SPRINKLER IRRIGATION engineer Bill Hardwick of the Smith Machinery Co. in Roswell "cranks up" the desert irrigation system on the Paul Horney farm in Yeso. (Advocate Photo)

Sprinkler Irrigation Makes Desert Bloom on Horney Ranch at Yeso

EVAN MAHANEY can imagine a 40-acre tract in the middle of the desert, with tall, green wheat and barley standing against the gray, drab sky of prairie land—defying the drought. "Let's investigate sprinkler systems." Then the inspiration came. "Let's investigate sprinkler systems."

PERHAPS TWO MONTHS before Horneys thought of sprinkler irrigation for their land, an enterprising machinery company owner looked into the future, deciding New Mexico would one day irrigate all its land by sprinklers. So Smith Machinery Company in Roswell, with offices in Lovington and plans for expansion into Artesia, hired an irrigation expert who specializes in sprinkler systems. He was Bill Hardwick, "perhaps the bestest friend we've ever had," according to Horneys.

FATHER AND SON team, the Paul Horney family, took the first step to prove the use of sprinkler irrigation in New Mexico, where they had a system installed on their 38-section dry land ranch. (Advocate Photo)

Hardwick went to work at the Horney farm, for this rig had to be a special one, a system that could withstand the mighty gales of the dusty prairie, and provide maximum watering at minimum cost. While Hardwick supervised the well digging and testing, Horney pushed the stubborn cedars from the arroyo. He didn't burn them, but turned a one-time enemy into a gratifying servant. The dead cedars were banked on each side of the arroyo, and now serve as a wind breaker and wild game refuge.

Between a slide rule and the common ordinary tape measure, Hardwick came up with the Horney irrigation system. It's a hard, long and bumpy dirt road to the ranch, but a few weeks later a semi-truck arrived at the ranch with enough aluminum pipe, it seemed, to water the whole 38 sections. In the meantime, a pump and industrial motor had been installed at the well.

Horney is a 20-acre section, 660 feet wide and 1,320 feet long. His system is able to water 40 acres. Every hour, the ground being touched by the spray of water receives an even 32/100 inch of water, or two inches every six hours, under 40 pounds of pressure from the pump, with a drop perhaps of two pounds at the end of the line.

ON THE FULL SYSTEM are 44 sprinklers each on a six-inch riser. Horney moves his system every six hours, and can figure on distributing an even two inches over the whole 20 acres every 15 days—which is "mighty good pasture moisture."

This progressive rancher, who has been on the same ranch for 13 years, says the draw in which he now has his well and sprinkler system runs about two more miles in his land. "I plan," said Horney optimistically, "to continue drilling wells and installin' waterin' systems right on down the draw." He's even got a plan for the free-flowing water. According to Horney, he will never need to keep his well running on a 24-hour, 30-day basis. "Therefore," he explains, "I can mighty good right now." It's still New Mexico desert prairie land at the Paul Horney farm in Yeso—but if you ever drive through that part of the country and come upon a draw filled with rich, green barley—don't think your eyes are playing tricks on you. Just remember a progressive farmer and an energetic, optimistic sprinkler engineer put their heads together and decided to quit waiting for the drought to break. Like they both said, "This is th' land of opportunity—'cept you gotta make the first opening to let opportunity in."

State's Senators Support Censure Of Joe McCarthy

WASHINGTON (AP)—New Mexico's two senators supported the censure of Sen. McCarthy and opposed the proposed substitutions that preceded the eventual censure vote. Sen. Anderson steadily voted against the Dirksen, Bridges and Mundt amendments, all of which were rejected. Sen. Chavez voted against the Bridges and Mundt amendments and was listed as not voting but opposing the Dirksen amendment. On the censure motion itself, which passed 67-20 censuring McCarthy on the first count of the report, Anderson voted for and Chavez was listed as not voting but for censure.

New KSVP Spanish Director Born, Reared in Madrid

New director for Spanish programs at radio station KSVP is Manuel Labastita, who in addition to being adept in his profession is something of a cosmopolitan figure. He was born and reared in Madrid, Spain, but received his education in Mexico City. He has done extensive radio work in both Mexico and the U. S., but also owns a plastics factory in Mexico City, turning out toys and other items. He's also a graduate engineer. Manuel and his wife, Kini, now live in Roswell, where he does a morning Spanish-language program for radio station KBIM. Monday through Saturday he does an hour-long Spanish language program, from 4 to 5 p. m. for KSVP in Artesia. Saturday mornings he also does a 15-minute program, Notes and News, from 7 to 7:15. Manuel has been in the U. S. for the past six months, coming to New Mexico a month ago. His brother-in-law is Spanish director for station KOAT, Albuquerque.

Bathing Suit Preview

COVERED-UP LOOK... High-necked swim suits wear in Carolyn Schnurer's current resort collection. Sketched above by AP artist Sylvia Robbins are a black pique suit with high neck and white pique dickey and a black velvet suit, high in front.

By DOROTHY ROE Associated Press Women's Editor Having gone as far as the law allows toward bare minimums, bathing suits and beach wear for the resort season of 1954-55 and for the next summer will be modestly unrevealing. Bathing suits with camisole tops and even high necks are featured in the current resort preview by Carolyn Schnurer, a designer who usually sets trends. The star of her collection is the "straphanger" swim suit, a striped knit maillot with halter top. She shows black satin suits with suspender straps, just like Pop's galanes, and teams them with tailored sheer black organdie shirts, for a touch of glamor. A black velvet suit comes to the collarbone in front, has straps in back to keep the situation under control. A few strapless suits are included in the group, but the emphasis is on the covered-up look. Probably the most startling swim suit in the showing is one of black pique with a high neck and white pique dickey—prim as a starched shirt front. In her collection of dresses for resort wear, Miss Schnurer shows the "sheath plus"—line sheaths with removable pleated tunics which may be worn either apron style or as a cape. A white lined sheath embroidered in green shamrocks is teamed with a simple white linen coat, with dramatic effect. This designer interprets the new silhouette in a series of closely fitted long-torso cottons, hugging the figure to the hipline with pleats below. She also shows a group of effective embroidered linen sheaths cut on Chinese mandarin lines, which lend themselves well to the current silhouette.

JUNIOR HIGH NEWS—Tunnell Room Wins Honors In Attendance

The percentage of attendance has been computed from Oct. 25 to Nov. 19 and the result for the eighth grade was 94.9 per cent and for the seventh grade 94.7 per cent. Sank Tunnell's homeroom won the pennant for the best attendance with 98.2 per cent; Miss Sanders' homeroom was second with 96.6 per cent; and Mr. Robinson's homeroom was third with 96.4 per cent.

JUNIOR HIGH students will attend the matinee performance of the Winter Frolics at 2 p. m., Dec. 8. Grade school students are invited to attend this matinee also. Price of admission is 20 cents for students.

THE NEXT national assembly program, sponsored by the Student Council, will be Dec. 7, at 9 a. m. At this time authentic European folk dancing, with music and beautiful costumes, will be presented by the Galati duo. Bob Galati will perform the famous Cossack Sword dance.

THE CURRICULUM committee will meet the night of Dec. 7 to study further the Junior high curriculum for next year. This committee, composed of faculty members and lay people, is working to increase the number of subjects offered to seventh and eighth grade students and to prevent overlapping between Junior and Senior high school subjects.

BECAUSE OF the extensive construction being done at Junior high, the safety committee is faced with the problem of finding space for playing on the school ground. Students have begun to congregate at the front of the building where they have become a traffic hazard. Principal Don Riddle urges parents to help him solve the problem by keeping their children at home in the mornings until 8:45 and in the afternoon until 12:45. Students are asked to cooperate with the school by staying at home until the proper hour and by going to the back of the school building to play.

Era of Color Booms in Home, Wardrobe

By VIVIAN BROWN AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor This is the era of color in your wardrobe and in your home. So no girl should look like Miss Paleface, 1954. Many girls look wan and old-fashioned (to say nothing of twice their age) because they skip that basic ingredient for complexion beauty—a blush or bloom on the skin. Sometimes all makeup is left off because of sensitive skin. But the girl who doesn't wear powder or lipstick because it's irritating is just as old-fashioned as the lady who freezes in winter because wool makes her itch. There are substitutes for everything in this day and age. Chemists are always busy at work compounding new formulae to please the supersensitive. The girl who finds that ordinary foundation creams bleach her skin, doesn't need to go barefaced these days. A new smooth liquid containing a lanolin derivative that is non-sensitizing comes in all the luscious complexion shades from misty beige and peach to rosebud and deep blush. Ditto lipstick and powder. Lipsticks come free of lanolin and drying wax compounds. Mascara is water-resistant but contains no irritating soap, grease, oil, dye or emulsifier. Face powder is clear of orris root, starch, aniline dyes, a joy for sinus, asthma and hay-fever sufferers, according to the chemists. It is available loose and finely ground or pressed in compact form. Users claim these cosmetics do the job. One girl points out that the colors are just as pretty in these special cosmetics as the regular kind, although she thinks the addition of perfume does help to give a feminine lift to beauty products. She says: "I walked around like a ghost for a long time before I took a chance on these special preparations. Any persistent person may find as I did that once you get over the idea that these are special preparations you get the same results, plus the fact that colors are just as pretty as in ordinary cosmetics."

If you have skin that reacts quickly to soap and other preparations, it is wise to consult a dermatologist. Sometimes just one ingredient is responsible. Once that problem is solved it is simple to find the right cosmetics. The manufacturer of products mentioned in this column is Almay.

Gutenberg Press Used in Filming 'Martin Luther'

The original Gutenberg press on which the first Bible was printed, used in making "Martin Luther," Louis de Rochemont Associates' half-million dollar feature film, which opens at the Ocotillo theater in Artesia Saturday. Scenes showing Luther's famous 95 Theses being run off, were photographed in the Museum at Mainz, Germany, where the historic press is on permanent exhibit. Niall MacGinnis, distinguished British actor who was formerly with the Old Vic Theater in London, portrays the title role in the film. "Martin Luther" takes the 16th century monk from his early days in an Augustinian monastery, through his defiance of excommunication and the stake in his demand for religious reform, to his final victory at Augsburg, when he learns that the Evangelical princes have stood by him in their convictions.

Grace Kelly Finds New York Fans Are Polite—They Try

By CYNTHIA LOWRY AP Newsfeatures Writer

Miss Grace Kelly of the motion pictures is spending a two-month holiday in New York City, and to date some 30 taxi drivers have merrily informed her that she looks like Grace Kelly.

One, however, took a second look and amended his comment: "No, I see now you're prettier than Grace Kelly."

She has found, however, that New Yorkers generally are fairly polite.

"They don't come up and ask for your autograph," she remarked. "They just wonder out loud if you're Grace Kelly, and look you over rather closely."

Miss Kelly, who will be 26 next month and has become a popular star on the strength of a few movies, a tidal wave of publicity and ecstatic comments by such colleagues as Clark Gable, James Stewart and Bing Crosby, is a member of the new school of movie stars, which includes Audrey Hepburn. Miss Kelly, for instance, won't allow publicity pictures to be taken in her small Manhattan apartment. While she doesn't duck interviews, she approaches them with considerable reserve and caution and she doesn't talk much about herself.

During this vacation, Miss Kelly allowed she is doing a lot of little things she had to put off when she was working from dawn to dusk.

"Like shopping, seeing my family and friends and some shows," she said.

Has she found people have changed since she turned into a big-time movie star?

"Oh, yes," she said. "I meet people here that I met before two or three years ago. And when we're introduced, I try to say, 'Oh, yes, we've met before,' but they always say no, they've never met me."

Another thing which is perplexing to Miss Kelly (even the press agents for her motion picture bosses call her Miss Kelly) is all the talk about her being so ladylike.

"I don't think I'm THAT different," she said. "I sometimes think they talk about that because there's not very much that has happened to me."

The star-making processes are strange. When her studio was get-asked her hobby. tting together a biography, she was "I don't think I have one," she said after a little thought. "But you've got to have a hobby," she was told, and after thought, she said, well, once she hadn't for a couple of years. "Sketching in pastels," the biographer says, is her hobby. Murmuring politely, Miss Kelly excused herself from the group and went on her vacationing way—a perfect lady and one who really doesn't talk much.

The answers to everyday Insurance problems! By DON JENSEN

Believing wholeheartedly in the philosophy that you have to "give" before you can "get" and believing also that in these days of complexities most people will be really interested in reading the solutions to their own and their neighbors' everyday insurance problems, we decided to try something a little different.

Beginning next week this advertising space will be devoted each week to a column of questions and answers on insurance problems which are common in the lives of all of us.

Frankly, this column will be in itself a form of advertising but the offer to answer your insurance questions without charge or obligation is genuine and has no strings attached. We'll really appreciate an opportunity to be of service to you.

"If you'll address your own insurance questions to this office, we'll try to give you the correct answers and there will be no charge or obligation of any kind."

"Able to See!"

It is God who "healeth all my diseases." At the divine touch of the "Great Physician," a man who was born blind was "able to see." He saw a new world for the first time... he saw good and bad. How much can you see? Your vision may be 20-20, but can you see the order and beauty of the universe in the star-lit sky? Can you see Him in the bursting rosebud and the ripening grain? Can you see the church on the corner? Can you always see the difference between right and wrong? Can you? If the scales have started to form over your eyes, if your vision for good things is getting blurred, you better stop in at church this week. You'll be able to see.
