, was found in a nearby fireplace at Artesia Municipal park. In addition, firewood gathered by the girls had been burned and the grounds were littered with watermelon rind, papers, and unused food. "We hope we can get more poles," one leader said, "and complete the table again before open house Friday night. If we do we are going to build it so we can take it apart and take it home at night."

Farmers Union Uncertain on Construction

Indefinite plans by National Farmers Union to build a potash mine and refinery 35 miles east of Artesia at Halfway were announced last night by C. E. Huff of Denver, the cooperative's general manager. Huff said NFU would build a $10 million to $12 million plant in the Carlsbad-Artesia area of southeastern New Mexico. "We expect it will take about three years before the plant is in operation," Huff said. He was immediately sent a telegram this morning by the Artesia Chamber of Commerce, welcoming him to Artesia and pledging Artesia assistance in the venture. Paul W. Scott, chamber of commerce manager, told his news conference this morning that he received a letter from Huff "late last year" which said that "I am of the opinion that whatever operations we shall have in the area shall continue to be centered in Artesia." HE REFERRED TO coring operations by Farmers Union, which have been based at the Artesia office on E. Main street, just east of the NuMex refinery. Huff, however, told the Associated Press on a query from the Carlsbad Current-Argus and The Artesia Advocate, that plans for location of an office "are still indefinite." Huff told the Associated Press "we expect it will take about three years before the plant is in operation." "It has been about that long," he added, "that the Farmers Union has conducted core drilling operations in the Carlsbad area." Meanwhile, a Carlsbad source who wished to remain anonymous said Farmers Union's announcement was more "indefinite than definite, and that 'we still can't tell what they are going to do.'" Huff in his statement said construction of the new plant—part of a $25 million dollar expansion program planned by the organization over the next six or eight years—was authorized by Pres. James G. Patton and the board of directors. HUFF SAID the exact site of the proposed plant has not been determined but the NFU is negotiating for the lease of about 30 sections of land in Lea and Eddy counties, where five other firms are mining potash. ### Artesian Basin's Water Continues To Show Decline

Water levels in the Roswell artesian basin, which supplies irrigation water for farms in the Artesia-Roswell area, is continuing to drop at a rapid pace, according to E. G. Minton, Jr., of Roswell, ground water supervisor for the basin. "The water level has been dropping each year during the drought," said Minton, referring to the period since the rains of 1941 and 1952 which last recharged the basin. "Since the north end of the basin is higher and also the principal intake, the decline is higher in the south end," Minton told The Artesia Advocate this morning. In the Roswell area, he said, the decline is 2 to 2½ feet, while in the Artesia area levels have dropped about 10 feet. Minton is personally familiar with the dropping water level problem—he owns a farm south of Artesia. Minton in previous statements on the long-range picture for basin water supplies said "it's just going to get steadily worse if we have no rainfall."

GOP Attacks 'Myth' of Demo Eastside, Me-Too Platform

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New Mexico Republicans today opened a two-week nine-county tour of what they say is not the Democratic East Side. Alvin Stockton, Raton candidate for governor, kicked off the tour with a declaration that "constant talk of how heavily Democratic the eastern and southern counties are happens to be a myth which has been demolished completely by the last two elections." Arriving in Tucuman after a big sendoff rally at Raton last night at which State Sen. John P. Cusack of Roswell raked Democrats over hot coals. Stockton said today the tour is frankly aimed at getting the votes of Democrats as well as Republicans and said he is optimistic about the possibility of wooing East Side Democrats who outnumber Republicans six to one. "To say that the nine eastern and southern counties are overwhelmingly and hopelessly Democratic," Stockton said, "is not only untrue, but something of an insult to the people in those counties." He said that in both 1950 and 1952 a Republican candidate for governor had carried the nine counties and said he has noticed "a desire by the people in the area to view the candidates individually rather than simply by party."

Brown Says GOP Afraid to Fight Simms on Merit

SANTA FE (AP)—State Democratic Chairman Tom Brown said today the Republicans' Raton rally "proved the Republicans are scared and don't relish the thought of campaigning against John Simms Jr. in the governor's race." Kicking off the Republican East Side caravan tour, keynote Jack Cusack last night called Simms merely "a new jockey on the same old horse." And Gov. Edwin Mechem, campaigning for U.S. Senator, warned against a return to conditions as described them under Democratic administrations. Brown said in a statement today: "They apparently intend to ignore Simms and campaign against some bogey men. They apparently intend to slant their campaign on the backward look." He highly praised Simms' integrity, his ability and his "will to make the state the best governor we have ever had." These attributes of Simms, Brown said, give the Republicans the jitters, and "They would rather set up straw men to fight."

Gloria Vanderbilt Stokowski Nervous in Debut on Stage

By RUSSELL LANDSTROM
MOUNTAINHOME, Pa. (AP)—Gloria Vanderbilt Stokowski made her long-awaited stage debut here last night, overcoming an obvious early nervousness to win the cheers of a full house for her gallant portrayal of a princess in Ferend Molnar's romantic fable "The Swan."

In so doing, the tall, brunette, 30-year-old wife of conductor Leopold Stokowski and mother of two children, fulfilled a driving ambition. Known chiefly in an artistic way for her painting, she had determined to find out what she could do in the theater.

As she put it before first night curtain time at the Pocono Playhouse in this eastern Pennsylvania resort country:

"If I can't act, I want to know it. If I can I want to make the most of that ability, to develop another side of my career."

To this test she brought no actual acting experience other than schoolgirl parts. All the same she thought that her study of the stage and the knowledge gained from close association with many persons in the theater would help her to succeed.

The consensus was that the one-time "poor little rich girl"—billed simply as Gloria Vanderbilt for stage purposes—had done pretty well for a beginner.

The final curtain touched off much applause, more than a few bravos, and sent a convoy of ushers down the aisles bearing great baskets of flowers for the star, who later admitted she had never been so scared and seldom so excited.

"Wonderful! Wonderful!" she exclaimed. "The audience was so grand and I am so grateful."

Cameramen wanted pose after pose. Gloria obliged, more than a little heady with the magic still fresh even to one who has known such riches.

She spoke in gusts of emotion: "Everyone has been so kind and helpful. A marvelous experience. . . What else can I say?"

In the play Gloria is an aloof princess of a kingdom belonging to that faraway world of Hapsburg and Bourbons. If her performance was more a brave silhouette than a three-dimensional characterization, the audience charitably concluded that's usually what you see in a princess.

Stokowski did not attend. His wife wished to meet the challenge alone—on first night anyway.

Style Standard Set By Creator Starts Popular Shirt-Tale

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Fashion Editor
Anne Fogarty, perennial teen ager, once fell in love with a shirt—and thereby hangs a shirt-tale.

The platinum blonde Anne, who wears her own size 7 junior dresses, also loved petticoats, and so she decided to effect a union of the two. The result has been a new way of dressing for most of America's style-conscious girls.

The shirt dress with crisp, full skirt flaring out over several ruffled crinoline petticoats, is the favorite costume of the nation's younger set, and a special signature of designer Fogarty. This year the popularity of her favorite pet outfit has broken all past records.

Any girl between the ages of 14 and 21 who doesn't own a collection of man-tailored shirts and can-can petticoats considers herself underprivileged indeed these days.

Another factor was a basic disagreement over tariffs reported between Hoover, on the one hand, and Eisenhower and Dulles.

The president and the secretary have said that tariffs should not be allowed to hamper the flow of imports from trade-hungry nations lest those countries be forced to turn to the Soviet bloc to sell their goods. Hoover was understood to have felt duties should be high enough to reflect the difference between wage rates paid American workers and those paid foreign workers producing the same articles.

HIS APPOINTMENT CAUGHT many off guard. As recently as last weekend—and for months before that—he had been saying he would not accept the position.

The under secretary's job involves a lot of paperwork, among other things, and associates said Hoover had a typical engineer's dislike for desk work.

Another factor was a basic disagreement over tariffs reported between Hoover, on the one hand, and Eisenhower and Dulles.

The president and the secretary have said that tariffs should not be allowed to hamper the flow of imports from trade-hungry nations lest those countries be forced to turn to the Soviet bloc to sell their goods. Hoover was understood to have felt duties should be high enough to reflect the difference between wage rates paid American workers and those paid foreign workers producing the same articles.

THE TALL AND QUIETLY affable Hoover was born in London in 1903. He is a 1925 graduate of Stanford and took his master's degree at Harvard in 1928. He has served for years as a special consultant to such oil-rich countries as Venezuela and Iran.

Smith became a private in the Indiana National Guard. He was then 15. In World War II, as a general, he served as chief of staff to Eisenhower.

He went to the state department in 1953 after heading the Central Intelligence Agency.

He is going to be an executive vice president of American Machine Foundry Co.

Helps Improve Business

WE HAVE OFTEN argued that hiring domestic help—local help—to work on the farms will mean more business to local business people and the merchants.

Earnings of farm labor represent a part of the overall wages in any community. It is the spending of these wages which bring about prosperity and good business.

The recent campaigns carried on by the Border patrolmen in returning the "wetbacks," Mexican nationals in the country illegally, back to Mexico resulted in more domestic help being employed in a good many sections along the border.

In one community where a good many of these "wetbacks" were picked up and sent back to Mexico the domestic help went to work on the farms. One store in that community reported an increase of $1,500 in business over the period of two weeks.

That is a considerable increase in business for a small store to enjoy over a two-week period.

It is true that the Mexican Nationals do buy some merchandise in our country. They spend money but they definitely do not spend as much money as those individuals who live in our counties or our community and who work on the farms.

One of the reasons for the farmers needing Mexican Nationals has been their inability to secure domestic help. This was especially true during the war period.

And it continued to be true during periods when workers could earn more money and when they were not interested in accepting farm work.

It was also true that the farmers are able to fire the Mexican labor at a less figure than they could domestic help but other expenses in connection with securing and keeping these workers probably made the cost as high or a little higher.

But jobs are not as plentiful as they were at one time. There is more local or domestic help available today for farm work than there has been in some years in the past.

We feel sure that the farmers are anxious to hire and to employ local labor when everything is equal when this can be done and when they can secure employees they can count and depend on to report for work and to do their job. When that occurs it means more business in the local community.

Marciano Slates Easy Warm-Up For Next Fight

GROSSINGER, N. Y. (AP)—Rocky Marciano figures the 15 rounds he boxed against Ezzard Charles June 17 did him more good than 200 rounds in training camp. Consequently, the heavyweight champ will warm up for the Sept. 15 rematch with "only" 100 rounds of gym work.

"I know it's not practical for the champ to fight more than once or twice a year," he said. "But I felt the best when I was going steady every month or so, like 1951 when I boxed seven times."

Apparently Manager Al Weill, and trainer Charley Goldman expect Charles, the ex-champ, to sprint 15 rounds in his third bid to win back the title he lost to Jersey Joe Walcott. They have brought in Joe Gannon a fast-stepping Washington, D. C., boy for Rocky to chase.

Already down to 191 pounds, the champ still works about four hours a day. He goes on the road in the morning and boxes five days a week.

According to Goldman, the champ is working on his old payoff punch—the right hand. He concentrated on the left hand in his prefight work for the first Charles fight. Maybe he worked too much with the left. In any event, he is out for the knockout this time and the right hand is the KO weapon that flattened Walcott twice.

Angling Problems With Hooks, Gals Sometimes Alike

By DON HENDERSON AP Newsfeatures

The angler might as well face it: fish hooks are something like women, under various circumstances you can be stuck with them on them and without them.

And a real sharp observation like that should serve as a reminder that hooks kept the same way—maybe even sharper—would reduce considerably the crop of stories about "the big one that got away."

The fact that we may be losing fish because our hooks aren't sharp enough to do their proper work simply never occurs to most of us. Those hooks, as most of us find out sooner or later, are plenty sharp enough to stab the unwary finger.

But tender finger and a fish's bony jaw are two different things. And dull hooks are as common with veterans as among neophytes.

In the first place, most hooks—particularly those on casting lures, aren't really sharp when you buy them. Maybe they were when they left the factory, but jostling around on the way, and bouncing on counters has left them lacking that important point.

Here's a test for you: Pick up a standard 5/8 ounce lure by one of its gang hooks. If the points don't sink in a mite just with the weight of the plug, they aren't sharp enough.

The remedy is simple. Invest a quarter in one of those small pocket hones and leave it in your tackle box. Whenever you put a new lure in the box, or take one out after it's rested a while, use the hone gently on each hook. Hone on the inside of the bend, from the bars to the point.

Don't worry about the barb if it gets a chance. It'll hold your lunger, if it gets a chance.

And don't make a grand sweep through your lures just once, then forget about it. Most hooks will rust themselves dull in a few days, even in fresh water, and if lures are rattling around in your gear they'll show the effects of jouncing after only a short trip.

Try it next time out. It won't really be magic, it will just seem that way.

Artesia Businessmen Warned On Business Broker Fraud

Businessmen, especially small businessmen, are warned by Paul Scott, manager of the Artesia Chamber of Commerce, to do some careful investigating before entrusting the sale of their businesses and business property to business brokers of whom they have little or no knowledge.

A report from the National Better Business Bureau, with which the chamber is affiliated in its community protection program, points out that there is a minority of alleged business brokers interested primarily in collecting advance fees, with little or no interest in consummating sales.

"The advance fee racket," Scott stated, "seems to have become a specialty with concerns operating over a wide area, employing many salesmen to secure advance payments on one pretext or another. Some of these 'brokers' aren't even licensed and only advertise businesses for sale. The salesman may indicate otherwise, but just read the contracts."

Salesmen, the chamber manager emphasized, make oral agreements, such as a promise of a refund of the advance fee if no sale results in 90 days, for which there is no provision in the written contract.

Quoting the advice of the National Better Business Bureau, Scott suggested that anyone wishing to place his business on the market, investigate the reliability of the broker; verify through the investigation that extent to which he has successfully performed; such proffered service for others; and read and understand the contractual agreement before signing.

For, although business brokers serve vital function in our economy, there is a minority of unscrupulous men in this field sharp enough to fool even experienced business people.

Ike Favored Jones in Deal, Mitchell Says

CHICAGO (AP)—The Democratic national chairman says President Eisenhower personally ordered the award of a contract to a syndicate in which one of the President's "closest friends" has an interest.

Stephen A. Mitchell, in a debate yesterday with Republican national chairman Leonard W. Hall, asserted the president issued a personal order on awarding the contract to supply electricity to an atomic installation despite protests of both the atomic energy commission and the TVA, and without competitive bidding.

Hall in his turn in the debate said he believed "that the American people will rise up and condemn such an unwarranted attack."

In Washington James C. Hagerly, White House press secretary, said he had no comment on Mitchell's allegation.

Mitchell, in the debate before a section of the American Bar Association's annual meeting, said the Senate subcommittee on monopoly asked for funds to investigate the situation but that "the Republican leadership through Sen. Jenner

EL PASOANS WIN BROOKLINE, Mass.

Margaret Varner and Ethel Horton both of El Paso, Tex., defeated Virginal Johnson, New Haven, Conn., and Belmar Gunderson, Bethesda, Md., 6-0, 6-1, in the first round of women's doubles matches of the National Doubles Tennis Championships at Longwood Cricket Club yesterday.

(R-Ind.) bolted up the request so they can't get a dime."

"Here is something that really needs investigating," he said.

He later emphasized to newsmen that his remarks on the need for an investigation did not directly refer to the president's alleged role in the incident.

He said the contract involved was for providing electrical power for the atomic energy plant at Paducah, Ky., and was 90 million dollars higher than that offered by a rival syndicate and was 140 million dollars more than the TVA would require to supply the power.

He did not mention the name of the person he described as one of the president's "closest friends" but his office said later he referred to golfer Bobby Jones.

The U. S. government is disturbed, according to reports, about statements by Hayato Ikeda (above), Japan's Liberal party secretary-general, that "complete failure" of U. ## Choosing Heating Equipment Now Means Prompt Service

There's just one thing you can do about the weather besides talk about it, and that's to get ready for it.

Getting ready for an Artesia winter may mean different things to different people. To Mother, it may mean shopping for a new winter coat; to Dad, oiling up his hunting equipment and to the children, speculating about new teachers and schoolmates. One thing for sure, if you're a homemaker, getting ready for winter means checking on needed heating equipment for your home.

If you choose gas heating equipment now, you will enjoy definite advantages this month. For instance, foremost in importance is prompt installation service. Secondly—and almost as important to you—is the fact that you have time to shop around for the particular gas heating appliance that's best for your home. Gas heating appliances assure you of constant warmth, cleanliness and cold weather comfort that you're entitled to.

When shopping for gas heating equipment, look for the American Gas Association's registered blue approval seal. This means that units bearing this seal have successfully complied with the gas industry approval tests and performance standards. Basic models of more than 95 per cent of all gas equipment sold in the United States have been tested by the AGA laboratories for safe operation, durable construction and satisfactory performance. Later appliances, of the same model tested, are checked by the laboratories periodically. Dealers who carry AGA approved gas appliances will be happy to show you the seal.

A wide variety of makes and models are available to satisfy your particular needs. Ask the salesman about different types of gas heating equipment and the recommended ones for this climate. Of course, many decisions are a matter of personal taste and the budget of the customer. But the salesman can brief you on the advantages of each type, including central heating units, room heaters, wall heaters, circulating heaters and all-year air conditioners.

Jotting down the size and general shape of the room in your house to be heated before your visit to the salesman will be a big help to you and to him. He can better advise you in selecting the right size to insure adequate heat for the coldest days next winter. If you prefer, the salesman will visit your home to check the areas in the house to be heated. This is a particularly good idea if you have several rooms to be heated or have special heating needs.

The salesman will make a drawing of the floor plan of your house indicating the dimensions of the rooms, the number of windows and doors, the amount of insulation, whether or not you have an attic and even the amount of heat required, thus the size of the heating unit. If your house heating needs are unusual, he may call on the services of Southern Union Gas Company's heating engineer.

When it comes to installation, be sure that your gas heating equipment is installed by a competent serviceman. Such a serviceman will see that you gas heating equipment is properly vented and adjusted for even distribution of heat. After installation is completed, operation and care of the appliance will be explained.

Thus you have made an investment for many years of comfort. At the first sign of nippy weather, you can sit back, turn a valve and let your gas heating appliances keep you warm and comfortable. Don't be among those who rush out in the cold to buy their gas heating appliances.

Stalcup advised parents to park on the north side of the building and go around the east end to the door.

Malone Farm Is Identified in Mystery Series

The distinctive features of the E. P. Malone farm of Cottonwood led Artesia Advocate readers to its correct identification in the weekly series of mystery farm pictures published Tuesday.

H. B. Pickard, 815 S. Third, was the first to correctly identify the farm when he telephoned at 3:50 p. m. yesterday, although other calls, all with incorrect guesses, preceded his.

Harvey Jones called three minutes later with a correct identification. Miss Francis Solgado was the next correct guesser. Other correct guessers were:

R. L. Vogel, F. O. Ashton, W. L. Webb, Mrs. Bob Gates, Miss Marian Riley, W. F. Whately of Lake Arthur, Joe Orosco and Mike McGowan.

Little League's Top Teams Meet In Play-Offs

Russell Appliance and Clem Appliance lock horns today in the first of a two-or three-game series to determine the winner of Little League baseball this summer.

Both teams, members of the National circuit, put out their first round opponents from the American loop, CVE and Guy Chevrolet.

They finished first and second in their end of play and observers predict close games and the series to probably go the full three games before the winner is determined.

The game will start about five o'clock.

Bill to Stop—

The bill as passed also retains authority of Secretary of Agriculture Benson to hold supports for butter, cheese, milk and dairy products at the reduced level of 75 per cent of parity.

Also approved with little dispute was the administration proposal to set aside 2 1/2 billion dollars worth of farm surpluses for foreign or domestic relief, barter and other outlets.

disunity." Canon O. S. Tomkins of the Church of England mentioned differences over such things as a definition of unity, but said: "It may be that, by every standard of human achievement, the unity of the church is an impossible task and to think of it is an idle dream. But we are not limited to human achievements. Christ has made us His own—and He is not divided."

The Rev. Georges Florovsky, New York City, of the Russian Orthodox Catholic Church said: "The very sting of Christian tragedy is in the fact that, in the concrete setting of history, many divisions have been imposed, as it were, precisely by loyalty to Christ and by a sincere zeal for the true faith."

The Rev. V. E. Devadutt, president of the Baptist Union of India, made this comment: "A church that lives out of communion with another church is taking upon itself a dreadful responsibility for it is saying in effect to its sister church: 'You are not founded on Christ.'"

The World Council itself does not arrange mergers of denominations but it seeks to bring about the understanding that may lead to consolidations among them.

Monthly Oil, Gas Sale Is One Of Year's Lowest

SANTA FE — The state's monthly sale of oil and gas leases, apparently one of the smallest of the year, netted $381,508, the land office announced today.

Thirty-nine tracts were offered at sealed bids and 11 in oral bidding. No bids were received on six of the northwestern New Mexico tracts offered in sealed bidding.

Best price per acre was the Ohio Co.'s $252.20, or a total of $50,440 on 200 acres in T19S-R38E, in the Hobbs area. In the oral bids, Sinclair Oil and Gas led the way, bidding $56.17 an acre or $18,000 for 320 acres in T16S-R32E near Maljamar.

In the bidding on San Juan basin acreage, the best per acre price was Stanolind's $43 or $6,880 on 160 acres in T31S-R12W, north of Flora Vista.

GOP Attacks—

CUSACK SAID another change is that Republicans now treat the liquor industry as "just another segment of business with no forced contributions."

Turning to legislation, Cusack said the Republican platform is a stronger and more forceful one than the Democratic platform. He said the Democratic platform deals in "mere generalities."

Cusack said the Republican House in 1953 passed bills for re-registration and the death of the pre-primary which he said were killed by the Democratic Senate.

Farmers Union—

bers will consume most of the plant output, Huff said. "We have drilled about 75 cores in the Carlsbad area," Huff said, "most of which have shown a very substantial amount of potash."

Potash companies in the Carlsbad area have indicated the market for domestically produced potash is declining, due to increase in imports. The Carlsbad area is the only source of domestic potash in the U.S.

A visit by Farmers Union delegation here last year occasioned another civic tiff between Carlsbad and Artesia.

THE DELEGATION was rebuffed by Carlsbad's Chamber of Commerce because Farmers Union is a cooperative. When the rebuff was received, Farmers Union instead flew officials, headed by Huff, Patton and Sen. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma, into Artesia.

Here the delegation was met by a large local delegation and feted at the Artesia Country club by business leaders.

Farmers Union later published in its national magazine a story headlined "Artesia battling 1,000 Carlsbad Nothing in Hospitality," and detailed the pleasant reception accorded here.

Chester Marsh, then president of the Carlsbad chamber, resigned shortly thereafter over the incident.

Emmons Praises Congress for Aid Granted Indians

ALBUQUERQUE — Indian Commissioner Glenn Emmons says he's pleased with Congress for the cooperation his bureau got this session.

He was notified here yesterday upon arriving from Gallup that his last three million dollar appropriation request had been approved.

The money is to help towns on the fringe of reservations prepare additional school facilities to absorb Indian students.

"Every single request of the Indian service for an appropriation was granted," Emmons said. "That is very unusual."

He had special praise for the budget bureau and both houses of Congress for approving his program to place all Navajo children in school in the next two years "even though they didn't believe we could do it. But we're doing it. Latest word is that we will have 8,000 new Navajo students in school this fall instead of the 7,000 we had planned."

Senate McCarthy Probers to Delay Public Hearings

WASHINGTON — Sen. Watkins (R-Utah) said today the special Senate committee to investigate charges against Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) may have to postpone for a few days the scheduled Aug. 30 start of its public hearings.

Watkins, head of the committee, made the statement at a news conference held in connection with former Republican Congressman E. Wallace Chadwick's taking on the job of counsel to the group.

Chadwick, a Chester, Pa., lawyer, pledged to do "an impartial, objective job."

Watkins also said he had been advised that McCarthy's defense counsel, Washington lawyer Edward Bennett Williams, had refused to accept as a fee any part of a $10,000 fund the committee had set aside from its own money to provide McCarthy with counsel.

Williams had announced last night he considered it would be "improper" for him to accept money from the committee.

State Gets 500 Unemployment Aid Miner Requests

ALBUQUERQUE — The state employment service says about 500 employees of the Chino Mines Division of Kennecott Copper Corp. in Grant county have filed for unemployment compensation.

Max Salazar of the agency said those who had filed claims are employees who are not members of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers.

Mine-Mill went into the third day of its strike today after negotiations for a new contract collapsed.

Salazar said a special employment office was set up in Bayard, and about 700 workers are expected to file claims.

Salazar said members of the striking union are ineligible for unemployment compensation.

Switching Beds Saves Life of California Boy

WILMINGTON, Calif. — George Wise Jr., 10, fell asleep while reading in a back bedroom, and his mother decided not to move him to his own room.

Court Refuses To Let Actress Plea on Charges

LOS ANGELES — Superior Court yesterday refused to permit Lynn Baggett, former actress, to plead guilty to a hit-run driving charge filed after an auto collision in which a child was killed.

Judge Clement D. Nye continued the matter until Oct. 11, when Miss Baggett, estranged wife of producer E. Wallace Chadwick, will go on trial on a felony manslaughter charge involving the same death. Joel Watnick, 10, was fatally hurt in the accident.

Chadwick, a Chester, Pa., lawyer, pledged to do "an impartial, objective job."
