Meeting on 285 Rebuilding Asked

In an effort to rebuild Highway 285 between Artesia and Roswell, Eddy county commissioners will meet with Chaves county commissioners Nov. 22 to discuss the proposal. Eddy county commissioner chairman E. O. Spurlin wrote a letter to the Chaves county commissioners stating: "We would like to arrange a meeting with your board Nov. 22 to discuss the possibility of our two counties getting together and making plans to request the state highway commission to complete the rebuilding of High 285 from Carlsbad north to Roswell."

"According to all reports of the traffic counts that have been made on this road, it should rank among the top roads in the state for completion."

Stockton Says Real Issue 'Honesty'

ALBUQUERQUE (AP)—The Republican choice for governor insists that the main issue in his race is honesty and efficiency in government.

In an election-eve interview, Alvin Stockton of Raton said that "regardless of personalities, a repudiation of the Mechem administration by the election of a Democrat would be a mortal blow to reform government in New Mexico."

Stockton is seeking to succeed Republican Edwin Mechem as governor. His Democratic foe is John Simms Jr. The Raton rancher also said: "He sees no need for new taxes in New Mexico."

He would like to see state purchasing done on a low bid basis; He will continue, if elected, the small loans cleanup inaugurated by the present administration; He will do everything possible to keep the State Police force at an adequate strength with available revenues.

The candidate told newsmen that he has made no commitments on any state jobs but would appoint "strictly on qualifications."

Stockton recalled that he has told voters of the state he anticipates more federal construction and that he is interested in seeing New Mexico participate to the fullest extent. He said he has not cited any specific figures in discussing highway construction for the future.

He gave strong support to the present administration of the state penitentiary and said it has had a longer period of freedom from major uprisings than in the past. He also said that he was not expressing an opinion concerning the work of the present warden, Morris Abram.

Merchants Asked Not to Open Stores Until 9

Artesia merchants have been asked by the retail committee to remain closed tomorrow morning until 9 a. m. so employees can vote in the election.

Chairman Bert Jones said this morning most merchants were co-operating with the committee and have made plans to vote themselves during the first hour of the day.

Congressional Control Race 'Very Close'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Control of Congress appeared to be hanging in a narrow balance today as President Eisenhower and Adlai E. Stevenson prepared to wind up a blistering campaign with appeals for the voters to turn out in force tomorrow.

Republicans were regarded nationally as fighting an uphill battle to retain their present slender control of the Senate and House, won two years ago. Democrats jubilantly were claiming they would sweep both into their camp and take over up to half a dozen GOP governor ships.

But there remained an air of uncertainty, generated by disputes (Continued on Page 6.)

Committee to Ask Police Help on Easing Parking

A committee has been picked from the retail sales committee to go before Police Chief Frank Powell and members of the city council police commission in an attempt to find better parking regulations.

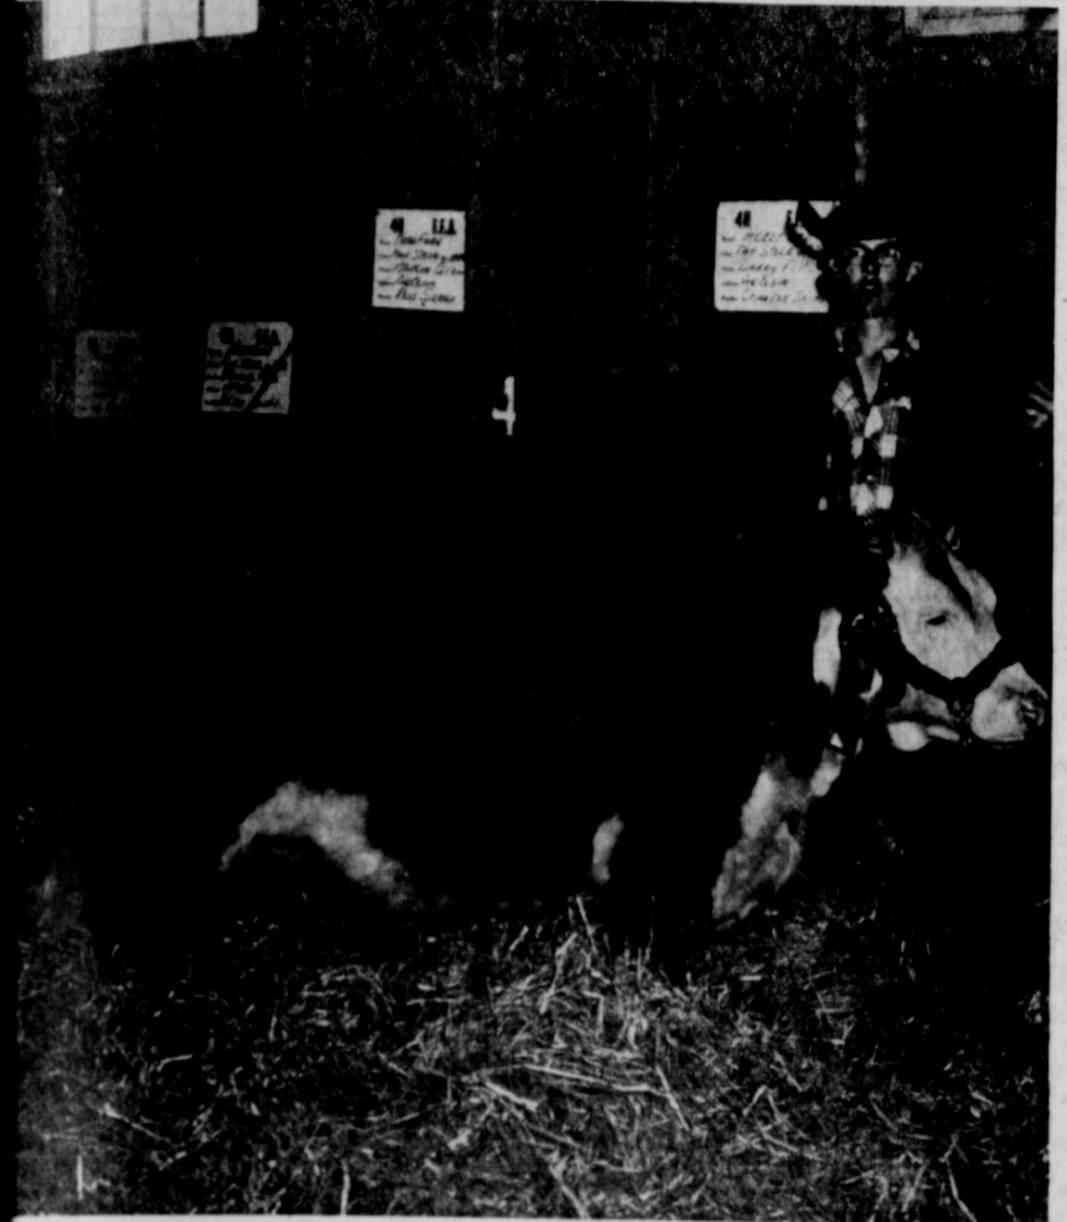

According to Bert Jones, chairman of the retail sales committee, members pointed out Friday in their regular meeting that the ticket problem for out-of-town shoppers coming to Artesia on Saturdays has now become a major threat to Artesia merchants.

Members of the committee said many people were going to other towns in the valley to avoid the "harsh" parking treatment they have received in Artesia. Jones said the special committee will probably meet with the city officials in the very near future.

Police Report Halloween Pranks Few, Damage Light

Halloween pranks were few and far between in Artesia this week-end, according to Chief Frank Powell, who said this morning no serious property damage has been reported so far.

City Supervisor Doug Fowler said about the biggest and most frequent prank was turning on fire hydrants. Fowler and city employees turned four off Saturday night, while the fire department was called to turn one off. Fowler said this morning it was far easier to turn the hydrants on than off.

Powell said pranksters had moved a "spare building" right against the alley side of the police station, "perhaps in an effort to enlarge the jail in the event we needed more room."

Artesia merchants were busy cleaning their windows which had become the prime targets for many bars of soap Saturday night. Fowler said he sent the city truck through the alleys in town today, for a clean-up job as a result of pranksters pulling debris into the alley.

The big fun, according to parents came Saturday night when the smaller children became goblins for a few hours to haunt the neighborhood in quest for candy. One mother, however, reported to police that some citizens were running the small children off.

But still, Powell said, Halloween this year turned out to be a "very successful event."

Politicians Make Final Pleas In Pre-Election Campaigning

Republicans Are Confident Of Win Tuesday

SANTA FE (AP)—Republican candidates moved back to Albuquerque today for a final bid for Bernalillo county votes after hearing their party leaders attack Democrats as "reactionaries" and express confidence in a GOP victory.

The Republicans were at a cheering Santa Fe rally last night, one block away from a Democratic rally of top party leaders aimed at getting votes in the capital city.

Speaking at the GOP Santa Fe rally were Alvin Stockton, candidate for governor; Charles Battiste, candidate for lieutenant governor; Armando Larragoite Jr., former Santa Fe city Democratic chairman, who said he was backing the GOP; M. B. Johns, Republican state chairman; Bert Prince, candidate for district judge; Ward Curtis, candidate for school superintendent. (Continued on Page 6.)

Write-Ins Easy On Vote Machines

SANTA FE (AP)—Here's how to make a write-in vote on voting machines: On every voting machine, a secretary of state bulletin read, there is a slide-up cover just above each office. Voters push up the cover, and write on the roll of paper when the name of their candidate. When the next voter opens the curtain, the roll automatically advances out of sight.

Write in votes are acceptable for all offices, including justice of the peace. This is true only in a general election and not in primaries.

Among the speakers at the Democratic get-together were John F. Simms, gubernatorial candidate; Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, seeking re-election; Rep. John J. Dempsey, also seeking re-election; and Sen. To Every Republican Voter! To Every Democratic Voter! To Every Independent Voter! THIS MEANS YOU!

We elected "Ike" Eisenhower to the Presidency of the United States by a stupendous majority of the voters only a short time ago!

The people did not vote for "Ike" because he was a Republican, for few knew or cared what his politics had been in the past. The Democratic Party also had been clamoring for his acceptance of their nomination.

The people voted for "Ike", the man — believing that he would clean up the mess in Washington, — that he would cut spending and taxes, — that he would bring our boys home from Korea — and that he would do his best to bring about peace to a troubled world.

He is now in the White House, working tooth and nail for measures that will benefit all of us — you and me.

It is imperative that a Republican President have a Republican Congress in order to function properly. Let's give "Ike" a helping hand and assurance of our confidence by electing a Republican Congress that will work hand-in-hand with him for the benefit of all our people.

Girl Scouts In Troop 23 Hold Campout

An all-day camp-out was enjoyed by 12 members of Girl Scout troop 23 Thursday.

The girls, their leaders, Mrs. Howard Lewis and Mrs. Paul Francis, and Bobbie Jo Hanson, senior Scout, left from the Baptist church early Thursday morning, to go to the R. C. Garner farm, southeast of town.

Upon arrival the girls broke in to two units and selected their camp site. After cleaning the camping area they made hand washing facilities and drains. The use and care of the knife, hatchet and axe were learned as they gathered the wood and arranged the wood pile.

One unit used the trench fire, while the other used a basic A type.

On the menu for dinner was hot biscuits, potatoes, carrots, meat and onions cooked in foil. For dessert they had butter and preserves on biscuits. A nature centerpiece was placed in the center of the dining area, with both units gathering around to sing "The Wayfarers' Grace."

After dinner both units had compass course and trail blazing. The girls ran races and played.

For an afternoon snack they had banana boats with Cokes. Camp was cleared and closed at 3:45 p. m.

The girls taking part in the activities were Margaret Geiser, Susie Stryjewski, Lois Solga, Ann Francis, Helen Hardin, Jane Torrez, Carol Jane Wilson, Judy Dignum, Dora Baldanada, Annetta Mayes, Charlotte Bunch, and Barbara Garner.

Those unable to attend were Carol Anderson, Roberta Reeves, and Marcia Kenrick.

Troop 23 is sponsored by the Altrusa club.

Those Who Do Their Yule Shopping Early Miss Fun

By CYNTHIA LOWRY AP Newsfeature Writer

We haven't even started to save stale bread for the Thanksgiving turkey stuffing yet, but the Christmas shopping promotions have long since been started.

There used to be, I suspect, some kind of gentleman's agreement between merchants and customers which permitted the woman shopper to get her Thanksgiving problems behind her before she was confronted with the jingle bell tasks. Those days, apparently are gone forever.

Lots of people were still on their summer vacations when one local stationery store rigged up a Yuletide window display exhorting passersby to get our Christmas cards ordered early, while there was still a full selection.

I was cutting a bouquet in an August garden when an enterprising neighborhood businessman, aged 9, gave me a sharp salespitch on ordering my Christmas gift wrappings and ribbons while there was still time.

On a warm, bright Indian summer's day, a television salesman was suggesting I start buying electric shavers for the lucky men on my Christmas shopping list.

Personal Mention

Mr. and Mrs. R. F. McQuay and son, Buddy, attended the presentation of "Swanee" in Portales Friday evening. Their son and brother, Bob, who is attending Eastern New Mexico university, played two solo tenor saxophone selections.

And now, before the storm winds are up or the fur jacket out of cold storage, one of my favorite magazines is on the stands with a whole issue devoted to gift suggestions, pictures of Christmas-party clothes and recipes for egg-nogs.

At the risk of sounding stuffy and old-fashioned, I would like to say that I balk at the idea of Christmas shopping when the weather is warm, the streets free of slush and you don't have to battle your way to a counter. It is against all the traditions.

As a veteran of the Christmas wars, it seems to me that the period between Thanksgiving and Christmas should be spent feeling frantic, overwhelmed with chores and fighting the crowds every step of the way. One of the special pleasures of Christmas is waking up on that holiday morning and knowing that shopping is one job out of the way for about 11 months.

Others apparently feel differently about it. The magazine referred to above for instance obviously believes that Christmas-shopping is a project which requires the planning involved in a military campaign. It advocates a thing called "arm-chair shopping" for before-handled souls who merely slip through the pages of their favorite newspapers and other publications, rip out advertisements which answer the problems of getting "something" for Aunt Gladys, and conclude the transaction by telephone or mail.

"Knock the hysteria out of Christmas planning," its advocates say. "Then some blue-and-white day, bright-eyed and unharried, you can go shopping once anyway for the Christmas fun of it." Me, I'm sticking to the old way. First comes Thanksgiving, then the list-making and finally with the deadline hours away, the last-minute plunge into the fray. Maybe people won't like what I give them, but it's the spirit of the gift that counts, isn't it?

Artesia-Carlsbad Game Headlines AA Football Contests This Week, Roswell Plays Los Alamos

By ROBERT GREEN
The Associated Press
New Mexico's Class AA high school teams hope to put the football back on the field Friday. Conferences and committee meetings produced most of the action last week.

Many of the big school teams were idle last week—but out of a weekend meeting in Albuquerque came the suspension of Clovis and an impending transfer of St. Mary to Class A status.

The New Mexico High School Activities Assn., ruling body for state schoolboy athletics, suspended Clovis for the rest of the season on a charge of playing an ineligible player. And St. Mary petitioned for—and was granted—permission to drop the Class A at the end of this season.

While all this was going on—only two district games, both in IAA, were played. In those, Highland got more firm hold on first place and Albuquerque took over third place.

This week, however, there are no committee meetings scheduled and the teams, particularly on the East Side, settle down to the serious business of playing football.

Heading the slate this week is the District 2AA meeting of Carlsbad and Artesia, two of the three big powers on the East Side.

Neither team has been beaten in New Mexico, but each has taken a loss from Texas crews. Each has a 6-1 overall record and 1-0 in the district.

Their match is rated about a tossup in most circles. Each boasts a good line and smart generalship, though Carlsbad may have the edge in power, and Artesia could be faster.

Both have beaten Albuquerque. Carlsbad did it 26-6, while Artesia got a 13-0 nod. Artesia took a 12-0 victory over Clovis, though that was immediately following the ineligible player incident. Clovis had beaten Carlsbad 20-7, then forfeited the game.

One game—slated to be a district attraction—had some changes in principals made when Clovis was suspended. The Wildcats were due to furnish the opposition for Roswell's homecoming.

Now, however, the unbeaten defending champs will take on Class A Los Alamos.

Surprising St. Mary, grimly holding on to second place in the IAA standings, has a stiff challenge thrown its way by Santa Fe this week.

The only other district game, also in IAA, is a cross-town affair between Albuquerque and Lowly Valley.

An inter-sectional meeting pits Winslow Hobbs, sitting in last place in 2AA, against Las Cruces, which holds the same woeful spot in IAA.

Farmington goes down to Class A competition against Gallup in the only other game to be played involving a team from the big schools' conference.

Everybody But Opponents Has Respect for Top Ten Teams

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press
There's a great deal of prestige connected with being listed among the nation's top 10 teams in college football, but the only squads who regard you with respect are the ones you've already licked.

Look what happened last weekend: West Virginia, ranked No. 7 was dumped off its unbeaten streak by Pittsburgh, admittedly an improving team, but one that had lost three of five.

Wisconsin, listed No. 8 with a 4-1 record, was socked by Iowa, an ex-top 10er with a 3-2 record, 13-7.

Oklahoma, No. 2, had to scramble to beat Colorado 13-6. The Buffs, with a 4-2 record, had been pointing for the Sooners since last season and managed to hold to a 6-0 lead into the final period.

Arkansas, No. 4, had plenty of notice. Texas A&M was out for an upset and had to scrap for a 14-7 victory, with both TDs set up by Aggie fumbles.

Ohio State, Army and Arkansas would appear to have drawn the toughest among those not listed in the top 10.

The Buckeyes (6-0) meet Pitt, an outfit that has won three in a row after dropping its first three games.

Army next opposes Yale, a 5-1-0 team that insists the Cadets, with their 5-1 record, aren't the best in the East.

Still unbeaten Arkansas (6-0) has another of its weekly "tests" ahead in Rice. The Razorbacks have the upper hand in the South-west conference and presumably in the race for the Cotton bowl, but Rice's Dick Moegle looks to be the best back they've faced.

An embarrassing weekend might also be in store for Purdue. The No. 9 team, which handled Illinois with ease, 28-14, last Saturday. The Boiler-makers face Iowa, apparently now turned spoiler after being knocked out of the Big Ten race.

Oklahoma (6-0) and Notre Dame (4-1) should have easier times this weekend. The Sooners meet Iowa State (3-4) and the Irish play Penn (0-6).

Boosters Slate Banquet To Build Bulldog Pep

By EVAN MAHANEY

DO NOT MISS it department: Big rally tonight (nonpolitical) at the high school cafeteria where members of the Quarterback club, Parents Boosters will get together for a meal and a yell.

Object of the meet is to "help get the boys up" for the Carlsbad game next Friday. On tap at the big feast are the cheerleaders, who will give a demonstration of school spirit and youthful acrobatics—all at the same time.

Once again the quarterbacks are going to have a "pain the windows" campaign, such as we had against the Clovis Wildcats (bless their tortured hides) three weeks ago. Chances are you don't remember the campaign too well, since right after and during the painting of the windows, there came a little rain down Eagle Draw—kinda slowed things down for a couple of days.

Nevertheless, without interference from nature, the campaign can do much to boost the team and the town, especially for an out-of-town game like the upcoming event. Prediction: Carlsbad will be invaded unlike any invasion now in the annals of history!

REASON BEING — only 471 tickets are available for Artesians, or the equivalent of one full section. According to Calloway Taulbee, Carlsbad sent 471 tickets to the administration, which will go on sale Wednesday night at the high school under the old rule of "first come first served." Plans now call for the sale to last a couple of hours, but judging from the amount of phone calls we've received from faithful football fans wanting to know about the ticket sale, the window will need to be open only about one hour before a sell-out occurs.

Also slated to be at the Carlsbad game is the hand and the pep squad, which will be provided the necessary seats. There was still some question in the mind of Taulbee as to whether his students' activity tickets would be recognized by the Carlsbad officials.

But regardless of the recognition, there will be many a high schooler rooting at Carlsbad Friday night—showing the Cave City what real school spirit is.

JUST A WORD on the national football scene. We see where the Buffs from Colorado gave the Oakes a real battle for their time, with the Sooners having to come from behind in the waning minutes of play to bring the situation back under control. That game was football at its best.

Otherwise, even the great sports writers of the nation are pulling their hair out as a result of weekend upsets, which have plagued their heretofore faithful ouiji boards. Now, we hear via the sportswire, some of the "pros" are going to return to flipping a coin for their weekly predictions.

Pro Golfers Seek To Discover Top Professional

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

Another sports poll is in the works. This time the Professional Golfers' Assn. of America has sent out ballots for "Outstanding professional of the year."

Club pros and many amateur golfers seem to agree that Ed Furgol, the 37-year-old Utica, N. Y., veteran who won the U. S. Open, will get the honor without any trouble.

The writer cast his ballot for Furgol.

After "outstanding part of his game," we filled in the spaces with "Able to score well despite handicap of withered left arm."

The deformed arm, the result of a playground parallel bar accident, prevented Furgol from becoming a pro until June 1, 1945 when at the age of 28 he decided to give the pros a tussle.

But it was not until almost nine years later in the 1954 Phoenix Open that Furgol was to turn in his first victory as a pro. He beat Dr. Cary Middlecoff in a playoff for $2,000 top money.

Four months later he had "the big one," the U. S. Open. This has been noted on the ballot as "his outstanding single achievement."

On the ballot there's a spot which says "other comments." After this we noted "Has fine personality."

There is no ballot for second and third best. Had there been, the names of Bob Toski, top money winner of the year, and Gene Littler, 1953 amateur champion who lost to Furgol by a stroke in the Open, would have received consideration.

THE REAL STATE ISSUE
The Mechem administration, perhaps, has not been one of any scintillating brilliance. It has not been an administration of prodigies or supermen.
But it has been a sound, methodical, rugged, sincere and conscientious administration. It has been an honest administration. Its basic integrity has never been challenged.
It has not been a shouting, boisterous, showmanship government. It has performed in a simple, orderly, well behaved and dignified manner.
It has been an administration never marred or blackened with any form of kickbacks or pernicious political activity.
All of which makes clear the issue in the current state campaign. The issue is so clear, so simplified, so obvious that there has been a tendency to overlook the fundamentals of the situation and go off on irrelevant intangibles.
The Republicans, with the Mechem administration as their chief asset, have been too nice. They have so far failed to "cash in" on that magnificent issue that is theirs.
It is the issue of good government vs. bad government.
The Republicans have been hammering away too much on intricate, dull, non-appealing and innocuous issues such as who killed the state Economic Development Commission while right at their command and right under their very noses is the simple issue of good government that, ablaze with the fury of a crusader, fairly leaps out to demand the recognition in this campaign that it deserves.
The issue is wrapped up in the one question: Do you want to turn this state government back to the selfish pie-counter eating politicians who gave this state not only mediocre government

Civil Defense Statewide Test Slated

SANTA FE — New Mexico and four neighboring states will be targets of a simulated surprise enemy attack sometime around Dec. 7, the 13th anniversary of the disastrous raid on Pearl Harbor.

Col. John W. Chapman, New Mexico civilian defense director, said plans are to stage the exercise at an undisclosed time between 7 a. m. Dec. 6 and 10 a. m. Dec. 10.

States in the federal civil defense administration region 5 will take part. They are Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana and New Mexico.

The simulated attack is intended to help local civilian defense organizations test their effectiveness. Communities which want to have some type of incident on which they can operate should contact the FFDCA regional office at Denton, Texas, Chapman said, and a special incident within the realm of probability will be prepared for them.

GARDENING'S FUN— Here's How to Arrange Cut Flowers in Charming Way

AP Newsfeatures

Operation Pretty Posie started simply enough—just the announcement that neighbor Jane had taken first prize in flower arranging at the local show.

This sent the Lady of the House off in a cloud of dust, destination library. The concentration the books received made it seem like the week-end before final exams.

Early the next morning the Lady declared herself sufficiently full of "Two To" in both Oriental and Occidental methods.

"F" Day—flower day—went something like this:

Off to the cutting garden armed with pruning shears and a bucket of water. Each flower was carefully selected and plunged up to its neck in cold water. Before the bucket was overcrowded, it was hauled to the garden house and out came another. Four buckets were filled with blooms—and this was just for practice, mind you.

The flowers were permitted to stand for a few hours and harden off—this being a secret of long lasting arrangements.

Five bright red zinnias got the first treatment in a light green pottery container. Three of the zinnias were fully opened but of graduated sizes, the fourth was partly opened, and the fifth in bud. The largest was cut with the shortest stem and placed at the left, with petals over the lip of the container. The next was positioned above and slightly behind the first; the third in similar relation to the second; the bud was the tallest piece; the partly opened bud was positioned in front of and a little below the bud. Two stalks of foliage were added, one to the left of the largest flower and hanging over the container rim, the second to the fill in the grouping. The design was crescent shaped and eye-pleasing. Water was added after the flowers were placed.

It looked good—a three-to-two proportion in height of flowers to a container is a good guide to follow.

Other technical tricks included: crumpled kitchen paper toweling used to make the flowers stay put; all foliage stripped from the stems below the water line, and paper protected wire used (but concealed in foliage) to keep bud and companion flower together and in line.

The basic gimmick, declares the new "experts" is the use of mechanical devices to make flowers and foliage stay put.

These include flower holders of varying sizes to fit containers. The holders can be anchored with modeling clay if the flowers are heavy. Old newspapers crumpled in the container help

Any housewife who has studied the fundamentals of making the most of herself with clothes, make-keep things in place too.

up, hair style, or who has organized color and home furnishings with a working knowledge of color, harmony, scale, balance and design can be at home with flowers too.

"What brought this on all of a sudden, after all these years?" the Lady was asked.

"If Jane can arrange flowers, so can I," was the reply. "Before, I thought you needed a special talent or knack."

Around this house, we believe a little know-how and a lot of work goes a long way. So it dawned that artistic flower arrangements are not beyond the ability of the beginner or any garden variety flower picker. So give it a whirl.

"Why go on sticking flowers in vases when a little art makes so much difference?" asks the Little Woman.

Warrior-Style Is Most Sporting Way of Hunting

AP Newsfeatures

Warrior-style hunting can be fun, especially when you don't have to depend on it to feed the family.

Twenty years ago the bow and arrow was all but forgotten.

Last year, says the National Field Archery Assn., more than 100,000 archers were issued licenses for bow hunting in the 26 states that have recognized the sport so far, and the boom is on.

This renaissance for Robin Hoods apparently follows the growing trend toward hobbies in which the whole family can take part. Most state game officials, in opening more and more liberal opportunities to bow hunters, pitch the proposition at the fun angle.

That, most special seasons are arranged not for the best hunting conditions but for the most pleasant camping, hiking and such.

What you need to take advantage of this splendid new excuse for week-ends in the woods—in addition to regular autumn outing togs—is, obviously, a bow and arrow.

And since while bowhunting you may occasionally come around a bush and stare a deer or bear in the eye, you'd best start with a bow "weighing" 30 pounds or more. Forty is better, and some of the 15 big states have legal minimums. Fifty pounds, however, likely will be too much to draw for a reindeer.

When you get into the store, you'll find bows are relatively inexpensive. Simple lemonwood items can be had for under $10, and the very best in laminated wood-and-glass are under $50.

Hunting arrows can be had for between $10 and $15 a dozen. Big game arrows will have broad razor-sharp heads with two or three blades. Small game arrows may be without barbs, or even completely blunt depending on concussion for effect. There are also special arrows for fish and fowl shooting.

Otherwise you'll need only a shooting glove to protect your tender fingers from the pull of the string, an arm guard to protect your arm from ditto, and perhaps a quiver in which to carry your arrows. After that, just find a place to pitch the tent where the scenery is favorable.

SALES RISE EXPECTED

NEW YORK — New Mexico and Arizona are among states anticipating above average retail sales in November, Sales Management Magazine has reported. The magazine predicted a two per cent rise to a $14,200,000,000 nationwide total.

Exercise Your Vote Tomorrow

IN A TELEGRAM to an Eddy county political official Friday President Eisenhower remarked that "It is unbelievable to me that good government cannot command as much zealous support as bad government commands opposition."
The president made that comment in regard to reports about complacency and apathy "toward this critical election."
Tomorrow is the day when we are given again the opportunity to express our will in the most effective way any nation has ever practiced: In the secrecy of the polling place.
By now most of us are certain as to the candidates we favor, and to our stand on the big $4½ million bond issue sought in behalf of the state's colleges and universities.
Our feeling has no meaning, however, unless it is expressed directly—and that means going to the polls.
There is no intention to preach or tirade here: We simply wish to remind everyone that from 8 a. m. to 7 p. m. tomorrow it's voting time in North Eddy county and across the United States.

Some Place for Voting Machines

CERTAINLY THERE must be some place in Artesia's voting division 6D where voting machines now housed in Veterans Memorial building can be kept from damage by the elements.
Both county officials and those in charge of the veterans building express displeasure with the present plan for housing the machines, which has not worked to the satisfaction of anyone concerned.
On one hand the county feels the machines have been ill-housed and ill-cared for, exposed to dust and rain when the machines require the most delicate care. On the other hand, veterans' officials feel the machines cannot be properly stored in their building, and should be housed elsewhere, or other arrangements made for their between-election storage.
Everyone has felt too favorably toward the installation of voting machines to go backward to hand ballots once they have experienced ease, privacy, and accuracy of voting by machine. No one wants the machines to be pulled out altogether for use elsewhere and paper ballots substituted.
Perhaps the housing of the two machines in division 6D would make a highly worthy project for a patriotic organization—one of the veterans groups or another group concerned with such matters.

over the effectiveness of strenuous last-minute campaigning by Eisenhower and the depth of penetration of what the Democrats called "Red smear" charges against some of their candidates.
From the White House tonight Eisenhower will beam a television and radio (Mutual-ABC) appeal to the voters to march to the polls. He will be joined by Vice-President Nixon, cast by the Democrats in the role of chief campaign author of the Communist-in-government issue. Nixon speaks from Denver. The program is scheduled for 7 p. m. MST. For the West Coast, the program will be rebroadcast three hours later.
Stevenson, the 1952 Democratic presidential nominee, who has said Eisenhower has joined in a GOP chorus on the issue of domestic communism, speaks by radio (CBS) from Chicago.
His talk is scheduled for 8:15 p. m. MST.
Democrats busied themselves with what National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell called a "walk-athon" in an effort to counter the "10 times 10" telephone drive initiated by Eisenhower Saturday.
Democrats were urged to walk to the homes of 10 neighbors and ask them to vote. Republicans were asked to telephone 10 friends and urge them to go to the polls.
There was no accurate indication of the effectiveness of either campaign, despite claims of widespread success. Telephone companies generally reported normal traffic, with increases in some areas.
Democrats conceded privately that they had been hurt in some critical races by the charge that many of their candidates were "left wing."

Democrats

The candidates trooped back to Albuquerque today for the final bid for Bernalillo county votes. The Democrats prepared their last-minute speeches and statements. Natalie Buck, candidate for secretary of state, issued a statement promising a speed-up in the printing of legislative session laws if she is elected.

SIMMS ATTACKED The Republicans for having "failed utterly in their obligations of leadership." "I predict with all confidence that on Nov. 2 the Democrats will win from top to bottom."
Simms said the Democrats "have the wholehearted support of thousands of persons all over the state, who like yourselves, believe in the principles we stand for." He said the work of Democratic party workers is "showing tremendous results."

"We have an honest, straight-forward program and platform," he said. "We have a truly outstanding group of candidates. We have conducted an honest, dignified campaign based on issues, not personalities."
Anderson struck back at his opponent, Gov. Edwin L. Mechem, who has accused the senator of being a "global four-flusher" and neglecting the state's interests.

MY LEGISLATIVE program is not one in which every bill bears the label: For New Mexico Only, because that represents a limited viewpoint which screens out many of our problems," Anderson said.

He declared the state cannot live in isolation from the rest of the world. What happens in Asia, he said, "has as sure an effect on the residents of Taos or Las Cruces or Clovis as on the people who live in New York or Los Angeles."
