East Coast Battens Down For Hurricane

Force Smashes into Carolina at 75 M.P.H.

The Associated Press Hurricane Ione flung her wrath into North Carolina today (Monday) and apprehension gripped the North Atlantic seaboard in the morning the New York City Weather Bureau predicted winds of hurricane force—75 m. p. h.—"very likely" to hit the Metropolitan Area. Meteorologists in other cities joined the grim and foreboding chorus. Adjectives like "severe," "dangerous," they forecast rain and abnormal tides as hurricane surged across the east coast and aimed at North Carolina. Hurricane warnings were ordered up from Wilmington, N. C., to Cape Fear, on inland waters along the coast, Delaware, Chesapeake Bays. The Atlantic was swamped by inches of rain in 24 hours. In the morning the Dredge Shoals lightship was torn by her mooring in raging seas. Crew of 16 was trying to keep her at its station. Along the coast the Navy ordered its ships secure or ordered to sea to escape an inevitable pounding. Air stations, too, were evacuated. Landings that gripped New Jersey, Pennsylvania, New York and the New England states grounded in vividly fresh experience. A month ago today, Hurricane Ione spread flood, death and destruction across the same area. Cleanup is still going on. The Red Cross today deployed disaster experts into the Carolinas. Pickett Repeats Charges of Utility-Controlled Legislature Highly Debated Amendment Six Goes to the Polls Tuesday

The Associated Press State Sen. T. E. Lusk, author of the bill, said in a Carlsbad talk at almost the same time that the proposal is being fought with "deliberate misstatements" and "incomplete information." The amendment will come up for vote with five others in a special election tomorrow. It provides for reorganization of the Corporation and Public Service Commissions, merging them into a single commission. The hottest debate over the amendment has been the opposition contention that its wording doesn't say how the commissioners would be named—whether by vote or by appointment. Pickett, who has been joined in his argument by U. S. Sen. Dennis Chavez, says passage would mean the Legislature could make the posts appointive any time it disapproves of what the commissioners do. Lusk said Sunday night that the measure "provides for a cleftive commission." He said this is written into the law. "Anyone who says otherwise," he said, "is making a deliberate misstatement."

He said he referred to companion laws which would become effective upon passage of the amendment. Sen. Clinton Anderson joined Lusk's forces Saturday with a statement that he believes the Legislature "can safely be trusted to see that the proper method will be used." He said that means election, as far as he's concerned. Pickett said it "is a yo-yo Legislature" which gave the people things, then took them away.

Cole Demands Prosecution Of Aid Frauds

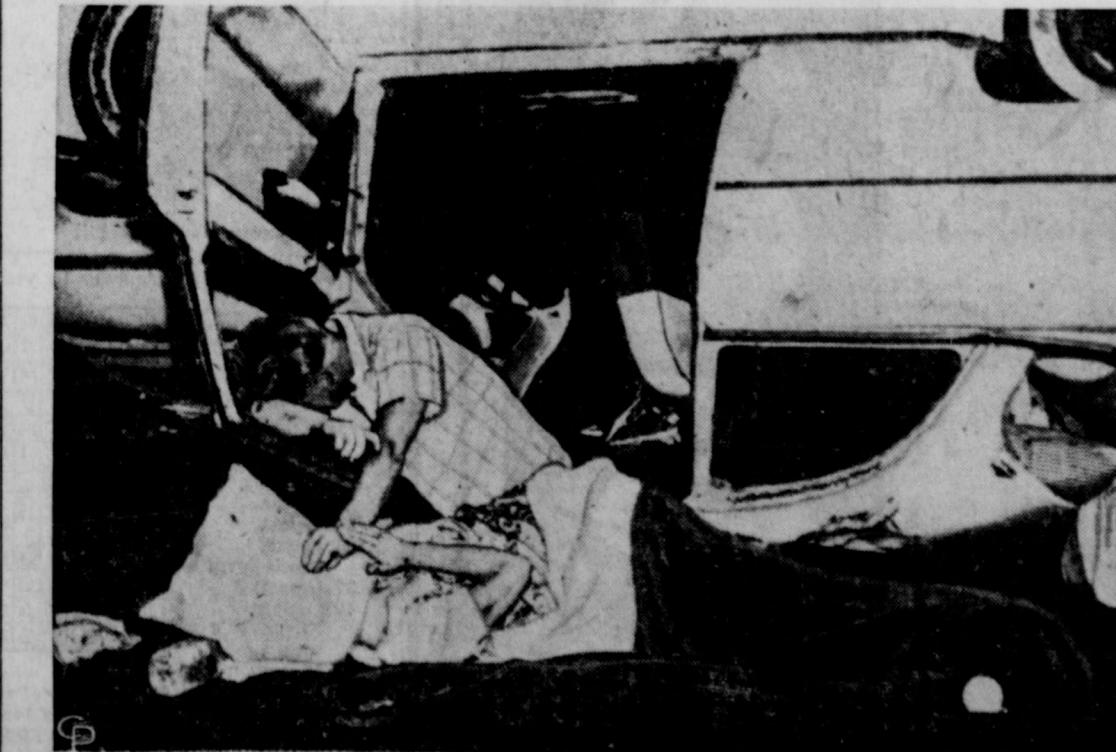

State Rep. Fred Cole today strongly condemned what he termed an overload of "free riders" on the state welfare system and called for felony prosecution of known chislers. The Artesia banker-politician detailed his views on the nine-point special session agenda set by Gov. John F. Simms and said that whatever the outcome of the session, he would be attending on a "no tax increase" basis. Cole, president of the New Mexico Bankers Assn., will miss the opening day of the session as he attends the American Bankers Association convention in Chicago. He will fly back to Santa Fe to be on hand for committee discussions due to begin on Sept. 28. He said that he "will have to be shown" on the need of the state welfare department for additional funds. And even though such needs are legitimate, Cole said, he will oppose any tax increase to meet the needs. He would favor transfer of cash from the general fund if it would tide the welfare department over the current emergency. But he was vigorous in his denunciation of chislers on the welfare rolls and said that many counties are carrying free riders who should be purged from the rosters. And he said he favored criminal action against any individuals who (Continued on Page Four)

British Diplomats Believed Turned Spies for Russians

LONDON (AP)—The Foreign Office said today it "must be presumed" that two missing British diplomats—Guy Burgess and Donald McLean—stole secret documents and turned them over to the Russians. A spokesman told a news conference a government White Paper will be issued on the case which has been kept hush-hush since the diplomats vanished four years ago. Breaking a long silence after the British press stirred up a furore, the Foreign Office admitted last night "we believe" Burgess and McLean were Soviet spies for years before their defection. The admission came after Vladimir Petrov, head of a Soviet espionage ring in Australia who defected to the West, wrote in the newspaper "The People that Burgess and McLean had been spies all the time they were in government service and skipped when they found out they were under investigation. On the basis of Petrov's evidence it is presumptive that they took away documents and that they might have been photographed and passed on to some one, presumably (Continued on Page Four)

Russia Demands U.S. Pull Troops Out of Europe

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union is wasting no time in renewing its call for American troops to quit Europe in the wake of Russia's promise to return the Porkkala naval base to Finland. Hard on the heels of Russia's concession to her Baltic neighbor, the Communist party newspaper Pravda commented: "There can be no doubt that the abolition by other powers of military bases on foreign territory (Continued on Page Four)

Reports Sweep Capital That Dictator Has Fled To Paraguay For Refuge

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 19 (AP)—President Peron and the entire Argentine cabinet have resigned, unofficial reports said today. Reports swept the capital that Peron has taken refuge in the embassy of Paraguay. There was no confirmation. There were other rumors that Peron already had fled to Asuncion, Paraguay. Peron had offered to resign, leaving the decision up to the army. The army in turn, moved to undertake peace talks with the rebel forces. Maj. Gen. Franklin Lucero army chief, named a group of generals to carry on negotiations with the forces that have waged civil war against the Peron regime for the past four days. Almost simultaneously, Santiago Cardinal Copello, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Buenos Aires, called on Argentina to work to restore peace through the nation. It was the first time any statement from the cardinal had been broadcast over the official radio since the controversy between the Peron government and the church broke out last November. Peron has been constitutional president nine years, and before that ruled the country as a "strong man" vice president. The dramatic speech was broadcast at 2:26 p. m. "I think that a dispassionate intervention to face the problem and resolve it is necessary," Peron said. The government had earlier offered to negotiate with the rebels, but the bid was refused unless Peron got out. The invitation suggested that the rebel leaders go to the war ministry in Buenos Aires for the (Continued on Page Four)

It was her 65th birthday. The Rev. Levi A. Lovegren of Cherry Grove, Ore., was the seventh American civilian freed by the Chinese Reds since Friday. Missing Miners Found Dead in Abandoned Shaft

GEORGETOWN, Colo. (AP)—Bodies of two Kansas uranium hunters were found early today in the black depths of an old mine where they hoped to strike it rich. An 11-man mine rescue squad found Glen Dew, 33, and Melvin LeBlow, 45, both of Ulysses, Kan., seated side by side against the wall of the tunnel. The bodies were 5,800 feet from the entrance to the long abandoned mine. The shaft was believed to extend only 200 feet deeper into the mountainside. Searchers said it appeared the men stopped for rest, pulled off their oxygen masks and died unaware of what was happening. There were no signs of struggle for a last breath. (Continued on Page Four)

Ring 'Insiders' Pick Marciano In Archie Go

GROSSINGER, N. Y. (AP)—A heavy majority of boxing's "insiders," the fighters, trainers and managers, pick heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano to beat Archie Moore in their title fight Tuesday night at Yankee Stadium. Some hedge somewhat by saying Moore will be "dangerous for five or six rounds" but if it goes beyond that it will be curtains for the 38-year-old light heavyweight king.

Manager Jack Kearns and ex-manager Tex Sullivan, now matchmakers at New York's St. Nicholas Arena, were the only ones of some 20 boxing men we talked to who pick Moore to win.

"Moore has a good chance of busting him up," Sullivan said. "He'll win if it goes all the way and he could take it by a kayo if he nails Rocky right."

"Archie will win after a rough, tough fight," said Kearns. "They'll both be on the floor before it's over. Archie will win on his superior boxing and experience."

"Rocky will wear that guy down until there'll be nothing left of him," said Abe Attell, a featherweight champion of long ago. "I've never seen any heavyweight who throws punches like Marciano does for 15 rounds. He's the most tireless heavyweight ever."

Harvie Ward Wins National Amateur Title

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 17 (AP)—Harvie Ward's nine-year quest for the National Amateur Golf Championship ended in success today when the young North Carolinian, near flawless and losing only one hole, smothered Philadelphia's William Hyndman, a 33-year-old insurance executive little known outside his own district, went eight-down at the end of the morning round when Ward, his irons blazing, shot around the James River course in 66, four under par.

The tall Philadelphian, disheartened and frustrated by bad putting luck, went to the first aid room for treatment of raw feet blisters and stinging, calloused hands then returned in the afternoon to make a stirring, but futile, run for it.

He went down at the 19th, the first hole of the afternoon and then, while writers were searching the record books for record one-sided defeats, rolled in a 75-foot putt from across the green. The crowd of 4,500 went hysterically wild.

It was the first and only hole Hyndman won but it gave him lift enough to match the mighty Ward

It's Almost Tumbleweed 'Harvest' Time on Western Dryland Farms

The plant is the tumbleweed—a joy to romping children, a ghost to a scary horse and a burden to dryland farmers.

Many billions of the weed are ripening in unused fields. High winds last weekend loosened a few million. They whipped across level ground until they hit a fence or other barrier and then they piled up. They buried the fence.

Sheltered lawns also were buried several feet deep.

Tumbleweeds range from knee to waist high. Their limbs grow into a light, ball-like mass of tough branches. They break from the ground easily and children like to race them as the wind rolls them along. A nervous horse shies away from them almost as fast as from a rattlesnake's buzz.

Where the weeds pile up, they can burn as if they were gasoline-saturated. If they're left along a fence row, winter winds bury them in silt and can completely cover the fence in dirt. Nothing less than a bulldozer moves them successfully. Soil conservationists blame things for the severe infestation dry weather in the early summer which caused fields to be abandoned for the season, and rain which nurtured the tumbleweeds. Elmer Kelton, San Angelo Standard-Times agricultural editor, has his own explanation: "The tumbleweed is nature's way of trying to provide cover bare ground. "Nature can't abide a bare spot and where man fails to cultivate removes the grass, the old steps in and puts tumbleweeds other weeds as her own conservation measure."

Uclan-Maryland Game Tops Week's College Battles

By ED CORRIGAN
The Associated Press
UCLA and Maryland clash in College Park, Md., Saturday in the college football campaign's first battle of the top teams.

Each has one game under its belt. UCLA, rated the No. 1 team in the Associated Press pre-season poll, defeated Texas A&M 21-0 last week, thanks mostly to the efforts of Ronnie (Fort) Knox, who tossed three touchdown passes.

Maryland, ranked fifth, had a rough time eking out a 13-12 victory over Missouri in its opener Saturday. The Terps were unimpressive fighting off the Tigers after notching both their touchdowns in the first half.

Pitt, apparently moving into the national spotlight again under new Coach Johnny Micheleson, polished off California 27-7 although it was a struggle for three periods. Pitt plays Syracuse Saturday in the TV Game of the Week.

Oklahoma, perennial champion of the Big Seven, will make its first start against North Carolina. If any other Big Seven schools were thinking of challenging the Sooners they've probably dropped any such ideas. Five of them played non-conference foes and lost.

Nebraska was upset 6-0 by the University of Hawaii. In addition to Missouri and Nebraska, Kansas was licked by Texas Christian 47-14; Wyoming shattered Kansas State 38-20, and Denver overcame Iowa State 19-7.

Michigan, potential ruler of the Big Ten, begins operations Saturday against Missouri, while Ohio State, which figures to provide the Wolverines' main opposition, takes on Nebraska.

Notre Dame plays Southern Methodist, while Army and Navy, both ranked in the top 10, play Furman and William and Mary. Miami, which suffered a 14-6 defeat by Georgia Tech in the NCAA TV Game of the Week, has an open date. Georgia Tech goes against Florida.

Southwest Buzzing Over Texas Tech Defeat of Texas

PHOENIX, Ariz., (AP)—Jack Kirkpatrick, Art Luppino and Dan Devine have proved themselves men to be reckoned with in the 1955 Border Conference football race.

Kirkpatrick firmly established himself as the No. 1 quarterback for the powerful Texas Tech Red Raiders by leading them to a sparkling 20-14 upset victory over Texas Saturday.

Hampered by injuries in his junior year last year, Kirkpatrick will get another stiff test this week when the Raiders tangle with tough Texas Christian at Lubbock.

Luppino, the nation's leading scorer and rusher last year, scored 14 points to pace the University of Arizona to a 20-7 triumph over Colorado A&M. The ace tailback and his mates visit Colorado at Denver this week.

Dan Devine, making his debut as head coach at Arizona State at Tempe, came up with a moral victory as his underdog Sun Devils tied Wichita 20-20. The Devils open their home campaign against Midwestern at Tempe this week.

Artesia Upset Throws State Dopesters Off

By ROBERT GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
New Mexico's Class AA high school football teams go rolling into their third week of the still-young season without a clear idea of which teams are the potential big guns.

Right now Farmington, Highland and Las Cruces are looking as good as any—but the East Side, normally the state's football hotbed, may come up with something.

The East Siders, however, had one of their most promising squads kicked off last week in what was the biggest surprise of the season so far.

That one saw Class A Alamogordo upset favored Artesia 21-6 in the top game of the week. With Artesia suffering at least a little from loss of face, Roswell, Artesia, Carlsbad, and Hobbs are looking for a chance to gain a little ground. Each of the four, however, has been beaten already.

Farmington leaped into prominence with a 20-0 decision over Santa Fe in the big schools' first district game of the season. The District 1AA victory leaves Farmington needing only a win over Valley of Albuquerque to make it to the playoffs.

The Scorpions will take a Cathedral of El Paso this week. Highland, the defending Class AA champion, has a game on with a potentially tough Clovis outfit in Albuquerque Friday. It's a dist. 2AA feud. Highland opens its season with an expected route of St. Mary's, 42-6 last week. Clovis, unbeaten in two starts, warmed up for the district game with an 18-12 victory over Tucumcari.

A couple of cross-town feuds completes the schedule for the northern teams this week. Albuquerque opens its season Saturday against Valley in a cross-district battle. The two teams fought to a scoreless tie in a Football Jamboree meeting before the season started. Valley opened its schedule with a 45-0 walk over little Menaul last week.

Probably the most important game down south—and one that could do something toward clearing up the confusion about which is the team to beat—in the Carlsbad-Las Cruces non-district match. Las Cruces has been quietly building an impressive crew down in the southern corner of the state.

but they haven't had a big test yet. The Bulldogs are unbeaten in two games, the latest a 39-7 rout of Class A Cobre.

Carlsbad, on the other hand, has taken two defeats. Both, however, have been at the hands of top-notch Texas teams. The latest was a 14-0 licking by El Paso.

Roswell, edged out 14-13 by Ysleta last week, has a traditional game on for Friday. The Coyes take on St. Mary's and are heavily favored. The Cougars haven't beaten Roswell in a rivalry that extends back about 20 years.

Artesia will attempt to gain back a little of the last prestige against Class A Portales in one that shouldn't be too tough for the Bulldogs.

Hobbs, joyful over the end of a losing string that stretched over 13 games and two seasons, will go against its third straight out-of-state competition. The Eagles take on Comahans, Tex., at Hobbs. Hobbs ended the losing string, one of the longest in its history, with a 9-7 victory over Duncan, Okla. last week.

Eisenhower Sparks Government Efforts To Find Room for Older Workers in U.S. Labor, Business and Industrial Economy

By NORMAN WALKER

WASHINGTON, (AP)—"We are going to have a revolution of old men," a visitor in Denver remarked the other day; and I am going to be in it."

The speaker was President Eisenhower. Although he was half joking it was the second time in a week the President had referred publicly to the growing employment problem among older folks. One way, in a Labor Day statement, the other during a tour of the new Air Force Academy at Denver.

Too many workers, Eisenhower said, are being denied jobs because they are 45 or older "and this waste of valuable skills and talents must be eliminated."

These are not mere offhand comments. The government has determined to do something about the older worker situation. It has obtained a special fund from Congress and mapped a detailed battle plan against the problem.

Life Span 69

The Public Health Service figures the average life span at the beginning of this century was 47, it's now 69, and by 1980 it will be 80 plus. In 1900 there were about three million individuals aged 65 or over, but this figure has grown to 12½ million today and is expected to exceed 18 million by 1980.

Secretary of Labor Mitchell, whose department is taking the whole matter quite seriously, says that by 1975 half the adult population will be 45 or older.

As Mitchell views it, either older people are going to be provided jobs so they may support themselves, or younger people will be saddled with the cost of taking care of them.

The Labor Department has set out to prove that whatever reasons there may have been in the past against hiring the older worker, they no longer exist.

The department says the nature of jobs have changed: Where considerable muscular strength once was required, the premium now is on qualities peculiar to the older worker: dependability, responsibility, judgment, breadth of experience.

Older Workers Skilled

The department contends, also, the older worker himself has changed—a man 45 has more youth and vigor because he has taken better care of himself, and has more skill and education than a person of the same age years ago.

Mitchell has launched a six-point program to combat age barriers in employment to answer these questions:

1. Is the older worker a good worker? The department says various studies already made by outside groups show he excels in many qualities. A study "broad enough to carry real conviction" is under way.
  2. Are pension costs an obstacle? Many employers shy away from hiring older worker in belief it will hike their pension plan costs. The department is consulting experts on how this obstacle can be handled.
  3. How have labor unions handled the aging worker problem? A study is being made. Some labor contracts require that employers hire a fixed proportion of older workers.
  4. How have employers dealt with the problem? Best examples of employer use of older workers are to be published and distributed to employers throughout the country.
  5. How can older workers be channeled to available jobs? An individualized placement service, designed to fit the right skill to the right job, is planned.
  6. How can women, once workers and now again seeking jobs after raising families, obtain retraining to fit them into the work force again? The department hopes to meet the teacher and nurse shortage in this manner.
- "Our aim," Mitchell says, "is to demonstrate that a worker should be selected for a job on the basis of ability and qualifications, regardless of age or sex."
- When facing blinding lights, some drivers close one eye and open it when the lights have passed, thus permitting quicker recovery of normal vision.

POLICE SCHOOL SET

ALAMOGORDO, (AP)—Otero County police officers go back to school Oct. 3 for a refresher course on good techniques and policies of law enforcement. D. A. Bryce, Albuquerque FBI agent, said the class will be sponsored by the Otero County Peace Officers Assn. It will be the second of a series of police training schools in the judicial district.

SEEK CLOVIS TV

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The Tele-communications Commission has asked the Communications Commission to reinstate a permit for a Channel 12 television station in Clovis, N. M. The request was made by Sid S. and Sam Pipkin. The original permit, issued in 1953, expired. Video and Independent Theaters, Inc., has applied for the Channel 12 station.

Although eggs are sold in cartons in most cities of the United States, shoppers in some cities, such as Mansfield and Columbus, Ohio, and Wichita, Kan., are apt to carry their eggs home in a paper bag.

TESTING YOUR SELF-RELIANCE

HAVE you your wits about you when under pressure? Let's see.

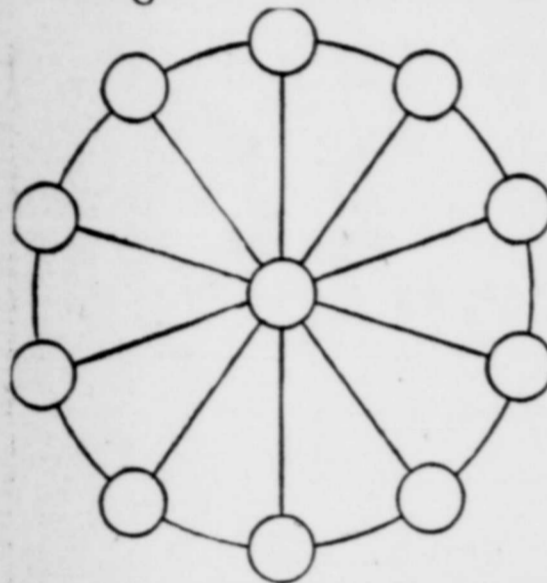

There's a frightened young man in the drawing at left who wishes to avoid being clawed by a lion. You can help him by doing one of five things suggested by objects in the drawing.

There's no time to waste, of course. Scan the illustration and draw your conclusion before the lion pounces.

Riddles

Q: Why is a policeman the strongest man in the world? A: Because he has a gun.

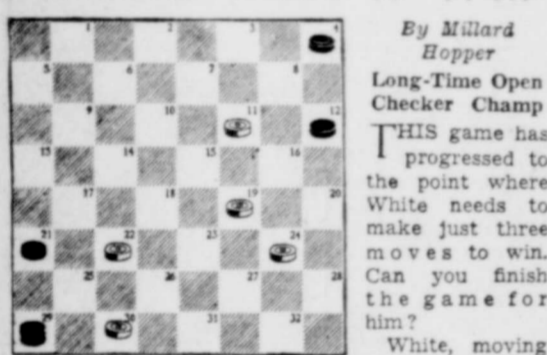

Going Around in Circles

HOW quickly can you place the numbers 1 through 11 in the small circles above so that each of the radial lines of three circles will total 14?

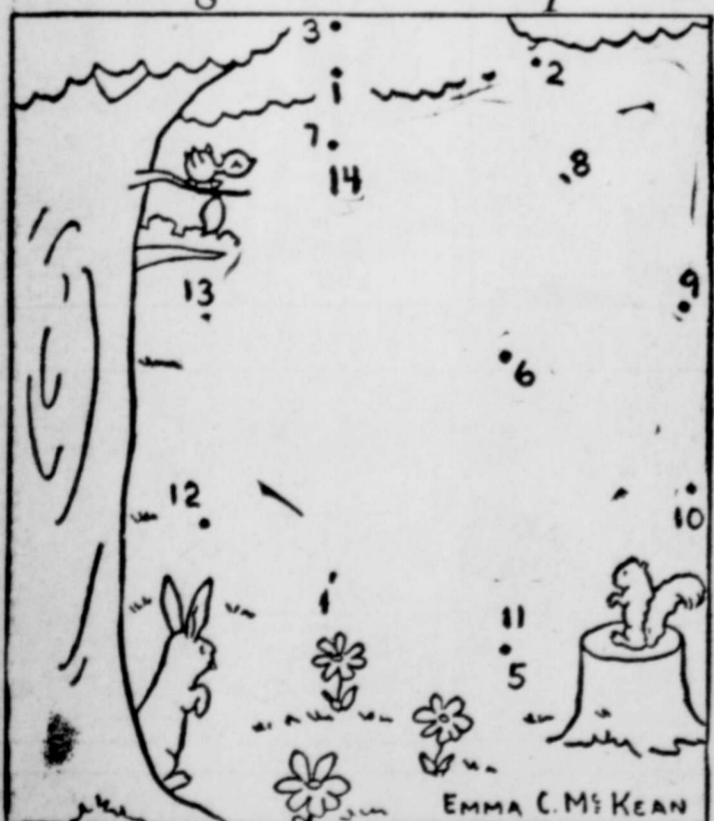

After you've figured this out, here's another poser: Rearrange the same figures, 1 through 11, so that the sum of each of the radial lines is 15.

It's Your Move to Win

White, moving up the board, moves first. He gives away a man on his first move; two men on his second.

Something New to Put Up With

IT'S hunting season and something new seems to have moved in on the wood creatures in the drawing above.

Memory Problem

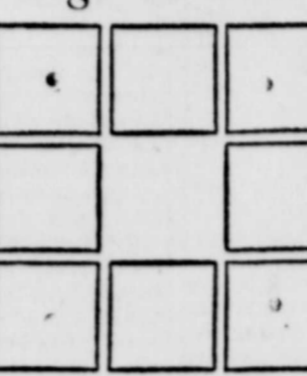

WHAT proves that George Washington had a good memory?

Puzzles and Pastimes

A Snaky Way of Doing Things

Pigs in Pens

PLACE the digit 2 in each of the eight boxes at the sides of this diagram. Leave the center blank. Now figure that you have two pigs in each of eight pens, or a total of 16 pigs, with six pigs on each side.

THIS snake seems to be all broken up over the fact that the tastiest morsel he can find is just out of reach.

Putting him back together again makes a puzzling pastime. Cut out the segments above and the egg that was the snake's prey. Place the egg at a spot on the table and, starting with the tail a foot or more away, reconstruct the reptile.

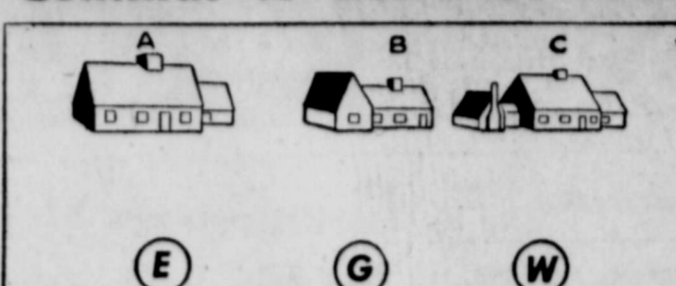

Another way to play is to make the snake proportionately larger in duplicate and place the pieces on the floor. Choose up two-man teams and see who can come closest in the shortest time.

Find the Number

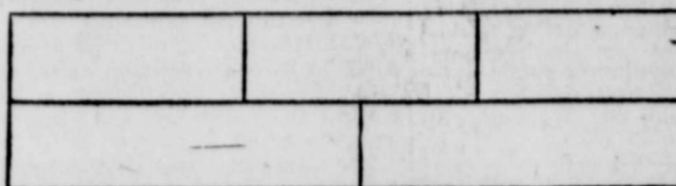

A CERTAIN number is composed of four digits whose sum is fourteen. The sum of the first two digits is the same as that of the last two figures. The sum of the first and fourth digits is four more than the total of the second and third figures.

These Continue to Drive Us Mad

SOME old puzzles, like old jokes, fade away for a time, then suddenly flourish anew. The puzzles at right are examples. Judging by the numerous and constant requests for information on them, these rank among the most enduringly popular and troublesome posers of our time.

The problem is to connect the three houses with electricity, gas and water (all three are to be connected to each house) from the outlets, designated E, G and W, without any of the connections crossing each other at any point.

The problem here is to draw one continuous line that crosses each different line composing this rectangular figure without crossing any of the lines twice. A solution for this bears the name of Leonard Euler, celebrated Swiss mathematician.

Diagrammed solutions for both posers appear elsewhere in page.

FUN BLOCKS

FUN BLOCKS contain words which can be broken down into other words without rearranging the letters. These words appear at the top of the blocks with every other letter in place. Solvers are asked to complete the words by filling in the missing letters.

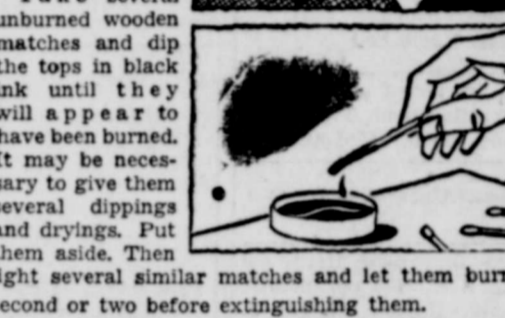

To do so, copy all letters now showing in the blank squares directly beneath them. With these letters in place, form as many words as you can by guessing letters for the empty spaces. When you think you have found a word, fill in the missing letter or letters and repeat in all boxes above and below. (All up and down rows contain the same letter.) All words of the completed Fun Block read across.

More than one answer may be possible for each Fun Block.

This's Done to a Burn

A BURNED match is not supposed to re-ignite, of course. It's easy to make one appear to do so if you know "black magic."

Take several unburned wooden matches and dip the tips in black ink until they will appear to have been burned. It may be necessary to give them several dippings and dryings. Put them aside. Then light several similar matches and let them burn a second or two before extinguishing them.

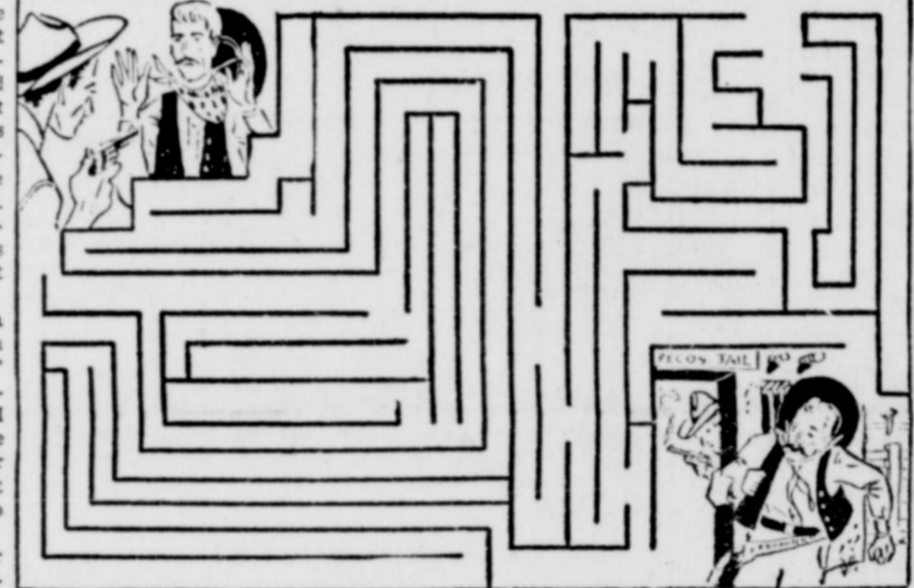

At an opportune moment slip several of the inked batch. When guests are sitting around smoking, pick up all the matches and offer a burned match to each of several persons, challenging them to light them. They'll probably laugh at the suggestion, of course. You'll have the last laugh when you show them how easily it can be done—with the inked match that you have prepared especially for the occasion.

Matter of Record

HISTORY students should get this one: Truman, Coolidge, T. Roosevelt, Arthur, Johnson, Fillmore, and others would qualify as members of an exclusive group of Presidents, but not Ike. Why?

HELP THE SHERIFF CATCH HIS MAN

WHEN bad man Pete Podres broke out of the Pecos jail, located in the southwest corner, there was a lot of speculation as to where he would head.

Nearly everybody's guess was wrong except Sheriff Martin's. Podres has a hideout over in Eagle Valley," the Sheriff revealed, "and I know a route that will either get me there first or enable me to surprise him."

Fun With Crypto-Crax

CRYPTO-CRAX are amusing quips or anecdotes presented in the form of substitution cryptograms. That is, each of the original letters has a substitute—the same letter replacing it throughout.

Phonetically Speaking

"MY family name," said Albert, "derives from a former trade of my ancestors. They were artisans whose employment was closely allied with that of cabinetmaking and carriage-making."
